Canada-U.S. Sign New Pact On Bases In Newfoundland

O'Dwyer Accused Of Helping New York Crime

WASHINGTON, May 1. (AP)—Senate crime investigators today accused Ambassador William O'Dwyer of contributing to the growth of organized crime in New York City, where, they said, underworld kingpin Frank Costello is a power in Democratic politics. O'Dwyer was New York's Mayor from 1946 until last fall when President Truman appointed him ambassador to Mexico. Referring to O'Dwyer's tenure both as mayor and district-attorney of Brooklyn, the crime committee had this to say in a hard-hitting report on its year-long inquiry of gangsterism:

"Neither he nor his appointees took any effective action against the top echelons of the gambling, narcotics, waterfront, murder or bookmaking rackets. In fact, his actions impeded promising investigations of such rackets."

The crime investigators, headed by Senator Estes Kefauver, (Dec., Tenn.), also said O'Dwyer had named to high public office friends of Costello and Joe Adonis, another big-time racketeer and gambler.

Strong Influence

"And after a lengthy detailing of Costello's alleged political manipulations, the Senate committee summed up in these words:

"It is apparent to the committee that despite Costello's protestations, his sinister influence is still strong in the councils of the Democratic party organization of New York county."

The report also asked Congress for a batch of laws aimed at throttling the country's big crime and gambling syndicates.

They said, however, that the primary responsibility for cleaning up the underworld rests with State and local officials.

The committee also recommended creation of a federal crime commission, and suggested action by state and local governments to break up underworld operations.

The committee said "the most shocking revelations" of its country-wide investigation, authorized by the Senate, were "the extent of official corruption and connivance in facilitating and promoting organized crime."

The Senators said they found this corruption and connivance at all levels of government—federal, state and local.

COMMISSIONER WOOD

Wood Resigns, Mounties Get New Chief

OTTAWA, May 1 (CP)—Canada's world-famous RCMP got a new chief today.

L. H. Nicholson, 46, director of criminal investigation since 1946, took over as commissioner from S. T. Wood, 61, retiring at his own request after commandng the force since 1938.

Appointment of the new chief, a native of Mount Middleton, N.B., was announced to the Commons Monday by Justice Minister Garson, who also made known other personnel shifts and a reorganization of the RCMP's administration and organization branch.

The enlarged branch, which has been given additional duties, is to be headed by Assistant Commissioner Josaphat Brunet, 49, now in command of "C" division with headquarters at Montreal.

Commissioner Nicholson's old job as chief of criminal investigation goes to Superintendent M. F. E. Anthony, 49, officer commanding at Toronto.

Other Changes

Assistant Commissioner Brunet will be replaced at Montreal by Superintendent Noel Courtois, 53 and a native of Montreal, who now is at Edmonton.

Superintendent Joseph Howe, 52, now at Halifax, will take Superintendent Anthony's place at Toronto.

Rescue Trio In Alaska Wilds

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, May 1 (AP)—A school teacher and two children, missing for eight days in their snowy Alaska wastes, reached Anchorage safely Monday.

The three—one of the trio is only six years old—told of subsisting for the better part of a week on meagre rations after making a forced landing.

They were Bert Gann, Bethel, Alaska, high school teacher; his six-year-old daughter, Linda, and Alex Hately, 16-year-old Bethel schoolboy.

Their only food when they made their forced landing consisted of a can of orange juice, a can of potato chips, a half sandwich, two packages of chewing gum and a candy bar.

Yet Linda, when asked what she missed most, replied:

"My Mommy."

Britain Warns Iranian Leaders

LONDON, May 1 (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison warned Iran today that Britain cannot accept the Iranian government's contention that the proposal to nationalize the oilfields is a matter solely between Iran and the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

The British government has the right to intervene, he said.

Morrison added: "We have no wish that this question should become an issue between ourselves and our Persian friends. We are naturally anxious to sit down with them and work out a solution in a reasonable atmosphere."

Ask Investigation Of Sault Police

SAULT STE. MARIE, May 1—(CP)—City council Monday night decided to ask the Attorney-General to investigate administration of the Sault police force.

A motion to leave the investigation in the hands of the city's police commission was turned down

The resolution was passed after an hour-long discussion of conditions leading to the resignations of five constables in the last four months.

Mayor C. Herb Smale told council he had wanted an investigation of police departmental relations for some time, but had been unable to get it through the commission, of which he is a member.

Friction has been growing between junior and senior officers recently, he said.

Ask Volunteers Combat N.Z. Industrial Strikers

WELINGTON, May 1 (Reuters) —The New Zealand government today called on all able-bodied men to join a civil defence force to combat industrial strikers who are "trying to overthrow orderly government by force."

Prime Minister Sidney Holland made his appeal as a dock workers' strike dragged through its 10th week. Beatings and the dynamiting of a coal district bridge have added to the tension.

Holland said the country's industrial crisis has taken "a dramatic and grave turn." He urged loyal citizens to register for an emergency civil organization, and said a similar call might be issued to women.

"A very determined effort has been made to overthrow orderly government by force," he said.

At the same time it was announced that police in Auckland, the main trouble centre, would be strengthened.

Holland charged that a small but powerful group had "declared war" on the people by calling the dock strike in protest against a wage award.

The Longshoremen's Union was dissolved by the government, which appealed to the men to form new organizations.

Holland said "a new and desperate situation" has led to the blowing up of the railway bridge near Auckland and the "beating up and bashing into unconsciousness" of Raymond Seton Belsham, president of Auckland's new waterside union.

Man, Wife Found Shot In Dwelling

Two Small Children Fast Alseep, Girl 2 Plays In Boat

LUDGATE, Ont., May 1. — (CP) — A young married couple was found dead from gunshot wounds on Monday night in a two-room dwelling in this tiny Northern Ontario community 56 miles north of Parry Sound.

One theory attributes the death of Patrick James Newton, 26, and his attractive 23-year-old wife, Bernice, to murder and suicide. Provincial Police have launched an investigation.

Newton had worked since 1948 as a Canadian National Railways section hand in this bush country district five miles south of the Pickerel River. Both he and his wife were born and raised in this area and Mrs. Newton went to school at nearby Pakesley.

The body were discovered by Richard Bergeron, Newton's section foreman on the CNR's Toronto-Winnipeg line.

Newton had not reported for work Monday.

Playing In Boat

Bergeron said he saw Judy Ann Newton, 2½, playing alone in a rowboat on the Key River in front of the Newton home. She was paddling the boat with her hands.

Thinking the child might topple into the water. Bergeron picked her up and carried her to her home. He found the front door of the little frame cottage locked, but the back door was ajar. He pushed the door open and saw the bodies.

Newton, in underclothing, lay on a couch, the lower part of his body covered with a quilt. He had apparently been sleeping when a shotgun blast struck him in the head. Asleep beside him on the couch was his four-year-old son, Orville.

Chiang Pledges To Rescue China

TAIPEH, May 1 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek today urged workers in Communist China to revolt and promised "in the near future I shall come to your rescue and deliver you from your suffering."

The Chinese Nationalist leader's declaration was made in a May Day message.

He charged the Chinese Reds had "sent workers by thousands to Siberia to work as slave laborers for the Soviet imperialists" and "they have also sent laborers by the thousands to Korea to serve as cannon fodder for the Soviet imperialists."

Chiang called Mao Tse-tung, Red chairman, and Gen. Chu Teh, Red military chief, "the common enemies of all China's workers."

"They have both lost their reason and sanity and have sold not only their country but also the laborer," he continued.

He exhorted workers to expand underground activities and to sabotage the Communists' mobolization and production machinery.

Scores Of Firemen Fight $200,000 Fire

TORONTO, May 1. (CP)—A three-alarm fire which swept through the four-storey O'Cedar of Canada building late Monday night caused $200,000 damage and minor injuries to six firemen.

Nearly 20 engines and scores of firemen battled the blaze for more than two hours. Firemen wearing smoke masks perched precariously atop aerial ladders as they fought to bring the fire under control.

Hundreds of spectators lining the streets were ordered back when firemen feared heavy explosions from the building — where wax and polish are manufactured.

Heavy, choking smoke from the burning materials hung over the area, at times completely obscuring the burning building.

A family living across the street were evacuated by firemen for a short period, but their home was not damaged.

ROBERT A. VOGELER (centre) 39-year-old American business man, is embraced by his wife, Lucille (right), 34, and her sister, Pia Eykens, after he was released from a prison in Communist Hungary. At right background is Vogeler's youngest son, Billy, 9. Vogeler was released from prison after serving 17 months of a 15-year term on espionage charges on Saturday, April 28. His plane stopped at Sydney N.S. today en route to New York.

Commonwealth Division Set Up In Korea

OTTAWA, May 1 — (CP). — Defence Minister Claxton today announced that Canada's 7,000-member 25th Brigade group will see action in Korea as part of a Commonwealth Division to be established there under a United Kingdom commander.

The division, first of its kind, will be known as the "1st (Commonwealth) Division, United Nations Forces." It will be commanded by Maj.-Gen. A. J. H. Cassels, a seasoned officer formerly with the British Seaforth Highlanders.

Canadian ground troops will make up one-third of the fighting force, which likely will run to about 21,000 men.

Mr. Claxton said the move was taken after consultation among Commonwealth countries as a means of simplifying administration and command in that war theatre.

Some Canadian officers, he added, will get divisional staff appointments. He did not elaborate on this point.

To Keep Command

However, it appeared without doubt that Brig. J. M. (Rocky) Rockingham, Canadian Brigade commander, will continue to command his Brigade.

The Commonwealth Division, added Mr. Claxton, has been approved by the United Nations unified command.

Besides the 25th Brigade, the Division will include these other units: The British 28th and 29th Infantry Brigades, the 3rd Battalion of the Royal Australian Regiment, the 16th New Zealand Field Regiment, and the 60th Indian Field Ambulance unit.

The bulk of the Canadian Brigade now is on its way to Korea to join the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, which already has distinguished itself in Korea.

Judge May Lose Job For Too-Stiff Term

BOSTON, May 1 — (CP) — A judge who sentenced a man to 16 years in jail for using an automobile without authority may be removed from the bench.

Attorney-General Francis E. Kelly said Monday night he will recommend removal of 86-year-old Judge George B. Sears following a lawyer's charge that a man was sent to jail 16 years ago "without rhyme or reason."

The man, Robert P. Tardiff, has been a prisoner since 1934.

Workers and Reds Stage May Day Peace Parades

LONDON, May 1. (CP)—Communist and anti-Red workers in Asia and Europe today staged rival May Day peace parades. But in Korea a furious United Nations air, land and sea barrage denied Chinese Reds the celebration they planned for Seoul. In divided Berlin, in Communists and those opposing Paris and in major Italian cities them vied for attendance of the workers on Europe's traditional labor day. Both groups keyed their rallies to a peace theme.

In Korea, where Communist armies had hoped to celebrate the international holiday with a reentry into the battered old capital of South Korea, Allied firepower appeared to be forcing the Reds to shift their offensive toward the centre of the peninsula.

Makes Rare Appearance

In Moscow, for what was expected to be the biggest May Day celebration, Generalissimo Stalin made one of his rare pubic appearances. He joined other Kremlin officials atop Lenin's tomb in Red Square to view a march past of Soviet military might.

Marshal A. M. Vasilevsky, Minister of War, delivered the keynote address. He attacked "American imperialists," who he said were preparing a new war, and added that the Soviet people always could rely upon the Soviet army and fleet as prepared to fulfil their duty.

In Berlin a pro-Western throng of 600,000 massed in the Platz Der Republic to hear speeches by American and British labor leaders. A mile away in the Russian zone 300,000 more trooped to a mass meeting under Communist banners. Except for brief scuffles, there was no violence.

Life in Paris slowed to a walk as bus, subway and taxi men obeyed union orders to take the day off. Most cafes and bars were closed. Newspapers did not publish. The rival rallies were under the banners of the Communists and of Gen. Charles De Gaulle's rightist political group.

Quiet Holiday

About 10,000 Italians gathered at Rome's ancient Colosseum for a Communist - sponsored rally. Non - Communist unions also held a rally, but most Italians celebrated the holiday quietly.

Divided China saw rival chiefs of state take part in May Day feasts.

The victorious Communist, Mao Tse-tung, watched 750,000 marchers in a parade six miles long, Peiping radio said. There was dancing in the streets.

Chiang Kai-shek, on his island outpost on Formosa, had a parade a mile long. Twenty-thousand persons turned out to hear him urge liberation of the mainland from "Communist slavery."

Britain's small Communist party planned rallies in London.

Mayor Carries Feud Farther

ORILLIA, May 1 — (CP) — Mayor Wilbur M. Cramp carried his feud with Police Chief W. G. Garson further at a special council meeting Monday night when he asked for suspension of the Chief.

He charged the Chief with six breaches of the local police regulations, alleging shortcomings in law enforcement, discipline, knowledge of regulations, area jurisdictions, courtesy to council members and newspaper publication of information detrimental to a person about to go on trial.

The Mayor has himself been charged with assaulting a police officer, arising from a police station incident during the arrest of a local druggist on a liquor charge. He will appear in court May 11.

Alderman J. William Clarke, chairman of the council's Police Committee, refused to take action on the Mayor's demands for the Chief's suspension and an investigation of the police force by the Attorney-General's Department.

Eden Attacks Labor Policy

LONDON, May 1 (CP)—Anthony Eden said today that Labor government policy—not stockpiling by the United States—brought Britain to her present acute shortage of raw materials.

"The United States built up its stocks of raw materials," the deputy Conservative leader told the House of Commons, "while we were accumulating gold."

Opening a debate on a Conservative motion critical of Labor government dissension over the British rearmament program, Eden accused Prime Minister Attlee and his cabinet of "a complete and absolute lack of foresight or action."

Aneurin Bevan, who resigned as Minister of Labor 10 days ago, asserted then that the rearmament plan cannot be carried out. He charged that the U.S. is hogging critical materials.

Eden said U.S. stockpiling had actually declined since the fighting in Korea began last June.

Ottawa To Contribute $500,000 To Fund

OTTAWA, May 1 —(CP)—The government plans to contribute $500,000 to the work of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, the external affairs department announced today.

Of the amount, a maximum $210,000 will be in the form of Labrador salt codfish, which is under government price guarantee.

The department said it will shortly seek approval of parliament for the contribution.

Continuation of the children's emergency fund for a three-year period was approved by the UN General Assembly at its current session.

Stole Flowers And Lassoed Grave Crosses 2 Teen-Agers Nabbed By Police After Chase

KITCHENER, May 1 (CP)— A series of petty vandalisms at Mount Hope Cemetery here came to a wild finale Monday when two 'teen-age boys were apprehended in neighboring Waterloo.

They were caught in a friend's home after a chase by Sgt. Ed. Wick of the Waterloo Police Department and Wilfred Meyer, Kitchener cemetery superintendent.

The boys admitted they recently stole fresh flowers from graves and presented them to their High School teacher. They cut guy ropes from tents covering graves and used the ropes to lasso crosses and other ornaments off the top of tomb stones.

Glass flower jars and metal lodge emblems had been broken throughout the cemetery.

Mr. Meyer spent several nights in the cemetery trying to catch the culprits. Monday he decided to wait in daytime. The boys arrived at 12:30 p.m.

What punishment the boys, 15 and 16, will receive has not been decided.

Say Agreement Modifies American Jurisdiction Over Four Military Camps

St. Laurent Announces Dominion Plans To Broaden Anti-Spy Laws. For Protection of Allied Forces In Country

OTTAWA, May 1. (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent, announcing a Canadian-American agreement on US military bases in Newfoundland, said today Canada is going to broaden her anti-espionage and anti-sabotage laws for the protection of Allied forces serving in this country. He told the Commons the agreement itself meets "most of the specific requests the Canadian Government originally put forward" in arguing that with the absorption of Newfoundland by Canada, there should be certain modifications in US jurisdiction over four military bases established under a 99-year lease signed in 1941.

But Mr. St. Laurent said, the results will be broader than the agreement. They will include five legislative measures or bills to be placed before the Commons. Four of them will apply to U.S. forces and forces of other allied countries in Canada.

One clause of the agreement is that "the Canadian government will seek legislation to protect security interests of the U.S. forces in Canada as required under the bases agreement."

Two Measures

As a result of this, Mr. St. Laurent said, two measures will be placed before the Commons. One will be a bill along the lines of the Official Secrets Act, the sweeping anti-espionage law under which 10 Canadians were sent to prison in 1946 and 1947 for spying or conspiring to act illegally for Russia. The Prime Minister said this new bill will be for the protection of allied governments.

This indicated legislation will be broadened to cover espionage or associated activities affecting allied units or troops stationed in Canada. The maximum penalty under the act is 14 years.

Say $100,000 Fortune Hidden In Old House

VICTORIA, May 1. (CP) — A fortune in excess of $100,000—the hoard of an aged recluse—may be concealed in a ramshackle home in neighboring Saanich, it was disclosed Monday by an estate administrator.

The solitary home, surrounded by a 17-acre orchard and weed-ridden gardens, was the retreat of Leonard Leney, 71, reputed heir of a wealthy English family, who died here recently.

Alan E. Bigelow, administrator of the estate, said there was a possibility that considerable money and valuables might be hidden in the junk-filled house. He added that a search of the home might be made before the estate is settled.

Leney came to Victoria 20 years ago and was comparatively wealthy at that time, Mr. Bigelow said.

Central Front New Target For Chinese

TOKYO, May 1—(AP)—Communist troops preparing for a new attack in Central Korea today cut off the water supply for rivers blocking their invasion route.

The Han River dropped so sharply that United Nations engineers had to adjust pontoon bridges three times Tuesday.

An Allied spokesman said the Chinese closed the sluice gates to the Hwachon dam in an effort to dry up the Pukha and Han rivers. That would make it easier for Red assault forces to cross.

Censors prevented corespondents from saying how much the river had fallen.

Simultaneously the Reds shifted their forces to the central front after massed Allied artillery, naval guns and record swarms of planes disrupted their plans for a May Day assault on Seoul.

Ominous Build-up

AP Correspondent Nate Polowetzky described the build-up of Red forces along the Chunchon-Hongchon invasion route as ominous.

Korean Warning Given 4 Yrs. Ago

WASHINGTON, May 1 (AP)—Lt.-Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer advised President Truman nearly four years ago that Korea was threatened by a "Soviet-controlled invasion of North Korean forces."

This was disclosed today with release of the top-secret report on Korea that Wedemeyer submitted to Truman September 9, 1947.

Wedemeyer advised against US removal of its forces from Korea, pointing out that the Russians dominated North Koreans through Communists.

"There is considerable unrest in South Korea," the report said, "but forces available to General Hodge are adequate to cope with it and to maintain order, though completely inadequate, even with maximum assistance from General MacArthur, to meet Soviet-controlled invasion of North Korean forces."

Canadian Prime Minister Takes Over New Quarters

OTTAWA, May 1 (CP) — The Prime Minister and his lady take up housekeeping in new quarters today.

After nearly 10 years of apartment life in the capital, Prime Minister and Mrs. St. Laurent formally take residence in the dignified mansion overlooking the Ottawa River and its tree-studded valley.

They become the occupants of No. 24 Sussex Street, site of the first official home of Canadian prime ministers.

Their new home is a three-storey, many-roomed residence on the fringe of fashionable Rockcliffe and a stone's throw from the gates of Rideau Hall, official residence of the Governor-General. It is on a four-acre lot atop a limestone bluff overlooking the river and the Gatineau Hills in the distance.

In status, No. 24 Sussex Street will be comparable to London's 10 Downing Street and Washington's White House. Owned by the state, it will be the official home of the prime minister, regardless of party, and the place where he will receive nd entertain visitors from abroad.

Once the home of an Ottawa Valley lumber king, it was bought by the government and converted and furnished as an official residence at a cost of approximately $500,000. At his own request, Mr. St. Laurent will contribute $5,000 a year towards upkeep.

The residence contains a spacious drawing room, an equally-large dining hall and a commodious library. There are 14 main rooms, including guest bedrooms, in the main section of the house and five staff bedrooms as well as staff sitting rooms, kitchens and stock and other rooms.

The grounds, now in the process of landscaping, feature maples, oaks and other trees native to Canada. Flowers, shrubs and hedges are being planted by government workmen.

Later this month, they will receive members of parliament and the parliamentary press gallery in a formal house-warming.

Pats Taken Out Of Line After Battle

Stopped Red Troops Last Week Northwest of Kapyong

(Editor's Note: Bill Boss, Canadian Press correspondent with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in Korea, discloses in this first cable from him to pass through censorship in four days that the unit he is covering is out of the immediate front line after suffering low casualties in last week's fighting.)

By BILL BOSS

WEST CENTRAL SECTOR, Korea, May 1. (CP)—United Nations mountain fighters successfully held up the Chinese and North Korean offensive in their small sector last week at a cost of eight dead and 21 wounded compared with at least 150 enemy casualties.

These troops, who on Monday were resting in the sun on the north bank of an important Korean river, held the Communist forces northwest of Kapyong last Tuesday and Wednesday. In withdrawing, they occupied two other mountain positions straddling the Chunchon-Seoul highway.

In these last two positions, although within artillery range of the enemy, the line ahead of them held and they were not engaged.

The first of these positions was a road junction near Chongpyong, 35 miles northeast of Seoul. The second was near Masogu, 25 miles northeast of the South Korean capital.

(These were the first locations of the unit other than "west central sector" since Boss' first report of the Communist offensive last Tuesday.

(Censorship forbids mention of Canadian forces or naming the Patricias or any individuals in the unit.)

Dig In In Rain

The troops dug in in a drizzling downpour which during the last two days surrendered to brilliant sunshine, enabling them to dry their clothes and bathe in the river flowing by their present location.

Monday they continued resting at this location.

(Boss' cable indicated that the troops on Thursday and subsequently moved into two successive positions back of the front line and out of contact with the enemy. It does not state specifically when the troops he is covering were pulled out of the line nor when the reached their last-mentioned location by the river.)

Any idea that the Korea front is "bugging out" would be contradicted by a visit to this cheerful camp, where the soldiers, over their beer, swap yarns of the battalion's nights of battle a week ago which yielded almost 150 enemy bodies—North Korean as well as Chinese—in its area for eight of its own killed and 21 wounded.

Jewels Easier To See But Harder To Steal

LONDON, May 1 (AP).—Starting today, the Crown jewels of the Royal family will be easier to see but harder to steal.

The jewels — crowns and sceptres, orbs and plate—have been in hiding for 10 weeks while engineers rigged up a new display case for them in the jewel house of the Tower of London. Bars formerly in front of them have been removed, and there are only two panes of glass between the visitor and the fabulous wealth in gems.

But between the glass is a constant screen of subtle rays which set off many alarms if any one tries window smashing.

Order Hearing If Called Reds

WASHINGTON, May 1 (AP).—The Supreme Court lashed out at the United States Government Monday for branding organizations as Communist without a hearing. It threw a legal cloud over the government's listing of 159 organizations as subversive, until the charges are proved.

But, by a tie vote in another case, the court upheld the right of the government to fire, without a trial, an employee suspected of disloyalty.

By a five-three vote, the justices ruled organizations listed as subversive by the attorney-general must be given the right to a hearing. Each of the five in the majority wrote a separate opinion.

Four accused the government of violating basic rights in denying such a hearing. Two of the four declared the entire government loyalty program is unconstitutional; the others didn't rule on that point.

24 Cases Of Mumps Reported In April

Twenty-four cases of mumps were reported to the Department of Health during April. However, while mumps showed an increase, other communicable diseases, which have been prevalent during the winter months, declined.

In a junior grade at Confederation school 11 cases of mumps were reported. These broke out shortly after the Easter holiday when the school had just recovered from an epidemic of measles.

In April there were 105 cases of measles and the total for the year is 1,529, which is 79 more than the previous high in 1949. The epidemic reached its peak in February when there were 875 cases. During the past month 20 cases of chicken pox were reported. There were also two cases of scarlet fever and one of whooping cough.

What Is Being Done To Prevent Fires?

OTTAWA, May 1 (CP) — Gordon Fraser (PC-Peterborough West) asked the government Monday what it is doing to prevent fire losses at military bases. He said three fires at the Petawawa, Ont., army camp in six months are reported to have cost $300,000.

Defence Minister Claxton said the estimate was not accurate. He didn't however, give another.

He said defence officials feel they are doing all possible in the way of fire prevention. It would cost the department $30,000,000 to cover all existing buildings with fire-resistant paint. It had been decided this would not be an economic move unless fire losses ran to more than $7,000,000 a year.

Fire-resistant paint was used where feasible on new buildings.

Relief In Sight For Flooded City Residents

Relief is in sight for flooded residents in Peterborough's south end district for water levels in the Kawartha lakes region are beginning to show signs of lowering.

The Trent Canal department said today that Little Lake is now dropping at the slow rate of two inches a day. Also the rate of flow over the Auburn dam which reached a peak this year of more than 12,000 cubic feet a second is decreasing. On Monday the rate was still high but dropped from 11,800 cfs. on Sunday to 11,400 cfs.

Rice lake, which reached its highest level over the weekend, 12 feet five inches, today began to lower slightly, a half-inch. During last week the level rose daily until Sunday it was 12 feet four inches, about three feet above normal.

Cottages and cabins are surrounded in all tourist parks along the south shore of the Gore's Landing vicinity. In Herald's Camp the cabin floors are covered with eight inches of water and the road covered so deep that a rowboat is necessary to reach the boathouse.

Pier Covered

The Rice Lake Boat Works power shop had to be abandoned temporarily, the water covering the floor. The Gore's Landing pier is practically covered. Damage is considerable to shore property.

Stony Lake is now at its highest level for this spring, 11 feet two inches. Other lakes such as Buckhorn, Pigeon, Balsam and Scugog all recorded drops Monday below spring peaks from one to four inches.

Charles Hurst, Trent Canal engineer, said the district watershed of 7,200 square miles was saturated and water ran off quickly into the rivers and lakes causing a slight rise.

Mr. Hurst said that the Gull river at Minden was still high Monday and the peak is expected today or Wednesday.

An unofficial report from Minden blaming the flood on the high water levels maintained during the winter was denied emphatically by the Trent Canal department. It reported that the situation was just the opposite until the April rains.

The small amount of snow on the watershed caused the department concern early this spring and it looked at first as though there would not be enough water for the year.

The new commissioner, who started as a constable in the Mounties in New Brunswick 28 years ago, has served since then in the now-disbanded New Brunswick and Nova Scotia provincial police forces and in the Canadian army.

He was an inspector in the Nova Scotia police when it was absorbed by the RCMP in 1932, and he shifted to the Mounties with the same rank. During the Second World War, he served overseas with the Provost Corps, emerging in 1946 as a colonel. Since then, he has headed the CIB here.

Retiring Commissioner Wood, born in Napanee, Ont., has been 38½ years with the force. His father was an assistant commissioner, and one of his sons, John, is with the RCMP.

Prices Show Drop On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, May 1 (CP). — Prices turned downward from earlier gains as the session progressed on the stock market today.

Industrials eased slightly in fairly mixed trading. Refining oils, banks, retail stores and agriculturs showed a majority of losses.

Steels managed a small advance and papers, utilities, constructions, foods, liquors, textiles and manufacturing companies were about evenly mixed. Most price changes were in small fractions.

Consolidated Smelters jumped $1 in an otherwise little changed and mixed base metal group. United Keno Hill and Quemont advanced fractions.

Western oils eased quietly.

McIntyre added $1 to lead senior golds slightly higher. Secondary golds were mixed and quiet with little change.

The woman, fully clothed, was slumped beside the stove. She lay on her face, with the barrel of a 12-gauge shotgun beneath her head and at right angles to the body.

In the other room, eight-month-old Wayne slept peacefully in his cot.

No Shots Heard

Police said preliminary investigation had turned up no one who heard the shots fired.

Newton worked at Mowat, about two miles south of here, but made his home in Ludgate.

Neighbors said Mrs. Newton had been in ill health for some time. Their information lent credence to a police theory that she shot her husband then turned the shotgun on herself.

Gerald Wright, superintendent of the Burwash Industrial Farm near Sudbury and one of the first officials on the scene, said the two-room dwelling was "in beautiful shape inside." He added that Mrs. Newton "kept a tidy place."

Say Agreement

The second bill would extend the Criminal Code for the protection of property of allied forces. This would provide penalties for sabotage affecting allied forces here.

Useful Measures

Mr. St. Laurent said the measures to go before parliament will be found "useful and possibly necessary measures to enable Canada to discharge obligations under the North Atlantic Treaty."

(There are 12 countries in the treaty. Forces of a half dozen of them now are serving in Canada.)

As for the agreement itself, Mr. St. Laurent called it "a reasonable compromise in an admittedly unprecedented situation."

He pointed out that, in strict legality, the U.S. did not have to modify one bit the 99-year lease negotiated with Britain while Newfoundland was a colony. But the U.S. was accustomed to treating Canada with something that went beyond strict legality and had done so again.

The four bases are the Pepperell Air Force base near St. John's, the Harmon Air Force base near Stephenville, McAndrew Air Base and a naval base at Argentia.

Conditions Changed

Canada's argument was that conditions which might have been all right while Newfoundland was a colony no longer were right when Newfoundland became part of a sovereign country, Canada.

The new agreement will "constitute a modification of the leased bases agreement," Mr. St. Laurent said, and meets the recommendations of the joint Canada-U.S. board on defence. It falls under four main headings — income tax, customs and excise, postal privileges and jurisdiction of U.S. courts.

Under jurisdiction of the courts, this part of the recommendation covers four matters:

1. The U.S. waives all rights of jurisdiction, permitted under the bases agreement, over British subjects and over aliens other than U.S. citizens.

2. The U.S. suspends for five years exercise of rights of jurisdiction over U.S. civilian personnel and all other rights conferred by the bases agreement, subject to revival in event of war or other emergency.

3. The Canadian government will seek to amend the visiting forces act to permit of compulsory attendance of witnesses at U.S. courts-martial.

4. The Canadian government will seek legislation to protect security interests of U.S. forces in Canada, as required under the bases agreement.

Iran Nationalizes UK-Owned Oil Industry

TEHRAN, Iran, May 1 (AP)—Iran Monday night nationalized its giant British-owned oil industry—the world's largest producer — but Premier Mohammed Mossadegh gave little indication how he plans to run the $500,000,000 industry.

The Senate unanimously ratified the seizure of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, sole developer of the rich oil fields in this strategic southern neighbor of Russia.

The nationalization, already approved by the Majlis (lower House of Parliament), becomes effective on promulgation by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi. He has no veto power.

"Praise God, Iran has regained her rights!" shouted Mossadegh, leader of the minority Nationalist group, which pushed the nationalization through parliament and seated Mossadegh in the premier's chair Monday.

Regarding future operation of the company, the premier said only that an 11-man board created by the act will serve at first only in a supervisory capacity—not as actual managers.

Presumably negotiations will be necessary to work out an arrangement for any British operation of the properties under Iranian supervision. In London, company officials and the British government, which owns 51 per cent of Anglo-Iranian, anxiously studied the situation. British Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd is expected to confer soon with Mossadegh.

Britain has protested that the nationalization violates international law.

The law provides for the nationallized organization to continue to supply oil to present customers, and to set aside 25 per cent of its profits to meet claims of the company.

There were not reports of ground action of any size on May Day either on the central front or in the west near Seoul, where the Reds had hoped to celebrate their international holiday.

Three Allied tank columns probed northeast of Seoul this morning in an unsuccessful hunt for Reds. Only a few bodies remained in one sector where 1,000 dead Chinese were seen Monday. Reds had removed or buried their dead during the night.

A censored dispatch from AP Correspondent George MacArthur said UN commanders estimated the main body of Reds still in the west was staying far enough north to keep out of range of devastating American artillery.

Quiet Day

So few targets were left within their range that Allied batteries spent a comparatively silent May Day after Monday's terrific barrages. The Red pull-back created a no man's land between the extreme range of UN guns and forward Chinese elements. Small advanced Red pockets were hit by fire bombs.

It was a different story Monday when the Chinese masses were threatening to sweep on Seoul.

Allied big guns in the Seoul suburbs pumped thousands of shells into the hills to the north. Warships off Inchon port laid down a heavy curtain of fire northwest of the old South Korean capital.

And Allied planes mounted "the greatest air effort of the Korean war." The US Air Force reported a record of 1,277 sorties "smashed a determined large-scale communist supply build-up."

Red jets made a brief challenge of allied war supremacy Tuesday. One was probably shot down and four were damaged.

Head For Home

The battle was fought over northwestern Korea between 25 Russian-made MIG-15s and 25 American G-86 Sabre jets. The Reds broke off and streaked back across the Yalu river to Manchuria. United States jets were untouched.

The allies lost two fighter planes Monday to ground fire.

Red ground forces had brought tanks and artillery down from the north to bulwark their planned May Day attack on Seoul. Seven tanks were hit.

United Nations scouting parties knifing through the hills north of the South Korean capital Tuesday, found no trace of large-scale mobilization needed for an attack on the city.

The nine-day toll of Reds mounted toward 75,000 casualties.

Behind the smoke screen of smudge pots, the Chinese appeared to be shifting their main force for a new stab over familiar battlegrounds. Their next blow might fall around Hongchon.

Make No Claims

One Red mortar company reached the north bank of Thehan roughly 15 miles east of Seoul, and began firing on the south bank. But even the Red radio at Pyongyang made no claims that the Chinese got closer than five miles to Seoul.

A message from Rear Admiral Lyman A. Thackerey's flagship Eldorado said the Reds might strike soon with the 3,000 planes they are reported to have available. The message said anti-aircraft guns of American, British and Korean warships lying off Inchon, Seoul's port, were ready for them.

From the central front, AP Correspondent George McArthur said the Reds are hungry, ragged, and short of supplies.

The respite was welcome to Allied fighting men.

In the lull, censorship was relaxed to permit correspondents to report it was the United States 1st Marine Division and the 27th Commonwealth Brigade that checked the crushing Red smash at the centre of the Allied line April 22 and 23.

Fighting Worse

One Marine officer, Lt.-Col. Webb D. Sawyer, of Alexandria, Va., said the fighting in checking the break-through by 140,000 Chinese was worse than anything the Marines saw in northeast Korea last winter.

High praise for the 27th Brigade came from John Castle, representing the U.S. embassy in Korea. The 27th, made up of British, Canadians, Australians and New Zealanders, plugged the Allied gap north of Kapyong in the centre when the South Koreans collapsed.

The 29th British Brigade took the full assault of another Chinese thrust on the west. One of its units, the Gloucestershire Regiment, was surrounded and hacked to pieces.

Castle expressed official condolences for the losses of the valiant fighting unit.

Commonwealth Brigade Plugged Hole, Stopped Reds

By JIM BECKER.

WITH UNITED STATES MARINES IN KOREA, May 1 (AP) —The war on the central frnt was going well Sunday, April 22.

A briefing officer at the 1st Marine Division gestured at the war map. He pointed to the arc north-west of the Hwachon reservoir, and said:

"The Chinese will have to stop us before we get to that high ground or he will be through in this sector."

At 8 pm. the Chinese proved they were not through yet.

The first blow of their counter-offensive on the central front was hurled at the lines of a South Korean division on the left flank of the Marines.

The entire division collapsed.

Poured Through

The Chinese poured thousands of men through "Break-through Corridor," and ripped into US and South Korean Marines on the right flank.

The South Korean Marines near Hwachon dam held firm throughout Sunday night and Monday. The US Marines budged not an inch.

By Monday noon it as obvious the Marines would have to pull back to cover the hole on their left flank. The Red tide had rolled 15 miles south along a 10-mile front, and it was fanning east and west.

The Marines and their Korean counterpart rolled with the mighty Red punch.

Meanwhile the Chinese continued to charge down the corridor. Stopping them became the primary military consideration.

Late Monday night, the 27th Commonwealth Brigade, which included Canadian, Australian, and New Zealand units, was placed squarely in the path of the Reds.

Tuesday morning, the Reds and the 27th closed in combat. Pressure on the Marines had eased considerably as the Reds poured artillery and mortars into the Commonwealth troops.

Stopped Reds

Grim-faced staff officers watched the progress of the Red drive. If the Commonwealth forces were unable to halt the Chinese, it was almost certain that the marine division would be surrounded and cut off from the western half of the United Nations front.

But the 27th stood their ground and stopped the Reds. They threw back wave after wave but never took a backward step.

While the 27th held firmly, the Marines completed their withdrawal to a line along the 38th parallel.

The first Chinese blow had been blunted.

Tuesday, the Marines and the 27th broke contact. They withdrew to defence positions on a line in the west.

The Reds were in no hurry to follow them.

Closed Hearing Planned For MacArthur

WASHINGTON, May 1—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur will tell his story to Senate investigators behind closed doors—unless the general himself asks a public hearing.

But a censored version of what MacArthur has to say—censored to prevent military secrets from leaking—will be released to the press after the general gives his testimony Thursday.

The Senate armed services and foreign relations committees voted this procedure Monday over Republican objections. They will hold joint hearings on MacArthur's dismissal from all his commands and on the host of foreign policy questions raised by his ouster.

MacArthur's spokesman, Maj.-Gen. Courtney Whitney, said MacArthur will respond to whatever request the committees make.

The hearings will bring to a climax the greate debate on how the United States should conduct the war against the Chinese Communists and erect barriers against further Communist aggression at the same time.

Sharp Division

Two architects of opposing policies, State Secretary Dean Acheson and Senator Robert Taft (Rep., O.), drew the line of conflict clearer Monday in speeches to the 39th annual meeting of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Taft called for a 500,000-man cut in proposed U.S. military manpower but demanded a more aggressive war in Asia.

Acheson claimed successes for his limit-the-war policy in Korea and said the best-chance of real victory lies in holding firm to that policy.

Taft blasted the present policy of neutralizing Chinese Nationalist forces on Formosa as complete nonsense.

Acheson contended that the present U.S. policy in Korea is demonstrating to the Communists that aggression cannot pay.

Dollar Unchanged

MONTREAL, May 1 — (CP) — The American dollar today opened at 6 23/32 per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, unchanged from Monday's close. That is it took $1.06 23/32 Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.98 13/16, also unchanged.

"I'm just going to the bank, Ann"

SHE'LL SOON be back — her cheque cashed, her deposit made, her bank book written up.

Mrs. Johnson's is one of the 3,200,000 new bank accounts opened during the past ten years. Like most people nowadays, she relies on her bank to safeguard her money; she expects her bank book to show how she stands; she finds bank cheques convenient to pay larger bills.

The chartered banks appreciate — and depend on — the confidence of depositors like Mrs. Johnson. For the money which Canadians keep in 8,000,000 bank accounts provides the basis for bank lending. Safeguarding these funds is the banker's first concern.

Ontario People Buy More Fluid Milk

TORONTO, May 1 — (CP) — Ontario residents bought more fluid milk, chocolate dairy drink and cultured milk in February than during the same month a year ago.

The Provincial Agriculture Department said Monday in its monthly dairy report that wholesale and retail sales of fluid milk totalled 34,031,100 quarts, last Fembruary at an average price of 19.3 cents a quart. This compared with the February, 1950, sales of 33,547,000 quarts at 18 cents.

Chocolate dairy drink sales totalled 947,500 quarts, compared with 600,500 quarts and cultured milk sales amounted to 374,000 quarts, as against 319,700.

During March, however, the output of butter dropped 17 per cent to 3,793,500 pounds, compared with production in March, 1950.

Wound Sergeant

ASMARA, Eritrea, May 1 — (Reuters) — Thirty armed shifta (bandits) wounded an American army sergeant last Sunday when they ambushed five American soldiers, it was learned today. Sgt. J. A. Cramer had his legs broken and his left side severely burned after a bullet hit the gasoline tank of his motorcycle, causing an explosion which set fire to his clothes and hair, the report said.

Lakeshore Police Cracking Down

CAMPBELLFORD, May 1 — (ENS)—A fine of $10 and $2.50 costs, seven days in the county gaol, and his car impounded for three months was the price paid by Roy Gardenier of Peterborough when he appeared in magistrate's court in Cobourg on Monday morning, charged with having liquor in a place other than his residence.

The charge arose out of an investigation by Provincial Constable Donald Erskine of Campbellford into the erratic wanderings of a car on town streets on Saturday night. Gardenier was arrested after police found the car mired in mud on a back street of town.

Police of the two detachments are cracking down on drivers on both back roads and highways, who persist in driving in a dangerous manner, and who mix gasoline with alcohol. While few charges have yet been laid, a warning has been issued to several motorists.

Fight In Hotel Brings Fines

Ross Chadwick, 18, R.R. 2, Ida, was found guilty in police court Monday on a charge of causing a disturbance in a hotel and careless driving, both on the same night and within 10 minutes.

He was fined $20 and $9.75 costs on the careless driving charge and $5 and $2.50 costs on the disturbance charge. His driver's licence was suspended for three months. A friend, Gordon Dunlop, R.R. 2, Ida, was also found guilty of causing a disturbance in the same fracas and was fined $5 and costs.

The disturbance was a scuffle with the husband of Dunlop's cousin, who is a hotel manager, or beverage room supervisor as he termed it.

Peter Moffatt, said that about 10.20 p.m. April 14 he walked into the beverage room and saw the two accused men with three others sitting at a table. He thought Chadwick looked under age and he told a waiter not to seeve the table any more beer.

Three Then Left

Three of the people at the table got up and left. The two accused stayed behind and went to another table. He told the waiter to ask the two men to leave.

Dunlop came over and asked him to light his cigarette but there was no fluid in his lighter and he was unable to give him a light. At that Dunlop became excited and started to swear n a loud voice.

Moffatt told the pair if they didn't get out he was going to call police and he walked ahead of them into the lobby where he told the clerk to phone the police station. As he did that, the two jumped him from behind. In the scuffle that followed, Moffatt was struck on the face by one of them.

Moffatt then decided he was going to hold on to one of them until police arrived. He grabbed Dunlop and with help held him. Chadwick got away.

The two accused said they were leaving quietly as they were told, but Moffatt barred their way at the lobby door. Dunlop said he might have pushed Moffatt to get him out of the way so he could leave, but both denied jumping Moffatt from behind.

Dunlops said he had just reached the outside door, when he was grabbed from behind and his coat was torn.

Accident Later

About 10 minutes later Chadwick was in an accident at Sherbrooke and Aylmer Sts. with a car driven by Raymond Cole, 17.

Cole said he was driving north on Aylmer St. When he was about 40 or 50 feet from the Sherbrooke St. intersection, he saw the Chadwick car approaching the corner from the east. He expected it to stop and continued driving on through about 30 miles an hour.

He said as far as he knew, Chadwick didn't stop and hit his car about the middle of the right side. His car continued on another 70 feet or so and swung completely around until it was facing directly south. He said $342 damage was done to his father's car.

Patrol Sergeant Claire McGillen said the Chadwick car left skid marks 21 feet six inches long, the right wheel mark being six feet south of edge of Sherbrooke St. The impact took place about 12 feet west of east curb of Aylmer St.

He said Chadwick had been drinking and "was in no fit shape to be driving a car." He said the front left fender, radiator and grill of the Chadwick car were damaged.

Chadwick said that witnesses in his car placed the speed of Cole's car at well over 30 miles an hour. He said he was not familiar with the city but that he was in second gear at the time of the impact. He did not see the stop sign at the corner.

Sugar Restrictions

Says Electric Shock Will Control Lampreys

WASHINGTON, May 1 (AP)—A United States government expert said Monday he is "optimistic" that electric shock will prove helpful in controlling the destructive Great Lakes lampreys.

Dr. James W. Moffett, chief of the Great Lakes fisheries investigation for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, testified before a House of Representatves merchant marine and fisheries sub-committee.

It is studying a bill by Rep. Charles Potter (Rep.-Mich.) that would authorize the government to spend $500,000 in 1952 on lamprey control measures.

Moffett said two electrical barriers have been built near Marquette and Roger City, Mich., in streams used by the lamprey for spawning.

Australian Democracy

Australia is a country with which we in Canada have much in common. It is linked with us in the Commonwealth, sharing to a great extent in our common heritage and traditions. It is a country of great natural resources and a comparatively small but expanding population. Like ourselves, Australia has a Federal system of government, and during the last few years under a feeling of greater national awareness the central authority has gained considerably at the expense of the States, which correspond in their system to our Provinces. It is strange, therefore, that we should know so little of a country with similar problems and a similar outlook to our own.

* * *

The Australian parliament, like our own, is composed of two houses, the House of Representatives and the Senate, but unlike our own the Australian Senate is not appointed for life by the Governor-General on the advice of the Prime Minister but elected under a complicated system of proportional representation. The last General Election, which was held in 1949, resulted in a victory for the Liberal-Country Party coalition over Labour, which had held office since 1941. The task of the new government, under Mr. Menzies, has not been easy, as the Senate was only partially affected by the election and Labour retained enough seats for a majority in the Upper House. Mr. Menzies introduced a bill to outlaw the Communist party which aroused a good deal of controversy in Australia. It was thrown out of the Senate at first, though eventually they agreed to pass it. However, Mr. Menzies, feeling that he had sufficient support from the electorate, decided to take advantage of a clause in the Australian constitution whereby if a general election is called to break a deadlock the whole of the Senate is also dissolved.

* * *

Results that have so far come to hand indicate that the Government majority in the House of Representatives will be slightly lower, but quite adequate. Counting for the Senate may take several weeks, owing to the mathematical complications of the system of representation: the Australians might well enlist the services of a "mechanical brain" to speed things up! At the moment it appears possible that the government may gain a majority of two seats in the Senate.

* * *

One of the electoral contests is being followed with especial interest. Dr. Evatt, former Minister of External Affairs and a prominent if unorthodox figure in the United Nations before the defeat of the Labour Government enforced his disappearance from office, is being opposed by Mrs. Nancy Wake, a heroine of the French resistance movement. Mrs. Wake was parachuted into France during the German occupation. Among many other exploits she killed a German sentry with her bare hands. In the 1949 elections she reduced Dr. Evatt's majority considerably. This time Dr. Evatt's position is even more delicate. As a lawyer he has been engaged by the Communist Party to challenge the validity of the new anti-Communist legislation before the High Court and won his case. The Communists are a tiny minority "down under" and have done badly in the Election, failing to win a single seat, but their influence in key positions in the Trade Unions has caused much concern. Doubtless Dr. Evatt used all his arts of special pleading on behalf of his embarrassing clients, but the latest position shows that if he gets in at all it will be by a very narrow margin.

* * *

Voting in Australia is compulsory for British subjects, and a fine is imposed on non-voters. We heard a case of a Canadian residing in Australia for two or three years who was prosecuted for failing to record his vote. It was only after he had been able to prove to the satisfaction of the court that he was only living in Australia temporarily and was due to leave for home shortly that the case was dropped.

* * *

It is refreshing in these days to be able to report the doings of a sturdy and vigorous democracy at the other end of the world, where issues are settled by ballots rather than by bullets.

The Rockefeller Foundation announces that it has granted $100,000 for the study of "body types" of university girls, judged by photographs. Save that money! We can give the results from personal observation, viz: Short and Fat 48.5 per cent.; Tall and Thin 48.5 per cent.; Reasonably Well-Stacked 1 per cent.

Untimely End

We deeply regret to hear of the death on Sunday of one of the most respected does of the Kawartha district. This doe had come to Peterborough to pay a call on her husband, whose stuffed head hangs in the hall of one of the houses of the most exclusive streets of the city and serves as a hatrack for its occupants. She had chosen to come during the closed season for hunting under the mistaken impression that she would have no difficulty in reaching the domicile of her spouse. Unfortunately for her the warm weather had brought out the cars like flies, and she was harried from pillar to post by the buzzing monsters.

Exhausted and battered she managed to reach the cloistered calm of Homewood Avenue, where she expired from a heart attack. We trust that intending visitors to our city will not be deterred from coming when they hear of her fate.

The Late Dr. H. J. Cody

The late Dr. H. J. Cody was prominent in many walks of life, but we think that he will be longest remembered as a true friend and guide of education in this province. It was not necessary to agree with all his opinions in order to recognize him as a man who had the broad concepts of education continually near his heart; it was not surprising that although his life was dedicated first of all to the Church of England, he was continually engaged in educational projects. He was minister of education in the Hon. Howard Ferguson's government of 1918-19; he helped to found Ridley and Havergal, two distinguished schools; he was associated for over thirty years with the University of Toronto, and was for thirteen years its president and for two years its chancellor. That university is in itself a monument to many devoted Canadians, and Dr. Cody among them.

When Does A Man Cease To Be Young?

Much of what we have read about the British budget makes reference to the youth of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Hugh Gaitskell. He is commonly referred to as "young Mr. Gaitskell," and one enthusiastic paper called him "the baby Chancellor." Upon investigation we learn that Mr. Gaitskell is forty-five.

This does not seem young to us. If Mr. Gaitskell were under forty we might think him young for a Chancellor, but by forty-five he ought to know how to draw up a budget, if he is ever to be possessed of that knowledge. By strict actuarial count, Mr. Gaitskell has a life expectation of twenty years. Surely he is middle-aged?

In politics, however, he is a young man. Now that private fortunes are uncommon, and taxes and the cost of living very high, really young men cannot go into politics. A man can only become a politician when he has amassed the means of livelihood at some other work. Among his Cabinet colleagues, no doubt Mr. Gaitskell seems a mere boy at forty-five.

An airman is beginning to feel his age at thirty. A philosopher may just be hitting his stride at sixty-five. A concert pianist shows really great talent, if he has it, by the time he is twenty, though a composer may not do first-rate work until he is Mr. Gaitskell's age. A boxer or a ballet-dancer cannot go on with his work much after forty. Sophocles wrote Oedipus when he was over eighty. A man's age depends to a great extent upon the work he does.

As a politician, then, Mr. Gaitskell is a young man. To get together enough money to afford a career in politics, and to gather enough experience to be worthy of a Cabinet post, may well take a man until he is forty-five. To his fellow-politicians, in their sixties and seventies, Mr. Gaitskell must appear as a promising lad.

Death Of America's Best-Fed Baby

Thirty-eight years ago there was a lively campaign for better laws respecting the purity of food and drugs in the U.S.A.; one of the leaders in the campaign was Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the Department of Agriculture's bureau of chemistry. As a means of proving his assertions about pure food Dr. Wiley fed his infant son, Harvey W. Wiley, Jr., on a special diet of ground cereal; he was known as "America's best-fed baby." He died last week at the age of thirty-eight.

This proves nothing against scientific nutrition, or the desirability of pure food. It does prove a point which needs support at present, viz., that good food and good living conditions do not in themselves guarantee long life or happiness. We still do not know why people die, some of them young and some of them old. Life is still a mystery, and when we are tempted to think that we have probed all the secrets of the universe it is well for us to recall that fact.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Why do people gamble?" asks a contemporary. We have the answer: they hope to win.

A deep sea diver has written a book about his experiences. Advising young men, we presume, to begin at the bottom of the ladder and stay there.

The Epic of the Gloucesters

from
FRANK ROBERTSON
In Taegu, Korea

THE truly epic story of the Gloucesters who heroically fought the Chinese for eighty hours, most of the time surrounded and without food or water, can now be told in part.

It is a grim and tragic story, but it is one that undoubtedly will illuminate the history of British valour in arms.

The battalion of the Gloucester Regiment was holding hill positions overlooking the Imjin River flanking the Northumberland Fusiliers, when the Chinese attacked soon after nine p.m. on Sunday night in bright moonlight, wading across the shallow river by hundreds.

A forward patrol emptied all its ammunition in the advancing enemy, then withdrew to the main positions.

The Communists pressed the attack throughout the night, coordinating their movements with echoing bugle signals and shouting battle cries as they charged up the slopes directly into the British positions.

Before the night was over they had occupied high ground on two sides of the battalion positions within machine-gun range.

The Gloucesters held firm and at 8.30 on Monday morning the enemy withdrew, leaving hundreds of dead strewn on the battleground.

* * *

MONDAY was fairly quiet, but at 4.30 that afternoon the Chinese cut the road behind the Gloucesters. The battalion was then surrounded and continued to be so.

That night the moon was late in coming up and the Chinese hit heavily under the cover of darkness. Again they were beaten off, but they came again before dawn and once more first light showed enemy dead everywhere, sometimes in groups that amounted to piles.

Since the battalion was surrounded, with Chinese occupying high ground on every side, all units were consolidated on the rugged steep-sided hill that dominated the terrain in that sector. They dug in and waited for night. Men who came through the battle said the hour of dusk was the worst. They knew what to expect and were ready for it, but most of the men found the hour or so of half-light bothersome and a little unnerving.

Since the supply echelon was in the rear and because regrouping under fire had caused some units to leave behind their rations, the men already were beginning to feel thirsty and hungry. The hot sun, swirling dust clouds and tense mouth-drying hours of battle aggravated their thirst.

Light spotter 'planes came over on Tuesday night and dropped some supplies but there was only enough for one can of rations for each man—and that was all they were to get.

* * *

ALL this time the battalion was receiving superb artillery support from their own and American guns. Morale was high, and it was buoyed by the knowledge that a relief column was attempting to break through.

Night came at last on Tuesday and it was a terrible night. The enemy attacked more ferociously than at any time earlier, but the Gloucesters held their position and gave out more than they received. On this night in particular the enemy used hundreds of phosphorus grenades, and their machine-guns were seldom silent.

An hour or so before dawn the Chinese signalled a heavy attack with the wailing notes of dozens of bugles. The Gloucesters had an answer. Their Commander ordered a bugler to sound a "Reveille" and the terribly tired, gaunt men in their holes responded magnificently to the defiant notes of the battalion bugle.

* * *

BY Wednesday morning it was clear enough to the men on the embattled hill that relief was unlikely, (this correspondent had accompanied tanks of the Tenth Hussars that attempted unsuccessfully to get through on Tuesday afternoon.)

The companies were ordered to fight their way out if possible. The commanding officer, padre and medical officer stayed with the wounded.

Captain M. G. Harvey of Portsmouth, who commanded one company in the temporary absence in Japan of the company commanding officer, Major W. Wood, got through with some men.

Wood, incidentally, heard the news of the offensive upon landing in Japan. He turned back immediately and led a patrol in an unsuccessful attempt to rejoin his company.

Faced with the prospect of getting what remained of his company out through territory strongly-held by the Communists, Harvey decided on a bold stratagem.

Instead of striking out for the Allied lines he headed north deeper into enemy country.

The stratagem worked. He and his dead-tired men encountered only two very surprised Chinese in three miles. Their surprise was terminated with bullets.

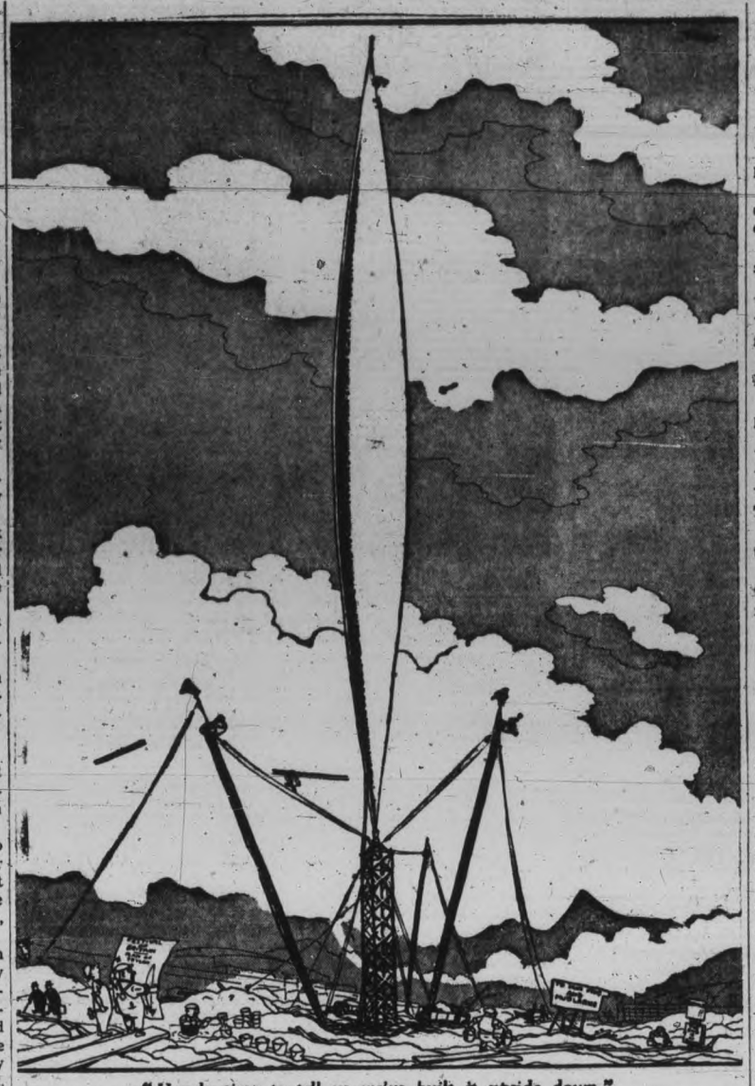
Harvey then led his men west and south towards United Nations positions, using all available cover.

* * *

FOR the last mile and a half they crawled along ditches under fire from hills on both sides of the valley by as many as thirty or forty machine-guns. It had been agreed before starting that there could be no stopping to care for wounded. When the ditches ended the men had to race across open ground through murderous crossfire.

As they drew close to friendly country they came under the fire—naturally enough—of American tanks. At length they made their identity known, the tanks switched their fire to cover the last frantic dash, the men piled onto the tanks and fought their way back over the last bit of disputed ground to blessed safety.

Throughout the engagement the Gloucesters' morale reflected the greatest credit to British arms. They had been promised relief but it could not be given them. They stayed to fight knowing this and up to the last their radio communications with the Brigade were jaunty, unflurried and self-assured.



Today Captain Harvey, a bespectacled, scholarly-looking young officer who surprisingly holds the black belt for proficiency in Judo, remarked that his men were magnificent in battle. His men think rather more than that of him.

Letters To The Editor

SAYS REPORT BIASED

Sir: I take this opportunity to express my regrets on the manner in which the Waterworks meeting of Wednesday evening last was reported. The reporter seems to have missed the temper of the meeting entirely and has given a confused report of an important discussion. The statement that Mr. Walter Thompson is affiliated with a Crown Company is an excellent example in point.

It is not my intention to contradict the reporter but I stoutly maintain that the reporting was biased and tends to give an impression totally at variance with the feeling of the majority of the citizens there, as shown by the results of the vote on the motion.

The freedom of the press is one of the most precious assets of a democracy—but the people depend on accurate and objective reporting in order to form an unprejudiced opinion.

Most sincerely,
A WATERWORKS SUPPORTER.

CLASSIFICATIONS ARE THE BUNK

Sir: A long time since I have seen two articles which struck the truth like the one from "Financial News", and the one from "Ottawa". Aside from these I would like to say that one of the things which is holding railways back is their classifications. For several years I was efficiency expert in railway agencies when working for the B. and O. in West Virginia. At Midvale, W.Va., I had 11 blind sidings to handle besides my own station. My own station shipped eight cars of lumber and three cars of coal every day from a wide gauge 32 mile lumber company road. All this without any help. Any one of these blind sidings did more business every day than the town of St. George, Ont. does in a month. Still the C.N.R. back a train up from Harrisburg, Ont. to St. George, Ont. twice a day and send a freight train into St. George several times a week.

We all know Harry Nixon, member for Brant. His farm is on No. 5 Highway and has an excellent spot for a blind siding which could be run from Galt, Ont. doing away with the station at St. George, Ont. with a saving of thousands of dollars. Why does not Mr. Gordon look into things like this? May I have the space to say that at Midvale, W.Va. I had four classifications, all about 6x4x3: the Southern, the Western, the Official and Canadian. An agent was supposed to be conversant with all these, and they all differed very much. Would you believe it cost more to send a carload of furniture from Elkins, W.Va. to Charleston, W.Va. than from Midvale, W.Va. to Toronto—all on account of intrastate and interstate tariffs? Now I made a specialty of this work for years and classifications are the bunk. A truck picks up your bag of spuds or apples at the house and delivers it to where it is supposed to go at a straight rate, but the railroad has to look up the classification and see if apples are more than spuds and what not. Furthermore it costs millions of dollars to issue classifications which are absolutely needless in this time and generation. If you wish to publish this I will write one on why the Colonial Bus Lines which are owned by the C.P.R. should not have card tickets for their bus drivers instead of taking 5 minutes to punch out tickets for a lady and three children who get on the bus at way stations.

CECIL R. ANDERSON.
Havelock.

The Pipes Go West

(According to a Reuters message, the mass production of "miniature plastic bagpipes," the playing of which "can be mastered in 10 minutes instead of seven years," is now announced from New York.)

Shall Caledonia, stern and wild, put up with this affront
Which sees the piper and his art shrunk to a plastic stunt?
Shall Highland instruments be dwarfed by transatlantic types,
And shall ten minutes serve to teach the skirling of the pipes?
What boots it, pray, to waft away the famous Stone of Scone
If Yanks reduce the bagpipes to a skit, a mere lampoon?
This is no joke but a felon stroke to fire the clans instanter
And the mighty men who roused the glen with the genuine bag and chanter.
For Scotland's sons this message runs in terms of sheer destruction;
They stand perplexed, for what comes next in miniature mass production?
If the pipe is sunk and now, all shrunk, in the transatlantic bag is,
How soon shall we see for a Burns Night spree a miniature plastic haggis?

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And there was a man in Maon, whose possessions were in Carmel; and the man was very great, and he had three thousand sheep, and a thousand goats: and he was shearing his sheep in Carmel. Now the name of the man was Nabal; and the name of his wife Abigail; and she was a woman of good understanding, and of a beautiful countenance: but the man was churlish and evil in his doings; and he was of the house of Caleb....

And David sent out ten young men, and David said unto the young men, Get you up to Carmel, and go to Nabal, and greet him in my name: and thus shall ye say to him that liveth in prosperity, Peace be both to thee, and peace be to thine house, and peace be unto all that thou hast. And now I have heard that thou hast shearers: now thy shepherds which were with us, we hurt them not, neither was there ought missing unto them, all the while they were in Carmel. Ask thy young men, and they will shew thee. Wherefore let the young men find favour in thine eyes: for we come in a good day: give, I pray thee, whatsoever cometh to thine hand unto thy servants, and to thy son David.

And when David's young men came, they spake to Nabal according to all those words in the name of David, and ceased. And Nabal answered David's servants, and said, Who is David? and who is the son of Jesse? there be many servants now a days that break away every man from his master. Shall I then take my bread, and my water, and my flesh that I have killed for my shearers, and give it unto men, whom I know not whence they be?

So David's young men turned their way, and went again, and came and told him all those sayings. And David said unto his men, Gird ye on every man his sword. And they girded on every man his sword; and David also girded on his sword: and there went up after David about four hundred men. (I Sam. 25: 2, 3, 5-13.)

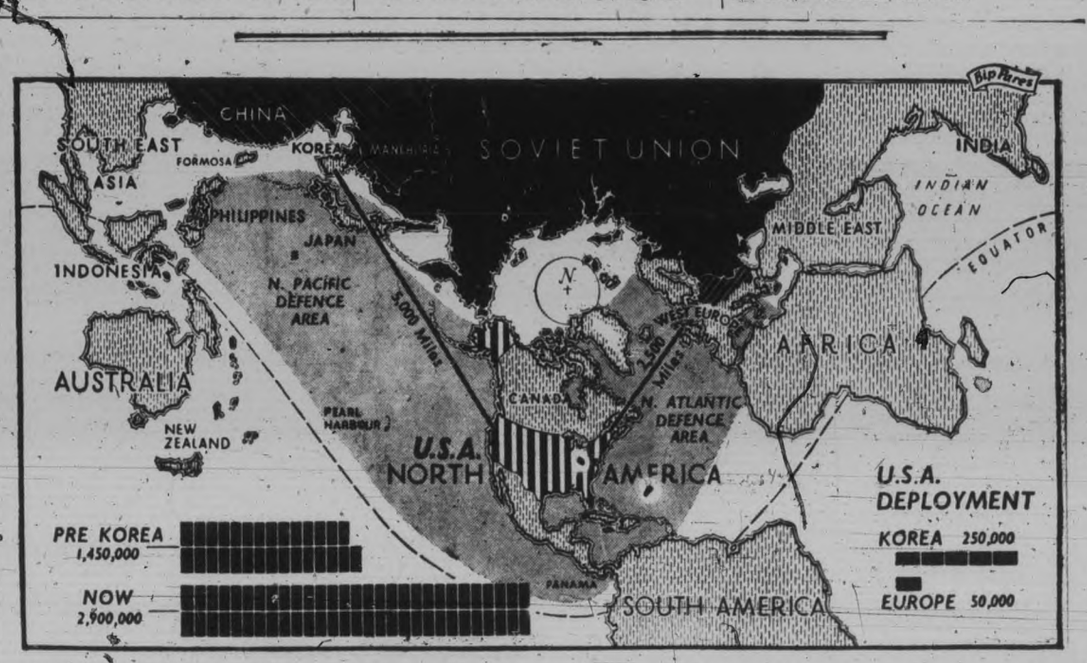
Mr. Phillips' Dream



(Ottawa Journal)

Yankees have made good reading by visits to the courts of King Arthur and St. James, and there must be hope of rich new literature in the visit of Wendell E. Phillips to the court of the Queen of Sheba. Mr. Phillips an American (who else has money to spend on such ventures today?) says the King of Yemen has given him permission to lead an expedition to Marib where the Queen of Sheba is reputed to have reigned in the time of King Solomon and to have visited him.

There, amid the sand, we trust Mr. Phillips will find great treasures, and not only stores of gold, frankincense and myrrh for which the land of Sheba was famous in Bible days. His ambition, and ours, should be to find amid the ruins all the story of how people lived in Sheba's day; he might, indeed, find her burial place. We would not want him to find her mummy because we have our own conception of Sheba and would prefer to leave it so.

Mr. Phillips may even have allowed his imagination to range about the possibility of the Sheba legend of wisdom and beauty lingering still. We wish him palaces and cool fountains, trees laden with fruit and philosophers pouring out their grave reflections in mid-Western accents, the crash of cymbals and the rumble of many chariots as the Queen goes by.

Perhaps Mr. Phillips will find only a few inarticulate stones among the sand, but we can dream with him, can't we?

HOW U.S. SEES THE WORLD—This map, based on an oblique Mercator's projection, shows how the world looks from the United States and illustrates the geographic considerations behind the present public debate in America raised by General MacArthur's statements. Since the Korean conflict began nine months ago the United States has doubled her man-power to 2,900,000 and her military expenditure to $2,000,000,000 a month—roughly £4 16s. per head of the population.

Havelock Club Presents Play

HAVELOCK, May 1 (ENS). —The presentation of a three-act comedy, "The Absent-Minded Professor" by the Dramatic Society of Havelock United Church in the town hall on Friday night was greeted with a capacity house.

A splendid and realistic portrayal of the various roles was given by all members of the cast and reflected much credit to the director, Gerald Buchanan. Robert J. Hill and Mrs. F. R. Vanderburgh were especially good in the star roles of the professor and his wife. Miss Shirley Holdcroft, who substituted for Miss Lois Wilde on very short notice, due to the illness of the latter, gave a very creditable performance of her role.

The whole play proceeded in dramatic fashion in the summer cottage of Professor I. Q. Allen (Robert J. Hill) on the beautiful shore of Belmont lake on the occasion of his birthday which his wife (Mrs. F. R. Vanderburgh) decides to celebrate with a surprise party. It is autumn and the cottage has been closed since Labor Day so Mrs. Allen goes on ahead, leaving the professor and the guests to arrive later.

In a nearby town a valuable statute of Niobe has been stolen by two crooks (Bruce Melville and James Thompson). Seeking a hiding place for their loot, they bring the statute to the Allen cottage. When the professor arrives he accidentally meets the two crooks who force him to help them hide the statute from Hiram Hummel the local "constabule" (Harry Agnew).

When the guests arrive one of them is Imogene Gene a young girl with dramatic ambitions (Helen Robinson). To convince her companions that she is a great actress she dons a Grecian costume and so well impersonates the role of Niobe that not only the professor but the crooks believe that the statute has actually come to life.

Other members of the cast were Kenneth Hadley, Jack Southward, Misses Eleanr Scott, Sandra Vansickle, Edith Thompson, Shirley Holdcroft.

Piano selections as a musical prelude to the play were rendered by Earl Agnew while harmonica selections by Mrs. William Smith with piano accompaniment by Mrs. William Anderson and piano accordion selections by Miss Barbara Pollock were presented between acts. Miss P. Belt was in charge of the makeup and Mrs. H. Agnew and Mrs. G. Buchanan were prompters. The proceeds amounted to $110.

Find May 1 No Longer Moving Day

By The Canadian Press

May 1 has gone by the boards as the traditional moving day in most Canadian cities. Families have long since learned that housing is where you find it.

A Canadian Press survey shows that most tenants across the country move whenever the opportunity presents itself.

The general picture is of a heavy demand for low-rental quarters, still largely unsatisfied despite six years of heavy post-war building.

Booming population growth has changed the face of many cities, and ringed them with suburbs.

Edmonton, with an average increase of 1,000 persons monthly, is having trouble supplying utilities services to her outskirts. Winnipeg is finding room to grow in the suburbs of East, West and North Kildonan and St. James. High rents in Montreal have boomed home sales, especially to the west and north.

Toronto has little building room left, and is seeking a master plan to amalgamate with 12 surrounding communities.

Halifax residents, who would face dangers in wartime, are moving to neighboring centres such as Bedford and the pressure of commuter needs has speeded the plans for the proposed Halifax-Dartmouth bridge.

City rents are generally high on accommodation which has passed out of federal rent controls, and assumption of expiring federal controls in each province will not affect this greatly.

"Are all automatic drives alike?"

That's a question we often hear—and we believe the answer to it has a big bearing on your choice of a new car. The answer is...

NOT in snow, sand, or mud! If ever you've bogged down and couldn't "rock" your car because of the gear-shift lag in a self-shifting transmission... you'll appreciate this Packard Ultramatic advantage: You can change instantly—without clashing—from Forward to Reverse!

NOT on slippery streets! If a sudden "down-shift" has ever thrown your car into a dangerous skid, you'll know why Packard owners are so enthusiastic about the safety of Ultramatic Drive. Its smooth, gradual engine braking power gives you complete control all the time!

NOT on the long haul! If you're familiar with the cost of gas-wasting slippage at cruising speeds—or if you've paid the maintenance bills on a complicated, self-shifting transmission—you'll welcome the thrifty, lasting efficiency of Packard Ultramatic Drive. No gas-wasting slippage when cruising. And no maintenance complications.

You owe it to yourself to be fully informed on automatic drives before you buy any new car today. The best way to make comparisons, of course, is to start with the most advanced drive of them all—Packard's exclusive Ultramatic Drive!

It's more t' an a car—it's a PACKARD Ask the man who owns one

Learn Golf From The Stars

Natural Player One Adept At Learning 5 Basic Points

By HAROLD SAMPSON
Former Chairman P.G.A. Teaching Committee

Golf generally is considered to be a difficult game to learn.

It is not as difficult as we make it.

One reason players have difficulty in learning is that they labor under the erroneous impression that practice makes perfect.

HABIT — "Practice fundamentals until they become habitual," says Harold Sampson.

Nothing is farther from the truth.

Unless the player has a clear understanding of what and how in practice, he will train himself deeeper and deeper in faults which are instinctive and natural.

There is no mystery about the stroke.

There are five fundamentals which have to be performed and, as the player makes progress in mastering these, he will progress.

These fundamentals are not natural.

They must be practised until they become habitual.

There is no such thing as a natural golfer.

When we speak of a natural golfer, we mean one who is adept at learning and mastering the fundamentals.

I believe, without question, the greatest natural athlete of all time is Babe Didrickson Zaharias. Yet even she had to work diligently under an instructor before she became proficient.

The fundamentals are the grip, stance, arm action, wrist action and body action, or pivot.

Do not think you have to think of five things at one time, or go on the rest of your life thinking of them.

Some of them you will take to easily and will hardly have to be conscious of.

The others you will only have to concentrate on long enough to make them natural, so you can forget them and have them act in the stroke correctly, subconsciously.

Next: Byron Nelson points out that a golfer doesn't know actually how he plays.

East Takes Lead In Series For Allan Cup

OWEN SOUND, May 1 (CP). — Odds on the Allan Cup tipped in favor of the east again Monday night when Owen Sound Mercurys scored a tidy 4-2 victory over Fort Frances Canadians.

The win gave the Mercurys a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series for the Canadian senior hockey championship. All games are scheduled for Owen Sound with the fourth meeting Wednesday night.

Neither coach was satisfied with his team in Monday night's meeting before about 1,500 fans, smallest crowd of the series.

"It was the breaks," said coach Bud Jarvis of the westerners. "Our fellows weren't playing their best, but it was the breaks that won the game. We'll be back Wednesday night with a lot more fight."

Jack Markle, Owen Sound coach, was dissatisfied despite the victory. He felt his players weren't playing the type of hockey they're capable of. He figures the forward lines will be clicking more smoothly in the next game.

MacDonald Stars

Rookie Johnny MacDonald paced the Mercurys to their win. He picked up two goals in the last period to provide the team with its winning margin.

Playing on an improved ice surface, Owen Sound jumped into an early lead and Fort Frances couldn't quite catch up.

Tommy Burlington opened the scoring on an unassisted goal midway in the first period.

Harry Kazarian made it 2-0 early in the second period for the Canadians.

MacDonald made it 3-1 just past the eight-minute mark of the final period. Ricard put Fort Frances back in the game but MacDonald's second goal clinched it.

Over-eagerness appeared to be one of the causes of the Canadians' setback. Regularly through the game Fort Frances forwards killed good attacking plays by beating the puck over the blueline.

Hints On Sports

By FRED MAYBEE

CONTROL AND HOW TO DEVELOP IT

Control and how to develop it.

Control is vital to a young pitcher's success.

One must learn to acquire a good measure of control to become a winner. Most batters have a weaknes and a smart pitcher can figure out a hitter's weak spot early in the game—possibly the first time they meet. The problem of the pitcher then is: Can he remember the weakness and pitch effectively to it when he again faces that batter?

This is where control comes in.

Frequently, even a big-leaguer in trying to pitch to the acknowledged weakness of a certain hitter, gets the ball in the wrong spot with disastrous results. Often a hit reults and the game may be lost.

Once a batter's weakness has been found, the pitcher should work on it. Make sure you do just that, boys.

Every hitter has a weakness. It may not be as weak as that of another batter in each particular case because of the difference in relative skill of batters. But a pitcher will get batted out nine times out of 10 if he doesn't figure the weaknesses smartly and work on them.

"Doc" White, former big-league twirler, who gave Ty Cobb much trouble, gave some good lessons on control. His method was to pitch to a thick, rounded plank hung over a home plate. This was rubber faced and the exact size of the strike area for an average batter. The device was placed in front of a screen. He aided his own skill at fielding bunts as well by pitching to it.

Another good method is to pitch to your catcher with a friend standing at the plate. He doesn't swing of course, and he may also return the ball to you if you have a back stop. Constant practise however, is most essential.

Grip the ball carefully each time and don't keep changing your grip for the same delivery, boys. Develop the grip and delivery together and stick to a system—whatever it is—for the control of each particular pitch.

Next instalment: How to throw a curve.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

If we had wanted to break a release date, we could have announced this a little sooner, but anyway the first winner of the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy is defenceman Red Kelly of Detroit Wings. He beat out Woody Dumart and Bill Quackenbush of Bruins. This trophy replaces the Lady Byng Trophy, given by that enthusiastic hockey fan in 1925. She died last year. The cup is awarded annually to "the player adjudged to have exhibited the best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct combined with a high standard of playing ability during the season" in the NHL. The Simcoe husky, a former boxing champ at St. Mike's, was ninth highest scorer in the loop and in 67 games drew but 24 minutes in penalties.

* * * * * *

Nothing new has been added when we submit that operating a senior amateur club in provincial competition comes high financially. No data available at the moment on what it costs to run the local OLA senior squad, but it's plenty as any of the executive will vouch. A few items from the senior "A" Petes' baseball financial statement of last year might be enlightening, too. Fortunat the Petes got the lights in Riverside before the season ended, and they also had two Viaduct Loop playoff series, so they drew well toward the finish and got out of the red. Wound up with a few bucks over, after being well behind three parts of the season.

* * * * * *

Money, Money, Money

Equipment alone cost $1,122.55, and a glance at any sports catalogue will show how quickly you can eat up that sum in uniforms, shoes, gloves, balls and bats, etc. Transportation cost more than a thousand, with meals $650. A flock of trips to Toronto, New Toronto, Oshawa and even Bowmanville, for some "home" games, and the big squad has to eat. Umpires ran into $429, groundskeeper—even though it's a city park—$97, lost time for players $90, medical treatment for players and insurance nearly a hundred, and even chewing gum came to about 12 bucks. You see there are some 16 or 17 players, manager, coach, bat-boy, and so on, working and travelling during a long season, and it costs plenty. That's why these teams need a lot of fan support or they're sunk.

* * * * * *

Two softball loops that look after a flock of fellows locally are the Industrial Fastball League and the Civic Softball Circuit. Former has eight teams, Raybestos, Woollens, Quakers, Westclox, A & P, McGinness, Mount Pleasant and Norwood. Latter has a bunch in, also, including: Bell Telephone, Bus Drivers, Firemen, Foresters, PLC, Police, Utilities, Board of Works and Salvation Army. Maybe Post Office, as well, since entries aren't closed yet. We noted the new uniforms Bert Austin has for Foresters this season and they're nifty. Look like maybe $30 a copy, if we know uniform costs. Yes, plenty of chaps have fun in these two summer circuits.

Toss Out Zone System

Not too many at the PMBA meeting last eve, and the gathering felt that some organization assistance might well be forthcoming from the Recreation Commission. A committee of Dit Clapper, Cy Whatley and Ray Pammett will contact the commission, and the various service clubs, in an effort to get the minor ballsters started off this season. This committee will also bring in a suggested slate of officers for a meeting to be held next Tuesday night at 8.30 in the "Y". Two good suggestions were made, one being to cut out the zoning system for teams—as the southend and East City supply most of the young baseballers, anyway—and the other being to centralize first practices in the Ex. to arrange teams in their various groupings. Not too much enthusiasm about a junior club, since juves play now till they're 19 and most of 'em should be ready at 20 to try for a senior berth. Yet too few do try.

* * * * * *

The OLA senior "A" squad here this season will be sponsored by Timber Structures of Canada Ltd., Bob Peirson advises. All of the TS Petes will be here by May 15, including Harry Wipper and Jerry Fitzgerald. Don Ashbee and Bob Thorpe were due in today. Drills at Civic Arena tonight and tomorrow at seven, then nightly under Don Crowe at Miller Bowl. The expected 14 home games will have a block of reserve seats selling for $10.00 (instead of $10.50) in advance. They thought first it would be 60 cents a seat but found 75 cents necessary as aisles will be needed and four inches a person more required, so the space would amount to six bits, or the same as 60 cents for the more crowded rush sides of the arena. Ducats may be obtained from Walt Murphy at the uptown CNR ticket office. Reserve seat holders get first chance at 'em for all playoff games.

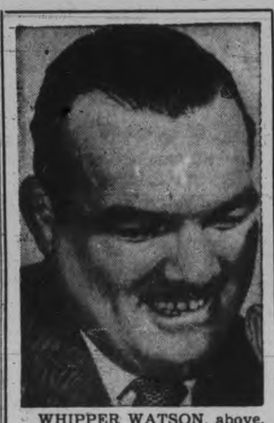
New York Colleges Forbidden Basketball

NEW YORK, May 1 (AP). — The board of higher education Monday forbade City College of New York to play basketball in Madison Square Garden, scene of games allegedly fixed by big-time gamblers.

The Board's ban was contained in a directive involving the four municipal colleges—CCNY, Hunter, Queens and Brooklyn.

The board also voted to order discontinuance of any other commercially - operated establishments as sites for games involving the four colleges.



The action followed by a few hours the indictment of 12 former college basketball players involved in the basketball betting scandal.

Syracuse Edges Ottawa 3-2, Royals Defeated

By The Associated Press

The pitching staff of the Syracuse Chiefs is the talk of the International League today.

Manager Bruno Betzel's curvers are chiefly responsible for the Chiefs' rise to the top of the ladder. The Chiefs have won seven out of eight starts and the mound staff has turned in seven complete games.

Art Hartley pitched the Chiefs into the lead Monday night by turning back Ottawa Giants 3-2. The Chiefs moved ahead of Montreal Royals. The Royals dropped a 4-3, 10-inning decision to Rochester Red Wings.

Hartley scattered nine hits in posting his third straight victory. The Chiefs collected only two safeties but capitulated on rookie Charlie Bishop's nine walks.

Does Damage

The Chiefs scored twice in the third inning without the aid of a base hit. Four walks and an interference penalty against catcher Neal Watlington did the damage. They scored the winning run in the eighth on a walk, single by Ed Shokes and a fly ball.

An error by veteran infielder Hector Rodriguez enabled Rochester to edge the Royals. Charley Kress singled to open the Rochester 10th, moved to second on a sacrifice and scored when Rodriguez erred on Nippy Jones' grounder. Jack Faszholz went all the way for Rochester.

Buffalo Bisons swamped Springfield Cubs 9-1 behind the six-hit pitching of rookie Moe Savaransky. Bob Wellman led the Bisons' 11-hit attack with a double and two singles.

Cobourg Pitcher Opener For Appleton

COBOURG, May 1.—William (Bill) Jamieson will pitch the opening game for Appleton in the Wisconsin State League, he told his family in a phone conversation from the American city Monday.

Jamieson, ace southpaw of the 1950 Cobourg Legionnaires, has already won his spurs having hurled a seven-hit, 5-0 shutout in an exhibition tilt.

The lefthander will take the mound for the first time in organized pro ball Thursday.

Canadian-US Golfers To Hold Competitions

TORONTO, May 1 (CP). — The way was cleared Monday for annual international team matches between Canadian and American professional golfers.

An executive meeting of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association adopted the suggestion that a team match under Ryder Cup regulations be arranged.

The plan had been previously approved by the U.S. association and there is a possibility the first match may be held this fall.

It is expected the teams will be of eight or 10 players. The Canadians will be selected on their scoring in various sectional tournaments, but to be eligible a player must take part in both the Canadian open and the Canadian PGA championships.

The annual PGA championships were discussed and it was decided to hold the 54-hole medal tournament over the course at the Hamilton Golf and Country Club Ancaster, July 9 and 10.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

The longest major league baseball game was played between Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston 31 years ago today at Brooklyn. The National League teams were tied 1-1 at the end of nine innings and played another 17 innings without a run when the game was called on account of darkness. Leon Cadore, of Brooklyn, and Joe Oeschger of Boston pitched the whole distance.

Giants Whip Brooklyn 8-5 To Finally Come Through

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The biggest trade of the season and the end of teh New York Giants' victory drought put a new complexion to the major-league baseball races today as Eastern and Western teams came to grips for the first time.

The Giants ended a crushing 11-game losing streak Monday night by beating their arch-rivals, the Brooklyn Dodgers, 8-5, before a capacity throng of 33,962 at Ebbets Field. It was the only game in the majors.

There was no hooting or backslapping in the Giant clubhouse after the victory. "It's been a long dry spell," manager Leo Durocher said with a wry smile.

Long Way To Go

But the Giants have a long way to go before they can live up to their winter-book rating as pennant contenders. The Giants are in last place with three victories and 12 defeats, nine games off the .500 mark.

Durocher's athletes return to the polo grounds tonight where they open a 10-game stand against the lightly - regarded Western clubs, Chicago, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Cincinnati.

The Giants went to town early Monday night, scoring all of their runs in the first two innings against Chris Van Cuyk, Earl Mossor and Joe Hatten.

Sal Maglie started for the Giants and lingered until the sixth when Sheldon Jones came on to stamp out a rally. The Dodgers outhit the Giants, 10-8. Three of the Dodgers' blows were home runs by Gene Hermanski, Jackie Robinson and Duke Snider.

The biggest trade of the year was engineered Monday by Cleveland, Chicago and Philadelphia of the American League. It involved seven players.

Cleveland Stronger

Cleveland considerably strengthened its pennant outlook by acquiring lefthander Lou Brissie from the A's. The Indians have been seeking a starting left hander for a long time to go along with their Big Four of Bob Lemon, Bob Feller, Early Wynn and Mike Garcia, all righthanders.

The three-cornered deal sent catcher Ray Murray, pitcher Sam Zoldack and outfielders Gus Zernial and Dave Philley to the Athletics, outfielder Paul Lerner and infielder - outfielder Orestes Minoso to Chicago and Brissie to Cleveland.

Hank Greenberg, Cleveland general manager, said he was reluctant to part with Mimoso, "who has a chance to become one of the really-good players of our time." Murray was Cleveland's third string catcher and Zoldak a relief pitcher.

Make Good Deal

General manager Frank Lane of the White Sox said, "We gave up a lot of power but we think we made a good deal." The Sox sent Philley and Zernial to the A's. Zernial set a club home-run record last year.

Art Ehlers, A's general manager, commented, "I think we made a good one. We're going to keep moving players." The A's have lost 10 straight.

Brissie, who had a disappointing season last year for the A's after two excellent years, expressed disappointment, declaring: "I know I've been bush so far, but I never thought Jim (Dykes) would do that."

The Yanks open their first four of the west in Chicago today. Other pairings are Philadelphia at Detroit, Boston at Cleveland and Washington at St. Louis.

Other National League games are St. Louis at Boston, Pittsburgh at Brooklyn, and Cincinnati at Philadelphia.

P.C. Non-Confidence Vote On Living Cost Defeated

OTTAWA, May 1 (CP).—The Commons completed a long debate on the cost of living Monday night by deciding, in effect, that it could do nothing about it.

That was the end result of a vote of 50 against a Progressive Conservative motion urging the government immediately to consider the adoption of measures to hold down the rising living costs and halt inflation.

The Chamber rejected the motion, introduced several weeks ago and the basis of intermittent debate, after Finance Minister Abbott said that neither he nor the government alone could defeat world-wide inflation.

But he did say that one of the greatest reasons for inflation is that "every highly-organized pressure group" in the country is trying to make sure it will not be affected by high prices.

"If every time prices go up," he suggested, "highly-organized groups seek higher wages or higher prices they are simply adding fuel to the flames."

People at Fault

A Progressive Conservative speaker — Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (PC-Nanaimo) — said he thought the people themselves are at fault—they are more concerned about the cost of "high living" than they are about the "high cost" of living. There would have to be more of the old-time virtues of thrift and saving.

In the vote, the Progressive Conservatives won support from the CCF and Social Credit parties and from a lone Liberal—Wilfrid Lacroix (L-Quebec-Montmorency). The remainder of the Liberals opposed the non-confidence motion.

Mr. Abbott said, as he had in his budget address, that the fundamental cure for the rising cost of living was for "everyone to work harder and longer if we are to maintain our standard of living."

The Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-MacLeod) urged the Chamber not to vote the government "one dollar" until it told parliament what it planned to do about inflation.

Dodging Issue

J. W. Murphy (PC-Lambton West) charged the government with showing a "total disregard" for inflation and for measures to defeat it. The government had been "dodging" the issue.

Percy Wright (CCF-Melfort) said that if something wasn't done production would drop and labor troubles develop. Canada might follow the example of Britain in the last war and produce a line of reasonably-priced utility goods.

A number of Opposition members Monday night asked the government for a complete investigation of the Post Office Department.

Joseph Noseworthy (CCF-York South) told the Commons that nothing short of an investigation by an independent commission will remedy the "near chaotic conditions" in the postal delivery services.

Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) said a House committee should be established to study the problems facing both urban and rural mail carriers. If the Department was operating properly it would have nothing to fear from a full investigation.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF Leader, also said he would favor an investigation.

No Reply

Postmaster - General Rinfret made no reply to the suggestions. The discussion was on a motion to go into committee of supply to consider government expenditures.

Mr. Noseworthy said that since the urban mail deliveries had been cut to one from two a day, conditions in Toronto and district had deteriorated. Some of his constituents said they were going as much as two days in succession without mail delivery. The morale of postal employees was being undermined.

Mr. Coldwell said he believes the Post Office Department should remove an "injustice" to the people who live in small towns and rural areas. They now had to pay rental for their mail boxes in the local post offices. In the cities, mail was delivered to the door without extra charge.

Raps Rates

Julian Ferguson (PC-Simcoe North) said people were complaining about the recent "100 per cent" increase in some postal rates. The reason for the increase should be explained.

J. W. Murphy (PC-Lambton West) said that in the last general Federal election campaign the Liberal Party had spent a large amount of money in advertisements depicting Prime Minister St. Laurent as a great family man.

He wondered how the party could reconcile the money spent on the advertisements with the government's new budget which "bludgeoned" Canadians who were trying to establish their own homes.

24 Industries Accept X-Ray Plan

Will Include 11,000 Employees In City-Wide Plan

All men and women being taken on by Peterborough's industries will be X-rayed for tuberculosis if a plan of the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association is successful.

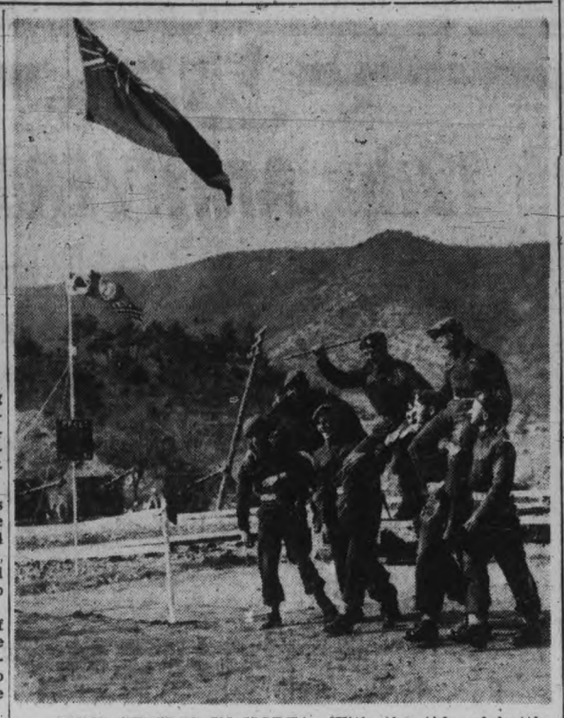
Already the 24 of the city's more than 60 industries have agreed to the plan. With the 24 industries that have been signed, 7,000 workers have been signed and there are about 4,000 yet to be included in the plan.

Members of the executive of the tuberculosis association are contacting the heads of all Peterborough's industrial plants to have them all take part in the project.

Anyone starting work at one of the industries in the plan will first be sent to either the Civic hospital or St. Joseph's hospital. There an X-ray will be taken and a report sent to the company within 24 hours.

Already Underway

The association pays the hospitals $1 for each X-ray and the industry will pay the association. Already the plan is underway and new employees of some firms have had their X-rays.



To handle all the work that this new undertaking will require, the association at a meeting Monday night appointed Mrs. Richard J. Ward as a part-time paid executive secretary. In time this may become a full-time job.

In a survey just completed by a mobile clinic of the Department of Health, nearly 100 per cent of the employees of local industry were chest X-rayed. The mobile clinic also covered part of the downtown section, but did not complete the residential areas of the city.

Tight Schedule

This survey will be completed next year when the mobile clinic will return. The clinic broke down three times this year and the tight schedule that had been arranged was thrown into some confusion, but most of the people who were due to be X-rayed were squeezed in.

The companies that had signed up until this morning were: Albion Knitting Co., Campbell's Dairy, Canada Packers Ltd., Canadian General Electric Co., Canadian Canoe Co., Canadian Nashua Paper Co. Canadian Sealright Co. Ltd., Canadian Ventilating Shades Ltd., Colonial Weaving Co. Ltd., Dewart Milling Co., Martin-Hewitt Containers Ltd., Harry B. McGinness, Peterborough Bottling Works, Peterborough Canoe Co., Peterborough Examiner Ltd., J. C. Poolman Manufacturing Co., Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Co. Ltd., Quaker Oats Co. of Canada Ltd., Silverwood Dairies Ltd., Sunshine Dairy, Tilco Ltd., A. Wander Co. Ltd., and Wonder Bakeries Ltd.

70-Year-Old Brick Terrace Replaced By Modern Stores

The white brick terrace built by Thomas Bradburn 70 years ago, with its Mansard roof, Restoration relic, an architectural adornment of its long day, has been replaced by the new stores and office building on the north side of Charlotte St., between Aylmer and Bethune Streets.

Occupants from east to west are: Herbert S. Routley, chinaware, moving from George St.; Peterborough Glass and Paint Co., from the south side of Brock St., near George St., and Sidney J. Black, typewriters and office supplies, late of the Greene Building on Charlotte St.

The upper floor is laid out for partitioning into offices, from four to seven, depending on final decision as to its subdivision. At present in the stage of plastering, subordinated in progress to the main floor's dated completion, together with the three separate basements, it has already one large office let for later occupancy, with enquiries about other sections of space.

The new commercial building is the enterprise of Bradburns Securities Limited of which the secretary-treasurer is Herbert I. Bradburn, grandson of Thomas Bradburn who in his generation was the proprietor of a general store on George St., in the present premises of Robert Fair & Co., Ltd.

Thoroughly Modern

Construction is of steel, brick and concrete blocks, thoroughly modern in its details of heating, lighting, ventilation, and even the factor of sound in the acoustic properties of the finish of the ceilings. Heating is by oil furnace and hot water. Some minor use of glass bricks provides increased natural light in one of the stores.

The 65-foot frontage close to the street line, has a depth of 60 feet, extended at the rear by incorporating small sections of the old building into the new.

Mr. Bradburn informed The Examiner today that this latest link in the commercial expansion of Charlotte St. is being called the Centennial Building, associating it as having been undertaken in 1950 with Peterborough's 100th anniversary of its municipal foundation.

The attractive front of the Centennial Building across the three stores and entrance to the office floor above is set in a panel of dark vitrolite against the brick background with incidental touches of chrome and other details of modern commercial construction.

Memories Distract

While present attention fixes on this new Bradburn structure and investment in Peterborough, it is distracted by memories of similar enterprise and confidence within the family through a long span of the progress of this city.

It was recalled one time that Thomas Bradburn built the Robert Fair store, more or less in conjunction with the similar construction on the next lot by James Stevenson.

Mr. Stevenson was in hardware, and Thomas Bradburn in women's wear and general merchandise, both on the west side of George Street, about the middle of the block from Simcoe to Hunter St.

The Bradburn family gave Peterborough its two theatres, considered as distinctly apart from the movies.

In earlier days of the town there was a playhouse on the upper floor of a market building, fronting on the Water St. side of the market square. The old Methodist church building on the west side of George St., second place north of McDonnel St., was also used for theatricals after the present George St. United Church building was completed.

First Bradburn theatre, built by Thomas Bradburn, was on the top floor of the three storey building in the centre of the George St. block between Charlotte and Simcoe streets. Its plans were once shown to the Examiner by the late Wm. H. Bradburn. Two approaches ascended from George St. One of them is still in use, at least as far as the second floor and the offices of the Bradburn Securities. It opened into the theatre auditorium from its rear. The other stairway and exit was from the vicinity of the stage, emerging on to the sidewalk on the north side of that Bradburn building.

Churchill Spoke

It is altogether unlikely that Winston Churchill remembers his engagement when he made a speaking tour through eastern Canada as a young war correspondent fresh from his experiences in the South African War.

Mr. Churchill spoke from the platform of Thomas Bradburn's opera house, according to a news item in the Examiner of that time.

Those were gas-lit nights of the theatre, but they long held a fond place in the memories of that older generation and the forgotten shows that came their way.

Rupert H. Bradburn followed in his father's footsteps as purveyor of theatrical entertainment to the citizens of Peterborough. And by his generation he is still regarded with gratitude.

The Grand Theatre was erected about 1907 and was eventually strangled by the movies. It has taken communities a long time to recognize and understand their loss of theatre art and entertainment as evidence by the revival of interest in the Little Theatre movement that has spread widely across both Canada and the United States.

It is probable that the Grand was Mr. Bradburn's own personal investment.

He opened the theatre with Raymond Hitchcock in "The Yankee Consul," a tuneful musical comedy, the music of which was written by Henry Blossom, every song a hit.

The Grand Theatre was a focal point of community interest and pleasure, and a social centre, just as the old Bradburn Opera House had been.

This is not a review of Bradburn realty enterprise, but it does indicate something of a constructive tradition plainly extending through three generations of the family.

Just A Little Bull

CAMPPBELLFORD, May 1—(ENS)—Provincial police of the Brighton detachment received a call Monday morning that a deer had been found dead on the highway near that town, the apparent victim of an automobile. Officers notified officials of the Department of Game and Fisheries and proceeded to the spot where the deer had been reported. When they arrived, they found not a deer, but a Jersey bull calf. After the owner of the animal was located and notified, police and department officials left, wondering.

Says Pictures Planted 2 Youths Fined

Two youths were fined $100 and $150 costs in police court on Monday when they pleaded guilty to being in possession of a set each of obscene pictures.

Harold Jamison, 16, South Monaghan township, who was fined $100 or three months, said he didn't know where the pictures came from.

"Are you trying to tell me that someone planted them on you?" Magistrate W. R. Philp K.C., asked the youth.

"They must have," said Jamison.

William J. Kerr, 20, 1013 High St., said he had just picked the pictures up from a restaurant table when police arrived.

"My intent was to destroy them," he said. He said he considered them "disgusting" pictures.

Caused Disturbance

Kerr also pleaded guilty to a charge of causing a disturbance Friday night and was fined $10 and costs.

"There's a difference between being a prude and carrying pictures of this type," the magistrate said. "It's my opinion that they cannot and should not be ignored. They're a sure indication that you live in the gutter most of the time when you carry pictures like that around."

Earlier in the day, Magistrate Philp told Jamison "There are people living in the gutter whose chief delight is going around showing these sort of pictures to children."

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw K.C. said Jamison was quite young and had gone back to work on his father's farm. He suggested that Jamison be placed on suspended sentence.

"I will not put this man on suspended sentence," said the magistrate. "I won't consider suspended sentence, that's all there is to it."

He told Jamison that he could give him two years in jail on the charge.

Until about a year ago a man could not be charged if he were merely found with obscene pictures in his possession. He had to show them to someone else before he could be charged. About a year ago the criminal code was amended to have possession of pictures which could be classed as obscene.

Death Of Son Fatal To Father

The death Saturday of his son, Louis Rasminsky, 51, on a trout fishing expedition, was a heartbreak for 80-year-old Solomon Rasminsky of Toronto. The elder Mr. Rasminsky died Sunday, and was buried Monday at a double funeral service with his son.

Mr. Raminsky, Sr., is survived in Peterborough by a sister, Mrs. Leah Zacks, and two nieces, Mrs. Irving Cipin and Mrs. Allan Moldaver.

Louis Raminsky was fishing at a trout pond five miles west of Roseneath Saturday, when he was stricken. Death was caused by a heart seizure.

RAIN THEN; DUST NOW

A gust of wind Monday noon caused a small "twister" in the parking lot behind the George St. Loblaw's store. It started at the Peterborough Automotive wall, swinging across the park lot to the bank of the creek, about three feet in circumference, and swirling into the air for about 60 feet in a half-rainbow shape, disappearing into thin air. The action took about 20 seconds.

City Private Killed In Korea War

Bruce MacDonald, 20, Believed Killed In Huge Red Drive

First Peterborough boy killed in Korea was Pte. Bruce MacDonald, 20, of the Princess Pats.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. MacDonald who live on the Lakefield highway.

Monday night his parents received a telegram from the army informing them of Bruce's death on April 25. He went overseas on March 1.

Bruce is believed to have died in the immense Red drive that was halted only on Monday by the heroic action of the Commonwealth Brigade which plugged a gap caused by the retreat of South Korean troops.

On Exposed Patrol

In his last letter home, dated April 6, Bruce told his sister, Mrs. G. Nelson, 496 Gilchrist St., that he had been on exposed patrol duty just north of the 38th parallel.

Two Chinese had crept up the mountainside toward his slit trench. Bruce told his sister he waited and "got them" with a hand grenade.

He was born in St. John, New Brunswick, and moved with his parents to Moncton, N.B., where he went to public school. Five years ago, the family moved to Peterborough, where Bruce's father is employed as a salesman.

Bruce worked in Loblaw's groceteria and the Agnew-Surpass shoe store before he enlisted in the army last Christmas.

He is survived by his parents, his sister, Mrs. Nelson, and two brothers, Fred, with the RCA in Victoria, B.C., and Ted, in the United States.

Port Hope suffered its worst power break in 12 years Saturday. The town was without lights and power from shortly before 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

TAKES HONORS

Formerly of Peterborough, Norma Hughes, operator of a Canadian National Institute for the Blind stand in London, Ont., took top honors in the Ontario Braille reading contest Monday night. She was competing in the Class A division.

CONDUCTED TOUR

The Peterborough Professional Workers in Health, Welfare and Recreation organization' monthly meeting will take the form of a conducted tour through the public library. This is the third in a series of meetings to get acquainted with member services and organizations. The tour will be conducted by Librarian Bill Graff.

SWIMMING CLASS

Approximately 60 senior girl students from Central, Confederation, Prince of Wales, Grove and King Edward schools attended the first of five classes for non-swimmers at the YWCA. The classes are under the guidance of Y Swiming Director, Miss Audrey Hustwitt. Today students of the remaining city public schools will have their first class.

Tulip Blooms Stolen From Riverside Bed

Vandalism or outright theft is proving a problem for the city parks department.

Monday afternoon or evening a boy or woman wearing flat-heeled shoes pulled all the tulips but one at the Riverside Park rock garden. Not content with the blooms alone, the culprit also made away with the bulbs.

Department officials reported this morning that the tulips were removed sometime between noon and 8 p.m. Footprints' evidence has led the department to believe the culprit was a boy about 12 years of age or a woman.

Orchestra Pit At Capitol To Vanish With Renovation

The last reminder of the "good old days" of the silent movies will soon vanish from the city. The orchestra pit located at the Capitol theatre is not in the plans for the renovation which will take place for the next eight weeks amounting to $75,000.

The pit was part of the original theatre which was built in 1921. There until the silent movies gave way to talkies the orchestras and piano players accompanied the action on the screen. Even when the theatre was renovated for the first time the pit was left there.

On Saturday the theatre ran its last series of films until late in June. Work began today when men started to take away the seats from the balcony and the heavy carpets were lifted.

Both the floors will be new. Due to steel shortages the new balcony floor will be wood while the auditorium floor will be new concrete. Several small structural changes and a new seating arrangement which will give wider space between rows will reduce the capacity by approximately 60 seats.

Plans call for new carpets throughout and new drapes.

At the front the box office will be changed from the centre to the south side of the entrance. There will be a different lighting system but no large changes in the structure. Some changes may be made in the marquee.

A new refreshment centre will be built directly at the entrance of the lobby. This will further reduce the downstairs seating for it juts into the auditorium for additional space.

With the renovation will be a better quality movie to compete with the other theatres. Along with the movies will be a new sound system and new screen.

Concert Marks Closing Of Anniversary

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

As part of the celebrations attendant upon its 118th anniversary St. Paul's Presbyterian Church presented an admirable concert on Monday evening. A large audience was present and the program was received with enthusiasm.

It is a wise departure from the custom of the past which now permits a church choir to present a musical evening without confining itself to what used to be called "sacred music." Music which deals with a religious theme is not, for that reason, peculiarly sanctified.

A poor song about God is not more worthy than a good one about Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair. The concert at St. Paul's established an excellent balance between good music which was religious in theme, and good music which was of secular intent.

A well-trained children's choir contributed a group of songs to the program, singing well and truly. If a word of criticism may be expressed, they might advantageously pay more attention to the clear pronunciation of their words. Their tone was sweet, and when they broke into descant and air, they showed that they have been given a good foundation of musicianship.

The senior choir of the church produces a good body of tone, and is capable of fine, full-bodied effects. They are less effective in moments when delicacy is wanted—principally, in the opinion of this reviewer, because they watch their music too closely and their conductor not enough. Their singing of the Morley ballet, "Now Is The Month of Maying" showed this fault clearly. On the other hand, they dealt firmly with the entreaties to Baal, in the excerpts from "Elijah". It was a fine thing to hear a choir with so much vigour; with a corresponding delicacy, it would be a fine choir indeed.

The solo "Lord God of Abraham", from "Elijah", was sung with warm tone and appropriate feeling by George Coleman, Jr.

Guest Soloist

Miss Nellie Smith, of Toronto, sang two solo groups, the first of which contained two admirable settings of scriptural words by Dvorak, "Sing ye a joyful song" and "I will sing new songs of gladness". She also sang Bantock's "Praise Ye The Lord". Miss Smith has an ample contralto voice, splendidly even all through its range, and under perfect control. She is a singer of a type not nearly as common as it should be; she sings to illuminate the words, rather than as if the words were a nuisance to her. To the junior choir she may serve as a shining example of good pronunciation in singing. In the second part of the program she sang a group of secular songs, of which Roger Quilter's setting of Waller's poem, "Go, Lovely Rose" was sheer delight; it was in this that Miss Smith's pleasure and appreciation in poetry was most fully shown. As one of her encores she sang Molloy's "Kerry Dances", with a freshness and feeling which gave the charming old song a new and warm life.

Piano and Organ

An unexpected and splendidly successful feature of the evening was a performance of the first movement of the Schumann piano concerto by Gwen Craw, with the orchestral part played on the organ by Christopher Gledhill. This work lends itself kindly to such an arrangement. Mrs. Craw played the solo part admirably — so well, indeed, that we were disappointed that she had cut the cadenza. This artist, familiar to Peterborough audiences as an accompanist of unusual gifts, should not be afraid of expressing her personality in solo performance. We hope to hear these two artists play this work again, for they give a fully satisfactory performance of it, and when that happens we shall hope for the cadenza, performed with the fire which Mrs. Craw possesses, and revealed amply in the body of the concerto.

It was very pleasant to hear Mrs. Craw and Mr. Gledhill play the witty "Jodelling Song" from Walton's Facade Suite, and their encore — an arrangement of the Newcastle Dance—increased our desire to hear more of this excellent combination of piano and organ. We must commend Mr. Gledhill for a musicianly consideration of the less powerful instrument, and for a masterly control of the fine organ at St. Paul's.

The choir brought the concert to a conclusion with a performance of a portion from Brahms' "Requiem", a work which we may fittingly hope to hear them perform in full.

Quarter's Building Permits Total $1,094,333; Gain $688,000 Over '50

$402,000 South-end Subdivision Was Feature Of 172 Permits Issued In April; Major Items Include Church, Clinic, Store

Peterborough's building permits crossed the million dollar line in April for a total of $1,094,333, as compared with $405,713 for the first four months of 1950. That is a gain of $688,620. Feature of April's 172 permits was the Don Ephgrave project of 54 houses at the corner of Park St. and Braidwood Ave. of an estimated value of $402,000. Their construction has been begun on the former Harold R. Scott mill property which he sold to Canadian Ventilating Shades Ltd.

When their manufacturing building was destroyed by fire, Ventilating Shades decided to concentrate production in their plant on Reid St.

Comparative total values of building permits issued today at the office of City Engineer A. E. Chalmers were:

For April 1950—18 garages, $4,920; 28 dwellings, $214,550; 75 miscellaneous permits, $53,619; total of 121 permits $273,089. And the aggregate for the four months of the year, January to April 30, was $405,713.

Corresponding figures for 1951 are: five garages, $1,040; 84 houses, $659,030; 83 miscellaneous permits, $189,861; total, 172 permits, $849,-751.

Total for the four months of this year, $1,094,333.

Major Items

Major items in last months' permits included: $80,000 for a new Gospel Tabernacle on Dublin St.; Peterborough Clinic Ltd. on Charlotte St., $50,000; C. Roger Young, store on Park St. S., $21,000.

Also in the miscellaneous list is an item of $3,000 for new stands and bleachers at Miller Bowl, Townsend St., issued to the Peterborough Lacrosse Club. Ald. T. D. Miller is in charge of that work.

Estimated cost of houses in the April list range from $4,000 to $18,000.

There is one at $18,000; three at $13,000 each; one at $12,000; one $10,500; one $10,000; others in the $9,000 to $10,000 brackets; and so on down through $8,000 and $7,000 values to $6,000 and $5,000.

In the smaller items Fred Rowan has a string of roofing jobs.

Couldn't Convict Under Bylaw Dismiss Charge

A charge of failing to stop at a red light laid under a city bylaw, was thrown out in police court today when both Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, K.C., and Magistrate W. W. Philp, K.C. decided they couldn't convict a person under that section of the bylaw.

Before any evidence was heard in the case against Donald E. Garbutt, R.R. 2, Lakefield, Crown Attorney Bradshaw said this was the same bylaw under which a similar case was dismissed some months ago.

"There is no section that I can find that defines what the automatic signal lights mean," the crown attorney said.

"I was under the impression that the bylaw was being amended," said Magistrate Philp.

Refused Confirmation

The crown said that first and second reading had been given to an amendment defining the meaning of traffic lights and it had been sent to the Municipal Board for confirmation. But the board refused confirmation.

Mr. Bradshaw said he had a letter from city solicitor W. F. Huycke, K.C., telling him that the confirmation had been refused on the grounds that the Highway Traffic Act already defined the meaning of the traffic lights. The board considered it unwise to allow municipalities to put their own interpretation on the meaning of the lights because it felt contradictions would arise.

The crown attorney pointed out that the last clause of the bylaw said that the bylaw was subject to the Highway Traffic Act. He said Mr. Huycke had at one time argued that that meant the Highway Traffic Act was incorporated by that clause into the bylaw and the signal lights were therefore defined.

"Whether it does or not, I don't know, but I don't think so," said Mr. Bradshaw.

His interpretation of the wording was that if the bylaw and the Highway Traffic Act conflicted in any details the Highway Traffic Act was to overrule the bylaw.

Unfortunate Wording

Magistrate Philp agreed with Mr. Bradshaw saying, "Yes, it's a most unfortunate wording in the bylaw."

Then he said "I doubt very much that this bylaw is of much assistance to us."

The crown attorney added that "until the bylaw is amended, the charge will have to be withdrawn."

Defending Garbutt, W. J. Arthur Fair, K.C., said the charge could not be brought against the accused man again unless the amendment were made retroactive, and he didn't see how the council could do that.

Magistrate Philp apologized to William G. Thomas, 271 Thomas St., who had been in a collision with Garbutt the night of April 3 and had been called as a witness. The magistrate said he didn't know what the case involved until he read the charge.

Last January the crown attorney and the magistrate criticized the traffic bylaw over the section on signal lights complaining that their meaning wasn't defined.

The bylaw merely says that all signs, automatic signals and instructions by police officers shall be obeyed.

This touched off a controversy which apparently has not yet been settled—at least to the satisfaction of the crown attorney and the police magistrate.

To Bring Skilled DP's To City

Preliminary plans were made in Peterborough today by a field representative of the Canadian Lutheran World Relief Service to Refugees to obtain jobs for skilled and semi-skilled displaced persons now in Western Germany.

Ralph A. Wetzstein, representative, said that the organization is bringing to Canada people who can't qaulify as farm laborers and domestics under the government's mass immigration schemes. These people include Europeans who are skilled in some trade or have a profession such as a lawyer, doctor or teacher. They are presently in displaced camps in Western Germany.

Overseas, the Lutheran World Federation Service to Refugees, co-operating with the International Refugees Organization, is screening the displaced people for the Canadian service. Information is made available so that the employer knows who he is hiring without seeing him.

Takes Three Months

The Canadian Lutheran service takes full responsibility for the final settlement and well-being of the people, also paying the cost of transportation and arranging housing facilities. It takes from two to three months to bring the families to Canada.

Eight hundred files on families are now in the Canadian service's possession and 100 families have been brought to Eastern Canada. Mr. Wetzstein has been working recently in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto seeking occupations for others. While in Peterborough he is arranging contacts with industries for jobs.

Store Window Broken $30 In Change Stolen

Connell's cigar store and lunch counter at Charlotte and Aylmer streets was broken into by someone who threw a large rock through the window of the front door and robbed two open tills of about $30 Monday morning.

The door was last seen intact about four a.m. Monday morning by William A. Barker, taxi dispatcher, who left his office behind the store about 4:10 a.m.

The rock, the size of a man's fist was found lying on the floor of the store. The thief had broken a hole through the glass near the night, latch and then opened the door.

Need Newsprint Despite Large Supply

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

You may think newsprint is plentiful when you cover your shelves or light the furnace with it, but that's the only time it is plentiful nowadays—after it has been read.

To get enough of it to keep newspaper presses rolling, to bring to you every day on freshly-printed pages the news of the world, of Canada, your home town—that is a continual worry.

Newsprint is scarce and is likely to remain scarce for some time unless sudden peace descends and our economic world slows down from its hectic pace.

It's scarce, despite the fact that more of it is being produced in Canada than ever before, and despite the fact that, along with Americans, Canadians get far more of it than any one else in the world.

It's scarce in Canada and the United States because their peoples, at least insofar as the amount of information put in front of them is concerned, are the best-informed people in the world; because the countries are prosperous; because their populations are increasing. All these things lean to larger papers and larger circulations.

Why Scarcity?

Canada produces from its forests more than half of all the newsprint at present made in the world, and so Canadians may ask why there should be any scarcity here at all.

The fact is that we didn't set out to produce that huge volume for ourselves, and we certainly couldn't use any large percentage of it. We set out to produce it because the United States wanted to buy it; and Americans helped to finance it. So we, or the newsprint companies, have both contracts and a moral responsibility to keep the United States market supplied to as full an extent as possible.

We also have our own future self-interest to think of. We make more money selling newsprint than in selling anything else; money which percolates into every community in the country. It is our greatest source of American dollars. We don't wish to force the United States into finding other sources.

Not Always Scarce

For newsprint has not always been scarce. That time may come again, and we want the goodwill of customers if and when it does. Back in the depression 30's most Canadian newsprint companies were in financial difficulties and some were bankrupt.

In fact, a little more than a year ago, in December, 1949, and January, February and March of 1950, when general business fell off a bit, newsprint mills worked at somewhat less than capacity. The industry states that it could have produced an additional 28,000 tons in the first three months of 1950 had orders and specifications been forthcoming.

The present scarcity is not so much an over-all scarcity as it is a scarcity in spots. But it is one that is continually threatening.

For instance, R. M. Fowler, president of the Newsprint Association of Canada, told American publishers last week that they would likely receive 85,000 tons more than in 1950, and about 65,000 tons more than they consumed that year.

That is a slender margin in the annual American consumption of nearly 6,000,000 tons. It means there must be well-nigh perfect distrubtion from day to day, or else one city may have more than enough for immediate needs, and another may have less than enough.

Applies to Canada

The same factors apply in Canada. In both countries there would seem to be, for 1951, just about enough to go around at last year's rate of use, but allowing for virtually no increase. In so close a situation it will be surprising if there aren't pinches here and there.

Then there are the "ifs" with which Mr. Fowler qualified his forecast. Said he:

"If an all-out war develops; if we cannot get enough raw materials, such as sulphur; if additional newsprint must be supplied from North America to meet essential needs of overseas friends and allies—in any of these events the forecast must be revised."

Note the "if" about supplies for overseas friends and allies. It is claimed that shortages of newsprint prevent the peoples of many countries from being informed of the issue of western democracy versus Communism. France, with an election coming up, is a case in point. In other words, it is a strategic material.

Claim Casualties

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1 (AP)—The Chinese Communist radio at Peiping claimed more than 15,000 Allied troops were killed, wounded or captured in eight days in Korea. It added that between Jan. 25 when the Allies began a northward drive and April 21, more than 78,000 casualties were inflicted on United Nations forces with more than 47,000 of them American casualties.

Can't Wear Masks

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 1—(AP)—The Florida Senate Monday passed a bill forcing the Ku Klux Klan to remove its masks. The bill forbids wearing of masks or hoods in public and prohibits unauthorized cross burnings.

Queuille's Cabinet Wins Confidence Vote

PARIS, May 1 (AP).—Premier Henri Queuille's coalition cabinet won a vote of confidence early today in the National Assembly on a new election law designed to cut the Communist party down to size.

The vote was 339 for the government to 251 against it.

The new law is a modification of one adopted several weeks ago by the Assembly but turned down by the Council of the Republic, France's upper house.

The Assembly's decision, with 28 votes above an absolute majority, virtually assures ultimate adoption of the bill. This in turn would pave the way for French national elections in mid-June.

Economy of Doctors

EDMONTON, May 1—(CP)—Primary need of economy of doctors in the event of a Canadian manpower draft was stressed in an interview Monday by Dr. G. Gavin Miller, professor of surgery at McGill University. "There must be a greater economy of doctors than in the last war," said Dr. Miller, here to address a refresher medical course. "There must be economy of distribution. It is the most important single factor in the event of war."

RAF Officer On Trial

DISHFORTH, England, May 1—(AP) — Flt. Lt. Robert Eslick went on trial Monday before a Royal Air Force court martial on charges of undue familiarity prejudicial to discipline. Two members of the WAAF (Women's Auxiliary Air Force) testified he had welcomed them to his command by forcing them to the floor, pulling up their skirts, and rubber-stamping his unit's name on their bare midriffs.

Allocate Wheat

WASHINGTON, May 1 (AP)—The United States Monday allocated 63,806,000 bushels of wheat and coarse grain for export during June. This brought total export allocations for the March-May period to about 200,000,000 bushels.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Jim Prendergast, former Syracuse pitcher, filed a $150,000 suit against organized baseball Monday to test the legality of the game's reserve clause.

The 33-year-old lefthander contended the clause of monopolistic and violated anti-trust laws.

The suit was filed in the northern district of federal court at Utica, N. Y.

The reserve clause binds a player to one club until the club either transfers or cancels his contract.

Prendergast claimed reserve clauses in his contracts during his baseball career "continually tended materially to hamper the plaintiff in negotiating for salary and employment. . ."

The Syracuse club transferred Prendergast to the Beaumont club of the Texas League on April 25. He refused to report.

The veteran pitcher has not signed a 1951 contract.

New York banker William Woodward's Turco II was established the 6 to 1 favorite for the May 30 Epsom Derby at an official bookmakers' callover of odds Monday night.

Laurent Dauthuille, French welterweight king, knocked out Bobby Dawson of New York after one minute and 28 seconds of the first round Monday night at Paris. The bout was scheduled for 10 rounds.

Dauthuille weighed 160, Dawson 157.

At Yonkers, N. Y., Richard Scott of Toronto drove the six-year-old mare, Constance Scott, to her third triumph in five starts in the second half of the featured Mamaroneck pace Monday night at Yonkers Raceway.

The mare returned $6.50 to win.

At Providence, R. I., James J. Parker, heavyweight from Barrie, scored a technical knockout over Heywood Henry, 185¾, New York in the second round of a scheduled six-round preliminary bout on Monday night.

In the main 10-rounder heavyweight challenger Rocky Marciano of Brockton, Mass., won his 34th straight victory by outpointing Red Applegate of Montclair, N. J. Marciano weighed 185¾; Applegate 196.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference Monday announced the signing of Dean Bandierra, with Saskatchewan Rough Riders the last two seasons. Bandierra has been transferred here by his firm. He played at both guard and fullback spot last year.

After scoring three runs in the first, one next time up, and two in the third, they ran wild to tally nine in the fifth. The losers scored a pair in the second and one each in the next two chukkers. But three of the winners went down on strikes as 11 Kind Edward batters fanned. Teams:

Baby Out of Danger

CHICAGO, May 1 — (AP)—Nineteen-day-old Lynn Labrenz, who was given two blood transfusions despite her parents' opposition on religious grounds, will leave hospital soon "completely out of danger," a spokes- said Monday. The baby was born with an RH blood condition which often proves fatal. The parents, members of the Jehovah's Witnesses, maintained that blood transfusions violate Biblical directives against "blood eating."

Meat Makes A Crisis In England

Even Labor's Little People Rebel Against Governmnt

By GAYNOR MADDOX

LONDON—(NEA)— Meat, not guns and butter, is what everyone talks most about in England today.

The weekly meat ration of only eight pence worth of fresh meat—just about enough for one small serving—and two pence worth of canned corned meat has become a violent point of controversy. Even the lower income groups who normally vote with the Labor Government are rebelling.

If the Conservatives, headed by Winston Churchill and Lord Woolton, wartime Food Minister, could force a general election now, most objective observers believe the Labor Government would fall.

The proposed income tax increased in the new budget has not helped the situation, since it will slice more purchasing power from the consumer's pound. This means he will be able to buy less of the non-rationed foods, such as chicken and imported hams, cheese and fish with which he has been supplementing his limited share of rationed foods.

But Food Minister Maurice Webb has promised to raise the 10 pence meat ration (about 11 cents) to at least a shilling and eight pence (about 23 cents) per person after Aug. 1, indicating extra meat would come from Argentina. With this on the horizon, if Prime Minister Attlee succeeds in holding off a general election until spring brings more eggs, fresh vegetables and fruit to market, the Labor Government may outride the bitterness of a meat-eating ration against the low meat ration.

The bitterness was vivid in the days and nights I spent talking with Government and Opposition leaders, with taxi drivers, with men and women in pubs, with clerks and butchers and produce merchants, and with the motley groups that gather each Sunday in Petticoat Lane to smell out bargains.

From a strictly nutritional viewpoint, the diet in the United Kingdom is a little better today than it has been since 1939. The shortage of meat is no new problem, and the ration has been just as meager before.

To the housewife, and her family, however, the aggravating factor is that there's an acute shortage of meat when other supplies are increasing and more and more foods are coming off the ration. Moreover, compared with alternative foods, meat is cheap because the government keeps the price down with a subsidy which now runs to 27 million pounds a year.

For exaple, a pound of stewing beef (rations for two persons) costs only one shilling and four pence, whereas a pound of unrationed fish costs two shillings and six pence. A pound of rabbit (of which most British are weary) costs one shilling and nine pence, and a pound of chicken as much as four or five shillings.

Visited Family

A four-pound stewing chicken would cost £1, a fifth of the total weekly earnings of the average London worker, whereas four pounds of stewing beef (if he could get it) would cost about one-fourth as much.

In a Kentish town, I sat down to dinner with the young Yardsleys ,typical of thousands of other families living on from £5 ($14) to £6 a week.

Ronald Yardsley, 30, served six and a half years in the Army and is now a telephone technician earning a little higher than average (£ 10s.) a week). Five shillings are deducted for social services, and he doesn't have to pay any taxes.

Dinner in their two-room flat was fish cakes, greens, boiled potatoes and a steamed syrup pudding. There was the inevitable teapot, too, but I drank only one cup because tea is rationed to two ounces per person a week.

The Yardsleys spend up to £4 a week for food. They get 18 eggs a week because Mrs. Yardsley's mother can't eat them and turns over her allotment. The children —Linda, 5, and Terrence, 2—get milk and orange juice at a reduced price and the government gives them free cod liver oil.

Mrs. Yardsley, 28, looks somewhat weary and pale like many women in England today because of the drudgery brought on by rationing and limited supplies. She thinks "maybe" she'd vote for the Labor Party right now.

"But I am not sure yet," she adds. "I think the government should spend more money to buy Argentine beef. We certainly could do with more of it."

"I'll say we could," snapped her husband. "But that's not my gripe. We get enough food even if we don't get enough meat. And they've done a good job with their socialized medicine. But I've turned against them because they haven't built enough houses for us working blokes and because they are spending too much money on rearmament."

He struck the table with his fist. "I'm against war, any war," he said. "I've seen enough of it. I'll take Russian ocupation any day rather than see a bomb murder my children."

His wife filled her husband's teacup. "He always talks like that," she said. "But I know him. Just let the Commies try to cross the Channel and he'll be right up front fighting them."

The next day we had lunch in an expensive restaurant with an old friend, the wife of an English earl. She ate pork cutlet with excitement. "That was such a wonderful treat after rabbit," she said.

But she didn't think the meat shortage is the main question for England today because of Russia. She is strongly opposed to Socialism, but realizes the industrial peace achieved by the Labor Party.

"If the price of turning out this Socialistic government is to return to labor unrest while we are rearming, then I would hesitate a long time before voting against them," she said.

I heard a similar argument from a highly-placed civil servant I talked to in the Lord Nelson pub on Kings Row. But little people, like taxi drivers and waiters, all said they wanted to turn out the Labor government. The reason was always the same: they want more meat.

One Monday the valet at my hotel didn't show up. Next day he explained he'd spent the weekend in Ireland with a relative.

"I had decent food and plenty of it," he said. "But never again. Living so long on rations has shrunk my stomach and an honest meal made me sick. England is being starved to death by the government."

MEATLESS MEAT-EATERS—Meat is a crisis in England today. To find out why —and how it affects the British people and their Labor Government—NEA'S ace food reporter Gaynor Maddox toured the British food front for a first-hand report. Above, Maddox extreme left sits down to dinner with the Ronald Yardsleys, a typical working class family. He tells their story—and others—in the accompanying dispatch, the first of three.

Chinese Propaganda Presents New Angle

TOKYO, May 1 (AP) — The Red China radio today made the unsubstantiated charge that the United States is waging bacteriological warfare in Korea.

Peiping radio used the charge in the Korean tongue on its propaganda broadcasts. It purported to quote allied war prisoners and an American magazine, "Weekly Newspaper," as saying Chinese Red prisoners were used for bacteriological experiments on a small island outside Wonsan.

Associate Manager

MONTREAL, May 1 — (CP) — Appointment of H. B. Parr as associate manager of sleeping and dining car services of Canadian National Railways was announced Mondy. He will succeed J. A. McIsaac as manager when Mr. McIsaac retires on pension in July, the announcement said.

Ford Not Asked Help Emergency

WINDSOR, May 1 (CP) — In his annual report to shareholders Monday, Rhys M. Sale, president of Ford of Canada said "up to this moment" Ford has not been called upon to participate in the national preparedness program.

He said 800 workers had been laid off because necessary steel parts were not available from the United States for all-out automobile production. Mr. Sale said it would be wasteful for any part of the plant or any number of its workers to stand idle when Canada needs to strengthen its defensive power.

The Ford president recalled that many months ago, as soon as the seriousness of the international situation became apparent, Ford of Canada announced publicly that its complete resources in plant, manpower and know-how would be placed at the disposal of the nation without reservation.

"We have not, however, received a contract of any kind for military vehicles or other preparedness requirements."

Mr. Sale announced that a major expansion in manufacturing facilities would get underway at the giant Windsor plant "as soon as circumstances permit." He added the company is not yet ready to announce the nature of the project.

In Good Condition

BRANTFORD, May 1—(CP)—Hospital authorities here Monday night reported Leonard Dinsmore, 23, was in "fairly good" condition despite the broken pelvis and broken spine which he suffered earlier in the day when a brick wall collapsed and buried him under nearly a foot of debris as he was helping demolish an old house.

New Statistics Give Details About Britain

LONDON, May 1 (AP)—Anybody can prove most anything about Britain by citing newly-published figures of the central statistical office.

Any Briton, or anybody else, who wants to spend 17 shillings, six pence ($2.45) can buy a 312-page volume that will show—among other things—the barrels of beer consumed, the number of meals served in restaurants and the fertility of British womanhood.

There were 27,000,000 bulk barrels of beer consumed in Britain in 1949 (the last year covered by the report); 231,100,000 restaurant meals were served that year and there were 68.9 lives births per 1,000 women in 1948, compared with 53.6 live births in 1939.

The report shows how Britain is becoming a nation of older persons. In 1949 there were three times as many persons over 65 than in 1871. The 1949 figure was 5,351,000 compared to 1,334,000. The total between those years increased 85 per cent, with 50,363,000 population estimated as of mid-1949.

Divorce Rate Down

Another table showed that the number of persons seeking divorce in 1949, was the lowest since 1945—but the 1949 figure was three times greater than in 1938. From 1938 to 1949, adultery was most frequently given as the reason for divorce. In 1949, desertion moved into first place.

Despite auterity, less people (5,118) committed suicide in 1948 than in 1938 (5,794).

The total working population remained around the 23,000,000 mark between 1948 and 1950. In 1938 it was 19,473,000. There were three times more men than women working in 1938, but only about twice as many last year.

More than 1,710,000 persons were registered as unemployed in 1938. This figure was 274,000 in 1950.

Jailed For Contempt

MIAMI, Fla., May 1—(AP)—Ellis Chism, blue-law crusader who was well on his way toward closing up Miami on Sundays, was jailed Monday for contempt of court. Chism's contempt was a published criticism of Judge Wayne Allen for fining a lumber company $1 for remaining open on Sunday. Judge Allen said: "I thought you were sincere, but I am beginning to believe that you love the publicity more than you love the Lord."

SAILOR AND 'ROO—Taronga Park Zoo was a favorite attraction for the crew of the Canadian cruiser Ontario during the ship's 10-day stay in Sydney, Australia. Making friends with a baby kangaroo is LS. Philip Rhodes, of Haney, B.C.

Cheese Price Set By 5-Man Group

BELLEVILLE, May 1—(CP)—Ontario and Quebec cheese buyers will choose a five-man negotiating committee to meet with Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board and set a price for domestic cheese, it was decided Monday.

Representatives of buyers met with the marketing board and adjourned until May 9 after deciding to name the committee. Three committee members will be from Ontario and two from Quebec.

This system of arriving at a cheese price is new, but producers indicated they feel it will work to their advantage as well as the buyers.

In addition to the domestic market, Ontario producers have arranged for export sales to the United Kingdom. The British ministry of food will meet soon with Quebec buyers to arrange purchase of any surplus from that province.

Price of cheese for export, believed to be about 30 cents a pound, will be announced after the domestic price has been set, producers' representatives said.

Reburied At Ajaccio

PARIS, May 1—(Reuters)—The remains of Napoleon's father were taken from here Monday for reburial in the family vault at Ajaccio, Corsica. The Emperor's father, Charles-Marie Bonaparte, was a lawyer. He had been buried at nearby Saint-Leu-la-Foret, near here. Reburial at the "Little Corporal's" birthplace will be on Sunday.

To Make Report

BERLIN, May 1 — (Reuters) — Northwest German radio, a western station, reported today that Walter Ulbricht, Communist leader of East Germany, will fly to Moscow to report on his party's attempts to develop mass Communist agitation in West Germany. Ulbricht, general secretary of the East German Socialist Unity Party, will also report on the results of the purge within his own party, the radio said.

Britain's Royal Family Appears On TV Show

LONDON, May 1 (AP)—Most of Britain's Royal Family did a turn on television Monday night. The Queen nodded graciously. One sister smiled. The other toyed with a cigarette. The King stayed home.

The Queen, wearing an oyster-white crinoline gown and a diamond coronet, stole the show at a needlework exhibition at St. James Palace. She toured the exhibition while an announcer described the needlework.

Later the TV station picked up the family at a fashionable Mayfair ball.

Princess Elizabeth was smiling happily from her table. Princess Margaret sat alongside, nonchalantly fingering a cigarette.

1951 ADJUDICATOR — Jose Ruben, Paris-born actor and director who once played opposite Sarah Bernhardt, is adjudicator for the 1951 Dominion Drama Festival, to be held in London, Ont., May 14-19. Mr. Ruben spent some time in Hollywood in the early days of motion pictures, but left in 1913 to return to the stage. He now spends most of his time teaching and coaching young actors and singers in New York.

Report Tolls Won't Pay For Seaway

WASHINGTON, May 1 (AP)—The House of Representatives, winding up hearings on legislation to authorize the $818,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway and power project, was told Monday that there is "no reasonable possibility" it could be made to pay for itself by traffic tolls.

Such an assertion was contained in a statement filed with the house public works committee by Walter J. Kelly of the Association of American Railroads.

In another statement, the committee was told by Caleb R. Megee, vice-chairman of A.A.R.'s car service division, that the country's railroads are "physically capable" of moving to steel mills the iron ore which is expected to come from new mines in Labrador.

Thus, he said, construction of the seaway would be unnecessary.

Production from the Labrador development, containing a large quantity of high-grade iron ore, is held by seaway advocates to be needed to augment the dwindling resources of American deposits.

They say the most feasible way to transport is over the proposed seaway.

The committee has scheduled an executive session for today and a vote on whether to approve or reject the legislation may be taken.

Name Dempsey Plan Defence

LONDON, May 1 (Reuters) — The government today appointed Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey to head a committee that will draw plans for an emergency defence organization.

Dempsey, who commanded the British second army after the Normandy landings in 1944, has been named chairman of a commander-in-chiefs' committee for home defence. He will also be commander-in-chief of United Kingdom land forces.

Admiral Sir Arthur Power, at present commander-in-chief of the naval base at Portsmouth, will have charge of all naval matters connected with the defence of British home waters.

Air members will be Air Marshal Sir Basil Embry, commander-in-chief, fighter command.

An authoritative source called the move "a normal precaution," since in any future war Britain would be an important defence base.

Three Men Winners In Ice-Guessing Pool

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. May 1 (CP)—The old northern pastime—guessing when the winter ice will begin moving—paid off Monday for three men when the Yukon river ice started crumbling at 11:03 a.m.

The winners were Albert Coy, William G. Hamilton and Frank Ramsey. Coy and Hamilton had a joint interest in a guess for 11:01 a.m., while Ramsay had estimated the time at 11:05 a.m.

Coy and Hamilton will divide half the pool of $750, while Ramsay will get the other half.

Salvage Tugs Give Up Hunt

HALIFAX, May 1 (CP)—Salvage tugs have given up the hunt for the elusive bow end of an oil tanker, believed to have been mistaken for a submarine early last week.

The tugs Traverse and Foundation Josephine went out to seek the 175-foot bow section of the Esso Rochester last week after fishermen in the eastern Prince Edward Island fishing village of Naufrage reported an unidentified submarine off the coast.

A navy intelligence officer said he was satisfied the reported undersea craft was the wandering tanker section.

The Esso Rochester broke in two in the Gulf of St. Lawrence during a gale last November. Salvage tugs lost the bow section in a second storm and since then several searches have failed to find it. The stern was towed safely to Halifax and now is in the United States, having a new bow built.

Evacuation Ordered Of Two More Village

SINGAPORE, May 1 —(AP)—British authorities today ordered evacuation of two more Malayan villages, branding them as "wasps' nests" of Communist terrorists.

Police swooped down on Busut, Selangor State, and ordered the 450 inhabitants to clear out, with their belongings, to a resettlement camp 14 miles away.

At the same time the government warned some 2,000 villagers of Kanthan, 16 miles north of Ioph, in Perak State, that they must evacuate their homes starting May 5, so that British authorities can clean out that area also. They too will be resettled.

An official press statement said the villagers of Busut, like those of Jenderam — which British forces cleared out last February and ordered burned—had failed to give the police information on terrorist activities.

Hospital Rates Increase $1

KITCHENER, May 1 (CP)—The Kitchener - Waterloo Hospital Commission has voted to increase room rates by $1 for every type of room. New rates, effective June 1, will be $6, $8 and $11 for standard ward, semi-private rooms respectively.

Construction of the new 11-storey $3,000,000 hospital, which will be partly occupied by the end of this month, isn't the cause of the increase, said administrator Gordon Friesen. If the old building were continuing as the hospital, a greater increase would have been necessary, he said.

Chairman C. N. Weber said: "We have one of the lower Hospital rates in existence. We should bring them up to the provincial average, more in line with Owen Sound, Brantford and similar cities."

What's Right

You are inviting guests for a sit-down dinner.

WRONG: Tell them to come "around seven or so."

RIGHT: State a definite time. Say "seven o'clock." If the time is at all vague, some guests may show up late enough to make it difficult to wait dinner for them.

Plight Of Blind Causing Concern In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, (Reuters)—Helen Keller, the 70-year-old blind and deaf American authoress now visiting South Africa, is arousing public conscience here to the need for greater exertions in the prevention of blindness and help to the blind.

Miss Keller, who was blind and deaf at 19 months but learned Latin, French and German and took a college degree, is loved all over the world for her lifetime's work in the cause of the blind, the deaf and the dumb.

Miss Keller's visit is inspired by a desire to awaken interest in the present plight of the Africans.

In 1950, of the 32,701 registered blind in the Union of South Africa, only 2,428 were Europeans. These figures do not take into account the large number of Africans who are not registered because they do not know they are entitled to a small government pension.

Two years ago, the South African National Council for the Blind established the bureau for the prevention of blindness, which has since made some notable researches in the African field.

Poverty Trouble

Opthalmological surveys have revealed that the roots of blindness lie in poverty and ignorance and the resulting dirt and malnutrition.

The most widespread and infectious disease among Africans is trachoma. It is a common sight in African villages to see flies crawling up the faces and into the eyes of infants who are so used to the discomfort that they make no attempt to brush them away. Their mothers are too ignorant to connect these insects with eye troubles.

Suspicious of Hospitals

In its early stages tracoma is curable, but the facilities for treatment are in the towns. The department for native affairs provides free rail transport to these centres, but few can be induced to take advantage of them. The African who has never left his hills is suspicious of hospitals.

So preventable blindness, increases on account of ignorance.

It is the training of the blind, however, that provides the national council with its biggest headache. Its own facilities are inadequate to cope with the number of slightless who could be trained to do useful work, and the individual employer cannot be expected to provide these. As a result, hundreds of blind people are unable to find employment.

Government departments, municipalities and the mines, normally find work for their blinded employees, but ouside, the difficulty of training, inconvenience and loss to output are invariably cited as reasons for unwillingness to accept blind workers.

Idea Disappearing

Fortunately, the idea that the work of a blind person is confined to some sort of basket-work or knitting is slowly disappearing. Much has been done to alter this old-fashioned conception by the union's two schools for blind children.

The answer to prevention cannot be found immediately since its roots are in economic causes, but much could be acnieved in staving off blindness by the provision of mobile units to visit the outlying districts.

The reply to unemployment must be increased training facilities for the blind who are at present unable to crowd into the centres run by the 20 societies affiliated to the national council.

It is hoped here that Miss Helen Keller's visit will apply the spur where it is most needed.

Colleen O'Brien Bride Of Joseph Kylie

At Our Lady of Assumption Church, Otonabee, on Saturday morning, Colleen Loretta daughter of Mr and Mrs. James O'Brien, Keene, and Joseph David Kylie, son of Mr and Mrs. Fred Kylie, Peterborough, exchanged marriage vows. The Rev. W. C. McCarney said the nuptial mass and performed the ceremony.

Spring flowers decorated the church. Miss Alma LaPlante played the wedding music and Mr. Maurice Caccavella sang "Ave Maria" during signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a gown of Chantilly lace and nylon net styled with high round neckline outlined in seed pearls. The very full skirt had a tunic overskirt of net and the bodice was finished with long lily point sleeves. Her veil of fingertip length was of silk ilusion with lace appliques and was caught to a hand-beaded tiara of tiny seed pearls and rhinestones. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and hyacinths.

Bridal attendants were Miss Norma O'Brien, sister of the bride, and Miss Helen Kylie, sister of the groom. They wore similarly styled frocks of embossed organdy over taffeta in mauve and green and hats of matching material. They carried nosegays of roses and sweet peas.

Groomsman was Mr. Frank O'Brien and ushers were James O'Brien and Lawrence Corkery.

The reception was held at the Kawartha Country Club, the bride's mother receiving in a dress of navy crepe with white hat and corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the groom's mother who was dressed in printed silk and wore a navy hat and corsage of white carnations.

The bridal couple left on a trip to United States, Mrs. Kylie wearing a pink suit with navy accessories and her corsage was a gardenia.

On return the couple will live on the Keene Road.

Girls Who Become Models Get Good Start In Career Life

By CYNTHIA LOWRY.

NEW YORK—(AP) — Fashion modelling appears a springboard for almost any kind of career these days. Among today's most popular models are apt to be many of tomorrow's feminine standouts in arts and business, judging by the record of their predecessors.

A large number, of course, moved on to the movies and the stage, including Barbara Stanwyck, Gene Tierney, Paulette Goddard, Jennifer Jones, Joan Caulfield, Kay Francis, Lucille Ball, Meg Mandy and Nancy Kelly.

Amy More however leaped from modelling to matrimony and motherhood. Jean Murray married Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt. Mrs. Winthrop Rockfeller was model Barbara (Bo-Bo) Sears. Edith Backus is the wife of Jack Chrysler of the automobile family.

Frances Westcott married Edgar Bergen, and Oona O'Neill, daughter of the author Eugene O'Neill, was a fashion model before she married Charlie Chaplin.

Others have managed to commine marriage and a areer. Jinx Falkenburg is one of the most versatile and busiest of the modelling alumni. After a fling at the stage and screen Jinx retired to become the wife of newspaper and magazine executive Tex McCrary. Shortly the couple blossomed out as a radio husband-and-wife team, picked up a daily televison show and launched a joint daily newspaper column. They have two boys.

Cite Benefits.

Another radio husband-and-wife team is former high-fashion model Betsey Drake and film actor Jeffrey Lynn, mother of two children and hostess on a TV show of her own.

Many more could be listed. The question is, what does modelling give a girl that helps in a later career?

"It gives an awful lot," answers Betty Downey, now fashion editor for a slick paper magazine after a successful career as a model.

"You gain confidence," she explains. "You understand about styles and fashion, and of course you learn diplomacy, how to get along with all kinds of people and haw to handle yourself in many situations."

Babs Lee, now an advertising executive and author, said "I learned how to handle clothes and myself in them."

Jinx Falkenburg summed up the help it gives those who want a career in the entertainment world. "You learn the important lessons of lighting and make-up, and what are attractive camera angles and what are awkward ones. You get over being self-conscious and nervous; you can feel at ease before many eyes."

Fixed Allowance Teaches Child How to Handle Funds

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife and I argue over the way our son spends his money. He is 15 and we give him a good allowance. There are weeks when he does not spend all of it, but puts it away as he does the money given to him by his aunts and uncles. Then, when he has a considerable amount saved up he spends it for some expensive gadget. I think it is wrong for him to waste his money this way, but his mother says it is all right as it is his money and it is his privilege to buy with it what he pleases. I have tried to get him to establish a savings account, but he refuses to do this. Will you give us some advice on this subject?

Dorothy Dix

A CONSTANT READER.

ANSWER: I think your wife is right in saying that you should keep your hands off your boy's money and that he has a right to spend it as he pleases so long as he is making no improper use of it.

In fact, he shows a great deal of character and self-control in being able to deny himself the things he wants at the moment in order that he may accumulate enough to buy something bigger that he wants later on.

Parents Neglect This

There is no phase of a child's education that is more important than to teach it how to handle money, yet it is one that most fathers and mothers neglect entirely. Every child over 5 should have its personal allowance which should be adequate to cover its little expense and a few treats, and the child should be made to keep within this, and it should never be supplemented by extra money. If the child spends its whole week's pocket money the first day, it should have to go without the things it wants until next pay day. In that way only can you teach him to live within his income and that spendthrifts come to want.

A very wise father that I know solves the children's income plan in this way: Each one receives his or her stipend on Saturday and is required to put 10 per cent in his or her savings bank. They are never given any extra money, but they are permitted to earn money. If Johnny, say, wants a half dollar or Mary a quarter, the mother or father provide some task whereby they can make the money, thereby giving the child not only what it wants, but teaching it the invaluable lesson that if we want more money we must work for it.

Some parents make the mistake of giving a child money and then virtually taking it away from him by supervising what he does with it too closely, as is the case with the father who writes this letter. That not only discourages the child from trying to save and takes away all of its pride of financial independence, but it also keeps it from learning how to manage money. It is only through experience and from the mistakes we have made that we learn wisdom in spending as in everything else.

DEAR MISS DIX: A young girl 19, in her first year in college, is in love with a boy 19, with one more year in college. They want to marry and the girl wants to work a year while he finishes his schooling. He is 1A in the draft. Both mothers are opposed to marriage now. What is oyur solution?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Better for the boy, at least, and best for them both, marry. The mothers are wise, and to finish college before they their advice should be followed. The draft makes things uncertain enough for young people, and an education helps remove part of the uncertainty. It's getting more and more important for a girl to have a college education and this young couple can afford to wait until they are at least this well equipped for the future.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I work with a lot of men. I am the only girl in the office. I hate to admit it, but I have absolutely no control over them. They swear and use terrible language before me. I can't afford to give up my position. Please tell me how to make them behave like gentlemen.

MARY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You can't change them. You can't control them nor is it your business to do so. Attend to your own job and shut your ears to what they say.

FUNNY BUSINESS -- By Hershberger

"Gentlemen we're approaching a crisis! We'll soon have more government employees than taxpayers!"

Strictly Party Dessert Can Be Made Day Before

By MARY MOORE.

An economizing spree resulted in a party.

You see I bought a dozen large new laid eggs—but "cracks"—for 45 cents to make a new angel food dessert that I discovered.

I made this beautiful thing on a Saturday, and was so overcome by my handiwork that I invited folks in for Sunday High Tea. One pair of aforementioned folks brought along their drop-in company. (Don't be misled; I like that). I can safely divulge now that I had a few bad moments wondering if my lovely dessert would stretch to serve the sixteen people the recipe claimed it would, I need not have worried. It did—and my ego has had a bolstering too.

While I had only ten people to serve, most of them said "yes" to second helpings.

This is strictly a party dessert. It tastes as party desserts should—out of this world. Best of all it should be made "the day before" and kept cold.

Angel Food Party Dessert

Without the flour and sugar this costs one dollar and thirty cents and serves 16 people. Figure it out! That is less than most desserts of lesser elegance and flavor would cost for an equal number.

Angel Cake

(I think I can safely say this is never-fail if you observe instructions to the letter). One and 2-3 measuring cupsful egg whites (room temperature), 1½ cups sifted cake flour, 2 cups sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoon each cream of tartar and vanilla, 1 teaspoon almond flavoring. Sift flour and measure it and pour it back into the sifter. Add 1 cup of the measured sugar to the flour in the sifter and sift them together 4 times. Sift the remaining cup of sugar 4 times—the last time leave it on a sheet of wax paper. Put egg whites in large bowl with the salt and beat with rotary or electric beater until foamy, then sprinkle the cream of tartar over them and beat until stiff but not dry. Wipe down sides of bowl with rubber scraper to keep the whites evenly mixed. Now shake the sugar over whites while beating. Take about 1 minute to blend in the sugar. Add flavorings. Stop beating with rotary or electric beater and get out your flat wire beater. Sprinkle the flour mixture over top, 2 tablespoons at a time, folding this in before adding the next 2 tablespoons. Pour into very large ungreased angel food cake tin. Have oven preheated to 335 deg. Fahr. with bottom burner only turned on. Bake for 60 to 65 minutes at 325 deg. Fahr. I suggested starting it at 335 deg. because cake cools oven 10 degrees when it is put in. Invert cake on wire cooler and let hang until cold. Loosen cake from sides and centre tube of pan with fingers or slim knife to help it fall out.

While cake is cooling make

Pineapple Cream for filling and frosting above angel food: In top of double boiler heat 2¼ cups canned unsweetened pineapple juice OR apricot nectar or 1¼ cups orange juice and 1 cup water; add ¾ cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt. Meanwhile beat 7 egg yolks well. Stir a little of the hot juice into them, and return all to juice in double boiler, stirring until it thickens a little and forms coating on back of spoon as a custard would. Remove from heat. Have soaking 4½ teaspoons gelatine in 6 tablespoons cold water. Dissolve the soaked gelatine in the hot custard, stirring. Cool this mixture until it begins to thicken definitely. Fold into it one-half pint heavy cream whipped, and then add ½ cup green or red sliced, drained maraschino cherries.

Cut the angel cake into 3 layers with long sharp knife, put layers together with the cream filling and cover tops and sides with it too. Do not try to do this too soon after filling is made as it will run if it is not cold and "set" enough. Further decorate cake by sprinkling a border of shaved nuts around top rim of cake, and edge this with sliced cherries. Chill overnight in refrigerator, or covered in very cool room.

Let me know if your crowd liked it.

McLaughlin-Lucas

St. Luke's Church, Downeyville, was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday morning, when Miss Teresa Lucas, Reg.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Lucas, became the bride of Mr. Frank McLaughlin of Toronto, son of Mr. John McLaughlin and the late Mrs. McLaughlin of Downeyville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Walter Herlihey cousin of the bride.

The bride was gowned in bridal satin with overdress of lace, made on fitted lines with a slight train, and a tulle veil was held in place with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of red roses. Miss Frances Lucas was her sister's bridesmaid in pink satin with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The groom was attended by Mr. Clem Guiry of Toronto.

Miss Pauline O'Donnell, cousin of the bride, was soloist and sang during the mass and at the signing of the register Gounod's "Ave Maria."

Rev. Father McFadden performed the ceremony and said the nuptial mass. Ushers were Mr. Fabian O'Neill, uncle of the groom, and Joseph Lucas, brother of the bride.

Dinner was served to 50 guests at the Benson House, Lindsay. Afterwards a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents at Downeyville, where the bride's mother received wearing a navy gown with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The

Mr. McLaughlin and his bride left on a motor trip and on their return will live in Toronto.

The bride is a graduate of St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, and has been living in Toronto.

Stolen Articles Are Recovered

Pleading guilty to a charge of stealing a lawnmower, some parts of a stove and a roll of bailing wire, Arthur Davis, 24, of the old Indian River village in Douro township, was placed on suspended sentence in police court today.

Provincial Constable Roy Feeley testified that Monday morning he received a complaint of a theft. He went to a farm owned by Robert Leahy of Douro township.

He was given a description of the person suspected. He covered the district in his cruiser and then saw a car parked on the Warsaw road. He searched the car and found a lawnmower, pieces of a stove, and wire in it, as well as the transmission of a car and three cases of empty beer bottles.

Davis then returned to his car and was arrested. In a statement given to police, Davis said he had gone to work that morning in Peterborough and there had been no work for him.

He drove out the Warsaw road and stopped at three or four places looking for junk. He came across the Leahy farm on which there was a vacant house. He was loading some of the junk he found into the car when a man came along and shouted to him. He ran across the road and circled back to his car when the man left. He went back to the house and was collecting the rest when Constable Feeley came along.

Asked for his explanation, Davis said, "I needed something for my day's work. I didn't figure it was worth very much."

Constable Feeley said all the stolen articles had been recovered.

Hit Two Cars Driver Freed

Given the benefit of the doubt, Alfred Rose, Brooklin, was found not guilty in police court Monday of a charge of careless driving about midnight April 18.

Rose hit two parked cars on Margaret Ave. in making a turn from Charlotte St.

Constable Reg. McMillan testified that Rose's car showed no skid marks and when he tested the brakes, found the brake pedal had no effect. He said Rose was a borderline drunk.

The two parked cars had been on the west side in front of the corner house. They were owned by Jack Pynn, 320 Margaret Ave., and W. G. Rowbotham. Another car was parked on the east side south of the two on the west side.

Rose said he had been driving west out Charlotte St. He stopped at Park St. for the traffic light and the brakes had worked effectively. When he reached Margaret Ave. he turned left to go south.

As he started his turn, he put on the brakes and nothing happened. He saw the car parked on the east side and swung to the centre of the road to avoid it. Then he saw the cars on the west side and started to swing back toward the east when his left rear fender caught the rear bumper of the Pynn car and swung him into the Rowbotham car. He said he hadn't had a drink within two hours before the accident and was not intoxicated.

Would Lower Age To 18 Junior Skiing

Mrs. Mollie Craig, Peterborough Ski Club, was on Sunday re-appointed chairman of the Ontario women's section of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association at the annual meeting in North Bay.

Delegates from clubs in North Bay, Sudbury and Haileybury attended as well as representatives from Southern Ontario especially Toronto, Hamilton and Peterborough clubs.

A recommendation will be made at the annual CASA meeting in Oshawa May 19-20 that the junior age limit in Ontario be lowered to 18 years. The Southern Ontario ski clubs introduced the suggested change after its annual meeting at Young's Point two weeks ago.

Sudbury opposed the change. The delegates believed that if a skier of 19 years is attending high school, he should be allowed to enter junior competition.

The Ontario division will back any move to support Bob Richardson's entry into the Olympics of 1952. Fred Urquhart, president of the CASA, said Monday night that a last-minute rule change may make it possible for the Montreal skier to compete for Canada in the Olympics.

Richardson, Canadian combined champion, was reinstated by the CASA as an amateur after he gave up ski instructing. But under Olympic rules, he cannot participate in the games in Norway because re-instatement was made after Oct. 1, 1946.

However, a meeting of the Olympic rules committee in Vienna this week may change that rule.

Tried To Syphon Gas, Plead Guilty

Two Omemee men were placed on suspended sentence for two years when they pleaded guilty in police court Monday to trying to steal gasoline from a car owned by Constable William G. Scott of the city police force.

"Of all the cars in Peterborough that night," commented W. J. Arthur Fair K.C., defending the pair, "they had to pick on yours."

The two were Godfrey Sandback and Fred Bryant, both of RR 2, Omemee.

Constable Scott said he was not on duty at the time. He had been to a movie with his wife and was walking back to his car parked on a lot in front of the Irwin-Godson body repair shop on King St.

Saw Two Walk Away

As he walked toward his car, he saw the two accused men at the rear of it. They turned and walked away. The constable saw what looked at first like a rope being dragged across a rack on the rear of his car. Sandback had a pail in his hand.

He asked them what they were doing. They said they weren't doing anything and walked on. The constable walked quickly to catch up to them and as he passed the rear of his car, he smelled gasoline strongly.

He took the pail which had a hole in the bottom and a hose from Sandback. The hose was wet with gasoline three or four inches up one end. The inside of the pail was also wet and smelled strongly of gasoline. His gas tank cap was off and lying on the ground.

Constable Scott sent his wife to phone for a police cruiser and the pair were taken to the police station.

Mr. Fair suggested that the two were out of gas and tried to get some from a nearby car.

"They shouldn't have picked on mine," said the officer.

Receives Resignation

OTTAWA, May 1 (CP)—Speaker Ross Macdonald announced Monday receipt of the formal resignation of Ralph Maybank, Liberal member of parliament for Winnipeg South Centre. Mr. Maybank announced recently that he is retiring from political life. Speaker Macdonald told the Commons he has instructed the chief electoral officer to make preparations for a by-election in the Winnipeg seat.

Craftsmen Say Festival In U.K. Gauche

BIRMINGHAM, ENGLAND, — (CP — A firm of silversmiths which exhibited at the British exhibition of 1851 has refused to participate in the 1951 Festival of Britain because it considers the festival "gauche" and reflecting "continental lunacy."

Eric Davenport, managing director of the firm, said in a letter to festival authorities:

"I feel that the whole conception can only be described as the lunatic fringe and the only virtue that has been allowed full rein is the cult of the unusual, improbable and vulgar. the only striking lack is grace."

Davenport asked for the return of articles loaned by his company for the Crystal Palace exhibition 100 years ago, and said he declined to loan any of his craftsmen to the current show.

He said he had visited festival sites, had thought the matter over and had decided:

"The whole thing is described in the word 'Gauche.' One wall on the site has a hundred windows in the shape of human eyes with eyelids on them."

Festival officials declined comment, saying everybody was entitled to an opinion. Articles by newspapermen who have toured buildings at the main site on the south bank of the Thames river have been largely favorable.

Family Smuggles Sick Private Out Of Camp Charge He Wasn't Given Adequate Attention

CHICAGO, May 1 (AP)—Stanley Amborski, 21, a sick army private whose family smuggled him out of an army camp because he said he was not receiving proper medical attention was described today as in serious condition.

Amborski was brought 450 miles to Chicago by his family from Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., Sunday. The father, John Amborski, 45, said he had received two letters from Stanley complaining that he was ill and unable to get proper medical attention at the camp.

The camp commander, Brig.-Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis, Jr., said records there showed the soldier had been treated by medical officers four different days between April 12 and 27.

Amborski said the second letter from his son said: "Get me out dad. I'm going to fall dead soon."

Upon arrival home, Amborski called in the family physician who said the soldier was suffering from peritonitis. But at Naval Training Hospital, his illness was diagnosed as double pneumonia.

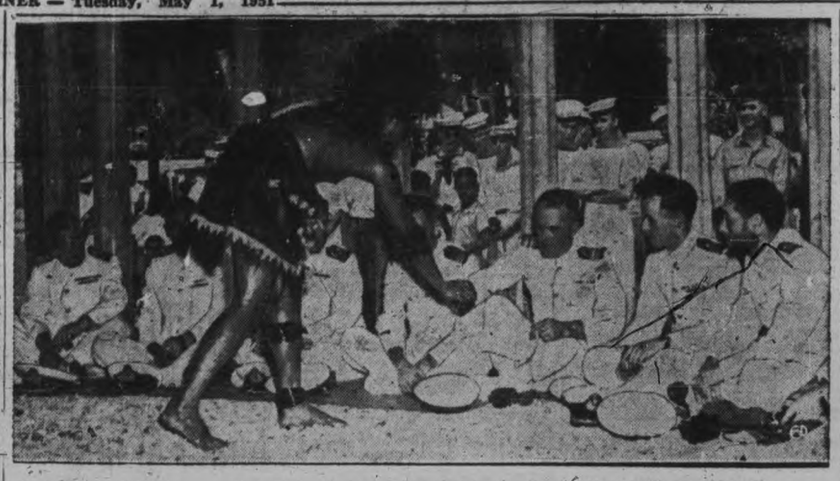
Sturgis said that Amborski "is absent without leave. His case is being thoroughly investigated."

Omemee Pastor Preaches Farewell Sermon

OMEMEE May 1 (ENS).—The Rev. F. W. Pooley, rector for nine years of Christ Church, Omemee, and outside appointments, St. James' and St. John's, preached his farewell sermon in Christ Church Sunday evening. Next Sunday he will begin work in his new appointment at Alderwood, as rector of the Church of the Atonement.

Mr. and Mrs. Pooley have received farewell gifts from all congregations. Wednesday evening the St. James' congregation presented Mrs. Pooley with a purse and Mrs. Pooley with a corsage. Thursday evening at St. John's they receive a floor lamp.

Friday evening was spent with the Omemee congregation, with Horace Hill as chairman. From the congregation, Mr. Pooley received a travelling bag and a cheque, and Mrs. Pooley a bouquet of spring flowers. The address was read by H. Bent and the presentation to Mr. Pooley was made by V. Jones. Little Wilma Hill presented Mrs. Pooley with the bouquet. The Women's Guild gave Mrs. Pooley a floor lamp, the presentation being made by Mrs. S. Nurse and the address read by Mrs. Harvey Laidley.



The children were remembered by the Sunday School on Sunday, when Mary Ann, Joan and George were each presented with a prayer book and two-year-old John with a picture book.

The Pooley family have won the respect, not only of their own church folk, but of the entire community, and will be missed in many circles.

The new rector, the Rev. C. Richmond, is not expected to arrive until the end of May. Formerly of England, he has recently come to this continent after two years of service as a missionary in South Africa and at present is in the U.S.A. In the meantime services in this parish will be conducted by licensed lay reader, Horace Mill.

The senior public school room, taught by Principal L. M. Curtis, arranged a party Friday afternoon for Mary Ann, Joan and George Pooley, who are going this week with their parents to Alderwood, Ontario, where their father, the Rev. F. W. Pooley, will be rector of the Church of the Atonement.

They played games and sang songs, with June Collins and Jeanette Rich taking turns accompanying on the piano. Also there was a piano duet by Jeanette Rich and Ruth Morrison, called "So Long." Bruce Lennox addressed the three retiring classmates and presented Mary Anne and Joan each with a bracelet and George with a fountain pen. Mary Ann was spokesman for the three in thanking the class.

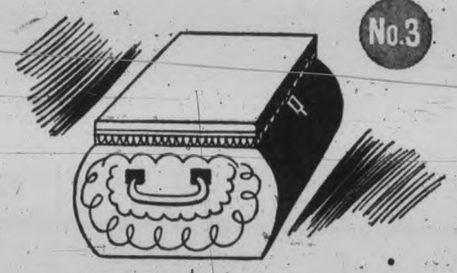
Clothes Ignite Woman Burned

HAVELOCK, May 1 (ENS). — Miss Lily Hubble, of South Lake, is a patient in Mrs. Finlay's nursing home here as a result of severe burns suffered when her clothing ignited while she was working near a bonfire.

Miss Hubble was badly burned around the lower ports of the body and had it not been for the prompt action of her brother, Charles Hubble, whose hands were badly burned, and the assistance of Mrs. Levi Wrightly, a neighbor who happened to be visiting Miss Hubble, the results would have been a lot more serious.



She is reported to be making favorable progress considering her condition.

Don't trust your eyes!

Can you place a dime on the top of the chest so it does not touch any of the edges? Looks easy . . . but try it.

PAINT can fool you, too

Optical illusions prove you can't always trust your eyes. When it comes to paint, your eyes can fool you badly.

Any paint looks good when you first apply it. But how will it look in five years . . . yes, even one year?

NEW AIRPORT RADAR

LONDON—(CP)—New radar is to be used at British airports for directing aircraft moving on the ground during fog. Known as the air surface movement indicator, it will enable airfield traffic controllers to operate in the poorest visibility.

OIL MAKES A COUNTRY STRONG

"SURE...I WAS HERE WHEN IT STARTED!"

You can bet Jimmie was on hand when the first Imperial drilling crew turned up at the farm gate. And he's been an untiring fence post superintendent ever since. But that's not all—in his shore lifetime he's lived enough years to see the growth of a new major industry.

Less than five years ago Canada's oil producing industry was far from robust. Our oil fields were dwindling and produced only one barrel in every 10 we used.

Today only eight countries in the world are known to have larger oil reserves than Canada. And production this year is expected to meet about one-third of our needs.

Every barrel of this "home grown" crude lessens our dependence on other countries and brings us a step closer to self-sufficiency in oil. With oil increasingly important to our daily life in peace or war, any improvement in security of supply means new security for Jimmie and for all of us.

Canada's newest major industry gives promise of becoming one of her greatest.

About Canada's Oil—

Last year Canada's oil industry stepped up its production of crude oil more than a billion gallons, an increase of 39 per cent. above 1949.

Imperial drilled more than 400 wells in 1950 searching for and developing oil fields in Alberta.

Canadians are using almost twice as much oil as they did only five years ago.

Oil now provides for one-quarter of Canada's total energy requirements.

Movie-Goers Get Something New In Pictures

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, May 1 (AP)—"Off We Go Into the Wild Blue Yonder" is Hollywood's theme song today. But this applies to interplanatory flight, not mere airplane travel.

Latest studio to explore the possibilities of the outer world is 20th Century-Fox, which is making a film called "The Day the Earth Stood Still."

"We thought that since moviegoers have been to the moon and other planets, they might be interested in what might happen if a visitor from another planet came here," Producer Julian Blaustein told me.

"But our visitor is not a vegetable or anything frightening. He looks and acts just like us. His mission is peaceful. There is no reason to believe that a person from another planet would necessarily come with evil intent."

Blaustein briefly described the story: A strange aircraft arrives at Washington. At first there is doubt as to whether it is from another earth power or from another world. Finally it is determined that it must be from outer space.

The world is buzzing with curiosity. Then a ramp comes out from the ship and the dome slides open. Out steps a man-like creature, completely covered by what looks like army fatigue clothes. He starts to open a strange object in his hands and his voice says, "I come in peace." Then a trigger-happy soldier shoots him.

Turmoil ensues, but it is quickly quelled by a robot in the ship which destroys all weapons with a ray. The space visitor, played by British actor Michael Rennie, is taken to hospital, where he quickly recovers, aided by an interplanatory salve.

Civilization Ahead

"Our man tries to get across his idea," reported Blaustein. "He tries to arrrange a meeting of all the heads of state in the world. Coming from a civilization that is 5,000 years ahead of ours, he observes that we can be a danger to galaxy peace, since we now are conquering atomic power and rocket travel.

"But he cannot get a meeting and then escapes his guard and poses as an earthman. Finally, after an interlude of observing our civilization, he reaches an Einstein-like savant, who tells him to do something dramatic to get his message across."

The space man offers to level Manhattan Island or drop Gibraltar into the sea, but settles for stopping the earth's electricity for 30 minutes (except in planes, hospitals, etc). Then he makes his point: That his more advanced civilization has created a robot to put down violence immediately.

"This is a plea for a stronger United Nations with an effective police force," Blaustein explained. "Our man tells us we must do this or the world will be destroyed. Then he gets back into his ship and flies away."

Blame Red Dictators For Lower Standards

OTTAWA, May 1 (CP) — Russian dictators were blamed for lowering living standards of other countries in a May Day statement issued Monday night by the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions.

The statement, marking the traditional May 1 labor holiday of many countries, was made public here by the Canadian Congress of Labor.

The ICFTU, which has 53,000,000 members in 60 countries, said the hopes and achievements of labor are "imperilled by the ever-present danger of war."

The ICFTU said peace never will be secure "until the peoples condemned to silence in the dictatorship countries regain control over their own destinies."

Legion Plans To Ask Vets' Pensions Raised

OTTAWA, May 1 (CP) — A demand that the government increase its pensions to veterans will be contained in a brief to be presented to the parliamentary committee on veterans affairs, the Canadian Legion announced Monday.

"The brief will demand," said the Legion, "an increase in pensions across the board, not merely to 100 per cent disabled, 100 per cent unemployable pensioners as the government has intimated its policy may be."

Food Prices Drop

WASHINGTON, May 1—(AP)—Retail food prices declined slightly the last two weeks of March, largely because of small drops in fresh fruit and vegetable prices, the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated Monday. For the second time since the wage-price freeze of Jan. 25, there was a falling off in the retail food price index by the bureau. The index declined 0.3 per cent between March 15 and March 26—from 226.2 to 225.4. The period from 1935 to 1939 is regarded as 100.

Jolliffe Says Ontario Not Ready For Job

TORONTO, May 1 — (CP) — Ontario, with a "desperate" housing shortage, is not too well prepared to take over federal rent controls, E. B. Joliffe, Ontario CCF leader, said Monday night.

Provincial government legislation to assume controls, passed at the recent Legislature session, is a "blank cheque," Mr. Joliffe said in a speech prepared for delivery over a provincial network of the CBC in its free-time "Provincial Affairs" series.

"Everyone realizes that Ottawa's system of disorderly decontrol has worked out very unfairly for both landlords and tenants," he said. "It is essential that Ontario should do a better job, and for this the Ontario government carries a very great responsibility."

May 24 Holiday

TORONTO, May 1 — (CP) — Most Toronto firms this year will observe the Victoria Day holiday May 24, a Thursday, it was learned Monday. A survey conducted by Toronto Board of Trade so far has drawn 414 replies from member firms and 234 of these reported they plan to observe the holiday on the Thursday. Most of the others plan to give their employees a holiday on the Friday.

Will Feel Pinch

PARIS, May 1—(AP)—Americans will begin to feel "the real pinch" of rearming by the end of 1951, Defence Mobilizer Charles Wilson said Monday. Here for a week of co-ordinating western defence production, Wilson told a press conference "the target of production for defence in the United States is $50,000,000,000 a year by the end of 1951.

Boycott Ended

WASHINGTON, May 1—(AP)—The United Labor Policy committee Monday ended its two month boycott of defence agencies and voted unanimously to return to the agency posts. A labor walkout from the nine-member stabilization board Feb. 16 collapsed that panel. A new one, twice the size of the first agency, is to be reconstituted this week.

Order Consulate Shut

PRAGUE, May 1—(Reuters)—The Communist government Monday night ordered France to close the French consulate in Prague by May 5. It follows the recent closing by France of the Czech consulate in Algiers, North Africa.

Warns Colleges Needing Money

MONTREAL, May 1 (CP) — Principal F. Cyril James of McGill University Monday said that without another $10,000,000 a year Canadian universities cannot continue to provide trained students and staff—weapons of defence and instruments of Canadian progress.

In an address to the Canadian Club, Principal James said the number of university students was diminishing year by year because of the rising cost of a university education. Low salary scales made promising young men shy away from careers as teachers and researchers.

"No wastage is more tragic than the wastage of men and women. In the United States, in Australia, in France and Great Britain, government scholarships and free accommodation are available in large enough numbers to ensure that the lack of personal finances shall never debar a man from higher education. Can we in Canada afford to deny that opportunity to our young people?"

Men Line Up To Join Emergency Force

WELLINGTON, NZ, May 2.—(Reuters).— Men lined up at New Zealand ports today to join the country's new civilian "law and order" force.

Their enrolment for the emergency force came 24 hours after Prime Minister Sidney Holland had called on every able-bodied man to fight "wreckers and trouble-makers trying to overthrow orderly government."

Police in Wellington, enforcing new "get tough" orders, broke up a march by 1,000 striking dock workers Tuesday.

Holland's appeal for civilian volunteers came as the dock workers' strike dragged through its tenth week. Beatings and the dynamiting of a coal district bridge had added to the tension.

Lines had formed before the civilian recruiting offices opened in many places today. More than 1,000 men had volunteered in Auckland by the early afternoon.

About 100 police used batons on the Wellington strikers when they tried to march through the police lines to the Parliament Buildings.

The marchers dispersed after being told a deputation would meet the government.

New Zealand's industrial crisis stems from the dock strike for higher wages. The government dissolved the longshoremen's union and appealed to the men to form new unions.

Intend To Stop Race Services

HAMILTON, May 2—(CP)—Inspector John Tomlinson of the provincial police said today that his force intends to stop "racing services" in Ontario.

The head of the force's anti-gambling squad testified at the second day of the trial of William H. Shaver, 36, and Arthur G. Taylor, 38, on charges of keeping a common gaming house, and supplying and transmitting betting information.

The trial centred around a Hamilton publication, Sporting News, a horse racing information sheet.

Harry Hazell, defence counsel, indicated his defence would be to prove that the publication gave a service which did not differ from larger racing pubications and racing newspapers.

Deny British Engines Found In Red Jets

LONDON, May 2 (Reuters)—Allegations by a United States Senator that Communist jet planes shot down in Korea had British-built engines were unfounded, Air Secretary Arthur Henderson indicated today.

Henderson, challenged in the House of Commons to refute the allegation, said: "No enemy jet aircraft shot down in Korea has landed in territory occupied by the U.S. forces and consequently no information has been obtained as to the country of manufacture of the jet engines."

(Senator Clarence Brown (Rep. O.) said in Washington April 25 that he had been told by a member of the staff of Gen. MacArthur, former supreme commander in the Far East, that a British jet engine had been found in every Communist plane shot down in Korea.)

Disclose Breach In Plan To Unify Three Forces

OTTAWA, May 2. (CP)—The first big breach in the defence department's program of unification for the three forces has been disclosed. C. M. Drury, Deputy Defence Minister, told the Commons Public Accounts Committee on Tuesday that the department has abandoned the experiment of having the Army generally made responsible for repair and maintenance of vehicles for all three forces. The reason, he told Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC (PC-Nanaimo), was that the Navy and Air Force "had perhaps a lesser feeling of responsibility for incurring expenses" than when they themselves had to pay for looking after the vehicles.

"They put in for repairs that were unnecessary," he said, "and they didn't take as good care of motor transport as they might have if they were financially responsible themselves."

So the idea was dropped as an economy measure. It was originally adopted as part of the drive to co-ordinate the forces as much as possible.

Intrigued by this "departure from policy," Gen. Pearkes called for a full statement on any other similar breaches in the unification line and was promised one.

The motor vehicle emerged as an issue on another front when members impaled a familiar figure on their parliamentary curiosities and indignation. He is the military officer who allegedly plays fast and loose with staff cars and other vehicles bought and run at government expense.

Capt. George Cruickshank (L-Fraser Valley) said some officers get driven to work in Ottawa and have military cars take their children to school as well. This sort of thing could only cause ill-feeling. Even Captains were at liberty to call cars to go short distances.

Mr. Drury said only the chiefs of staff are entitled to be driven to work but other officers have the right to call on the pool of vehicles for their duties if the use of the cars is necessary. If some of Capt. Cruickshank's statements were true, the system may have been abused.

Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw) said he saw "an awful lot of officers getting driven around by privates" in Ottawa and wondered why the officers didn't drive themselves.

Mr. Drury brought down the House when he said "that's one of the most expensive things you could do."

By experience, he said, it has been found that the one way to operate a military car satisfactorily is to put one man in charge of it, make him responsible and let no one else drive it.

Lt.-Col. Danby Top Staff Man

OTTAWA, May 2 —(CP)—Lt.-Col. Ernest Deighton Danby, 35, a native of New Westminster, BC, has been named the top staff officer at headquarters of the new commonwealth division being established in Korea.

The army said today he will be general staff officer grade one—the so-called G1—on the staff of British Maj.-Gen. A. J. H. Cassels when the division comes into being. Gen. Cassels will command the division.

Canada's 25th Brigade will make up one-third of the division's combat manpower.

Col. Danby, educated in Vancouver and first commissioned in that city's Seaforth Highlanders in 1936, built up a broad experience both as a combat and a staff officer in the Second World War.

He was severely wounded in 1944 while commanding New Brunswick's Carleton and York Regiment in Italy and when he returned to duty a few months later he was posted to 1st Corps headquarters and later to First Canadian army headquarters. In 1950 he went to his present job, deputy commander of the joint air training centre at Rivers, Man.

Blast Causes $10,000 Damage

HUNTSVILLE, May 2—(CP)—An explosion in an excavation Tuesday night hurled huge rocks and 16-foot timbers 250 feet in the air and caused $10,000 property damage in the centre of this Muskoka district community.

Rocks and timbers cascaded down on the roofs of automobiles, stores across the street, an adjoining house and a nearby gasoline station. No one was injured.

One log, two feet in diameter, was driven through a small construction shack at the rear of the excavation. A man sitting in the shack at the time was unharmed.

Police Chief Charles Fletcher, who supervised a detail barring traffic from the area, said too much dynamite had been used, causing the blast to be greater than expected.

Red-Headed Women Best At Parting Men, Money

SAN JOSE, Calif., May 2 (CP)—"There's something about a red-headed woman," mused Judge M. G. Del Mutolo.

He'd just heard red-haired Viola Matich, 35, relate:

Pete Matich, 56, rang her doorbell one day. Said he'd seen her in a crowd . . and just had to have her to answer his home telephone while he was busy at his concrete pipe factory.

Viola, a widow on relief, said she couldn't leave her three sons.

Matich fixed that . . . he hired her dad as a grandson-sitter at $60 a week and Viola at $30 . . . soon raised to $50.

Matich began wooing Viola lavishly.

A $2,500 diamond ring . . . a Cadillac convertible . . . paid the mortgage on her home . . . .

They were wed, although Viola testified she told Matich she didn't love him.

Matich continued his love-making with expensive furniture . . . . jewellery . . . . expensive clothes . . . .

Viola agreed Matich loved her very much . . . . but not wisely. So she left him one month and a day after their marriage.

The Matiches got into court Tuesday. Matich wanted the marriage annulled and all his presents returned. Viola asked a divorce.

". . . . Something about a red-headed woman," Judge Del Mutolo droned. "They have a faculty for parting a man from his money which most other women don't possess."

He gave Matich the divorce . . . and parted him from all his gifts to Viola.

Judge Orders Duplessis Pay $8,123

Restaurant Owner Jehovah Witness Wins Court Action

MONTREAL, May 2. (CP)—Premier Duplessis of Quebec was ordered by a court judgment to pay Frank Roncarelli, restaurant owner, $8,123.53.

The court action arose from Roncarelli's claim that his liquor permit for his restaurant was cancelled Dec. 4, 1946, without cause through intervention of Premier Duplessis. Mr. Justice C. G. Mackinnon agreed.

The cancellation came at the height of activities of the Jehovah's Witnesses religious sect, particularly in Montreal, through distribution of literature without permits as required under a city bylaw.

Roncarelli, wealthy Montreal restaurant owner, at that time said he was sympathetic toward the Witnesses and it was he who regularly supplied bail funds.

Main issues, His Lordship said were whether Premier Duplessis was responsible for cancellation of the permit and, if so, whether he would on that account be liable for damages suffered by the permit holder.

Further Question

A further question arose as to whether any right in law existed to cancel the permit without reason and, if not, whether the permit was cancelled for a proper reason.

His Lordship noted that Roncarelli's liquor licence was cancelled because of his alleged activities as a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses religious sect.

During 1945 and 1946, he recalled, the sect was active in trying to spread its religious beliefs throughout Quebec, and the activities of the sect caused considerable anxiety to the authorities. In that connection, Premier Duplessis, as head of the Quebec government, was deeply concerned with controlling those activities.

Premier's Defence

In defence of the action, it was pleaded on the premier's behalf that Roncarelli's licence was cancelled by the Quebec Liquor Commission and that in doing so the commission only exercised a discretionary power given it by the Quebec Liquor Act.

It was further contended that the premier could not be held liable for any part he may have played in the cancellation of the licence as whatever he did was done in exercising his duties as premier, attorney-general and minister of the Crown in a matter concerning the executive power and in the public interest.

From the evidence his Lordship found that the defence had failed to establish that Roncarelli was a leader of the Jehovah's Witnesses or that he was more than a simple adherent of the sect.

Nor had it been shown that, throughout many years as a liquor licence holder, Roncarelli was guilty of any infractions of the law. Actually, said his Lordship, the main complaint against Roncarelli was that he had "steadily and consistently" furnished bonds for sect members accused of infractions of city of Montreal bylaws.

Rubber Shipments Put House In Uproar

LONDON, May 2 — (CP) — Disclosure of big rubber shipments from the British colonies to Communist China touched off an angry uproar in the House of Commons today.

Official figures supplied to the House by the colonial office showed British Malaya sent the Chinese Communists 120,000 tons of this highly strategic material in the nine months ending in March. This compared with 27,500 tons during the whole of 1949.

During the same period Malaya and Singapore sold another 40,400 tons to Russia.

Independent member Raymond Blackburn asserted Britain supplied Red China with "thousands of tons of steel, with locomotives, ships and aircraft" during January, February and March, and demanded:

"Is it not high time we ceased to support the people against whom our boys are fighting in Korea with war materials?"

Nab 5 Deserters

TORONTO, May 2. (CP) —A Toronto paper says today in a newspage story that five soldiers absent without leave were arrested here Tuesday as military police launched a drive to round up missing members of the Special Korea Force. It says an estimated 200 soldiers are away from their units. Some disappeared during a leave before they were to entrain for Fort Lewis, Wash., and final training.

Labor Party Unites To Beat Churchill Move

LONDON, May 2 (AP)—Britain's squabbling Socialists closed their ranks solidly on Tuesday night to beat down a divide-and-conquer manoeuvre engineered by a chuckling Winston Churchill.

Taking his cue from the rebel Labor members' own protests over rearmament, the Conservative leader came up with a cagily-worded motion designed to draw support of the dissident socialists.

But the rebels refused to be taken in. They kept a solid party front that defeated Churchill's motion by a 13-vote margin — 305 to 292—and left Prime Minister Attlee still clinging to control of the government.

Churchill sent in his deputy, Anthony Eden, to offer a motion expressing the anxiety of the House that the rearmament program "was based on estimates of defence production which were not accepted by the ministers principally concerned."

The reference was to Aneurin Bevan and Harold Wilson, who resigned as Labor Minister and Board of Trade president in protest over the budget.

Not Put On Spot

But both Bevan and Wilson refused to be put on the spot. Along with other Labor party left wingers, they voted with the government.

Both Bevan and Wilson had assailed the rearmament program as incapable of fulfillment unless more aid was forthcoming from the United States, but neither went so far as to refuse to accept the production estimates.

Commenting on the Tory manoeuvre, Bevan said:

"I hope that before long the House will have an opportunity of discussing this matter in the absence of old-fashioned parliamentary jousting."

Churchill was in top taunting form all evening. Toward the close of the debate, Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell started to say he was aware the Conservative motion "was designed to widen any cleavage that might exist in the ranks of the Labor party. I can assure Mr. Churchill . . ."

But Churchill broke in to remark: "I do not want your assurance." "I do not value it if you give it," he insisted.

The rest of Shinwell's remarks were lost in an uproar of laughter and jeers.

Ask Arbitration In Gold Dispute

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP) — The United States, Britain and France have asked the international court to appoint an arbitrator to determine the ownership of about $2,900,000 in gold claimed by three countries—Britain, Italy and Albania.

The gold was looted from Italy by the Nazis in 1943 and recovered by allied forces in Germany after the war.

The case was submitted to the international court at The Hague Tuesday after the inter-allied gold commission failed to reach a decision.

Britain has lodged a claim to the gold as compensation for the loss of life, injuries and damage to two British warships which hit mines in the Corfu channel in 1946. The international court supported British claims that they were Albanian mines and awarded Britain a judgment of $2,194,000 after Albania agreed to submit the case to the court for settlement.

The gold involved was originally part of the capital of the National Bank of Albania which Italy set up in that country after occupying it.

Six Dairies Out Of 34 Give Report

Milk Board Annoyed Over Lack Of Co-operation

TORONTO, May 2. (CP)—Only six or seven of Toronto's 34 dairies have complied with the Ontario Milk Control Board's request for financial statements to back their case for a milk-price increase, Judge A. B. Currey, board chairman, said today.

Judge Currey said the other companies should "bear in mind the board is not losing sight of such dilatory action."

The board wanted statements covering the last six months to compare operations with the preceding half-year period, he said.

Present delivered price in the city is 20½ cents a quart, and the milk board chairman said serious consideration will be given to reducing deliveries in an effort to save distribution costs. The board might send a member to United States cities where deliveries have been reduced and retail sales made successfully from stores.

The board is considering formal requests by both producers and distributors in the Toronto area for price increases. Dairy farmers Tuesday asked for a boost from $4.20 to $5.71 per hundredweight. Dairy owners said if this were allowed they would seek an increase of three cents a quart.

No Campaign Medal For UK Korean Troops

LONDON, May 2 (Reuters)—British troops fighting in Korea are unlikely to receive a campaign medal in addition to the United Nations medal now proposed, defence minister Emanuel Shinwell indicated in the House of Commons today.

He said that tenders for the manufacture of the United Nations ribbon already had been invited in this and other countries.

Permission to wear a shoulder flash bearing the word "Korea" was under consideration but a decision on a British medal will not be made until after the issue of the United Nations ribbon.

Ki Ming Captures UK Horse Classic

NEWMARKET, England, May 2 —(Reuters)—Ki Ming today won the Two Thousand Guineas, first of Britain's five annual classic horse races.

Ki Ming, owned by Billy Ley On, a wealthy Chinese restaurant owner in London, won by 1½ lengths from Sir V. Sassoon's colt Stokes. H. E. Elvin's Malka's Boy was third by a head after a photo.

Ki Ming, ridden by Australian Arthur Breasley and starting at 100-8, collected the richest prize in the 142-year history of the race—£14,631 ($43,181).

Stokes started at 33-1, with Malka's Boy 40-1.

Shah Signs Decree Nationalizing Oil

TEHRAN, Iran, May 2 (Reuters)—The Shah of Iran today signed decrees nationalizing the country's British-run oil industry.

With his signature, the Shah passed into a law a series of bills rushed through the Majlis (legislature) in five days.

The British and United States ambassadors called separately on Premier Mohammed Mussadegh earlier today.

They are understood to have told him their ccuntries wanted the oil dispute settled, not in a one-sided action but in a manner agreed by Iran and the British-run Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

The Iranian government declared today that "legitimate claims" of Anglo-Iranian would be considered before the industry is nationalized.

Abdul Hussein Ansari, head of the press and propaganda department, denied that the nationalization law, passed by both Houses of the Iranian legislature, means expropriation of the $1,400,000,000 company in which the British government has a controlling share.

A committee of 11, representing both Houses and the government, is to take control of all the company's assets, installations, production and oil-fields.

Won't Affect Output

And, Ansari said, Iran can ensure that production will continue without reduced output under the new management.

PM And Frost Discuss Seaway

OTTAWA, May 2 — (CP) — Prospects of an early start on the St. Lawrence seaway and hydro development were discussed at a meeting here Tuesday among Prime Minister St. Laurent, Premier Frost of Ontario and Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission.

Mr. St. Laurent, commenting briefly on the meeting, did not indicate whether he and the Ontario representatives had found the prospects good or bad.

"We discussed the hydro needs of the province of Ontario," he told reporters. "The only thing that I can tell you is that they came out smiling and I came out smiling."

Meantime, it was understood that no agreements had been, or were intended to be, reached at the meeting. The aim was to discuss Ontario's power needs and to discuss the current status of the St. Lawrence project.

Division Plan Pleases Soldiers Fighting In Korea

TOKYO, May 2 (Reuters). — Officers and men of the Commonwealth forces in Korea today warmly welcomed the decision to form a Commonwealth Division.

They said it will give the Commonwealth a bigger say in the tactical handling of the Korean campaign, lessen supply and administrative problems, and "show the world how an Empire Division fights."

Brig.-Gen. John Rockingham, commander of the Canadian 25th Brigade, said he is glad there will be a Commonwealth divisional commander, an officer with sufficient seniority to be given a say in how to deploy the Commonwealth forces as one team.

(The Commander - designate himself, British Maj-Gen. A. J. H. Cassels, said in Melbourne, Australia, that he has some ideas of his own about Korean fighting —"but I am not telling just yet, I will wait until I get there to check them.")

A British staff officer, anonymous by his own wish, commented: "At last we'll have someone of sufficient seniority to be able to speak for us at higher levels."

"Fifty per cent of our headaches will disappear once the division is operating. With two separate brigades operating independently of each other, as it has been hitherto, administration and supply problems have been a constant hindrance to our efficiency."

A British sergeant who endured last winter's campaign in Korea put it more earthily: "We shall not feel poor relations out here any longer. Perhaps we shall not have to beg for sufficient kit and equipment from our Allies."

The division will embrace the British, Canadian, Australian and New Zealand fighting units, and an Indian field ambulance unit. Cassels will be its operational commander, but its administration will come under Lt.-Gen. Sir Horace Robertson, Australian Commander of Commonwealth Occupation Forces in Japan.

Robertson said here today that Cassels is not expected to reach Korea for about three weeks, and it will take a month or more for the new division to be ready as an integrated fighting force.

General Says New Drive Coming Soon

Enemy Badly Mauled By Allied Troops In First Offensive

TOKYO, May 2. (AP)—The Communist spring offensive has been stopped by a "great victory by the United Nations" Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet said today—but a new Communist assault is in the making.

The Allied ground commander jubilantly announced "the enemy has failed."

The Reds lost, too, in their battle to control the rivers which must be crossed in the next phase of their spring offensive.

American naval planes bombed gaping holes in the floodgates of Hwachon reservoir and sent water rushing back in the Pukhan and Han rivers. The Reds had closed the gates in an effort to slower these water barriers for an easy crossing.

As the rivers returned toward normal levels, UN tank patrols rumbled out Wednesday on Red hunts.

Run Into Ambush

One tank force stabbed 11 miles north of Seoul to the Uinjongbu area and ran into a Chinese ambush. The force fought their way back through Red attempts to set up a road block.

Other armored patrols searched the immense "V" formed by the Pukhan and Han rivers east of Seoul. They found no Reds.

Allied planes found plenty of targets on the highways. They blasted Red efforts to build up manpower and supplies for a renewal of their halted offensive.

The present status of the Red drive was summed up by Van Fleet after a flying visit to the 10th Corps front. He said:

"We have punished the Communist forces severely. The enemy has failed in the first phase of his offensive. He has paid a heavy price (more than 75,000 casualties in nine days). The first

2,000 Police Put On Guard

CAIRO, May 2 — (Reuters) — Two thousand steel-helmeted Egyptian police stood by in Cairo today when the 2½-year-long ban on the fanatical Moslem Brotherhood was lifted.

Theyk stood guard as members reoccupied their old headquarters. Large units were also posted outside mosques where prayers were said for the revival of the Brotherhood, an extremist political as well as religious organization.

But everything went off quietly.

The Brotherhood was officially dissolved during the Arab-Jewish War in Palestine. It continued to operate underground, and was blamed for terrorism culminating in the assassination of Prime Minister Nokrashy Pasha in 1948.

Parliament voted to lift the ban but said it would present it dabbling in politics again.

U.S. Defence Chief Confers With British

LONDON, May 2 — (AP) — Charles E. Wilson, American defence mobilization chief, conferred today with cabinet ministers responsible for Britain's £4,700,000,000, ($13,865,000,000) three-year arms program.

Principal points of discussion were:

1. Progress of this year's British arms program of £1,300,000,000;

2. Allocation of scarce raw materials to Britain to ensure that rearmament can be carried out; and

3. Dovetailing the rearmament plans of the United States, Britain and other countries of the North Atlantic Pact.

British ministers attending the talks included the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Hugh Gaitskell; R. R. Stokes, Lord Privy Seal, whose responsibility is the raw materials problem; Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell; Sir Hartley Shawcross, new President of the Board of Trade, and Supply Minister George Strauss.

Secret Report Gives Backing To MacArthur

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP). — Backers of Gen. MacArthur claimed today that the long-secret Wedemeyer report on Korea, made public Tuesday, proves that administration policy in Korea and China was wrong.

Meanwhile, it was reported that a record of the conference on Wake Island last fall between President Truman and MacArthur may be made public.

Three key Republican Senators —Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, William F. Knowland of California and Styles Bridges of New Hampshire—said the report by Lt.-Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer gives new weight to MacArthur's views on Far East policy.

Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem., Ga.), hearing chairman who got the "top secret" label removed from Wedemeyer's 1947 report, said he may release another former "top secret" document.

Second Document

It is a purportedly-official copy of the conference between Truman and MacArthur last October on Wake Island.

Russell said he will hand copies to reporters as soon as Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, explains how the document was compiled.

Wedemeyer, formerly commander of United States forces in China, made a survey of China and Korea in 1947 and then reported his recommendations on the threat of Communism in the Far East.

The China portion of the report was made public as part of a 1949 State Department "white paper," but the Korean sections were under official secrecy until Tuesday.

In the report, Wedemeyer forecast a possible "Soviet-controlled" invasion of South Korea. He recommended American - officered South Korean "scout forces," and called for military aid and supplies for South Korea.

Unless U.S. aid went to Korea and Nationalist China, the report forecast Communist domination of Manchuria and China itself, twin events now history.

Wherry, Senate Republican leader, said the "administration policy seems to be just the opposite of the Wedemeyer report, and that report seems to conform pretty well with the recommendations of MacArthur."

Chiang Promises Fullest Co-operation

TAIPEH, Formosa, May 2 (AP) —Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek today promised fullest co-operation to the United States Military Assistance Advisory Group, sent here to strengthen and train his Chinese Nationalists armed forces.

The promise came at his first meeting with Maj-Gen. William C Chase, who arrived Wednesday to head the group.

The newspaper Chung Hwa Jih Pao said, "with the arrival of MAAG our confidence in a Nationalist return to the mainland has been greatly enhanced."

part of the battle has ended in a great victory for the United Nations."

Not End of Offensive

Van Fleet made it clear he didn't consider this the final end of the Red offensive.

Communist forces, he said, have "the capability of hitting again as hard as before or harder. However, I am confident the results will be the same."

Every Red attempt in the drive so far has ended like the battle of the rivers.

The Communists closed the sluice gates Monday night to lower the level of the two rivers.

Planes from the U.S. carrier Princeton opened the gates on Tuesday. They swept in across the reservoir and skipped 1,000-pound bombs into two flood gates. First reports said they used aerial torpedoes but later AP correspondent Tom Bradshaw said they used bombs with special fuses to cause the greatest amount of underwater damage.

One of the 18 floodgates was destroyed. A 10-foot hole was ripped in another.

Now the Reds will have to build bridges to cross the river. Their engineers will be easy targets for United Nations artillery and planes which blasted the drive out of the nine-day-old Communist offensive.

The front was quiet again on Wednesday.

Ineffective Communist efforts Tuesday to find a soft spot in allied lines cost them 1,205 men. That was the lightest toll of the offensive, in which Red casualties rose above 75,000.

Attempts Blocked

Communists today mounted light probing attempts below the Hwachon dam in the centre of the peninsula. These were blocked.

Associated Press correspondent Nate Polowetzky said the Reds were testing the U.N. lines along the Chunchon-Hongchon axis, a traditional invasion route down the spiny centre of the peninsula.

The Reds also tried to punch through east of the Hwachon dam near Inje on the 38th parallel. Allied artillery, planes and infantry broke it up.

South Koreans, still operating about 20 miles north of 38 on the east coast, broke up a probing attack southwest of Kansong.

The Reds were out of contact with allied forces on the western front north of Seoul.

U.S. Air Force planes, rounding out their 125,000th sortie of the Korean war, inflicted 500 casualties. They kept up a round-the-clock attack on Communist supply lines and concentrations. Unprecedented numbers of Red trucks still were rushing south as the Communists shifted their weight from the west to the central front.

Heaviest increase in men and supplies appeared to be on the central front. Most of them were concentrating in the Chunchon sector.

The Reds stayed out of range of massed American artillery.

Senate Group May Investigate Dope Peddling

WASHINGTON, May 2. (AP)— Dope peddling, organized prostitution and "fixes" of basketball games and other sports events shaped up today as possible fields for new investigations by the Senate Crime Committee.

With Senator Herbert O'Conor (Dem.-Md.) taking over from Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.-Tenn.) as chairman, the group discussed these lines of inquiry at a closed-door session Tuesday but made no final decisions.

The committee's immediate attention will be focused on drafting the anti-crime legislation it has recommended.

In a report on its year-long inquiry, the committee warned of a recent "sharp upsurge" in the narcotics traffic.

The committee linked the Mafia, secret underground society, with dope peddling and said the traffic "appears to be in the hands of some of the most astute, wiley and desperate criminals" operating in interstate commerce.

Urges Resignation

Charges made by the committee against Ambassador William O'Dwyer brought a suggestion today from Senator Kenneth Wherry (Rep. Neb.) that O'Dwyer either "resign or clear himself."

"Solely on the basis of the committee's report...those are the alternatives open to him," Wherry said of the American envoy to Mexico and former mayor of New York city.

Wherry, Senate Republican floor leader, is not a member of the committee. Members declined comment on whether they feel O'Dwyer should quit as ambassador.

In its report, the committee hit hard at O'Dwyer, who served as district attorney of New York's Kings county (Brooklyn) from 1940 to 1942 and as mayor from 1946 until last fall, when President Truman named him ambassador.

The committee said neither O'Dwyer nor his appointees "took any effective action against the top echelons of the gambling, narcotics, waterfront, murder or bookmaking rackets...in fact, his actions impeded promising investigations..."

In Mexico City, O'Dwyer said he had no comment "at this time."

The committee, meanwhile, formally named a new chairman—Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (Dem.-Md.)—and made plans to draft legislation aimed at throttling of big crime and gambling syndicates.

Austin Disputes General's Claim

NEW YORK, May 2 — (AP) — Warren R. Austin, top American delegate in the United Nations and a Republican, said Tuesday night in answer to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, that UN policy on Korea is "clear, positive and consistent."

He said he firmly supports that policy.

Austin replied to MacArthur's statement in Chicago last Thursday that there has been a "policy vacuum" toward Korea since Communist China entered the war.

Boys Kill Fish Crossing Ledge

Port Hope school boys have invented a new and rather doubtful angle to the sport of fishing.

Saturday they were seen in the Ganaraska river, which flows through the town, not far from Lake Ontario fishing for suckers where there are two rocky ledges in the stream.

They stood along the shore and some of them waded into the icy water in their bare feet and clubbed the fish as they leaped up onto the first of the ledges. They were getting scores of fish this way.

Some of the boys were not content with this butchery. They got some large firecrackers and stuck them in the mouths of the suckers—some of them were still kicking—and lit the firecrackers. The fish didn't kick any more.

Slight Trend To Right In Glasgow Voting

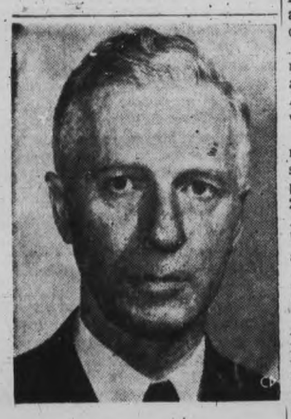
GLASGOW, May 2—(Reuters)—Voting in Tuesday's Scottish municipal elections showed a slight trend to the right, results indicated today.

Conservatives in Glasgow increased their majority over Labor on the local council from one seat to five. In Dundee they seized two seats from Labor.

Socialists over the whole country lost 23 seats but gained 16.

The results showed no changes in control anywhere.

Communists fared badly. Seven in Glasgow constituencies ended up at the bottom of the poll.



Apathy and rain kept citizens from the polls. In some places only 30 per cent voted.

Outside Work Provides Many More Jobs

Job opportunities in April, principally outside work, decreased the number of people drawing unemployment insurance to a low for 1951 of 971, Wm. Mellis, manager of the National Employment office, said today.

Throughout the district which includes, Peterborough, Haliburton counties and parts of Victoria, Durham and Northumberland construction work, farming, railroading and other outside jobs began to be available.

Some Peterborough factories which were operating on a short-time basis, one week off, or two or three days off a week, have returned to full time work.

Benefits Discontinued

At the first of April supplementary benefits were discontinued. These special benefits were introduced in 1950 and were drawn from January to April by persons whose unemployment insurance was completely drawn.

Decreases April were reported in both the men's and women's departments. This year 726 men (513 in Peterborough an 213 in the county) were drawing funds at the end of April as compared with 827 last year. Twenty-five county and 220 city women were receiving unemployment insurance in April this year, a decrease of 40 over last April.

Mr. Mellis said that only 915 men and 226 women were listed as looking for work while in April last year 1,149 men and 349 women were job-hunting.

During April the office was renewing the unemployment insurance books for the district employers. To date approximately 20,000 books have been handled. Another 3,000 books have yet to be renewed, most of these in summer resorts.

Selling Ontario

The Weekly Edition of the London Times devotes two whole pages to two advertisements and a long article designed to draw the attention of overseas manufacturers to the advantages of establishing a branch manufacturing plant in Ontario. "In Ontario Your Plant Will Grow," they are told. The advertisements are for the Ontario Trade and Industry Branch and the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, and the article also obviously emanates from Ontario government sources. It is the Ontario taxpayers' money that is being used for this purpose, and he has a right to know whether it is being spent wisely. We have therefore conned these pages with unusual interest.

* * *

In the first place the choice of the periodical was good. The Times Weekly has not a large circulation by British standards, and indeed its circulation inside the British Isles is negligible, but it finds its way all over the English-speaking world and enjoys a very large percentage of readers in positions of influence and authority by reason of its impartial and objective presentation of news. The Times of London is generally considered to be one of the world's greatest newspapers, and its weekly edition incorporates a good deal of material that has appeared in the daily. So far the taxpayer has had good value for money.

* * *

Turning to the text we note that it has been on the whole well written and adorned with excellent reproductions of the photographs of Colonel the Hon. William Griesinger and Mr. Robert H. Saunders. There is a wealth of facts concerning our Province, and special stress is placed on our central position and the amazing cheapness of Hydro-electric power which we take for granted —or do we? We even get a pat on the back ourselves: "The people of Ontario have earned the reputation of being solid—of having a responsible outlook. They could be properly described as comprising a contented labour force."

* * *

There is, however, one aspect of this sales propaganda which we feel bound to criticize. We in this country are quick to seize on defects in sales technique displayed by British and other firms. Why do they quote everything in pounds sterling, long tons, kilometres, piastres and so on, instead of using our measures? It is strange, then, that we should fall into the same trap ourselves. Throughout the article and the advertisements all sums are quoted in Canadian dollars only, when it would have been simple to add the equivalent in sterling in parentheses. Certain words, too, are used in a way that is unknown outside this continent: "Hydro Power Supply More Than Doubled," runs the headline to one of the advertisements. In the British Isles Hydro is short for hydropathic establishment, a place for medical treatment by external and internal application of water. Again, the word cruiser is only applied to warships, never to police vehicles. More use could have been made of comparison. The bald statement that last year's per capita consumption of electricity amounted to approximately 3,500 kilowatt hours in Ontario would have been much more impressive if figures for other countries had been given also.

* * *

In another place we read that almost every hamlet in Ontario has an "improved access" to paved highways. Only those thoroughly familiar with local conditions in the Ontario spring will appreciate this. If we are going to sell Ontario we must study our market a little more closely. It is not good enough to put out material, which while good in itself assumes that the reader is familiar with the situation already.

Let's Play Chess

In common with all Canadian newspapers this newspaper does not carry a chess column. There are two reasons for this. In the first place interest in the game is unfortunately insufficient to justify the inclusion. In the second place the average circulation of Canadian newspapers is necessarily smaller than in highly populated countries, and there is less demand for highly specialized articles. We believe in the main in sticking to the simple basic facts of life. Unless it is proved that there is a strong body of inarticulate opinion that is hungering for the latest doings of Boguljuboff and Dr. Euwe we do not intend to alter our policy.

A few words on this noble game, which has been played "since time immoral," would, however, come amiss. One striking feature of it that should commend it to many of our readers is the fact that it has never been connected with gambling. The origins of the game are lost in the mists of antiquity. The best authorities are agreed that it probably originated in India. It is suggested that the Indian Buddhists were responsible for its invention. According to them life is sacred, and slaying of one's fellow-men for any purposes whatsoever, is criminal, and the punishment of the warrior in after-life will be much more severe than that of the ordinary murderer. What then would be more reasonable than to invent a harmless war-game as a substitute for the real thing?

From India the game passed to Persia and Arabia, where courtyards were laid out with checkered flagstones and the game played with Jewels of the Harem acting as pieces. It is from Arabic that we have obtained some of the terminology of chess. For instance the expression "check mate" comes from the Arabic Sha mat ("the king is dead"), signifying the end of the game.

Nobody knows exactly when chess was first introduced into Europe, though there is a mention of it in a curious epistle of St. Peter Damian, cardinal Bishop of Ostia to Pope Alexander II, written about A.D. 1061, which if authentic, shows that chess was known in Italy before the First Crusade. The cardinal had apparently imposed a penance on a bishop whom he found diverting himself at chess, and in his letter to the pope he repeats the language he used to the offending prelate as follows: "Was it right, I say, and consistent with thy duty, to sport away thy evenings amidst the vanity of chess, and defile the hand which offers up the body of the Lord, and the tongue that mediates between God and man, with the pollution of a sacrilegious game?"

During the Middle Ages and Renaissance the game underwent several modifications before assuming its present form. It was the cause of many deaths because of the violent passions that it aroused, and there is even a story that a Frankish monarch lost his kingdom over it, but this has been shown to be a legend and no more.

Interest in chess is particularly great nowadays amongst the Slavonic nations. The present world chess champion is a Russian, Botwinnik. We hope that the Russians will bear in mind the original purpose of the game, as a means of sublimating the warlike instincts that lurk within the human breast.

The Breaking-Up Of Colonialism

From time to time it is suggested that some of our Canadian attitudes and modes of thought have their roots in a vanished colonialism. It is true that our emergence from a colonial status was long and slow; just how long ago it had its beginnings may be judged from this extract from a dispatch written by Lord Grey in April, 1851, placing the Civil List at the disposal of the Canadian Parliament:

> "It must not be for a moment supposed that these measures are contemplated under the idea that the connexion between the mother country and the colony could be dissolved without great injury to both, or that there is any probability it will be so. On the contrary, these measures are regarded as safe, because Her Majesty's Government are persuaded that the great body of the people of Canada are so fully satisfied of the great benefits they derive from the system of constitutional government now so happily established under the authority of the British Crown, that it may properly be left to themselves to take their share of the burden of maintaining and defending an order of things from which they reap so much advantage. Under this impression, and in the earnest hope and confident belief that Canada may long continue to form an important member of the British Empire, Her Majesty's Government have adopted the conclusions which I have now explained to you."

We reproduce this passage from the Hundred Years Ago column of the London Times for April 14, 1851. Students of history will see that the germ of the Statute of Westminster is contained in it. The Times commented editorially at that time that "the colonies neither are nor ought to be held to their allegiance by force, and . . . if it were otherwise, our forces are ludicrously inadequate to the purpose."

The evolution of a country's freedom and a country's thought is necessarily slow. We must not be too impatient if the work is not completely finished a century after the appearance of Lord Grey's opinion.

The Naked Truth

An Indian religious leader has suggested that President Truman and Mr. Stalin should meet to settle matters in their birthday suits. We welcome the idea. The goddess of Truth has always been represented in a state of unashamed nudity, and the shedding of garments symbolizes the shedding of shams, pretexts, and subterfuges. Walpole, the first Prime Minister, said, "When I put off my clothes I put off my cares." The idea of two elderly men sitting down for a chat together with no clothes on should send a wave of infectious belly-laughter over this care-ridden world.

If the idea were to prove successful it might be tried in parliaments, town councils and other gatherings. We doubt whether it would take root in Canada. The Doukhobors have tried it here, and they have found out that we are Not Amused.

Manual For Play Directors

PRODUCING PLAYS, by C. B. Purdom (Dent).

THE increased interest in the Theatre which has become one of the most interesting and significant features of the cultural life of Canada within recent years has produced a spate of books designed to instruct and stimulate the amateur producer and actor. The latest of these, "Producing Plays", by C. B. Purdom, is of especial interest, as it is a revised and enlarged edition of a book, which, first produced in 1930, was for years regarded as a standard textbook.

No writer, however talented could hope, in the space of two hundred pages, to do more than deal in a very general way with such a subject. The Author, in addition, sets out the Future of Amateur Drama, Drama Festivals, and so on. As a result, the Chapters devoted to actual Play production and acting are very much condensed and provide more of a guide to Producers than a Textbook. It is refreshing, however, to find that the Author has obviously been an amateur producer and actor himself, and his advice is both practical and sound.

Mr. Purdom, who, interestingly enough appears to be also the author of books on such widely different subjects as "The Building of Satellite Towns", and "A Plan of Life" writes well, with an occasional touch of a sly humour, such as this gem on "The Need for Informed Criticism."

> "Theatrical criticism, unfortunately, seems to be a pursuit for which lack of training and the absence of the elements of technical knowledge are no disqualification. In connection with the practice of no other art could a critic announce that he knows nothing of it and be listened to, yet dramatic critics do not hesitate to reveal their ignorance of the theatre, and still write with assurance about the play."

Mr. Purdom has some interesting things to say about dialect, a subject of especial interest to Canadians, who are forced by the lack of plays written in Canada to adapt plays from the Scots, Irish, Cockney or American, often with unfortunate results. He relates how he once had an Irishman from Cork in one of his plays "whom no one in the audience could understand except the Irish". One of the critics singled him out to find fault with his bad Irish! He deals at some length with the important and difficult matter of diction and pronunciation, and wisely refuses to commit himself to any "standard speech." He does, however, give his assent to "forehead" as "forrid" and "clothes" as "clows" which do not seem right in any language. Apart from that lapse he is very helpful on the subject of stage speech, and his statement that 'the test of good speech is that which gives pleasure" puts the matter clearly and simply.

The chapters on Play Production are well planned, and an amazingly large field has been covered. Every aspect of the work of the Drama Group, from the appointment of a Producer to the counting of the profits on the Show are treated, and the chapters on Choosing the Play, Casting, Rehearsal, Stage Design will repay close study by all who aspire to produce for amateurs. Acting is also dealt with very fully, and there are special Notes on Acting for Children and Adolescents.

The book also contains what is claimed to be "the most extensive glossary in print of stage and theatrical terms." Illustrated by half-tone pictures of stage settings and groupings, and diagrams in line, it is a book which can be recommended to amateur producers and actors with confidence. P.McC.

JENKINS' EAR, by Odell Shepard and Willard Shepard (MacMillan).

ALTHOUGH Horace Walpole has been cavorting goutily in Elysian fields for many years now, I don't think he would object to being raised from the dead to oblige the Shepards (father and son) in this excellent historical novel. The story of Jenkins' ear is woven into a letter purportedly sent by Horace Walpole to his friend, the Rev. William Cole. Walpole, staying at his fantastic home at Twickenham called Strawberry Hill, falls heir to some of his neighbour's guests. As they were, in a way, uninvited, they seek to earn their keep by narrating some of the personal adventures of the members of a club, known as 'The Club of Jenkins' Ear". Those members called upon to recount their own adventures were Capt. The Hon. John Byron, Mr. Morris and Mr. James Adair (all described by Walpole's manservant as "understood to be gentlemen") and with them a John Chester and Jeremy Tinker from the American colony. Then there is the most important guest of all, the Rev. Mr. Blandison who is (or is not, it's completely up to you) that most romantic of all Princes, Bonnie Prince Charlie. The adventures they recount would satisfy all and any tastes; bloodthirsty battles, oppression and misery on desert islands, real 'Mutiny on the Bounty' life aboard ship, and the love stories of sailors married to the beautiful Mexican Indian women and torn from them by the conquering Spanish. The story ends with Blandison relinquishing his rebellions, (the cost in human life is higher than he is prepared to pay) his Kitty Clive, (Walpole's mistress?) and riding away with all his horsemen into the horizon, leaving behind him a nostalgic yearning for the hero, gone when all that remains is the evil Duke of Cumberland and the monstrous Hanoverian Prince of Wales. And Jenkins' Ear, which Britain used as an excuse to war with Spain and Jenkins used as an excuse to have free drinks from everybody he met, ends up in Walpole's pocket, and there is a very neat twist to the story of the ear's rightful owner.

I don't pretend to know how much of this story is historically correct but it is all very entertaining and well-written. S.S.T.

OUR CENTURY, by R. Bourque (Mercury Press, Montreal).

THIS is one of the fugitive pamphlets (in a 150-page book) on contemporary political and social issues which eighteenth and nineteenth century England produced in abundance and which it is good to see coming out of Canada today. It is a rapid, full-flooded exhortation on the values of free enterprise, the virtues of a Canadian-way of life, and the abounding future of Canada, by the mayor of Outremont, a suburb of Montreal. Mayor Bourque believes passionately in all three. He also believes in the oneness of Canadians and does not admit of any hyphens, English-Canadian or French-Canadian.

He is a booster (what mayor is not?) but his boosting is sincere, tempered with what might be called Canadian restraint,—

"Some of us have been told that the day when a man can work and struggle and succeed and then call what he makes his own—that day is gone. All men are equal, to share and share alike. There will be no rich and no poor, no successful men and no failures, no hard workers and no idlers. It would be nice if it were true. But where is the master magician who is going to transform human nature for the sake of a political party? Where is the genius who is going to make of all people what they should be instead of what they are?....

"These prophets of new orders—and the audiences they attract—fail to see.... that the weaknesses of democracy are both the weaknesses and strengths of man himself. They see where improvements could be made and they have a blue-print for making a better machine—but they don't see that man mistrusts improvements and doesn't want to be part of a machine if it means changing his entire way of life". If Mr. Bourque is sounder in his prejudices than in his reasoning, it does not detract from the force of his twenty-five essays or addresses of special pleading. They are nicely set up and headed with decorative black-and-white drawings.

Turn: Definition No. 60

(NEW YORK TIMES)

A CERTAIN dictionary in circulation offers ninety-odd definitions of the word turn; and someone ought to suggest that Number 60 in the list ("the time for action or proceeding which comes in due rotation or order to each of a number of persons, etc.... it's my turn to pay") be moved up within at least nodding distance of the first ten, because Number 60 is known to be in the centre of much turmoil around the house, and surely it merits a more important position.

✧ ✧ ✧

The theory of the turn is simple. Given a household containing more than a single child, it follows that when there is one article or one activity at hand, and when either happens to be sought after by two or more children, there will ensue conflict. The war cry that signals the start of this struggle is composed of two words—"It's mine!"—sounded as loud as possible and often accompanied by the rhythmic stamping of feet. At some stage during his career as a parent the adult, in his fumbling role as peacemaker, discovers the turn. If, he will say as he boldly enters upon a scene of mortal combat and gracefully dodges a semi-inflated football intended for the flushed face of somebody else, we take turns—he will say—then everybody will have a fair chance.

✧ ✧ ✧

While panting disputants digest this morsel of wisdom he will take the cause of sibling strife—which is found to be something currently of considerable value, like an old cigar box—and bestow it upon the youngest, advising him that after he has had his turn he is honour-bound to let the next in line play with it. There is, for a time, peace, and the head of the house may think well enough of his skill as an arbitrator to visit the kitchen and to advise the lady therein that there is, after all, nothing complicated about handling children.

✧ ✧ ✧

Little does he know that he has become a slave to the turn. He first begins to suspect that in the solving of one problem he has created another when a three-word war cry, "It's my turn!" begins to supplant the earlier, less complex two-word shriek. The turn becomes, for a time, more important than the thing with which it is involved. It is not the wagon that is prized but whose turn it is to ride therein, and the number of turns A has had as compared to B. While the adult strategist is seeking to determine just how it was he was hoist by his own petard, he will slowly become aware that his life is surrounded by little people obsessed, negatively or positively, with turns.

✧ ✧ ✧

It is always somebody's turn to help the lady of the house with the breakfast toast, to be the first to open a fresh bottle of maple syrup, to be at the head of the morning parade to the bath, to retrieve the morning paper from the front porch, to be in the fore as the walk to school begins in single file along the crack in the centre of the pavement. It is always somebody's turn to have the dead-centre, downfront seat for the afternoon television vigil, to lick the pot in the wake of chocolate, cake making, to light the candles for supper, to claim the wishbone, to rumple the new magazine the head of the house brought home and, none too hopefully, hid.

✧ ✧ ✧

But it never is anybody's turn to help dispose of the trash that seems to breed with the prolificacy of rabbits in the household's wastebaskets, to clear the dishes from the dining room table, to wash and dry them and put them away, to clean up the spilled talcum powder in the bedroom, to carry the milk bottles out to the back porch, to rake the lawn. It is never, never anybody's turn to go first to bed. The lady of the house will sigh as she watches the father of her children sitting in his easy chair with wrinkled brow as the turns grow in prodigious number, for she knows he is thinking up a new plan to make home life more simple and peaceful.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Many, O Lord my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to us-ward.... Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire; mine ears hast thou opened: burnt offering and sin offering hast thou not required.

Then said I, Lo, I come: in the volume of the book it is written of me, I delight to do thy will, O my God: yea, thy law is within my heart. (Ps. 40: 5, 6-8.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: but made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men: and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. (Phil. 2: 5-8.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him. (I Thess. 5: 9, 10.)

If any owner of a Stradivarius cares to lend it to the Sherlock Holmes exhibition, to be held during the Festival of Britain, his possession will be made unique by its return to him with a letter certifying that it has had the honour of contributing verisimilitude to the re-created lodgings of Mr. Holmes in Baker Street.

Dr. Watson, in The Cardboard Box, portrayed his friend "narrating with great exultation how he had purchased his own Stradivarius, which was worth at least 500 guineas.... for 55 shillings." Is it conceivable that Holmes, of all people, had been deceived by one of those fiddles which, even today, turn up occasionally in junk-shops labeled Stradivarius fecit, of a real value comparable with what he gave for his? However that may be, the St. Marylebone public libraries committee, which is arranging the exhibition, wishes to borrow one like it.

The borough librarian has prepared a list of objects still needed for the furnishing of 221B, Baker Street. Applicants for a copy receive a dossier drawn up with something of the systematic thought that Holmes himself was wont to devote to a complex problem. If after studying the list an applicant feels he "is genuinely satisfied in his own mind that it is of the period 1887-1905 and is sufficiently in keeping with the whole atmosphere of the room at 221B, Baker Street, as created in the Sherlock Holmes stories," there are a numbered label for attachment to the article and a form of receipt, which will be signed by the borough librarian and returned to the applicant.

Each article is named in a relevant extract from the story in which it figures. The organizers still need a purple dressing-gown, Holmes's long grey travelling cloak, three pipes—briar, cherrywood, and a black clay—and the Persian slipper in the toe of which Holmes used to stuff his tobacco. A more exacting request is for a gold snuff-box with a great amethyst in the lid—that "little souvenir from the King of Bohemia in return for my assistance in the case of the Irene Adler papers."

Anti-Sabotage Law To Be Toughened Soon

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP)—Cabinet is expected to toughen Canada's anti-sabotage law to provide stiffer penalties.

The justice department is understood to have under consideration changes in the Criminal Code which would increase the relatively minor penalties now in existence for the destruction of property.

No decision is believed reached yet on just how stiff the penalties should be made.

Locust Control

NEW DELHI—(CP)—Stringent control methods in operation for two months have resulted in the destruction of one-fourth of the Punjab's locust population. Locusts have already damaged 10,000 to 15,000 tons of wheat and 10,000 tons of fodder, it is estimated.

Bible College Will Open In Hospital Building With 150 Students In Fall

The Eastern Pentecostal Bible College will move into the old Civic Hospital building and begin classes October 1, it was announced today. The college, which until this year has been operating in Toronto, is a purely theological college. At least 150 students, about 60 percent of them young women, will make up the student body and be taught by a faculty of six full-time teachers and four part-time instructors.

President of the college is the Rev. W. H. Found and the institution's principal is the Rev. C. A. Ratz The Rev. J. H. Blair of Hamilton is president of the board of directors.

Started in 1939

The college got its start in Toronto in 1939 where the students lived out and met for classes in the Danforth Gospel Temple. It is one of six educational institutions operated by the Pentecostal Assemblies in Canada.

There are three colleges in the west: the Bethel Bible Institute in Saskatoon; the Canadian Northwest Bible Institute in Edmonton and the British Columbia Bible Institute in Victoria, BC. Two French-speaking schools are operated in Montreal: the L'Institut Biblique de Beree, which gives a three year theological course, and L'Academie Chretienne de Montreal, a boarding day school for children from Grades I to VIII.

In addition, the Pentecostal Assemblies in Canada helps to support theological training schools in five overseas mission fields: Hong Kong, the Argentine, British West Indies, Liberia, West Africa, and in Kenya, East Africa.

Officials feel that very little will have to be done in the old hospital building here to make it quite suitable for their use. They bought the hospital building proper, and the former nurse's residence for $72,000.

Used as Dormitories

The former hospital wards will be used as dormitories and some of the other large rooms will be used as classrooms.

When the students have completed their three years course here, they will take two years practical work. At the end of this five years, the men will be ready to be ordained as ministers and the women as deaconesses and a few will be given ladies workers papers, which corresponds to being ordained.

Deaconesses will work within the church as directors of women's activities.

College president Found is filling a newly created position. Now that the college is going to be a residential institution, it was felt there was a need for a president to handle administrative work. At present, Mr. Found is pastor of the Verdun Gospel Tabernacle, Verdun, Quebec. He is a westerner who studied at the Manitoba Agricultural College of the University of Manitoba in Winnipeg. He entered the ministry in 1928 and has served pastorates in several Saskatchewan towns and in Halifax, NS.

Since 1949 he has been a member of the district executive of eastern Ontario and Quebec and assistant district superintendent since 1950. From 1936 to 1946 he was on the faculty of the Bethel Bible Institute.

Mr. Ratz, who is the college's principal, took over in 1950. Formerly he was dean of the college joining the faculty in 1940. He is a native of Kitchener and graduated from the Western Bible College.

THE REV. JOHN H. BLAIR of Hamilton, is president of the board of directors of the college. About 60 per cent of the students at the college will be women. All students will live at the college, the first such college of the Pentecostal Assemblies in eastern Canada.

REV. CHARLES A. RATZ is principal of the college which finishes up in Toronto in May and moves to Peterborough. It is expected few changes will be made in the former hospital building for the college students.

PRESIDENT of the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College is the Rev. William Henry Found. He will be bringing his staff and faculty together with the college's students to begin classes in the former hospital building October 1.

Masked Manager Exposed When Whip Takes Top Bout

Local charity and the Masked Manager lost out here last night in the main wrestling bout at the Brock Arena, as Whipper Bill Watson won the go in two straight falls. The Whip had promised to donate $200 to charity here if he lost, but he not only pinned the villainous one handily but he ripped his mask off. The manager was Mayes McLain, a former grappler, and he had been exposed some time ago in a Toronto wrestling match.

The Whip beat him for the deciding fall in 11 minutes with two whips and the unconscious "Commando" grip, after the Manager had pulled some rough stuff for a space, and Referee Cliff Fox had missed a lot. The Manager's grappler, the Masked Marvel, interfered some and squawked plenty after the fall, he and the Whip nearly tangling before the hood was ripped off the Manager's head. The hefty crowd stood around and cheered heartily.

Took the First

The British Empire champion, who scaled 237 pounds to 258 for the Masked Manager, won the first fall in 19 minutes with two whip holds. He softened the other up first by tossing him hard into the ropes a few times after Watson had taken a beating for a space through hair-pulling and fists, the referee missing plenty.

In fact, the referee and Watson almost came to blows a few times when Fox kept pushing the angry champ around. The Whip does not like being touched by a referee, and he kept pushing back harder and harder, while the fans booed the arbiter. The Manager was an experienced mat warrior, and he got away with a lot, but he was no match in straight wrestling for the boring-in Whipper.

Marvel Won It

In the semi-final, the rough 245-pound Masked Marvel won out in 22 minutes over 248-pound Tommy O'Toole. He used knees, fists and elbow smashes before getting in two knee back-breakers for the verdict. It was a rugged session with both huskies mixing it hard. The USA Irishman, usually a villain here, found himself unexpectedly popular against the Mask, but he still got in some hard fists and other illegal tactics. However, the Mask got in more of the underhand stuff as a bewildered referee ran around in circles trying to keep up with things. The fans were happy, as the matmen mixed hard, the Mask favoring a punishing armlock with all the villainous trimmings, while Tommy when he got the chance applied a hard toe hold, and threw in some illegal extras. He chased the Mask out of the ring once, but the latter came back to take the duke.

A Good Prelim

Dave Sims, 222, from down around Niagara, actually won the prelim over 230-pound Ave Zvonkin of Hamilton, but it was ruled a time limit draw. Abe was nasty from the start, but found Sims a terrific scrapper in a fast-crowd-pleasing bout. Sims bore in all the way, with Abe escaping a sure fall by yanking hair and getting away with it. Abe slugged but found the other just as handy and able to mix it up, too. Sims went out of the ring once, but Abe nearly broke his wrist when Dave ducked a punch and Zvonkin hit the turnbuckles of the ring. It was a terrific pace toward the end as they gave it all they had to keep the place in an uproar, the referee ruling it a draw when the gong sounded.

Remember When—

So Nervous As Infielder Kiner Homers

By JACK HAND

BROOKLYN, May 2 (AP) — This was Ralph Kiner's first trip around the National League as a first baseman. He was so nervous he hit a home run first time up at Ebbets Field.

How did he like the new job? Would he rather be back in the outfield?

"I kind of like it," he said. "Makes you feel like you're in the game more.

"So far I've been lucky. Maybe I wouldn't talk like that if I butchered up a few."

Kiner didn't butcher up anything Tuesday at Brooklyn. Neither did he remind anybody of Bill Terry or Hal Chase around the bag.

There was a time when the experiment seemed a bum rap for a homerun champ. Let Bill Meyer, his manager, tell you about it.

"All he knew about the change was what he read in the paper," said Meyer. "Nobody said a thing for a couple of weeks of spring training. One day we (Branch Rickey and Meyers) asked him if he'd like to give it a whirl. He was willing.

Terrible At First

"Some of the fellows on the coast wrote about him as 'the poor man's Zeke Bonura.' He was lousy at first. Rickey even told me 'do what you want with him' after he saw him a couple of weeks.

"He wanted to go and so did I. Ralph is a fellow likes to finish anything he starts.

"As luck would have it we play Washington an exhibition our first game at Pittsburgh. And Ralph drops the first throw in infield practice. The fans start cheering when he catches one.

"But he's been improving fast. The fans were getting on me. Saying we'd ruined our best hitter. Then he hit a couple and they stopped.

"This fellow is going to be the best first-baseman in the league. Mark that down. . ."

Kiner is a little behind last year's home run race when he had 47. He hit No. 3 April 28, 1950. This year it tok him three days longer.

Hints On Sports

By FRED MAYBEE

How to throw a curve.

Here is how you grip the ball for a curve, boys.

Hold the ball with the index finger and second finger around the seams where closest together with thumb underneath directly opposite so you are holding the ball firmly with all three pressed against the bent knuckle of the third finger.

The grip is the same for left or right-hander. Now to make it curve.

The spin the pitcher gives the ball and also the force of the throw, determines the type of curve delivered. After a short wind-up (don't waste energy) draw the arm back behind the shoulder over the head, holding the ball—hidden by your glove entirely if possible—to deceive the hitter so that the ball itself is held facing about between third and short if you are a right-hander and toward first and second if you are a southpaw. Next, bring the arm smartly forward turning the hand as you do so from right to left and vice-versa for left, of course.

Grip the ball tightly until it leaves the hand but not so tightly as to lose control. Only practise will enable you to develop this, your natural curve.

We have found by experience that a straight curve is not so effective against a smart batter who can hit pitches of any kind that maintain a fairly horizontal level as they approach the plate. A "dropping" curve however, is highly effective.

So to get the dropping effect, after learning the straight curve, simply spin the ball slightly downwards as well, in your motion. The hitter will either miss or "top" the ball and roll to the infield for an easy out.

Mathewson, Hubbell and Pennock made hitters top the ball with curves that broke downward.

Next instalment: How to wind up.

TWO TOMMY GORMANS will form part of Montreal's International League problems this season. At left, is Umpire Tommy, a former New York Giants pitcher currently working at the Montreal stadium. At right, is Promoter Tommy of Ottawa Giants. The resemblance, both hasten to insist, is purely accidental. Incidentally, the Ottawa Tommy has a sideline headache on his hands—thieves stole a 500-pound safe from his second-storey home last weekend.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

Downfield blocking in kickoffs at grid games will be tried for a year by the Ontario Athletic Conference, of which St. Peter's High is a member. This was decided at the re-organization meeting the other day in Toronto, and delegates also went for unlimited blocking on all kicks from scrimmage. The rule permitting a receiver five yards on a kick will be abolished during this trial period. These changes affect teams from St. Mike's, De la Salle, St. Jerome's of Kitchener and St. Peter's here. 'Twas decided that in future any cage or football team going through the schedule without a defeat would automatically be declared champion, with no playoffs needed.

* * * * * * *

The Conference added two new sports to its program, skiing and badminton. Officers elected were: President, the Rev. E. Flanagan of St. Michael's, Toronto; vice-president, the Rev. F. Dentinger of St. Jerome's, Kitchener; and secretary-treasurer, the Rev. Brother H. Raymond of De la Salle Oaklands, Toronto. One councillor from each school—including Peterborough—will be appointed at the next meeting. Oh, yes, the meeting decided to retain the rule permitting blocking by the backs 10 yards over the line of scrimmage. It will be interesting to see how the downfield blocking works out in high school football next autumn.

Mind Over Matter, Eh?

A Sports College release says it is estimated that the average athlete never uses more than 60 per cent of his physical potential because he "thinks" he has reached his limit. Research by the Mental Health League discloses that 30 per cent of the physical ailments treated in hospital are caused or accentuated by poor mental health. That's why the league is sponsoring National Mental Health Week from May 1 to May 8. Dr. J. M. Seeley, director of sociological research for the Health League, will be interviewed on these aspects May 5 over CBC by Lloyd Percival, head coach of the Sports College, a public service promoting health, physical fitness and sports efficiency in Canada.

While the PMBA would like to sponsor junior baseball, officers find it an expensive proposition, and prefer to bring the boys up through peewee, bantam, midget and juvenile. Many of them feel that boys graduating from juvenile—they're 20 years old then—should be ready to try for senior company if they're ever going any further in the diamond game. Quite a few pros were up there before they reached 20, and we recall lots of local seniors in their teens. Chaps like Les Burton, Bun Kingdon, Ed Starr, Cy Whatley, Bill Calladine, Al and Grant Clark, to mention half a dozen or so. A lot of it is mental and confidence, plus some ability and plenty of hustle.

A Bare-Faced Mat Bout

After he unhooded the Masked Manager in the main mat bout here last night, the Whipper said he'd like to get another crack at the Masked Marvel himself. "I'll take him and the manager on together," he said, "or they can arrange a team bout and I'll go, with any partner they want to pick, against the pair of them—and we'll beat them." He was peeved at the Marvel for trying to interfere when he was unmasking the manager, one Mayes McLain, a former heavyweight grappler. He did the job handily in two straight falls, the Whip not believing in wasting time when he's hot. He even pushed the ref around a few times as Referee Cliff Fox made the mistake of pushing Watson—something the champ doesn't go for at all. Tommy O'Toole lost the semi-final to the husky and rough Mask, but he had the fans behind him this time. The prelim was good, too, with Dave Sims and Abe Zvonkin going to a draw, though Sims might well have been given the referee's decision.

OLA Senior "A" Campaign Begins May 18

The OLA senior "A" schedule will commence here on May 18, Hamilton Tigers playing the Petes at Miller Bowl. The schedule calls for 28 games for each club, 14 at home, with Peterborough getting Friday nights again for home contests. Owen Sound has not definitely entered yet — owing to some player troubles — but is expected in to make it an eight-club circuit. Weston dropped out and was replaced by Fergus, with the OLA awarding the Toronto team nine of the best Weston players.

Secretary Chuck Rowan of the provincial body will draw up the schedule shortly and send it to the teams, but he is giving Owen Sound a few more days to come to a decision. The schedule must be over by Aug. 14, when six teams go into playoffs, the top club playing the sixth, the second meeting the fifth, and the third taking on the fourth. Semi-finals (also best of five) will see the winner of the first and sixth series having a bye. Finals then are four out of seven, the winner going into Mann Cup playoffs. All clubs decided on a straight charge to fans of 75 cents a game for rush seats, except Peterborough, which charges 60 cents rush and 75 cents reserves.

Weston Leaves OLA League

BRAMPTON, May 2 — (CP)— Withdrawal of Weston from the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior league as accepted Tuesday night by the association's senior clubs' committee, which voted to award nine Weston players to Toronto Riverdales.

The player switch was made through an agreement for partial amalgamation of the two clubs. Under this arrangement Weston will enter a junior club and the Riverdales remain in the senior league.

The players involved are Don Chard, Harold Downer, Baldy Venner, Frank Allewell, Tom Banks, Ben Chapman, Sonny Rowntree, Jesse James and Red Hartley.

Representatives of the Owen Sound Crescents did not attend the meeting, but team officials said in a telephone call it is likely the club will remain in the senior league. They said final decision will be made by Saturday.

Honor "Mr. G"

MONTE CARLO, MONACO — (CP) — A memorial plaque to King Gustav V of Sweden has been erected near the tennis courts where the late King was a familiar figure for many years. Swedish and French net stars who often played with "Mr. G.," as he was known on the courts, unveiled the plaque.

DO YOU REMEMBER THEM—Above is shown a group of girl softballers of Canadian Woollens about 1920 or 1921. The team was organized by John W. Stott, who sent in this photo from his home in Lakeland, Florida. He recalls only one surname in the bunch, that of a Miss Slaughter. Mr. Stott would like to have these other lassies identified, and those recalling the team or playing on it can contact the sports editor of this paper.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The youth movement in America's Davis Cup tennis forces began to take form Tuesday as Francis X. Shields, of New York, was named captain of the 1951 United States team.

Shields succeeds Alrick H. Man, Jr., appointed earlier this year as captain of the Davis Cup committee.

In all probability, Shields will lead a brand new and much younger team to Australia next winter in quest of the big international trophy which the Aussies won at Forest Hills last August.

Shields now 40, was a member of the 1931, 1932 and 1934 Davis Cup teams. He was ranked No. 1 in the United States in 1933 and was in the first 10 eight times from 1928 to 1945.

Baseball championship tournaments for non-professional clubs will be held in western Canada this year.

J. E. (Jimmy) Robison of Indian Head, Sask., commissioner of the National Baseball Congress for the west, said Tuesday the tournaments will be established in Saskatchewan, British Columbia, Manitoba and Alberta.

Provincial champions then will meet in a series for the western regional title and the right to play the east in the Dominion finals. Canada's top team will move into the 17th annual national tournament at Wichita which starts Aug. 17.

National League president Ford Frick Tuesday warned members of New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers that fines and suspensions will be assessed if the "unsportsmanlike conduct" continues in games between the two clubs.

"There has been too much jockeying and other things going on in those games," Frick said.

Giant pitchers and Brooklyn second baseman Jackie Robinson exchanged harsh words in both Sunday's and Monday's games.

At St. Andrews, Scotland, Francis Ouimet, former U.S. open and amateur golf champion, Tuesday became the first non-Briton ever elected captain of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews.

The post has been held by many famous players in the club's 198-year history, among them the King of England in 1930 and the Duke of Windsor in 1922.

A cheque for $1,000 contributed by sport fans throughout the United States, was presented on Tuesday to Junius Kelloff, former Manhattan College basketball star who exposed a basketball "fix" in New York.

Kellogg came to Portsmouth, Va., from Fort Meads, Md., where he is an army sergeant.

The asking price for two Vancouver race tracks has tripled since an offer was made a few months ago, W. F. Morrissey, of Toronto, national president of the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association, said Tuesday.

Morrissey, acting on behalf of British Columbia interests which want to buy Lansdowne and Brighouse Park tracks, said a bid of $307,500 had been accepted by the B.C. Turf and Country Club which controls the tracks.

Later, however, the price was boosted to $955,000. This, said Morrissey, is exhorbitant.

Feller Carries Cleveland To 7-1 Win Over Red Sox

By JOE REICHLER,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

One last ambition—to get another shot at a world series victory—is spurring Bob Feller on to what may be one of the greatest seasons of his illustrious career.

Feller, baseball's best right-handed pitcher since the days of Walter Johnson and Pete Alexander, is a fixture in the hurlers' Hall of Fame with his strikeout records, two no-hitters and 200-plus victories. The Cleveland righthander has realized all his ambitions—except one. Despite two cracks at it, a world series triumph thus far has eluded him.

This is the year, avers the erstwhile fireballer. Reaching the twilight of his career, the 32-year-old Feller knows he hasn't too much time left.

Pitching with head as well as his arm, Feller is showing flashes of his former greatness this season. He has made three starts, has gone the route each time and has won all three.

He pitched his best game of the campaign Tuesday night, whipping the power-packed Boston Red Sox 7-1 with a six-hitter.

In First Place

The victory kept the Indians in a first-place tie with Washington, who overcame an 8-3 deficit to outlast the Browns 9-8 in a 13-inning night affair at St. Louis.

Mickey Vernon's homer off Cliff Fannin, fourth Brownie pitcher, broke up the game. Mickey Harris, fourth Washington pitcher, was the winner.

St. Louis Cardinals took undisputed possession of first place in the National League, whipping Johnny Sain and the Braves 5-2 under the Boston lights. The Braves managed to hold on to second place when Pittsburgh upset the Dodgers 6-2 in Brooklyn.

The Phillies tied the Dodgers for third, shading Cincinnati Reds 6-5 in a Philadelphia night game. New York's awakening Giants made it two in a row with a 5-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs in a Polo Grounds evening encounter.

New York Yankees stayed close on the heels of the American League leaders, tripping the White Sox 8-3 in Chicago. The cellarite Philadelphia Athletics rallied for eight runs in the 11th inning to rout the Tigers 9-1 in Detroit and end their 10-game losing streak.

Largest Crowd

The largest crowd of the season, 53,462 fans, saw Larry Doby and Harry (Suitcase) Simpson lead the Indians. Doby batted in three runs with a single and double. Simpson got two hits and scored twice. Bill Wight lost his third straight game. Lou Boudreau, returning to the city where he gained fame as manager and player, slammed a double in four times at bat for the Red Sox. His wild throw, however, helped the Indians in their scoring.

Home runs by Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra helped Vic Raschi gain his third victory for the Yankees. Orestes Minoso, obtained from Cleveland, made his White Sox debut with a two-run homer his first time at bat. The Yankees played without Joe DiMaggio who rested with a stiff neck.

Rookie Lou Limmer's three-run double sparked the Athletics' eight-run uprising against loser Dizzy Trout and Gene Bearden. Hank Wyse was the winner.

Six-hitter

Tommy Poholsky gained his second St. Louis victory with a six-hitter against the Braves. He was aided by Stan Musial and Steve Bilko, who hammered homers against loser Sain.

Robin Roberts survived a five-run eighth inning by the Reds to register his third victory for the Phils. He had a two-hitter until then. Homers by Dick Sisler and Granny Hamner sealed Willie Ramsdell's doom.

A grand-slam homer by shortstop Alvin Dark in the sixth won for the Giants. Jim Hearn, aided by reliefer Sheldon Jones, staggered through to victory. Paul Minner was the loser. Umpire Frank Dascoli cleared the Cub bench of all 11 players in the fourth inning. The Cubs had been riding him after he had called a balk on Minner the previous inning.

Ralph Kiner's third homer was one of the 15 hits amassed by the Pirates off four Brooklyn pitchers. Cliff Chambers won his second game throttling the Dodgers with six hits. Erv Palica, making his first start, was the Brooklyn loser.

Sign George Trafton As Bomber Coach

WINNIPEG, May 2 (CP). — Ralph Misener, president of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers Rugby Club, Tuesday night announced the signing of George Trafton as coach for the 1951 season. The contract is for one year.

Trafton was assistant coach of the Los Angeles Rams under Clarke Shaughnessy during 1948-49. He moved to the front office in 1950.

He succeeds Frank Laron who coached the Bombers for the last year to the Grey Cup final which they lost 13-0 to Toronto Argonauts.

Braves Trample St. Mike's 4-1 In First Game

By VIC MORRIS, Jr.

MONTREAL, May 2 (CP). — Hector (Toe) Blake's Valleyfield Braves cleared the first hurdle Tuesday night in their hunt for the Alexander Cup by beating Toronto St. Michael's 4-1 in the first game of a best-of-seven series for the Canadian major hockey championship.

The Quebec champions had too much power for St. Mike's, who were unable to keep abreast of the fast-stepping Braves after the first period was battled on even terms.

The turning point came midway through the second period when Rosaire (Kitoute) Joannette pushed a picture goal into the Toronto net and moved Valleyfield into the lead for the balance of the game. The 34-year-old veteran player, who has served his 18 years of hockey at Valleyfield, brought the estimated 6,000 fans to their feet with his fancy stickhandling that completely fooled goaler Phil Hughes.

Valleyfield's other markers were scored by Andre Corriveau, Jean-Paul Bisaillon and Jackie Schmidt. Billy McCracken sniped the lone Toronto goal in the middle session.

Quebec Superiority

The superiority of the Quebecers was shown in the statistical department. Braves poured 34 shots at Hughes while St. Mike's were limited to 21 tries on goaler Paul Leclerc.

Despite the 68 mark the thermometer hit in the rink, the game was played at a fast clip in the last two periods.

Referees Hap Shouldice and Stan Pratt, both Quebec Senior Hockey League officials, handed eight of the 14 minor penalties to St. Mike's.

Royals Edge Red Wings 6-5

By The Associated Press.

Montreal Royals are back in first place in the International League pennant race, thanks to nifty relief work by Lefty Tom Lasorda.

Lasorda hurled 4 1-3 innings of hitless ball Tuesday as the Royals downed Rochester Red Wings 6-5. Royals now lead Syracuse Chiefs by a game. The Chiefs took a 2-0 setback from Ottawa Giants.

Montreal overcame a 5-4 deficit with a two-run rally in the seventh. Bobby Morgan's double drove home the winning run. Charley Kress and Russ Derry banged homers for the Red Wings.

Andy Tomasic, with help in the eighth from Red Hardy, blanked the Chiefs on four hits. Tomasic helped his own cause with a scoring triple in the seventh. Bill Miller was charged with the loss.

Baltimore Orioles outslugged Toronto Maple Leafs 11-6. The Orioles tucked away the decision with four runs in the eighth inning. Al Cihocki highlighted the uprising with a two-run single.

Buffalo Bisons and Springfield Cubs were idle.

Second Sportsmen's Show Has Dog Owners Hustling

Owners of pure bred dogs are having a busy time of it this week. Getting pooches ready for Peterborough's second Outdoor Sportsmen's Show means washing shampooing and taking the curls out of the animals' coats.

This section of the show is being sponsored by the Kawartha Kennel Club and its 100 members will show a large variety of dogs. There will be foxhounds, beagles, retrievers, Labradors, both springer and cocker spaniels and Chesapeakes. Beside these hunting-class types there will also be wire haired terriers, collies, pekinese, shepherds and many others. It seems quite certain that the pure bred dog exhibit will fill a tent of its own.

Club's secretary - treasurer, Ethel McFadyen, is looking forward to exhibits of very high calibre. For instance, a small Irish terrier pup, Valevue Mike, is already waiting in her pet shop to be claimed by some lucky raffle ticket winner. Bred by Don Raddon's kennels, he is a very pert number and will make a very attractive addition to some family. Mike is taking things calmy and sleeps most of the time these days in his box.

Some of the exhibitor members who have registered to date are William Thompson, Jerry Coughlin, Ed Roberts, Leo McGuire, Jim Shook, Mrs. Leslie Groombridge, David Henderson, George Hill, Bob Runnett, Bud Lloyd, Mrs. Harold Smith, Mrs. George Amey, Reg Reid, Herb Routley, Miss Ethel McFadyen and Don Raddon.

The Sportsmen's Show will also have a mut exhibition on Saturday afternoon. Last year there were 150 entries and more than that are anticipated this time. One good thing about this special section is the assurance that each entrant-owner will receive a prize. Show officials are wondering how they will cope with this affair for there is nothing that causes so much interest.

EDMONTON, May 2 (CP) — Canada's 25th Infantry Brigade replacement group—1,000 strong—will arrive at Wainwright military camp 135 miles east of here May 8, from Fort Lewis, Wash.

Western army command announced Tuesday the group will come on special trains from Vancouver. Its members will live in the existing camp until new tent quarters are ready.

Command headquarters said the tent camp will give the Wainwright base the largest active-force concentration in Western Canada during peacetime.

Division Commander Experienced Man

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 2 (Reuters)—Maj.-Gen. A. J. H. Cassels, appointed on Tuesday as commander of Commonwealth Division for Korea, was director of land-air warfare at the War Office in London before he became chief liaison officer here in January, 1950, with the British service liaison staff.

He is a former commander of the 51st (Highland) Division and a son of Gen Sir Robert Cassels, former Commander-in-Chief of the Army in India.

He was a captain in the Seaforth Highlanders when the Second World War broke out. He crossed the Channel with the 52nd (Lowland) Division just before the fall of France. He later commanded a brigade of the 51st (Highland) Division from the landing soon after D-Day until appointed divisional commander in June, 1945.

Extend Job Protection To Some Army Men

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP) — The government moved in the Commons Tuesday to extend civilian job protection to some members of the armed forces besides the special Korean force.

Under a resolution before the House, special force members are ensured of getting their old jobs back and given concessions in unemployment insurance.

Tuesday, Veterans Minister Lapointe had the resolution amended to take in "certain other members of the Canadian forces." He explained it would apply to members of the reserve forces joining the active services for three-year terms.

12-Country Group Discusses Newsprint

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP) — A 12-country pulp and paper committee has started meetings to determine what should be done to increase scarce supplies of newsprint and other pulp and paper commodities.

Informed officials said the group first would study available statistics on world pulp and paper supplies before reaching a verdict on whether international allocation will be necessary.

Countries represented are Canada, Australia, Belgium, Brazil, France, Western Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, United Kingdom and the United States.

Plane Drops Lucky Papers For Draw At Sports Show

A low-flying seaplane on Monday and Tuesday of this week buzzed factory and school areas and dropped a total of 10,000 lucky number leaflets. This was advance advertising for Peterborough's second Outdoor Sportsmen's Show being held this week at the Civic Arena on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Officials say that it will be bigger and better than ever. Last year 4,500 people attended and this week, it is estimated, 2,000 more will make an appearance.

Six tents and the arena area will provide space for 60 exhibitors. A long parade on Thursday with two bands, new cars, floats, fancy-decked bikes and square dancers performing on the roof of a large trailer will lead the crowds to the Arena. It will start at Inverlea St., at 6.30 p.m. and proceed down George St., west on Charlotte and south on Park St., to its destination.

There will be innumerable commercial displays of boats, fishing tackle, guns and all types of outdoor play equipment. Besides this, the Peterborough Boy Scout Association will have a camping display, and the Chamber of Commerce will exhibit the booth recently used at the Cleveland Sportsmen's Show.

Doug Uloff of Orillia will be present with model airplanes that fly and it is thought after seeing his demonstration that it will cause enough interest to form a model aircraft club in Peterborough.

Casting Techniques

Bait casting and spinning techniques will be demonstrated in a canvas pool by experts and officials hope that the district archers will give a performance.

A stage show for one hour each evening will provide trained dogs, roping experts, professional square dancing and weight lifting. Considerable space is being reserved for a large display from the Department of Lands and Forests.

With outdoor shows being held simultaneously in Montreal and Windsor, some of the larger exhibitors—bait and equipment manufacturers—will not be able to come to Peterborough this week. There will be many fine exhibits shown regardless of this, according to the heads of the Show.

TROPICAL STATE

British Honduras in Central America has an area of 8,800 square miles and population of about 60,000.

SOME OF THE SPIRITED ACTION in last Saturday's final which saw Rosemont Boys Club of Montreal beat Windsor Lincolns for the Dominion Juvenile church cage title is seen above. Reaching for control of the ball are Oscar Peterson (6) and Nick Hlavaty of Rosemount and Windsor's John Sweton. At left are Ron Hutchison of Rosemount and John Atkins. Rosemount gathered 119 points, in the two-game series, to take the title.

Staid Britons Begin Big "At Home"

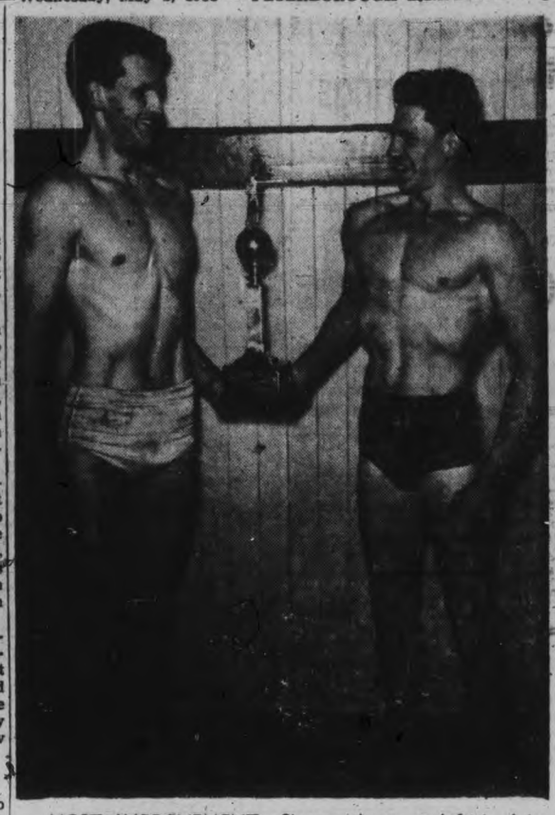
By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, May 2—(CP)—The British people, who are said to take their pleasures painfully, set out Thursday to show what they, too, can be the life of the party.

From tiny villages with such rakish names as Nether Wallop and Great Duddington to the strange metal structures which have been grafted on the grey, blitzed heart of London, Britain will be "at home" to the world in a five-month frolic of fun, fantasy and color.

For better or worse, the Festival of Britain—a reality at last—will unfold with varying pomp on 2,000 communities across the country. With touching faith, sponsors of festival arrangements in some small places have even engaged interpreters to cope with the expected tourist traffic.

The festival was originally planned years ago as a token of national resurgence, a sign that Britain had come back the hard way. Since then the lofty purpose has been somewhat blunted by world events, and the keynote now is gaiety.



Wants People Happy

"I want everyone in Britain to see it, to take part in it, to enjoy it" says Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison, long a festival booster. "I want to hear the people sing."

There appears to be a good chance that Morrison will get his wish. A mounting sense of excitement indicates that the festival will be as big a success as a previous one 100 years ago. After a winter of sacrifice, Britain again seems to be ready for a season of fun.

The festival's centre-piece, a 27-acre site on the River Thames carved out of an unpromising maze of warehouses, wharves and bombed buildings, certainly has curiosity value. Everything about it is original.

There is a 250-foot-tall, latticed-steel object, shaped like a slender cigar and suspended on pylons. Illuminated at night, it casts an eerie glow over a famous stretch of the Thames between Waterloo and Westminster bridges. Approximately, it has been christened "skylon" by an indignant housewife who wrote a London newspaper complaining that the term "vertical feature" wasn't dignified enough.

Learn Golf From The Stars

Right or Wrong, Any Change Seems Unnatural—Nelson

By BYRON NELSON
Former US Open Champion

Like many good golfers, I developed peculiarities in my game which suit the way I play, but might not prove most effective for others.

Of course, you know that we ourselves don't know actually how we play.

Whenever you make a change it seems unnatural, whether you change from right to wrong or wrong to right. That's why we get into arguments with persons teaching us.

We may be changing from a very bad grip to a perfect one, but until we become used to the grip it doesn't feel natural.

A lot of people say I sway. It has been argued pro and con. I don't know if I do.

I do know that the lower part of my body, from my hips down, sways when I start my swing.

When I stand at the ball, I have a decided amount of weight on my left foot. Not 80 per cent but more than a majority.

When I start the backswing, I can feel the weight transfer to my right foot, giving me the freedom I need for the lateral shift I have.

When I start back, my hips, hands, club and shoulders start at once.

The more you can start everything together, the easier it is to keep everything timed together throughout the swing.

If you start with the clubhead first, everything must follow the clubhead all the way around.

If you body and hands start first, you'll get a lash at the top of the swing.

As I told a roomful of experts at the PGA convention in Chicago one day that will work perfectly and the next it won't be so good.

It is essential that a person waggle the club in the same line that he expects to carry the club through during the entire swing.

NEXT: Jimmy Demaret says the professional's real pay-off is the grin of the duffer who suddenly hits the pin because he swung exactly as he was told.

LONG TRIP

Surface mail takes 40 days between London and Melbourne, Australia, a distance of 11,267 miles.

ALL TOGETHER — "The more you can start everything together, the easier it is to keep everything timed, together throughout the swing," stresses Byron Nelson.

Urge United Church Support Hope Report

UDORA, Ont., May 2 (CP) — The United Church was urged Tuesday to take the lead in a campaign to have the Hope commission report on education implemented by the Ontario government.

The Rev. George H. Thomas told a meeting of the Toronto East Presbytery that no Protestant church had replied to opposition by the Roman Catholic church to some recommendations of the report.

Main Roman Catholic opposition has been to a recommendation that a three-level school setup be substituted for the present arrangement of primary and secondary schools. The number of years for which separate schools would be supported by taxes would be reduced from eight to six under the proposal.

Pays To Advertise Youth 19 Gets Bride

PORTLAND, Me., May 2—(AP) A week ago a 19-year-old boy who'd been "all around" walked into the Press Herald editorial room and said he wanted to advertise for a wife—"Someone who's lonely too."

Kenneth William Kerwin no longer is lonely. Today he's a bridegroom-to-be.

Kerwin told a reporter he's already popped the question to one of 50 young women who wrote him after his story was published in the Press Herald.

Kerwin, a shipping clerk, said his bride will be Gloria B. Trask, also 19, of Portland. The wedding is scheduled for May 14.

"I knew it would happen this way," he remarked of the mail he received.

"You just have to advertise."

Lindsay Club Signs Bill Shill

LINDSAY, May 2 — Lindsay Merchants of the Lakeshore Baseball League have signed hockey star Bill Shill of Vancouver Canucks for the 1951 season.

The ex-Boston Bruins player, who was one of the leading scorers with the Pacific Coast League club, is returning to the locals after a year's absence. The lanky Toronto lad hit over .300 with the Merchants in 1949 and played a strong game at shortstop.

Shill will be in the lineup when the Blue Sox open their 30-game schedule in the improved Lindsay Stadium, May 19. Manager Andy Widdis' squad meets the 1950 champions, Cobourg Legion, in the opener. Also signed for the year are young Peterborough fireballer Doug Loucks, ex-Welland veteran Dean Tompkins, catcher Lloyd Tamblyn, formerly with Waterloo Tigers, and Lew McTaggart and Stu Hicks from Little Britain of the Tri-County League.

Arcaro-Jones Derby Battle

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2 (AP) —With a distinct lack of outstanding class in the field for the 1951 Kentucky Derby, it began to appear today that the $100,000 gallop Saturday may be a scrap between Eddie Arcaro and Ben Jones.

At least, these two old partners in this famous turf classic have a pretty good hand in the 77th derby. This showed up Tuesday in the $10,000 derby trial, a one-mile race which affords three-year-old horses their final big prep for the main event.

Fanfare, a Jones-trained Calumet farm colt which wasn't even considered for the derby less than two weeks ago, pounded down to the wire a driving winner of the derby trial. More impressive, thought some observers, was the fast-closing Battle Morn, owned by the Cain Hoy stable and ridden by Arcaro. Battle Morn, running far back as usual, came with a bang to get fourth.

Jones has won five derbies, more than any other trainer. Arcara has ridden four derby winners, more than any jockey.

Although Arcaro piloted three winners for Jones — Lawrin, Whirlaway and Citation — they will be on opposite sides of the fence Saturday.

TOKYO, May 2 (CP)—Emperor Hirohito today paid his first call on Lt.-Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, new allied supreme commander in the Far East. The object of his visit was not announced.

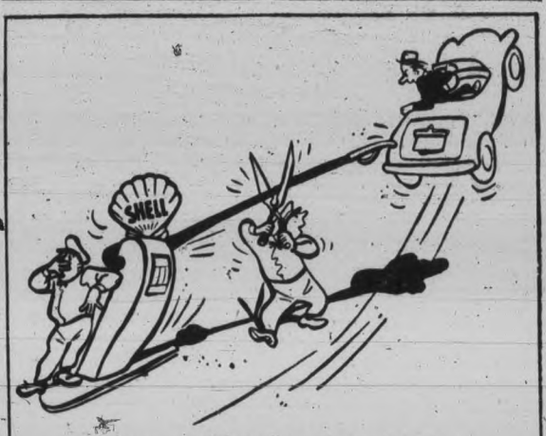
SOMEWHERE, IN KOREA, May 2 (Reuters).—The South Korean National Assembly Tuesday night decided to dissolve the national defence army and home defence corps. The national defence army is similar to a reserve army. The home defence corps is an anti-Communist civilian youth organization authorized to help the police keep public order.

Windsor Has First Low-Cost Housing Plan

TORONTO, May 2 — (CP). — Windsor may be the first Ontario city to have a low-cost housing project under terms of a 1949 amendment to the National Housing Act it was learned Tuesday.



Planning Minister Griesinger has met with city officials in Windsor to discuss possibility of the project. A Windsor delegation will be in Toronto next week to continue the discussion.

The project would be built on a Federal-Provincial - municipal partnership basis. By the amendment to the Housing Act the Federal government might pay 75 per cent and the province 25 per cent of the cost of clearing, subdividing and servicing land.

Actress Suspended

HOLLYWOOD, May 2 (AP) — Betty Grable was suspended Tuesday for eight weeks for refusing, her studio said, to do a comedy-musical picture which was to start this month. A studio spokesman said the blonde actress hasn't the right in her contract to reject a script. He added that the actress had been complaining she isn't given enough time off between pictures for rest and relaxation.

Crime Hearings Change Plans For New Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, May 2 (AP) — Senator Estes Kefauver has made some changes here, too.

I'm not speaking in terms of real-life crime and corruption. But the crime investigating Senator from Tennessee has made Hollywood alter its thinking about gangster pictures.

Top-rank producer Edmund Grainger told me: "The Kefauver hearings had a tremendous impact on the public. People were able to see first-hand what gangsters really look like and how they operate. Now you can't fool them with anything phony.

"Initially, the hearings hurt the picture business, because people stayed at home and watched their TV sets. But I think the investigations will help us in the long run. People are now more aware of and concerned about gambling and gangsterism."

Tin-Type Toughs Taboo

Grainger said the hearings have outmoded the old-style movie gangster. The movies used to portray criminals as tough-talking mugs. The Kefauver hearings showed many of them to be smooth characters who act like business men.

Edward G. Robinson, the "Little Caesar" one of the most successful screen gangsters, tried one of his old-style characterization in "Key Largo." Unfortunately, he conveyed more humor than menace. James Cagney, the famed "Public Enemy" of the early '30s has done a couple of gangster roles recently, but they are "wearing pretty thin."

"We can't get away with that sort of thing any more," Grainger said.

Silver Lining

The Kefauver hearings proved a break for the producer, who was preparing a new version of the old play, "The Racket."

"I was having trouble with the Johnston office," said Grainger, referring to the industry's censors. "The play concerned the connection between the criminal element and politics. The office told me that the subject might be offensive, since corruption is limited to only a few localities.

"I tried to tell them that it was widespread. Then the Kefauver hearings came along and showed the connection of crime and politics in many areas. After that, I didn't have any trouble with the Johnston office."

Consider Eight Bills Authorizing Seaway

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP) — The House of Representatives Public Works Committee has under consideration eight bills to authorize construction of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Why such a duplication—especially since all of the eight are virtually identical in content?

The answer is twofold:

1. By sponsoring a bill, the individual House member indicates his support of the project. And, under house rules, he may not join with another in introducing identical legislation. (The Senate, on the other hand, permits joint introduction.)

2. Identical house bills may—and sometimes do—contain variations even though all seek essentially the same objective.

Ask Indians Give Up One Meal Each Week

NEW DELHI, May 2 —(CP)— Prime Minister Nehru Monday called on all Indians to give up one meal a week to help save the country from "the hovering spectre of famine."

Nehru proposed that the food grains saved should be sent as gifts to the worst-affected areas in Bihar and Madras.

In a radio address, Nehru thanked those abroad helping India but said India will not accept any help involving pressure on the country's domestic or foreign policy.

General Pendry Buried In City

The burial of the late Brig-Gen. Bryer Hamilton Pendry of St. Albans NYC, took place today in the family plot Little Lake Cemetery. The deceased was the only son of the late Hon. William H. and Alice Pendry of Brooklyn, NY, and was born in Peterborough 77 years ago.

The Rev. A. Mathews of George St. United Church conducted the graveside service.

General Pendry was commanding officer of the 245th Coast Artillery (old 13th Regiment) until his retirement, and was held in high esteem by his comrades under whose auspices his funeral was held in New York. In profession, the deceased was a lawyer and banker, being president of the East Brooklyn Savings and Loan Association, and a member of the Board of Trustees of the Roosevelt Savings Bank.

There is left to mourn his passing his wife, Mrs. Katherine Pendry, also several cousins, daughters of the late Edward Courtney of Peterborough.

The pallbearers were Arthur Bacon, Walter Bothwell, James Juby, David Bacon, Rodney Blackwell and Lloyd Routley.

Vagrancy Charge

WHITBY, May 2 — (CP). — A 20-year-old girl told police she asked her boy friend to lock her in a construction job shack to protect her from other men. Mrs. May Maracle of Oshawa was found Tuesday in the locked shack and charged with vagrancy.

Sweden Discovers Inflation Trends Not So Easy To Halt

STOCKHOLM. — (Reuters) — Sweden's Socialist government is experimenting with a "once only" inflation which may cause repeated rises in the cost of living.

The planners' idea was to allow wages and prices to rise once only and then peg them. But the soaring prices of foreign raw materials, following western rearmament, has made the "pegging" impossible.

First step in the government's experiment was to end the two-year-old wage freeze, with the approval of the opposition parties and under some pressure from the Trade Unions Federation.

Got Good Bargaining

This meant negotiations between the different unions and employers' federations for new collective wages agreement for this year. The unions, which had shown patriotic restraint in accepting the wages freeze, drove through reasonably good bargains for their members, under the threat of strike where necessary.

The wage increases so far agreed on average about 15 per cent. They vary from 19 per cent for state employees to eight per cent for workers in the mines of central Sweden.

But the workers are finding their increased wages will not buy more goods. Indeed, as fast as new wages agreements are published, the state price control board is sending out announcements of higher prices.

Rapid Ascent

Already some unions are grumbling that the cost of living index has risen by 10 per cent. in four months.

At the same time, the properties classes are complaining they are getting a raw deal. The Property Owners' Association has intimated it will press for rent increases ranging from eight to 17 per cent. If granted, these will send up the cost of living index a few more points.

On the principle of "fair shares for all," the Government is imposing new taxes on commercial firms. This new tax, like the inflation, is a "once only" tax, the Government says. But there are sceptics.

Everyone is complaining—wage earners of the difficulty of making both ends meet, industrialists of new restrictions on private enterprise. Yet, statistics show the people are buying more because the retail trade turnover is increasing steadily.

In the same way, the reports of the big companies recently published show higher profits all round. Sweden's exporters are doing a roaring business as timber, cellulose and ore prices soar.

Nevertheless, non-partisan economists here believe Sweden is going to be forced to tighten her belt like the other western countries. Rearmament is causing a scarcity of raw materials which hits neutrals and Atlantic Pact members alike.

Opposition Renews Drive Against Sales Tax Plan

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP)—The United States has agreed to relinquish some rights and privileges granted under terms of 99-year leases on military bases in Newfoundland.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons Tuesday that after two years of negotiations the U.S. has agreed to changes in the leases signed in 1941, eight years before Newfoundland became a Canadian province.

Mr. St. Laurent praised the co-operation shown by U.S. authorities when, legally, they didn't have to modify the lease in any way.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Mr. St. Laurent's praise would reassure those Canadians who were beginning to feel the two countries no longer could co-operate in the old friendly way.

Renew Campaign

There were these other developments in the Commons:

1. Opposition members renewed a campaign against a budget resolution increasing the general sales tax to 10 per cent from eight per cent.

2. Finance Minister Abbott brought down a supplementary estimate of $2,000,000 to provide $40-a-month supplementary payments to unemployable veterans to help them meet the cost of living.

3. The government moved to extend civilian job protection to some members of the armed forces besides the special Korean force. The extension applies to members of the reserve forces joining the active services for three-year terms.

The Senate, meeting for the first time since the Easter recess March 21, dealt with a variety of minor legislation.

Tax Capital Gains

In debate on the taxation resolutions, Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw) suggested that a tax on capital gains would eliminate the need for an increase in sales and excise taxes.

James Sinclair, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, said one of the main reasons why a capital-gains tax was not imposed in Canada was that it would discourage the investment needed to develop resources.

Several opposition members repeated requests for repeal of the increase in the general sales tax. F. D. Shaw (SC-Red Deer) described the tax as one which "goes right into the pockets of the poorest man in the land."

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton), said the government had reduced the excise tax on candy, chewing gum and chocolate to 15 per cent from 30 per cent because of the damage the high tax had done the industry. He believes the tax should be repealed completely.

No Significant Results

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said the experimental farms service has tested the treatment of seed grain with liquid fertilizer before sowing and found that it does "not give significant results to the farmer."

However, he told W. Chester S. McLure (PC-Queens) in the Commons, that his department, though it has made this information public, has not discouraged the use of liquid fertilizer.

Mr. McLure had asked whether the department, had discouraged farmers from using liquid fertilizers.

CLARENCE HOUSE—A replica of Princess Elizabeth's dining room at Clarence House will be exhibited in major Canadian and United States cities in the next few months. The tour is part of a campaign to build up prestige of British home furnishings in North America. The exhibition—valued at more than $30,000—will include duplicates of the mahogany furniture and chairs upholstered in yellow antique satin, chintz draperies, varying in tones of gold and green, yellow candles and roses and wall-to-wall carpets of apple green. This is a United Kingdom Information Office photo.

An Early Swim

PORT ARTHUR, May 2 (CP). —City clerk Arthur Evans opened the swimming season here Tuesday. Mr. Evans, accompanying Mayor F. O. Robinson on an inspection of flood areas below Boulevard Lake dam, slipped on a log and tumbled into the icy water.

Bigger Bacon Ration

LONDON, May 2 (Reuters) — Britain will increase the weekly bacon ration from four to five ounces May 27, the government announced Tuesday night.

Brief Freedom Costs 18 Months In Jail

STRATFORD, May 2 (CP) — Five hours of freedom Monday today cost Elwood Jackson, 21, Owen Sound and George Allman, 22, Stratford, 18 months in the Ontario reformatory. The pair pleaded guilty to escaping from custody.

Jackson and Allman made their bid for freedom while cutting grass on the jail grounds. They fled into nearby Downie township where they were caught five hours later by a combined force of city and provincial police.

Allman was serving three months for escaping custody of police officer and Jackson six months for possessing stolen goods.

Egg Production Down

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP). —Egg production in Canada is slipping. The Bureau of Statistics Tuesday reported total production for the first three months of 1951 at 87,900,000 dozens, a drop from last year's 94,000,000.

Will Reappear

BUENOS AIRES, May 2 (AP)—President Peron told a cheering crowd Tuesday that the government-seized newspaper La Prensa "will be delivered to the workers." This was the first official indication that the newspaper will reappear under government direction. Congress approved taking over the independent La Prensa April 12. It had been closed since late January by boycotts, strikes and court action.

Rousing Revival

VANCOUVER (CP). — The clanging of a burglar alarm interrupted a revival meeting in the rear of a garment store premises here one night recently. The Rev. D. Kreemer called police who found the burglar had been scared off, leaving a crowbar behind.

Most POW's Home

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., May 2 (AP).—The United States told the United Nations Tuesday it has sent all but 19 Second World War prisoners home by June 30, 1947. The 19 held over in 1947 were individuals sentenced for crimes after their capture.

Police Break Up March Of Strikers

WELLINGTON, NZ. May 2 — (Reuters). — Police broke up a march of 1,000 striking dockers today.

About 100 police used their nightsticks on the strikers when they tried to march through police lines from the Wellington Trades Hall to the Parliament Buildings. They dispersed after being told a deputation would be allowed to meet the government.

The clash climaxed a series of violent incidents, connected with the 3½-month-old dock strike, which have flared up in the last 48 hours.

Honest Face Helps

TORONTO, May 2 (CP). —An honest face and a supply of fresh eggs netted Kenneth Brillinger, 29, more than $2,000 in the last two years, police said Tuesday after booking him on 50 charges of false pretences with intent to defraud. Police said Brillinger went from door to door selling eggs and a sob story that he had his car in for repaors and asked to get his cheque cashed in order to have the automobile released.

More Blindness

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP)—The Health Department said Tuesday that an eye disease called glaucoma that leads to blindness appears to be increasing. It was announced an $18,000 federal health grant to open up another clinic at Montreal to help fight the disease that hits particularly at older persons.

"Milk Refrigerators" Cut Consumer Price

TORONTO, May 2 (CP)—Use of "milk refrigerators" in cutting down the price a consumer pays for milk was described to the Ontario Milk Control Board Tuesday by an Essex dairyman.

A. R. Webber, chairman of the Essex County Milk Distributors' Association, said a Minneapolis dairy gives customers a discount if they buy milk in large quantities. He said it is considering supplying customers with small refrigerators so they could take delivery of a week's supply at a time. Thus the dairy could cut deliveries to one a week.

The board reserved decision on the Toronto District Milk Producers' request for an increase in the whole milk price to $5.71 a hundredweight from $4.20. The producers said granting the boost could add at least three cents to the present retail delivered price of 20½ cents a quart.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CII. No. 103 — WEDNESDAY, MAY 2, 1951 — PRICE FIVE CENTS

Davies Opens Welsh Assize Court

71-Year-Old Senator First Canadian To Authorize Session

WELSHPOOL, Wales, May 2—(CP).—Probably for the first time in the history of this old Welsh town on the river Severn, the half-yearly Assize Court sessions have been opened by a Canadian.

Senator W. Rupert Davies, 71-year-old publisher of The Peterborough Examiner and The Kingston Whig-Standard, was the central figure Tuesday in the traditional pageantry which marked the opening of the court sittings.

Among the spectators were many who remembered Davies as the local lad who left in 1895 with a guinea sewn into his shirt to try his luck in Canada. And Welshpool, with its timbered cottages and miniature railway threading through back gardens, looked much the same as it did to the young emigrant of 14 who once worked in his father's store here.

Authorized Sittings

Davies authorized the court sittings in his capacity as High Sheriff of Montgomeryshire, a county set in the hilly border country which for years was disputed by England and Wales. He was sworn in as Sheriff March 19.

Two trumpeters greeted the Canadian Senator as he entered the courthouse wearing his brilliant robes of office.

The coat of arms on the trumpeters' banners was designed by Davies and approved by the College of Heralds in London. The symbols on the crest, resembling money bags, are derived from the old ink-balls used in the early days of printing before rollers introduced.

If Mickey Were a Human He Would Be 168 Years Old

If Mickey were a human being, he would be celebrating his 168th birthday this spring. But Mickey is a cat—a Persian cat who has reached the ripe old age of 24. He has lived all his life (with the exception of his first six months) with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Curvin at 747 Water St.

Reckoned by the gauge that one year in a cat's life equals seven years in a human life, Mickey has broken all records for longevity. He has also probably set a record in catdom.

Mickey is also very well preserved. He made a special appearance for the Examiner Tuesday afternoon and revealed an amazing amount of spirit and vigor in his handsome black coat. Slight deafness seems to be his only sign of old age.

Mr. Curvin stated that Mickey has been fed exclusively on a diet of liver, fish, milk and water.

Each spring this cat is transported to Clear Lake to the Curvin's tourist camp where he remains until the autumn, when he returns to his Peterborough home. Today he left for the 1951 tourist season at Clear Lake.

Like all cats, Mickey is quite careful of his personal appearance and likes to be petted.

His dislikes—riding in cars and thunderstorms.

Lindsay Youths Held By Police

Two Lindsay youths pleaded guilty in police court today to charges of trying to take a parked car on Antrim St. in Peterborough without the owner's consent to drive home about 1 a.m. this morning.

They were remanded for sentence to Monday to give police time to check whether or not they have criminal records. Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, KC, said if the two had no records he would sugegst they be given suspended sentence.

The two are Stanley Carley, 17, 112 Russell St., Lindsay and Fred Johnston, 21, 87 Glenelda St., Lindsay.

Police received a phone call to the effect that two men were seen getting out of a car owned by Kenneth C. Billings, 156 Antrim St. Patrol Seargeant Harold Mesley and Constale Eldon McDonald searched the area in a cruiser and found Carley and Johnston walking north on Water St. north of Parkhill Rd.

Tom Morgan, also of 156 Antrim St., told police he saw the pair try the door of his car as well. A small pocket knife with one blade freshly broken was found on Carley and the point was found in the ignition switch of Billings' car.

Detective-Sergeant John Stevenson testified in police court today that the youths admitted to him that they had tried to take the car. They said they had come to Peterborough to visit a relative in hospital here.

The person who had driven them here and was to take them back, had gone and left them stranded. They started to hitch hike and then saw the car on Antrim St. and decided to drive home. Both men had been drinking.

One Dead Skunk One Odorized Cop

Rookie Constable Jack Wilson shot a skunk today and the skunk shot him.

He was sent to 129 Lansdowne St. to shoot the skunk that was found there about 10 a.m. He said he was 25 feet away when he shot it through the head with his first bullet. To make certain, he fired another shot and the perfume squirted.

Constable Wilson was a good distance away, but he was down wind. When he returned to the station fellow officers wouldn't go near him.

Because he has been on the force only a short time, he has only one uniform.

Settle Squabble Out Of Court

A family squabble over property at the present non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court heard Tuesday has been settled.

John Joseph Grisdale, 76-year-old ex-letter carrier, asked that a deed he had given to a niece be returned to him. As plaintiff in the action he charged the agreement was unconscionable, and that he made the transfer without benefit of independent legal advice.

In return for the deed, his niece, Mrs. Fred Maybee, 342 Downie St., was to provide him with a good home and spending money. But shortly after the transfer the elderly plaintiff decided he didn't like the setup.

Under the terms of settlement the deed to the Downie St. property is to be returned to him. However he will give his niece a five-year lease on the property at a $40 a month rental. It is to be willed to her.

Mr. Grisdale told the court Tuesday he had transferred the deed.

In August, 1950, he applied for the old age pension, but withdrew his application after his niece had told him he shouldn't have applied, he said. If he was successful the cost of it would come back against the property.

Gilbert James Browne, Lindsay, onetime boarder at the Maybees, said: "Mr. Grisdale got very good treatment, the same as I got myself."

V. J. McElderry, KC, appeared for Mr. Grisdale, and Emmett Sheehy represented Mrs. Maybee. Settlement was arranged with the help of Justice R. W. Treleaven.

Cobourg Purse Thief Gets Only 25 Cents

COBOURG, May 2 (ENS)—Second purse snatching within a week, a tall stranger with bushy hair, yellow plaid windbreaker or shirt snatched a purse from the hand of Mrs. Fred Earle on College Street last night at 10 o'clock. Purse contained 25 cents. Description of the thief is similar to that of a man who a week ago snatched a purse containing a dollar and a half from Mrs. Cy Murphy.

Plant 1,500 Seedlings On Hospital Grounds

Landscaping at the Peterborough Civic hospital is one of the major projects of the parks department during the spring months.

The lawns at the hospital are going through a process of top-soiling, levelling and seeding. Fifteen hundred seedlings are being planted at the north, south and west of the main hospital building.

The limestone wall at the front parking area has been completed and this year steps and flagstone walks will be added.

Plans for the landscaping were drawn up by Gordon Culham, landscape architect, Toronto.

May Moving Sets New Record

Movers All Report Heavy Rush, 300-400 Movings

The busiest time in his 39 years in the moving business was the last four days, Edwin Reid told the Examiner today.

In those four days, Ed Reid's four vans and 13 men handled about 100 moving jobs. Mr. Reid figured the total number of moving jobs in the city would run to about 300 or 400 for that period.

Utilities Busy

The Peterborough Utilities Commission said they added an extra truck and another man to handle the rush of meter reading calls on the traditional moving day—May 1. Six men and three trucks were operating in the city. During April about 500 "connect" orders were received.

On the other hand, the Rural Hydro Commission reported no marked increase in the number of applications for meter readings.

Across the city, movers told the same story as Mr. Reid: "Rushed off our feet!" "Really busy! Never saw anything like it."

Mr. Reid guessed there were twice as many moving this year as in 1950, and the work before the war was "nothing at all" compared to the 1951 rush.

Another mover, Cal Nichols, reported he handled four moving jobs Tuesday, and had to turn down 30 orders over the weekend. Mr. Reid said he had turned down nearly 75.

"It's the busiest time for moving I've ever seen," said Mr. Nichols.

65 In Next Few Days

For a solid week—until May 9—Ed Reid is booked for moving jobs. He thinks he has 65 to do in that time. Other movers, he expects, are relatively as busy.

Tuesday was the big day. From six in the morning, all through the night the movers worked. Movers admitted some of the jobs were small ones -moving people who lived in a few rooms—but they were all jobs.

Reservations for moving have been made for as far ahead as July with city movers. None are booked solid until then, but it looks like a busy summer.

April Rainfall 4.77 Inches Sets Half Century Record

April moisture in Peterborough was equivalent to 4.87 inches of rainfall, James Harrison, official recorder, at the filtration plant reported today. Comparative figure a year ago was 2.885 inches. There were 4.77 inches of rain last month and one inch of snow, adding up to the total moisture index of 4.87 inches.

In April last year, rain was 2.46 inches; snow 4¼ inches, amounting to a total precipitation of 2.885 inches.

Other meteorological statistics were: April, 1950: maximum temperature 63 deg. on the 18th; minimum 14 deg. on the 9th; an average of 36.35 degrees.

Weather facts last month were: Maximum temperature 71 degrees on the 29th; minimum 28 degrees on the 7th of the month; an average of 45 degrees.

As a summary of conditions there was more moisture and the average temperature was nine degrees higher than a year ago. In that retrospect, April does not look so cheerless as people rated it in passing.

Set New Record

The precipitation broke all records for April in the Kawartha area for the past half century.

The previous high was in 1922 when 4.84 inches of rain fell, but didn't create the flooding conditions as serious as in the past month. Only three other Aprils since 1900 have recorded rainfalls exceeding four inches, 4.38 inches in 1901, 4.81 inches in 1909 and 4.19 inches in 1929.

The average April rainfall for the past 50 years is 2.41 inches.

Worst Flood Year

In 1928, the Kawarthas faced the most serious floods when the rate of flow in the Otonabee reached a peak of 16,000 cubic feet a second, the April rainfall was only 2.79 inches. The Trent Canal department said that the heavy snowfall during the winter of 1927-28 combined with a heavy rainfall of 4.45 in March caused that April flood.

The record low for April was set in 1905, only .76 inches of rain. Other low years were in 1917 with .92 inches, in 1918 with .92 inches and in 1927 with .88 inches.

Recent bright sunny days allowed the lakes and rivers to start lowering slightly after reaching peaks during last week. Today Little Lake was reported down another two inches, making a drop of four and a half inches from its peak. Stony, Scugog and Buckhorn lake levels all dropped slightly on Tuesday.

Mayor To Open Sportsmen Show

Peterborough citizens who will enjoy the second annual Sportsmen's Show at the Civic Arena on May 3, 4 and 5, give little thought to the tremendous chore of organizing an exhibition of this nature. Executives and members of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association have been working hard and steadily on it for weeks.

His Worship Max J. Swanston will officially open the show on Thursday evening. It is not known to date whether the Hon. Harold R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, will be able to attend; members hope he will have a look-in if he is in the city.

Some of the sportsmen's show executive are chairman Don Smedmor, co-chairmen Norman Bradley, Alf Pink, Harvey Calberry and Frank Harvey. Entertainment is in charge of Gordon Todd, publicity is being handled by Bert Carter and Ken Strasser and Stan Purser are looking after the financing. Wilf Perry is in charge of the wild life exhibit.

These men still require the assistance of nearly all their 200-odd fellow members and request that they contact Mr. Smedmor for working allotments. He may be reached at the arena office.

Misses Stop Sign

Two cars collided at McDonnel and Reid Sts. about 7:05 a.m. today when one car went through a stop sign, police said.

Earl D. Sage, Bridgenorth, was driving south on Reid St. Stanley B. Nicol, 283½ Park St., was driving east on McDonnel which is a stop street at Reid St. Police said Nicol admitted he didn't stop at the stop sign.

The whole front of the Nicol car was crumpled, damage estimated at about $250. About $160 damage was done to the right fenders, running board and body panel of the Sage car.

Constable Louis Rodreque investigated.

Seeding General In County Next Week, Wheat Good

Farmers of Peterborough district should be seeding next week if the sun shines as steadily as it has appeared since Sunday. That is the substance of the first crop report for this locality.

Fall wheat is looking good, Cliff Curtis of International Harvester told the Examiner today. Some of the clover "is a bit patchy," but on the whole the new seeding has come through the winter in promising condition. Fields are greening, some farmers have begun cultivating the land, and agricultural operations should broaden generally next week.

Frank Paterson, agricultural representative, confirms that prospect, and adds the comment that work on the land is being started about the same time as last year.

April has left a lot of moisture in the soil, and "things look all right." That month was disappointing in lack of sunshine, in muddy roads, and so on, but the outlook is shaping up favorably, Mr. Patterson said.

"Farmers have got along well with their first warble spraying campaign. They have caught up on a lot of jobs about their farms, and they are ready to get on the land. From the standpoint of the fields and nature's help, our Peterborough farmers are all set to do another job of production," Mr. Paterson said.

Rains caused some erosion, according to different reports from the area, and the question of costs and prices is still causing concern to various commodity associations and to their members, as they look for promise of adequate returns from the work they are planning.

Right now the agricultural auspices are favorable, and hopes are fixed on a stretch of sunshine for the sowing job that is now at the top of the list.

Or as they say at meetings, "putting in the spring crop is first on the agenda."

GE Workers Vote 1,972-48 To Accept Offer In Biggest Vote Since '46

Two-Year Contract Offer Includes Boosts In 100 Classifications; Package Increases of 20 Cents An Hour

Local 524, United Electrical Workers, announced today that production workers in Tuesday's referendum vote had accepted the Canadian General Electric Co.' contract offer—1,972 to 48. The two-year contract, which includes an escalator clause, means a package increase of 20 cents an hour to each worker, UE officials estimate. General increases are 17 cents for men and 14-15 cents for women. There were boosts in more than 100 classifications.

George Wallace, president of Local 524, said that 83 per cent of the 6,000 eligible workers in the six Peterborough and Toronto plants had voted. He said the overall figures were not available but 90 per cent voted in favor of acceptance and 10 per cent against.

Only workers on the checkoff were permitted to vote Tuesday. Union figures show that 6,000 out of 7,000 were eligible in the plants covered by the master agreement.

At the Peterborough works there are 3,600 in the bargaining unit with some 2,800 on the checkoff, according to UE officials.

Voting Results

Following are the results of the balloting: 2,021 voted; of these 1,972 accepted the company offer, 48 rejected it, and there was one spoiled ballot.

Mr. Wallace said more workers turned out Tuesday to vote on the company offer than on any other union issue since the union began in 1946.

The agreement will be signed later this week.

Here is a summary of some of the principal wage boosts:

Men's—Job rates of $1.02-$1.04, 18-20 cent increase; $1.05-$1.07, 18-20 cents; $1.08-$1.11, 18-20 cents; $1.11-$1.37, 17 cents; $1.38-$1.53, 19 cents; $1.54-$1.68, 20 cents.

Women—88-92 cents an hour, 14 cents; 93-$1.02, 15 cents.

Apprentices— 82-94 cents an hour, 15 cents; $1.01-$1.06, 17 cents.

These rates include a five-cents-an-hour cost of living bonus.

Increase Retroactive

The wage increase is retroactive to March 12, and the five-cent cost of living bonus to April 9. An escalator clause in the two-year contract will add a cent an hour for each 1.3 rise in the official cost-of-living index.

An increase of three cents an hour will come automatically on March 27, 1952.

Terms of settlement were reached through the intervention of Louis Fine, Ontario's chief labor conciliation officer.

The contract permits the union to reopen wage negotiations after one year if there is any challenge to its bargaining status. This, UE officials say, applies to a challenge by either the company or a rival union.

The established minimum earning of a male laborer is now $1.22; female labor has a guaranteed rate of $1.02. Other clauses in the agreement include a cent-an-hour increase in shift bonus and an improved vacation plan.

Eye On Future

GRANTHAM, England—(CP)—A soldier of this Lincolnshire town wrote from Malaya asking to be put on the housing list. He received a form to fill out—and instructions to produce it at the housing department every three months.

Six Communities Carry Name Of Peterborough

Six communities bearing the common geographic name of Peterborough, separated by oceans, are coming more closely together by communication through the air:

They are: Peterborough in England; New Hampshire; New York State; South Australia; Victoria, Australia; and Ontario.

City Clerk Outram this morning "cut a tape" at CHEX for short wave broadcast from WRUL, Boston. There will be rebroadcasts from CHEX, WKNE and WMUR. His text was of Peterborough in its natural surroundings of the Kawartha lakes and rivers, its parks system, its manufacturing framework, its schools, hospitals, churches, people and its agricultural resources.

Opening of City Hall

Mayor Swanston told the Examiner not long ago that it was likely the Mayor of Peterborough, New Hampshire, would be here for the opening of the new city hall.

Since then city council virtually left it to him to invite the mayor of Peterborough, England, for that event. It is likely that Mayor Swanston will send an invitation with more than the spirit of formality in it.

Mr. Outram has sent to both those civic offices, England and New Hampshire, copies of that enlarged photograph of Peterborough that was taken from the air showing the whole outline of the city, and detail too.

By such means of approach, these Peterboroughs are officially at least becoming better acquainted, and exchange of sentiment is likely to be enlarged and personified before this year is out.

North Monaghan

Applications will be received for the position of Tax Collector for the Township of North Monaghan for the year 1951. Salary $250.

Applications to be in the hands of the Clerk not later than May 14th, 1951.

DOROTHY DIX

Continue Your Education Advice to Undecided Girl

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a Senior in high school and have been accepted for college entrance this coming fall. My trouble is that I don't know what to take up; sometimes I don't even have the ambition to go on with school but I know I won't get very far without more education. I work one day a week at my aunt's restaurant and have grown very fond of the work. I like the people, too, especially a boy who has been coming in to see me. I like him very much and his friends say he likes me. I will miss him if I go on to college. Then again, if I don't go on with my school, I can't see working in a restaurant with no possibility of rising to a better position. But if I can't see this boy, I won't be very happy either. What shall I do?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Even though you say you sometimes lack ambition to continue schooling, the general tone of your letter indicates you are ambitious and realize the importance of higher education in these competitive times. Be thankful for the opportunity to go on to college, and don't pass it up.

He's Just An Acquaintance

Of course, your stumbling block is the young man you have recently met, but after all he hasn't shown any signs of being other than a slightly-more-than-casual acquaintance. If he should declare a greater interest, I'm sure you could continue the friendship by correspondence while you are away at school and he would undoubtedly be very proud of your achievements there.

It is a wonderful thing to be equipped for a job that you can take up whenever you need it. It gives a feeling of independence that can hurdle many matrimonial hazards and is a wonderful insurance in time of emergency.

You'll need the advice of someone skilled in vocational guidance to help select the course you'll take, but such advice is readily obtainable at any college. Make an early date with someone on the faculty of the school you'll be attending, and your worries will soon disappear. Since you seem to like the restaurant business, how about considering a career as dietician or restaurant manager? It's a big field with lots of opportunity.

DEAR MISS DIX: We hear of the "problem child" and the "problem husband," but the worst of all the problems is the "problem mother," and I've got one. She has everything to make her happy and comfortable, but she is the most miserable person you ever saw. She wails and weeps because she thinks she doesn't get the attention she deserves. She accuses my father of having affairs with women, and my brother's wife of trying to set him against her. She just knows that I am a flirt. All of which, of course, is absolutely untrue. She tells my children that I neglect them and complains to the neighbors that none of her family treats her right. She works herself up into hysterical spells, when we have to send for the doctor. We have tried everything we know to please her and make her happy, but nothing works. What can we do?—DAUGHTER.

ANSWER: What you should do is consult a reputable psychiatrist. He may advise sending her to a sanatorium where they treat such cases scientifically. A family is incapable of dealing with one of these neurotics because they lack both authority and firmness, and that is what she needs.

Of course, your mother's complaints against her children, her husband and her in-laws are just a bid for sympathy and to call attention to herself. She wants the spotlight turned on her and to be the centre of interest. If she has to traduce her family and blacken their good name to get it, she is perfectly willing to sacrifice them. But you musn't take her too seriously. When she seems to be the most unhappy and wails the loudest she is really enjoying herself the most.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am the mother of a girl in her late teens who is constantly worrying about her overproportioned nose. I have talked to her and tried to encourage her in every way, but she feels that she is unpopular because she is homely. She has a charming personality and her other features are very nice. Can you help me in some way?

HEARTBROKEN MOTHER

ANSWER: A good plastic surgeon will make your daughter any sort of nose she admires. Consult your doctor about where to take her. Don't let her life be wrecked by a nose.

Montreal Nurse Ends Long Career

MONTREAL —(CP)— Miss Islay Hiscox, founder of Canada's first hospital milk bank, ended a 40-year career when she retired from her position as assistant supervisor of the Royal Victoria Maternity Hospital here.

A life-long nurse, she spent most of her career in maternity work—a work she loved.

When asked how many births she had attended, she replied: "I couldn't begin to guess. You lose count after the first 10,000."

In 1935, after being appointed assistant supervisor of the hospital, she won international recognition as the founder of the first milk bank.

The bank, her chief responsibility, is one of the most efficiently-operated banks on the continent. The milk, which is frozen and kept in deep-freeze lockers, is used in the feeding of premature babies.

Miss Hiscox also did notable work in the training of at least 11,000 student and graduate nurses.

Incidentally, Miss Hiscox has never missed one day on duty during her 40 years of nursing.

What's Right

You are invited to dinner at seven o'clock.

WRONG: Feel you won't be putting your hostess out if you don't arrive until 7.15 or 7.20, since there will probably be drinks served before dinner, anyhow.

RIGHT: Be prompt in courtesy to your hostess.

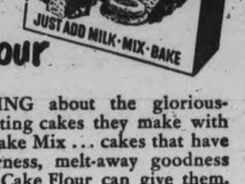
British Women Try Out Cooking

LONDON, May 1 — (CP). — Thousands of British women will be trying this week to bake a fruit cake good enough to win a £250 ($737) gas kitchen to be presented by Princess Elizabeth.

The competition, part of the Festival of Britain, was organized by the Women's Gas Federation to show the world British women can cook. A dozen finalists will come to London in July to cook a full meal in public.

Dame Vera Laughton Mathers, adviser to the Council on Women's Affairs, said:

"This competition is going to prove that British cooking is as good as any in the world.



"British cooking has a character of its own. It is not disguised by garlic or spices, but is good, wholesome and uncamouflaged."

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Tray A Swedish Supper As Special Purpose Menu

Swedish Supper
Swedish Meat Balls (see below)
Or
Kel Dommer (cabbage rolls)
Mashed Potatoes Green Beans
Boiled Carrots Limpa
Rotgrod med Flode Coffee

DIRECTIONS: In the Swedish home at which I sat down to this menu there was a difference of opinion between the mother who cooked this meal and her sister. I asked if it were a typical Swedish supper. The cook said "yes"; the sister said "no." Our Swedish readers will have to be the judges.

The Limpa that I tasted was made up from the recipe below, but potato water was always used in this home. Ale is not a necessary or even very desirable desirable ingredient, I am told.

Swedish Meat Balls

There are dozens of ways of making them but this is my hostess' recipe: 2 lbs. meat ground through your home food chopper —this may be beef and pork or beef and pork and veal in equal amounts; about 2 or 3 cold boiled potatoes, 3 beaten eggs, 1 onion, salt and pepper, and if liked some green pepper and paprika. Meat and vegetables are put through food grinder together then mixed with eggs and seasonings. Form into 2-inch balls and fry in bacon fat, turning almost constantly until cooked in centre.

Kol Dosjmer are cabbage rolls—recipe for which frequently appears in this column. If you want a repeat write to me.

Limpa

This is not at all like a Canadian brand and its consistency is more like cake, but it is so delicious that all of you cooks who venture off the beaten path will recognize it as a find.

Two pounds of coarse rye flour, 1 quart potato water or mild ale, (my informant tells me "mild enough for small children"), 2 quarts milk, 3½ oz. (cakes) yeast, 8 lbs. white flour, 1 quart molasses, 2 tablespoons fennel, 3 tablespoons chopped orange peel, ⅞ cup butter.

Warm the potato water or ale and put rye flour in bowl, add water or ale and work for 15 minutes, then let stand for 12 hours. Add lukewarm milk with the dissolved yeast and the white flour. Stand aside in warm place until dough has risen to double its bulk. It must be covered. Work in the molasses, chopped fennel, peel and more white flour to make a very stiff dough. Let rise well once more. Shape into oblong loaves, place on cloth in warm place to rise, then brush with cold water and bake at 275 deg. Fahr. Brush over twice during baking with cold water. Baking time is about 40 minutes.

Rotgrod Med Flode (Red Fruit Pudding With Cream)

Two cups cranberries or other fresh red fruit, 1 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 stick cinnamon, 1 cup water, 3 tablespoons potato or arrowroot flour, or cornstarch (arrowroot makes the clearest pudding). Cook fruit, salt, sugar, cinnamon and half of the water in covered saucepan for 20 minutes. Cool then strain carefully. Return juice to low heat. Stir the remaining water into the flour or starch to make a smooth paste. Add to hot liquid stirring until thick and clear. Cook over double boiler 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour into stemmed glasses just warm, and chill. Serve with pouring cream. Other red fruits are just as good—currants, strawberries, raspberries and cherries.

Home and School Association News

CONFEDERATION SCHOOL

Annual meeting of Confederation Home and School Association Tuesday evening was conducted by retiring president Mrs. W. Thompson. Secretary Mrs. C. Porter gave her annual report. Nominations convener Mrs. H. Sutton read the slate of officers nominated and elections were held for unfilled offices. The complete new slate installed by council president Mrs. C. G. Collins is:

President, Mrs. L. Monk; vice-presidents, Mrs. H. Sutton, Mrs. E. Poole; secretary, Mrs. C. Porter; corresponding secretary, Mrs. O Brown; treasurer, Mrs. G. Kiff; executive, Mrs. J. Wineberg, Mrs. A. Beauclerc, Mrs. M. Safranski, Mrs. C. Whatley, Mrs. K. Pilkington.

The Kindergarten Rhythm Band, led by small Catherine Porter, rendered "Swinging down the lane" and a folk song "Mountain March" to the delight of parents. The children were dressed in matching capes and pillbox hats and were accompanied at the piano by their teacher Miss Carroll.

Mrs. Monk read a resume of the year's work, including fun night, Valentine tea, parent education meetings, etc. She said there are 127 members. A banquet for the soccer and hockey team was reported.

Mr. J. Nicholls explained how the grade eight pupils are being helped in selection of future studies by the Collegiate teachers. He also thanked Mrs. Pilkington for making arrangements for a trip to Ottawa this month for the graduating pupils who are to tour the parliament buildings and the mint and be guests of Mr. Gordon K. Fraser, local member, at luncheon. On May 29th Mr. Nicholls will conduct a radio forum in which he will interview the children about their trip.

Sandra and Gail Wood entertained most delightfully with two piano duets, Minuet in E Flat by Mozart and "Cricket and Bumble Bee."

Miss Carroll's morning class won the attendance prize.

Mrs. Kiff and her committee served tea.

Urges Women To Accept Nominations

TORONTO, May 2.—Opportunity for service lies in accepting nomination to office, Mrs. Britton Osler said in her presidential address at the 65th annual meeting of the Toronto Diocesan Woman's Auxiliary in St. Anne's parish hall.

Reviewing a year in which the overall picture revealed by officers' reports, is one of development and celebration, by many branches, of 60th anniversaries, the president declared it a "matter of grave concern," that lack of officers had necessitated the disbanding of two branches. Nomination was a privilege not to be refused without due and certain reason, she told the members.

In the final analysis, Mrs. Osler said, the responsibility for the future lies with the individual. The challenge must be answered "through the individual for the Church, and through the Church for the general life of man."

Support 64

Treasurer, Mrs. Roger D. Priestman, reported the WA had kept faith with the 64 WA missionaries on its list. A total of $33,440 had been contributed to salaries, bursaries and maintenance. Of this $1,000 was from the Little Helpers, $600 from the Juniors and $276 from the GA.

The United thankoffering amounted to $7,500, a legacy of $19,181 from the Creed Estate, Detroit, for Strachan Houses endowment, and $100 from the Susanna M. Loosemore legacy for books.

Branches in the diocese include 199 afternoon and 84 evening, with total membership of 7,080, it was reported by Mrs. Gordon Dale, secretary. There are 44 girls' branches, with 441 members; 84 juniors, with 1,163; and 106 little helpers numbering 5,783.

Expansion Noted

More than 11,000 were present at Holy Communion in St. James' Cathedral yesterday morning. Rt. Rev. A. R. Beverley was celebrant.

Business Men Have Long List Of Conferences

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Business men are thinking of the chore of packing their bags, because many of them have a lot of travel coming up and a wide list of meetings to attend.

Biggest travel promoter of them all, as far as Canada is concerned, is the Canadian International Trade Fair in Toronto May 28-June 8, which will attract something like 30,000 persons, most of them fro mthis continent but many fr m nearly all parts of the world.

Canadian industrialists hold their big get-together in the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association at Quebec June 4-6, with production for defence a top topic. A post-meeting trip will be made to the Lake St. John district of Quebec.

Meantime, some other Canadians will be travelling overseas for the congress of the International Chamber of Commerce in Lisbon, June 11-16; and still others will be heading for the congress of the Federation of the Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire in London on the same dates. Some of the delegates, who would ordinarily take in both, have been pondering how they can be in Lisbon and London at the same time.

To Visit Jasper

Back in Canada, investment men will be at Jasper, Alta., June 11-14, for the annual meeting of the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada.

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers will meet in Toronto starting June 13. Advance notices say that probably the most comprehensive review yet of jet transportation will be presented.

Then, June 25-29, the annual convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will be held, also in Toronto, with 1,500 delegates expected from over North America.

Taking dates closer at hand, the Association of Canadian Advertisers, Inc., is meeting in Toronto today, Thursday and Friday.

Wife Stands So Much Then Gets Divorce

ELIZABETH, N.J., May 2 (AP) —She forgave him when he slapped and kicked her.

She stuck with him when a psychiatrist told her he was an "egomaniac."

She gave him another chance when he dragged her down a flight of stairs by the ankles.

But when he brought home a moose head to prove he had been on a hunting trip in Maine—when she said she knew he spent the time with another woman—that was too much.

That was the testimony in court of Mrs. Natalie Huberman, 28. Her husband, Dr. Victor Huberman, did not contest the action.

Mrs. Huberman got the divorce.

Hear Evidence In Betting Case

HAMILTON, May 2 (CP) — A provincial police inspector testified Tuesday that Sporting News, a horse racing information sheet, was invariably found on premises where there was reason to believe bets were being taken.

Inspector John Tomlinson, head of the OPP anti-gambling squad, gave the testimony at the trial of William H. Shaver, 36, and Arthur G. Taylor, 38, on charges of keeping a common gaming house, supplying and transmitting betting information.

He said he was familiar with Sporting News as a "scratch sheet" in Hamilton, St. Catharines, Brantford and Kitchener.

It listed races, horses, weights of jockeys, their names and length of race, he said. It sold on newsstands for 25 cents.

Inspector Tomlinson said Shaver had admitted being owner and proprietor of Sporting News, a mimeographed sheet published six days a week.

S. J. Shupe, chief of the regulating department of the Canadian National Telegraphs in Toronto, testified that telegraph equipment at Sporting News was linked to an international daily news service.

"The service operates through the Daily Turf and Sporting News, Wellington Street, Toronto, with terminals in Toronto and Chicago, and connections with Detroit, Montreal and St. Laurent, Que.," he said.

Speaker Traces History Of Province's Education

MILLBROOK, May 2 (ENS)—The Women Teachers' Association of Northumberland and Durham held their annual meeting and banquet in the Sunday school rooms of St. Andrew's United church on Monday evening.

The head table, at which Miss Jean Burnham, associate president, presided as mistress of ceremonies, was centred with daffodils in a silver bowl and decorated with mauve and green scalloped streamers.

Eighty association members sat down to the dinner served by the north group of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's church of which Mrs. Wilfred Elson is leader.

Special speaker was Mrs. Helen Ward, Toronto, secretary of the Women Teachers' Federation Associations of Ontario. She was introduced by Mrs. Ruth Clarke and chose as her subject "Who are you?" She stated that as members of the WTFAO they had an important voice in the educational policies of the province. She traced the changes in educational policy from the early days of the province, when education was controlled almost entirely by the community, the increasing authority of the province, and finally the turning of the trend. Now again the schools are becoming community centres, are having a voice in curriculum planning, and are having to assume more of the training skills, such as household science, formerly given in the home.

Teachers striving to raise their professional status should at all times be loyal to their profession, and to each other. They should be ethical, co-operative, and understanding. Mrs. Ward approved "equal pay for equal work," but warned that women teachers should be ready to accept the added responsibility it would bring.

Mrs. Ward was thanked for her address on behalf of the association by Mrs. W. Davidson.

A resolution by the Cobourg unit to be moved at the regional conference was read by Miss Corbett to the effect that adjustments should be made so that superannuation would not be lost should any woman teacher be called for jury duty.

The report of the nominating committee was read by Miss Jean Burnham of Millbrook: president, Miss Ruth Mills, Port Hope; first vice-president, Mrs. W. Davidson, Cobourg; second vice-president, Mrs. Ethel Lycett, Newcastle; third vice-president, Mrs. G. Jordan, Port Hope; secretary, Miss M. Patterson, Port Hope; treasurer, Miss Edith Dunn, Cobourg.

The president and secretary were appointed official delegates to the regional conference being held in Oshawa on May 12, and the annual meeting of the WTFAO in Toronto in August. The candidacy of Mrs. Ruth Clarke, Port Hope, for the presidency of the WTFA of Ontario and of Miss Bernice Corbett, Cobourg, as director was announced. The delegates were also instructed as to what other directors and superannuation commissioner the members wished supported at the regional conference.

The thanks of the association to the ladies of St. Andrew's WA for the banquet and floral arrangements was extended by Mrs. Herbert Patton.

Miss Nan Pitchford was at the piano for a sing-song.

Medical Officer Frustrated By Psychiatrist

By MEL SUFRIN.

TORONTO, May 2 (CP).—Toronto's medical health officer is a frustrated man.

That might imply that he should go and see a psychiatrist. But the trouble is that psychiatrists are the cause of Dr. Gordon Park Jackson's frustration.

For months Dr. Jackson has been trying to hire a psychiatrist as director of the mental hygiene division of his department.

He reported Tuesday to a board of health meeting that he has interviewed eight applicants, all friendly and interested to a point. Then invariably interest petered out.

In some cases the prospects said their future in present positions appeared to be much better despite the fact that the salary offered by the city was higher — ranging as high as $10,000.

Asked why the city is having so much difficulty filling the position, Dr. Jackson said he has a suspicion that some "guiding influence" is frustrating his efforts. He declined to amplify this explanation.

Bitter Debate

One possible cause of Dr. Jackson's frustration is the way the whole question was kicked around politically before the city decided it wanted a psychiatrist.

For months there was bitter debate between two groups in civic politics. One wanted the mental division headed by a doctor with psychiatric help. The other wanted an outright psychiatrist in charge.

The campaigns of both sides appeared on the road to success several times before the city made up its mind.

Now, it has been suggested, psychiatrists would rather stay with lower-paying jobs than step into a position which is still the subject of some political ill-feeling.

In other words maybe they don't want to expose themselves to the frustrations of being a civil servant on a political hot seat.

Truck In Collision

A collision occurred between a car and a light truck Tuesday while the truck was backing up after having pushed another car to get it started on Aylmer Street near Romaine Street.

Everett Tandy, 241 Dublin Street, stopped after pushing a car with his truck and started to back up. Russell Williams, Havelock, driving south in the same lane of traffic as Tandy, said he blew his horn, stopped and started backing up. But he could not start back fast enongh and the collision occurred.

Tandy said he had looked back but had not seen the Williams car. Damage was done to the grill, both front fenders, and radiator of the Williams' vehicle. Constable Louis Rodreque investigated.

Order Officer Fired From RAF

DISHFORTH, England, May 2 —(Reuters)—Flt.-Lt. Robert D. Elsick, 31, air traffic officer at an RAF base here, Tuesday was charged with rubber-stamping an enlisted woman's midriff — and ordered to be dismissed from the service.

A court martial convicted him of seven charges of "undue familiarity" with members of the WAAF and acquitted him on four other charges—two of undue familiarity, one of assault—the rubber-stamping allegation—and one of giving an airwoman a sleeping tablet "during the course of her duties."

The court's findings are subject to confirmation. Elsick denied all charges.

LAW. Patricia Elliott alleged Elsick had stamped her midriff with a rubber device which left the legend: "Signals Traffic, RAF, Dishforth." She said he told her it was part of an initiation ceremony.

Cpl. Nancy Turnbull said Elsick once pulled her shirt out and put his arms around her. "I was scared of him," she said.

Elsick called witnesses who testified he had reprimanded WAAF girls for wearing their shirts pulled out at the front and tied in a knot "like a sunsuit."

Charge Union Interfering Among Indians

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP) — A spokesman for the council of the Six Nations Indian band charged Tuesday that organizers of the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) are dabbling in Indian affairs at the reserve near Brantford.

Councillor James Powless, one of a delegation of three which conferred with Citizenship Minister Harris, said in an intervew that there was dissension on the reserve about the elective system of choosing councillors. He said UAW men were urging a return to the system of hereditary chiefs controlling the affairs of the 6,000 Indians on the reserve.

Councillor Powless, accompanied by Chief Councillor E. P. Garlow and council secretary Arnold Moses, said the matter had been brought to the attention of the minister.

Mr. Harris, whose department administers Indians affairs, confirmed that the matter of union interference in Indian affairs at Brantford had been discussed, but declined comment on it.

The Indian delegation also placed before the minister protests regarding the government's new Indian Act. Mr. Moses said the act "gives the minister too much authority." The Indians wanted to remain under the protection of the Indian Act, yet in its new form the act provided for compulsory enfranchisement of the Indians if a special inquiring committee so recommends.

Mr. Moses said that most Indians were not ready for enfranchisement.

The second atomic bomb was dropped on Nagasaki, Aug. 9, 1945, one week before Japan sued for peace.

Gave Niece Deed To House Asks Its Return In Court

A 78-year-old Peterborough resident, John Joseph Grisdale, is now in Supreme Court action to regain a deed to property he had transferred to his niece.

Mr. Grisdale became dissatisfied with living arrangements while living at the home of his niece, Mrs. Fred Maybee, 342 Downie St. He gave her the deed to that property in March, 1950, on the understanding she would make a good home for him. But he claims that personal relations soon began to get worse.

The action at the present non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court is to set aside the conveyance on the grounds that Mr. Grisdale was without independent legal advice, and that it was unconscionable.

Ex-Letter Carrier

At the moment Mr. Grisdale—a letter carrier in Peterborough for 35 years and onetime worker at Genelco—says he hasn't a nickel to his name. Since March he has been living at the home of another niece, Mrs. Denis McCarthy, 582 Aylmer St.

He told the court that he had applied for an old age pension last August, but he later cancelled it after being dissuaded by Mrs. Maybee.

"Eleanor (i.e. Mrs. Maybee) told me I shouldn't have applied and if I did get it, it would come back on the property. I said I couldn't help that; I've got to live too."

However he went back to see Miss Irene Telford, field worker for the old age pensions branch, and cancelled the application.

"Most of this trouble is really between you and Mr. Maybee, isn't it?" asked Emmett Sheehy, counsel for Mrs. Maybee.

"Yes, that's a lot of it," said Mr. Grisdale.

Miss Telford entered the witness box and said Mrs. Maybee had discussed the application with her.

Couldn't Understand

"Mrs. Maybee maintained she couldn't understand why he wanted or needed a pension . . . She thought it would be taken off the property and she didn't approve of him applying for it."

"What happened?" asked V. J. McElderry, KC, counsel for Mr. Grisdale.

"He came back and withdrew the application."

Mr. Grisdale proved an astute witness for Mr. Sheehy to handle. And Mr. Sheehy said so.

Unable to get a straight "yes" or "no" answer from Mr. Grisdale, Mr. Sheehy at one point in cross examination remarked: "Does it take a Supreme Court judge to get an answer from this witness?"

This drew a mild rebuke from Mr. Justice Treleaven who had just previously been more successful in his interrogation.

Mr. Grisdale said his niece had grown up in his home since a baby. He and his wife "treated her the best; gave her two degrees in music, clothes and everything she could wish for."

He said that against his will he had been persuaded to move into the Downie St. house by the Maybees. It had been bought by him and his wife for $2,800 in 1933.

As his wife was dead he lived with them. He said he continued to buy things for the family. As an indication he said his bank account dropped from $446 in December, 1949, to 13 cents in May, 1950. He paid for furniture, refrigerator, plumbing repairs, a complete rewiring job, and borrowed $400 on his $1,000 insurance policy as Mrs. Maybee could have an operation.

"The operation never materialized," he said. "I don't know what she did with the money."

"Everything was all right until I went into the red," he added.

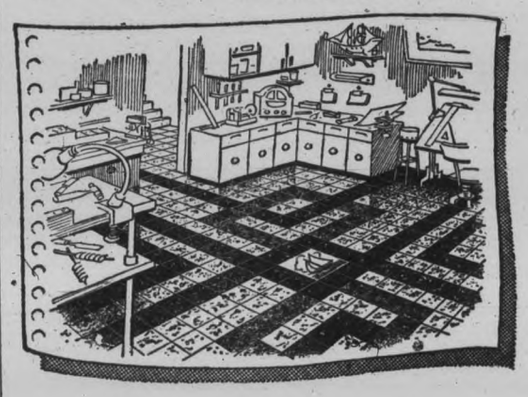
The conveyance, transferring the property, was drawn up by P. D. Scollard, who advised him to retain a life interest in the deed, so the property could not be sold without this permission. This was done.

"Did he appear to understand the significance of what he was doing," asked Mr. Sheehy.

"Yes," said Mr. Scollard, who testified that he had asked the plaintiff to give the matter some thought before coming to a final decision.

Gilbert James Browne, Lindsay, testified for the defendant, Mrs. Maybee.

He said he had boarded with the Maybees about three months, up till the first of the year.



"I had nothing to complain of myself, and didn't see that he had anything to complain of, either," commented Mr. Browne.

Mr. Sheehy suggested that Mr. Grisdale under the new arrangement was given $5 a week spending money. And Mr. Browne said that he had four or five times seen money given to the plaintiff.

"He received very good treatment, the same as I got myself," he said.

Rector 20 Years Ago, Speaks At Landing

GORE'S LANDING, May 2 — (ENS). — The Rev. Maurice Kingsford was guest preacher at St. George's on the Hill on Sunday morning. Mr. Kingsford was a rector of the Perrytown parish about 20 years ago and has since been living in England where Mrs. Kingsford and two daughters still reside. At present he is located for a year at the Montreal Diocesan College.

Mr. Kingsford's sermon was taken from two texts, "Where there is no vision the people perish" and "They all with one accord began to make excuses."

He spoke of the great need for young men entering the ministry. Near Montreal there are at present 13 vacancies without any hope of obtaining clergymen. Through the years, the Parish of Perrytown should have sent at least six or eight young men for the ministry, and because similar conditions exist throughout Canada, the dearth of ministers continues.

A large congregation came out to hear Mr. Kingsford and to renew old friendships.

Dutch Newcomer 15 Lands In Wrong Place

BRANTFORD, May 2 —(CP)— A 15-year-old Dutch immigrant boy who reached Brantford Monday night after travelling by bus from New Brunswick, found that th confusion of place names had resulted in leaving him many miles from his destination.

When he left the Maritimes, he was given a ticket for Brantford instead of Bradford, where he was to be employed on a farm.

Arriving here without funds and unable to locate the farm whose name he had been given, he was assisted by police in getting accommodation. Today with the co-operation of the Red Cross, the lad was given transportation and finally headed in the right direction to his new home.

The confusion between Brantford and Bradford is common, particularly in the misdirection of mail.

Canadian Reinforcements To See Action Immediately

Few More Troops Could End War-MacArthur

WASHINGTON, May 3. (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur predicted today a few additional ground troops could wind up the fighting in Korea if backed by the "full capacity" air and naval effort he has urged. The deposed Pacific commander carried to the Senate armed services and foreign relations committees his complaint against bans on bombing Chinese Communist installations in Manchuria. This was one of the policy differences which led President Truman to dismiss MacArthur from his commands last month.

MacArthur testified behind closed doors to the senators but a stenographic report of his testimony—edited first by a military censor—was made public while he still was being questioned.

As he has before, the general protested that the United Nations forces are not permitted to carry out the "great strategic concept of stopping the supplies of troops, of preventing the buildup" of enemy troops and the disorganization of supply lines.

Wouldn't Take Many

"If you would take off (the prohibitions) and permit them their full capacity, I do not believe it would take a very great additional component of ground troops to wind this thing up," he said.

If this isn't done, MacArthur said, "you would not be able to supply enough ground troops in Korea to be able to safely clear Norht Korea."

MacArthur had questioned earlier whether there was any great threat of Russian action. He said he does not believe Russia is in position to "launch any predatory attack from the Asiatic continent."

The general said he believes Russian forces in Siberia "are largely defensive."

In this connection, MacArthur observed:

"I believe that the Soviet has so often repeated the incorrect statements that we are planning to attack him that he has finally begun to believe it himself."

Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem. Ga.), chairman of the combined committee, called for an estimate by MacArthur on Russian strength in the Far East.

Section Deleted

Part of what MacArthur had to say on that was deleted from the transcript given reporters.

In that connection, Senator Hugh Butler (Rep. Neb.), on leaving the hearing earlier, had told reporters MacArthur also said he doesn't believe Russia could move more troops eastward because the trans-Siberian railroad already is taxed to its limit.

The transcript recorded Russell as asking MacArthur about the hazard of having removed all U.S. garrison troops from Japan to Korea when the war broke out last June.

"If Russia had seen fit to have moved at that time, I assume they could have captured Japan, could they not?" Russell asked.

"I would doubt it very seriously, senator," MacArthur replied.

He added that he does not be-

Socialists Stage Big Revolt But Bill Passes

LONDON, May 3 (CP).—The House of Commons voted early today to end free false teeth and eyeglasses for Britons, but not before many angry Socialists staged one of the biggest revolts against the Labor government since it came to power in 1945.

The Commons approved by a vote of 263 to 3 a bill to curtail the services. Insistent opponents prolonged the debate until early morning.

Between 30 and 50 rebel Labor MPs defied a government "three-line whip"—a disciplinary order requiring all party members to vote for the bill—and abstained.

Most Conservatives, who had supported the new charge, also abstained, although a handful went along with the government.

The bill will require Britons to pay half the cost of the eyeglasses and dentures for the next three years.

It was part of the government's April budget which called for the cut in public health costs to provide more money for an expanded arms program.

Furnished Fuse

This furnished the fuse for the Labor party rift that exploded two weeks ago, when Aneurin Bevan and two other government members quit their jobs.

Bevan and his adherents contended that such a move violated the concept of free public health service.

During the debate, the Commons was told that some of Britain's free lance teeth have gone astray all over the world.

E. H. Keeling, a Conservative member, related that one unmarried German girl, about to become a mother, hurried to Britain to save her reputation and take advantage of the socialized health services.

He said she gave birth at the expense of the British taxpayer, left the child to be taken care of by British welfare agencies and went home "without a stain on her character" but with a set of Britain's false teeth."

Dog Tears Face Of Child Four

PICKERING, May 3 — (CP)—Norma Jean Hottot, 4, had her face and nose badly torn by a dog as she played in front of her home here Wednesday night.

Police said the dog—a collie—was so vicious they were unable to remove it to a humane society shelter and had to leave it tied to a verandah all night before destroying it today.

Will Announce Plans For Army Brigade

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP).—Cabinet is putting the final touches on announcement of a decision to form a new army brigade for Europe. The announcement is expected to be made within the next week.

A special appeal for recruits to join the European force is expected to be launched quickly. It will need more than 5,000 men.

It is expected to be separate entirely from the special force which now is earmarked for Korean service.

Unemployed Father Shoots Eight Children

LENOIR, N.C., May 3—(AP)—An unemployed sawmill worker shot his eight children to death, then ended his life with a shotgun blast Wednesday night.

The bodies of Ralph Gragg, 34, and the children, ranging in age from three to 15 years, were discovered in their home 10 miles north of Lnoir.

"The man killed the children and then shot himself to death," said Coroner Marshall Kincaid.

Sheriff George D.. Greer said Mrs. Gragg had been living for the last month with a brother.

The coroner said the skulls of several of the children bore fractures.

The sheriff said Gragg was injured in an accident last November and had since been unable to work.

U.N. Patrols Fight Sharp Engagements

Reds Establish Line 10 Miles From Seoul Prepare New Attack

TOKYO, May 4. (Friday) — (CP) — Allied tank-infantry patrols, fanning northward out of Seoul, fought a series of sharp engagements Thursday with Chinese Reds about 10 miles from the old Korean capital.

One patrol went into Uijongbu, key road point 11 miles north of Seoul, against only minor Red resistance.

(Field dispatches implied that this patrol then pulled back southward.)

Another patrol southwest of Uijongbu brought back to United Nations lines two Allied tanks that had been abandoned previously.

The day's most-sizable action was a two-hour fight east-northeast of Seoul. An allied armored force hit a Red regiment, killed an estimated 200 men and brought back 21 prisoners after a brisk fight.

"We probably killed a lot more than 200, but we only reported what we actually knew," the patrol commander related.

Still another patrol northwest of Seoul ran into the vanguard of an estimated Red division.

Line 10 Miles From Seoul

From the pattern of the day's skirmishes, an American staff officer said the Communists appeared to have established a line about 10 miles north of Seoul which they hoped to hold while regrouping for a new drive.

While the Reds were digging in, the officer warned, "they are not going on the defensive—the enemy has not quit yet."

In the air, two American F-80 Shooting Star jets were downed by gunfire.

On the central front, allied ground troops fought a six-hour skirmish with 150 Reds dug in atop a hill. Communists kept the hill. But an estimated two-thirds of them were killed.

This fight was southeast of Chunchon, about 45 miles east of Seoul. Allies plahes strafed Com-

Republicans Get Partial Victory

WASHINGTON, May 3—(AP)—The hearings on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's firing were opened to all senators—but not the public—today by unanimous vote of the armed services and foreign relations committee.

The vote was a partial victory for the Republicans who had sought yesterday to get all senators into the hearings and also to open them up to the general public.

Fire Rangers Check Blaze

HALIFAX, May 3 (CP). — A fierce forest fire which burned dangerously throughout the night beside a seaside holiday district was brought under control today.

The fire burned along a highway near Hubbards, about 40 miles south of Halifax.

It was the first forest outbreak of the year and came as New Brunswick also battled its first.

Many expensive summer homes were in the threatened communities of Deep Cove, North West Cove and The Lodge.

Vivid London Pageantry As King Opens Festival

LONDON, May 3—(Reuters)—The King spoke, the crowds cheered, the church bells rang—and the Festival of Britain officially began today.

The months of preparation came to a climax when the King and Queen rode through the streets of London to St. Paul's Cathedral in an open carriage, escorted by the glittering household cavalry. Throngs had waited all night for a glimpse of them.

"This is no time for despondency," said the King in a broadcast from the steps of St. Paul's one of London's proudest monuments.

"I see this festival as a symbol of Britain's abiding courage and vitality."

From now until September the country will make merry with exhibitions, pageants, sports and fun fairs.

Sunshine filtered through a grey London haze as trumpets blared at Buckingham Palace and the cavalry jingled out, plumes tossing and breastplates gleaming.

Behind came the royal carriages—the King and Queen in one, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh in another. This is the show that Londoners — and visitors—love.

All the pageantry and color of British tradition were on show at the Cathedral — Yeomen in scarlet and gold, Pikemen in silver armor, dignitaries in shining top hats and frock coats.

The King, slim and straight in his admiral's uniform, mounted a dais outside the cathedral.

He said the festival had been planned like its predecessor in 1851, "as a visible sign of national achievement and confidence."

"Two world wars had brought us grievous loss of life and treasure," he said in slow, clear tones. "Though the nation has made a splendid effort toward recovery, new burdens have fallen upon it and dark clouds still overhang the whole world.

"With the spirit of our ancestors renewed in us, we can, under God's providence, restore and expand the prosperity of which they laid the foundations.

"We have not proved unworthy of our past, and we can do better in the years ahead."

Reports Given Political Slant—General

MacArthur Says Changes Made In Washington By State Department

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP) —Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today some of the reports he made as United Nations commander were changed in Washington to insert a "political slant" favored by the state department.

MacArthur told this in response to questions from Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem.-Ga.) at the senate inquiry into Far Eastern policies and MacArthur's dismissals from his commands.

The general said he was only "nominally" connected with the United Nations and made his reports to the U.S. defence department.

These reports were "subject to censorship by our state and defence departments," he said.

He said that sometimes changes were suggested to him and he accepted them, but added that there was at least one case where he refused to accept the changes.

He said these were "changes which seemed to me to place a political slant upon a military officer's report which were not warrantable."

MacArthur added:

"The defence department supported my point of view, and maintained that nothing should go in (to the United Nations) over my signature that I did not approve."

Charge Controls Give Minority Rent Benefits

MONTREAL, May 3 (AP) —H. E. Langford, president of the Dominion Mortgage and Investments Association, said today that rent control "is being maintained for the benefit of a vocal minority."

Addressing the annual meeting of the association, he said the Federal government is to be commended for its decision to abandon rent controls, but it is most regrettable that provincial governments are moving into this field with little thought of the outcome.

Actual experience in France, Britain and Canada shows that in the long run the effect of controls is to decrease the amount and quality of housing," Mr. Langford said.

There seemed to be an impression that rents were exorbitant. No doubt some owners whose properties were free of control had taken advantage of the situation, but the majority had not. The rise in rents had not been nearly as great as the increase in the price level. The cost-of-living index now stood at 179.7, while the rent index was 137.6.

"Rent control is being maintained for the benefit of a vocal minority. Nearly 60 per cent of all housing units in Canada are owner-occupied. Taking into consideration the number of rental units built since the end of the war and the number decontrolled, it is doubtful if more than 25 per cent of housing units are now subject to rent control."

Many Injustices

Mr. Langford said the iniquities and injustices arising out of rent control are almost too numerous to mention. Landlords had been forced to subsidize tenants. Properties had been permitted to run down because rental income was not sufficient to maintain them. Some owners in selling their properties had to accept a lower price than others merely because their houses were subject to rent control.

"There is fear that rent decontrol will result in a sharp increase in rents. Some rents would certainly go up immediately, and they should; but, through restoration of genuine competition, rents of some controlled properties would probably be reduced. Experience in the United States shows that rent increases resulting from decontrol are not nearly as great as the supporters of rent control claim."

Sea Of Mud Across Alberta

EDMONTON, May 3 —(CP)—Four days of continuous rain—the heaviest spring fall in years—has left Alberta a virtual sea of mud. Four inches of rain has been recorded in some areas.

Several rivers have already overflowed their banks and rail and road traffic has been disrupted at many points. The Dominion weather office reported last night that still more rain is on the way.

The Northern Alberta Railways announced that 172 miles of track have been inundated and a 44-mile CNR run on the Alberta-Saskatchewan border has been cancelled because nine miles of track are under water. Trains pass over the line twice a week.

Road traffic has also been stopped in many areas. The Alberta Motor Association reported today that most district side roads throughout the province are impassable.

Spent $700,000

TORONTO, May 3—(CP)—The Red Cross last year spent nearly $700,000 helping victims of 12 major Canadian disasters and 557 lesser ones, Maj.-Gen. Churchill Mann said today.

UN Chief Of Staff Orders Israeli-Syrian Cease-Fire

TEL AVIV, Israel, May 3. (CP)—The acting United Nations chief of staff, Col. Bennet de Ridder of Belgium, today ordered an immediate cease-fire in fighting between the Syrians and Israelis which broke out again today along the border northeast of Lake Galilee. An artillery and mortar duel was going on today among the ancient ruins in the Kapernum frontier area, it was officially announced here.

An Israeli military spokesman claimed today that Israeli troops killed more than 20 Syrians in driving them out of the disputed area Wednesday.

Israel's losses were put at four killed and six wounded.

Today's renewal of hostilities came after Jewish workers were fired on along the eastern shores of Lake Galilee between the villages of Ein Geb and Nugeib, the spokesman said.

Find 20 Bodies

He said the bodies of the 20 Syrians were found "in our territory west of the demilitarized zone" along the border, then drove into Israeli territory.

In today's action heavy artillery and mortar fire was directed against Israeli positions in the area between Lake Galilee and the Huleh swamps, the spokesman said. The fire came from the Syrian side of the border and is being returned by Israeli forces.

Israeli is draining the swamp area. Syria contends this is a violation of the Israel-Syria truce agreement.

(In Damascus, a Syrian Army spokesman had a different version. He said about 100 armed Israeli troops attacked Arabs in the demilitarized zone Wednesday in an attempt to seize their cattle, and that four Israelis were killed and several wounded. Inhabitants of the region returned Israeli gunfire, he said, and forced the troops to withdraw. In the exchange of fire two Arabs were wounded.)

A Lake Success, Israel accused Syria of aggression and demanded immediate action by the United Nations Security Council.

Senate Committee StudiesGov't Spending

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP)—The Senate finance committee today laid the groundwork for an examination of the government's 1951-52 spending program.

The committee, at its organization meeting for the session, decided to begin calling ministers and departmental officials next week to explain their estimates. Senator T. A. Crerar (L-Manitoba) chairman, indicated the first agency to be examined will be the National Film Board.

He made the proposal after Senator N. M. Paterson (L-Ontario), said the committee should call for an explanation of "waste" in the Film Board.

Senator Paterson said the Film Board had been started originally to tell Canada and her allies what this country was doing in the Second World War but now was "developing into entertainment—a Hollywood affair."

Pearson Invites MP's To Discussion

OTTAWA, May 3 — (CP). — External Affairs Minister Pearson today issued his annual invitation to a group of fellow-members of Parliament to sit down and discuss foreign policy with him.

He gave notice on the Commons order paper that the External Affairs Committee will once again be asked to consider the estimates of his department, an annual event which opens the way for a detailed study of Canada's views and activities in foreign affairs.

Mr. Pearson himself as well as top assistants appear before the committee to answer any questions that may be asked.

Army Police Raid Taverns

TORONTO, May 3 (CP). — Truckloads of military police Wednesday night swooped down on taverns and beverage rooms for the second time to round up absentee soldiers.

White-helmeted army police patrolled downtown streets on motorcycles as others methodically checked various establishments.

Army officials declined to say how many soldiers were in the Toronto area absent without leave. They said Thursday a conservative estimate was about 200.

Military police made a similar search Tuesday night.

Navy Program Gaining Speed

OTTAWA, May 3. (CP)—The Navy said today the program to recommission all its mothball or reserve fleet was moved ahead in April with the return of three ships to active service.

They were the destroyer Crusader which went back into service at Esquimalt; the minelayer Whitethroat and the Bangor minesweeper Brockville which did likewise at Halifax.

In addition, HMCS Wallaceburg, formerly depot ship for the reserve fleet in Halifax, became operational April 4 and sailed on a cruise to Philadelphia.

Fire Damages House While Owners Absent

COBOURG, May 3 (ENS). — Fire believed caused by defective wiring badly damaged the frame dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Taylor, Bolton street this morning.

Mr. Taylor was away at work and his wife had gone shopping. A neighbor noticed smoke coming out of an upper window and called the fire department. There was extensive damage by fire and water to the furnishings.

A New Touch

OMUDA, Japan, May 3—(AP) —Three high-school boys were suspended Wednesday because they failed to fight back when one of them was attacked by a group of students. The school principal said the three failed to live up to "the spirit of self-defence."

Republic Of Ireland Faces Record Budget, Election

DUBLIN, May 3 (Reuters)—The Republic of Ireland today faced a record budget, the ending of Marshall-Plan aid, and a possible general election as the sands seemed running out for Premier John A. Costello's three-year-old coalition government.

Costello is expected to visit President Sean T. O'Kelly Monday to requst dissolution of the present Dail (parliament).

If he stumps the country now he can say the Republic of Ireland is the second European country to progress enough to be able to give up Marshall dollars.

Finance Minister Patrick McGilligan Wednesday night told the Dail that by mutual agreement with the United States the Marshall program will stop—after Ireland had received a total of $146,200,000 aid, $18,000,000 in outright grants.

McGilligan brought down a record £81,782,000 ($228,989,600) budget, with only motorists feeling much hardship.

He boosted gasoline prices by twopence (2 cents) to one shilling and fourpence (18 2-3 cents) a gallon. Estate and stamp duties also rose slightly. Income-tax allowances for children were increased.

Dissolution became probable when government deputies resorted to a filibuster to talk out the session without a vote on agricultural estimates. When the House rose it was generally believed it would not meet again until after an election.

Chief threat to Costello's regaining power will be Eamon De Valera, premier for 16 years until ousted in 1948. De Valera's Fianna Fail party is the biggest in the present Dail but by skilful nursing of minority parties Costello's coalition has survived.

25th Brigade Has Reached Korean Port, Rockingham Breaks News

Planning Soldiers Will Be Rotated After Year In Korea If Replacements Can Be Procured

A SOUTH KOREAN PORT, May 3. (Reuters)—The first troopship bringing the Canadian 25th brigade to Korea arrived in this port tonight. Brig. J. M. Rockingham, Brigade commander, boarded the ship and announced his troops will go into action almost immediately. Rockingham said Lt.-Gen. James Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, had asked that the Canadians be ready to go to the front as soon as possible. "I promised General Van Fleet we would be ready," he added. "The way everyone has been working and with the co-operation we have been receiving from Eighth Army and American logistical officers, there is no doubt about it."

The Canadians, their commander said, will go into action as an independent unit before the British Commonwealth Division comes into being. The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry— veterans of nearly five months in Korea—would join the main Canadian force as soon as it got to the forward area.

To Serve Year

The 39-year-old Brigadier said each Canadian soldier will serve a year in Korea and then be rotated if replacements are available.

Three Canadian battalions have been created to provide a steady stream of replacements, he said.

"I have never before seen such enthusiasm among any group of troops as there is among my brigade," the Brigadier, a Second World War veteran, said.

"They've been working 14 and 18 hours daily ever since leaving Fort Lewis, Washington, and they're going to be a crack outfit."

Rockingham added that on a recent visit to the fighting front he was truly impressed with the co-operation among fighting troops of different nationalities. He was certain such co-operation would exist among the officers and troops of the Commonwealth division.

Use Combination

The Canadian brigade will use a combination of American and Canadian weapons, American vehicles, the Canadian M-10 light tanks and will eat American rations, he stated.

"We are quite satisfied with American rations—except that we've had to make certain adjustments.

Says Cheese Prospects Poor For England

MONTREAL, May 3. (CP)—Sir Andrew Jones, head of the British Food Mission in Canada, said in an interview here today that prospects for obtaining Canadian cheese for Britain "are not as good as had been hoped."

He said production has declined and Canadian consumption has increased to the point where there is little left for export.

Sir Andrew was in Montreal for only a few hours before returning to Ottawa.

Smaller Climb Predicted In Living Cost

OTTAWA, May 3—(CP)—An official survey of living costs in March will be made public Friday and if Trade Minister Howe's prognostications come true, it will show only a fraction of the record climb in February.

The official cost-of-living index, compiled by the Bureau of Statistics, stands at 179.7 points, the highest in history, boosted by February's 4.5-point climb, the highest monthly point ever.

But Mr. Howe told the Commons in a cost-of-living debate April 9 that this record climb in February won't be repeated in March. A preliminary survey by his department indicated to him that the living-cost barometer would hold even or show an increase of not more than one-half per cent.

Possible Clue

It that's the case, then the index may climb no more than .9 points, th smallest climb in the last half-year. One possible clue as to how far the index may go up or down is the fact that the survey will not include rent, which makes up 19 per cent of the index. Rent is surveyed on a quarterly basis. The last survey, published in the February index, showed a climb of 1.2 points to a high of 137.6 from 136.4. Both the index and its sub-groups are based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

Another possible clue is the rate of change in wholesale prices. The bureau's March index for 30 industrial materials showed a relatively-small increase of .5 points to a high of 303.9 from 303.4.

But the main emphasis still lies in food. Food accounts for 31 per cent of the index. Most heavy index jumps have been accompanied by equally-heavy climbs in the food sub-group.

In February, the food sub-group rose 9.5 points to 233.9 from 224.4. In a period of 12 months, it has risen about 20 points.

Will Continue Dragging River

WAUBAUSHENE, Ont., May 3 —(CP). — Police said today they will drag the Musquash River until next week, if necessary, to find the bodies of three persons who were drowned at nearby Honey Harbor Saturday.

Four Toronto area residents died in the snag-filled river when their small boat capsized near a whirlpool in the Georgian Bay resort area.

The body of Frank Stokes 55, husband of Kathleen (Kay) Stokes, was recovered Sunday. Still missing are: Douglas Stokes 45, Frank's brother; Russell Stokes 28, Frank's son; and Frank Jr., 3, son of Russell Stokes.

Jail Girl Two Years On 4 Arson Charges

BROCKVILLE, May 3—(CP)—Patricia Holden, a 17-year-old ward o fthe Brockville Children's Aid Society, Wednesday was sentenced to two years in penitentiary on four charges of arson.

She pleaded guilty to setting fire to a Brockville apartment house where she was employed in April. The other three charges arose from fires set in a Frankville home in January when the girl was working there.

The girl said she set all four blazes in an attempt to change her place of employmer.

Russians Reject Last Offer

PARIS, May 3 (Reuters).—The Western foreign ministers' deputies Wednesday night offered Russia three last-chance draft agendas for a projected full-scale Big Four meeting—and Russian delegate Andrei Gromyko said he liked none of them.

The possibility loomed that the nine-week wrangle between Russia and the West may end in failure. Before Gromyko spoke, it was understood Philip Jessup of the U.S., Ernest Davies of Britain and Alexandre Parodi of France had told him: "That's our last offer."

But Gromyko, while reserving his opinion, said he did not like any of them and the third — a simple listing of subjects under general headings—was the worst of the lot. He reserved the right to make further observations if necessary, a western spokesman said.

The agendas range from a document of detailed phraseology to a simple 41-word statement of five general subjects to be discussed.

Alternative "A" is the one preferred by the western deputies. It is also the one which makes these two new concessions:

1. It places the subject of the demilitarization of Germany before the item on the level of armaments and methods of their reduction in Russia, the U.S., Britain and France.
2. It accepts the complete Soviet wording on Trieste.

Russia has claimed the Italian peace treaty has never been fulfilled in regard to Trieste because the West still has occupation troops there.

Dollar Edges Down

MONTREAL, May 3 (CP) — The American dollar today opened at 5⅜ per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, ¼ lower than Wednesday's close. That is, it took $1.05⅜ Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.95, down ¾.

Ottawa Aids Provinces In Reforesting Costs

OTTAWA, May 3. (CP)—Long-term federal aid for building Canada's forest resources was announced Wednesday in the Commons. Resources Minister Winters made public a program of Treasury contributions toward the cost of Provincial Government forest inventories and reforestation of Crown lands. The expected Federal cost is around $1,000,000 a year. The Government will share on a 50-50 basis the cost of the inventories, expected to take about five years, and will pay 25 per cent of the cost of reasonable programs of reforesting Crown lands, provided the provincial expenditure each year is not less than the average spending of the last three years.

Aim of the plan, launched under the federal Forestry Act of 1949, is to help restock Canadian timber resources to the point where the annual replacement will be at least equal to depletion by cutting and other reduction.

The provincial governments, which have direct jurisdiction over the forests, have agreed to go along with the program. Some already are conducting their own inventories. Mr. Winters announced details of the joint plan will be discussed here shortly at a federal-provincial conference of ministers.

For Both Types

Money will be made available for both types of federal contribution in the current fiscal year. Mr. Winters said parliament will be asked to vote funds at the present session.

On the two-way basis officials said, the federal share would be about $1,000,000 for the five years the inventories will take. But the government's aid for reforestation of the provincially owned Crown lands was expected to continue indefinitely beyond that.

Mr. Winters told the House that in his discussions with the provincial governments, all concerned were agreed the goal should be sustained yield from the forests—that is replacement must match depletion.

"I believe," he said, "it is the general view that federal government participation should be with the understanding that any assistance given would be used to further progress toward the goal of sustained yield."

George Drew, PC leader, said he was sure members would welcome Mr. Winter's announcement.

Co-operation Important

Co-operation was important in the preservation of forestry resources. There was greater wastage from fire than from cutting in a year when fires reached any sizable proportions.

Mr. Drew suggested the government consider adopting firefighting methods which have proved valuable in the United States. The Americans were dropping highly trained firefighters by parachute to stop fires. Chemical bombs dropped from helicopters also were effective.

Mr. Drew said the air training program in Canada is being extended. Possibly the training could be extended to take in activities such as those now in use in the U.S.

J. L. Gibson, (Ind., Comox-Alberni), said there should be some tax concession to persons investing in the planting of trees that may not be ready for use for another 100 years.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said he welcomed the move. Nothing was more important than protection of the resourcese.

NANAIMO, B.C., May 3 (CP)—Martin Saxey Wednesday night was sentenced to be hanged for the slaying in February of Louis Oscar at a west coast Vancouver island settlement.

College Instructor Held In Spy Case

LOS ANGELES, May 3 (AP)—Clarence Howard Vetterli, 41, an instructor at El Camino Junior College near Santa Ana, Calif., was arrested Wednesday on a secret federal indictment charging perjury in testimony involving an alleged spy ring.

The indictment, returned by the federal grand jury, charged that Ignacy Samuel Witczak, international spy suspect in the Canadian espionage trial of 1946, was indirectly in contact with Vetterli here in 1941.

It accused Vetterli of giving false testimony to a grand jury investigating espionage here in 1949.

Report 8 Bush Fires In Sudbury Area

SUDBURY, May 3 — (CP). — Eight bush fires are burning in the Sudbury district today, but with the exception of a 200-acre fire in Blezzard Township, north of here, all are under control.

All fires broke out Wednesday when the fire hazard reached a peak due to hot weather and a high wind. It was the warmest day of the year at 76.

J. E. Barnes, fire suppression officer at the Sudbury office of the Department of Lands and Forests, said cool weather today should bring down the fire hazard, although it still remains high.

munists caught in the same area and to the northeast.

Most planes flew north to blast the Red build-up for a new assault along the western and central fronts.

Action up to dusk Thursday was light. The Eighth Army estimated Red casualties Wednesday at 435. Air strikes accounted for about that many more. The figures were unusually low.

"This lull has done wonders for our morale," one front-line officer said.

Getting Ready

But the Reds were busy—out of range of Allied artillery. Intelligence officers reported three Communist divisions preparing to strike at Seoul from the northwest. Other forces were building up in the hills around the Hwachon reservoir, north of the central Korean plain.

The build-ups emphasized the warning of Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the U.S. Eighth Army, that the Reds are capable of striking another heavy blow at UN forces.

The wild, hilly country north and east of Seoul offers the Reds their favorite type of battleground. They may come tumbling down from these ridges within 72 hours, or a week or a month.

Natural Cover

The hills afford natural cover, and make it easier to infiltrate at night. On the plains, UN guns and aircraft rock them back on their heels.

They lost more than 75,000 men in casualties of the 300,000 men that started their vaunted spring offensive April 22. But they have another 300,000 available.

And they are reported to have 3,000 planes available.

Their night fighters came out for the first time Wednesday. Three Communist planes attacked a United States B-26 bomber. The crew said their plane wasn't hit but they may have scored on one of the Red planes.

The questions of what Russia might do in the Far East—and the Soviet capacity to act with strength there—are important ones in the whole controversy revolving about MacArthur.

MacArthur has urged blockade of Communist China and air action against it because of the Communist move into the Korean fighting.

Attempts have been made to get transport planes which had been assigned to the Korean air lift to supply the brigade — "because we think the boys would like it that way," he added.

Delay Decision In City Suit

TORONTO, May 3 — (CP) — judgment was reserved by Mr. Justice A. M. Labet Wednesday in an action brought against the city of Belleville by the Klimack Construction Company of Swastika, Ont.

The company is suing the city for $31,804 for damages and loss in profit incurred when a sewer contract was partly taken away without "reasonable notice."

Company officials said work was started in August, 1948, and was held up by unexpected deposits of rock and quicksand. The job was contracted to be finished in 20 weeks, but only 20 per cent of the work had been done by that time.

J. H. Amys, counsel for the plaintiff, said the work was given to another company without "24 hours' notice as the contract demanded...."

Fred Parkinson, counsel for the city, said: "It was too bad that rock of such quantity and quicksand were found after the contract was made. That was the contractor's misfortune."

Expect Big Increase High School Students

TORONTO, May 3 (CP). —An expected increase of from 20,000 to 30,000 in Ontario's school population next September may bring about class room shortage in some parts of the province. Last September the increase in school population was 23,000.

Dr. J. G. Althouse, director of education, said today that it might be necessary to introduce "shift" methods in some sections.

Anticipated increase next fall will bring the school population close to 750,000.

Lindsay Board Increases Hospital Rates

LINDSAY, May 3—Employees salaries and hospital bed rates have been increased at the Ross Memorial hospital. These increases became effective May 1.

Salaries were increased 10 per cent., an added annual cost of $9,000, in the hospital budget.

Bed rate increases were necessitated by general increases in costs according to Chairman of the board of directors, Mr. Johnston. The increase is also an effort to overcome any deficit that may occur next year.

A previous survey revealed rates at the Ross Memorial hospital to be considerably lower than rates in other hospitals in this part of Ontario. Mr. Johnston reported that even at the new scale, rates will still be as low or lower than most hospitals in surrounding districts.

Rates for patients in the public wards and semi-private wards have been increased $1.25 per day. The public ward rates were formerly $3.50. Former rates for semi-private wards were $4.50 and $5.00 per day.

Rates for private rooms have been increased $1.50 per day. Former rates of $5.50 and $6.50 are now $7.00 and $8.00. Daily maintenance charges for babies have been increased from $1.00 to $1.50. Charges for the operating room have been raised from $10.00 to $20.00 for major operations and $5.00 to $8.00 for minor operations.

Joseph Tully's Herd Of 35 Brings $22,450 At Auction

Gross receipts were reported in excess of $28,000 at the auction sale of the purebred herd of Holstein cattle and farm implements of the estate of Joseph T. Tully, Otonabee township, Wednesday.

Thirty-five Holsteins accounted for a total of $22,450, averaging $641.

Top price was $1,325 for the "Very Good" cow "Otonabee Darkness Johanna," paid by Kent Whipple of Marshline Farms, Savannah, Wayne county, New York.

Mr. Whipple also put in the second highest bid of the sale at $1,300 for the "Good Plus" cow, Otonabee Bertha Tribune.

From that level, prices dropped to $850, continuing through the $700 brackets for 12 of the animals in the dispersal of the widely known herd with the Otonabee prefix. Five bulls brought $2525 for an average of $505.

Many Attend

Warm sunny weather brought out a large attendance of farmers, many of whom arrived in the morning for the sale of implements. Its total was around $6,000.

Auctioneers were Lorne E. Franklin of Brantford and Gordon Hancock of Peterborough.

The Canadian Holstein-Friesian Association was represented by George Clemons, secretary, and by many of its members from Ontario, including directors James T. Brown of Newcastle and N. W. McConkey. Peterborough breeders took a considerable share of the herd developed by their late associate; Joseph T. Tully whose intelligent and progressive methods of management had won for him a leading place in the Holstein industry of this country, particularly in the Central Ontario district and elsewhere throughout the province.

The dispersal sale was highly successful in its proceeds and in the recognition of the value of the Tully cattle.

The listof transfers was as follows:

Top price for the males of the auction was $700 by Earl Riseborough, of Woodbridge, for Otonabee Sovereign Return; Dec. 1949. His paternal lines are Sonniwilk Sovereign Souvenir (XXX); Montvic R.A. Sovereign (XXX) and Emperor of Mt. Victoria (XX).

In opening the herd sale in the afternoon, Gordon Hancock introduced as preliminaries short addresses to the large gathering of both men and women by George Clemons, Vernon Campbell, president of the Peterborough Holstein Club, and Roy Ormiston, Holstein Association fieldman.

Mr. Campbell presented to Alan Tully, the young son of the late Mr. Tully, the Premier Breeders' Banner which his father won at the Peterborough county Black and White Day at Keene last September.

Speaking for her son as the recipient, Mrs. Tully expressed her deep appreciation of the assistance of her neighbors during the month, also members of the Holstein Club and its directors, and the breeders attending the sale, many of whom had come long distances.

Mrs. Tully mentioned President Vern Campbell, Secretary Stanley Wood, Roy Ormiston, fieldman, Matchett Brothers and others. She also thanked the women's group of the Holstein Club for their help especially in providing the luncheon at the sale. To all her friends and neighbors who had stood by her in her bereavement and loss she said she wished them to accept her warm gratitude.

Mr. George Clemons, secretary-treasurer of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, recalled Joseph Tully "as one of my good friends for many years".

"We all deeply regret that he was not spared to carry on the good work he had done on this beautiful farm when in 1926 he began the foundation of his herd when he was sixteen. Three years later he went into R.O.P., and continued in that classification through the years since then.

"Mr. Tully's Otonabee prefix was as well known as any other in the Holstein breed in Canada, and also in the United States. His was not one of the largest Holstein herds, but it is worth recalling that with it he won the Master Breeder's title.

"We are in a strong market, and there is nothing to worry about these cattle being appreciated in this sale.

"I wish to extend my personal appreciation to Mrs. Tully and her family, and to say to them that Joseph Tully was a credit to our breed and to Peterborough County."

Kinsmen Name New Officers

CAMPBELLFORD, May 3 — (ENS)—A new slate of officers was named at this week's meeting of the Campbellford Kinsmen Club. They will take over club activities when the organization re-convenes in the fall. The present officers will continue in office until the summer recess.

President Ron Hazell received the nominations, and all nominees received an acclamation.

The new officers are as follows: President, S. G. Walroth; Vice President, Jack Herd; Secretary, Jack Gummo; Treasurer, James Good; Bulletin Editor, Francis Long; Directors—Forrest Dennis, Chas. Wickens, Borden Robertson, Bruce Grills.

The next meeting on May 14, will probably be held in Warkworth. It was reported that a recent dance sponsored by the club was a failure, due to the rainy weather, and other money-raising ventures were discussed. The funds will be used for community service work.

Paul Brunelle was a guest at the meeting.

Says Diplomacy Little Too Open

RENFREW, May 3 (CP).—The man who guides Canada's international relations feels that "possibly we are making open diplomacy a little too open."

Not that he wants, said External Affairs Minister Pearson Wednesday night, to advocate the return to old methods of diplomacy by which the destiny of millions was determined by street moves.

But it is difficult to work out just and reasonable solutions, Mr. Pearson said, "in the exciting light of the television camera or under the often-prejudiced spur of the latest headline."

"I hope that in this country we will resolutely refuse to countenance the methods or the atmosphere of the circus or the vaudeville theatre in our conduct of popular and democratic government. Dignity is an important element of democracy."

The minister spoke to a Rotary gathering of 300 Ottawa Valley residents.

Utilities Warns Higher Rates If Raises Given

COBOURG, May 3—(ENS)—Increase in the rates would be the result of 10% wage increases, as requested by the employees, were put into effect it was revealed at the meeting of Cobourg Public Utilities Commission. The commission deferred action pending another meeting this week.

Twenty-one out of the 22 employees are asking for the wage increase. If granted, this would mean that an additional $5,449.60 per year would be added to the payroll and to finance this the consumer rates would have to be increased, it was pointed out.

Commissioner Gren Thompson declared that the wage boost was a big item and one which could not be dealt with at once in view of its unexpectedness.

Chairman Maurice Booth told the commissioners that it would raise the payroll by more than $100 a month. Mayor Jack Burnet cautioned against haste in dealing with it because there were many angles to be considered. For instance, he said, consideration should be given as to how the increase would affect operating costs and the rates charged consumers.

Some Given Increases

Commissioner Bob Love pointed out that some of the employees had received 10 per cent. wage increases since the first of the year and he couldn't see a straight increase to all.

The commission studied figures covering salaries paid by utilities commissions in other towns of sizes comparable to Cobourg and of eight municipalities; half paid about the same amount as Cobourg. One paid higher wages than here and the rest paid less. Furthermore some places which paid lower wages than Cobourg had no pension or health schemes.

7,000 Acres Swept By Raging Forest Fire

PROVIDENCE, R.I., May 3. — (AP)—Weary firemen today patrolled a section of western Rhode Island where a forest fire swept through 7,000 acres Wednesday night.

State police were holding a man on suspicion of having set the fire.

Quickly mobilized forces drawn from the entire state brought the fire under control early today, but not before flames had burned four persons. Many remote farm homes were destroyed.

To the northwest of the village of Hope Valley, firemen saved the $1,000,000 Beach Pond camp for underprivileged children.

The main fire, sweeping southward, leaped 40-foot roads with ease as a 35-mile-an-hour wind hurried it along.

Fire On Farm

ST. CATHARINES, May 3. — (CP)—A fire which showed up for miles around today destroyed the only building on the farm of Amos Beamer that was not covered by insurance. The farm is three miles south of Silverdale and about 15 miles south of St. Catharines. The building contined 80 two-week old chicks, some new lumber, an electric motor and other machinery.

Drunkenness As A Defence

On several occasions we have offered comment in these columns upon cases in which drunkenness has proved to be a successful defence for a man who has been charged in court with serious wrongdoing. Another case of this kind has become public within the last few days. Briefly, the facts are these: an American visitor to Montreal last October left his hotel, and knocked on the door of a man who was a stranger to him; the householder, for what reason we know not, invited the man to come in, whereupon the American struck him so severely in one eye that it had to be removed later; the visitor was charged with assault, and evidence showed that he was a man of good character, who rarely drank at all; he had no recollection of what he had done; Judge Eugene Lafontaine of the Montreal Criminal Court found him not guilty because "the accused was drunk and did not know what he was doing when he struck the victim."

* * *

Doubtless Judge Lafontaine did what the law required him to do. Doubtless the aggressor is sincerely sorry for what he did. But the fact remains that he did it, and that his victim, whom he does not know, will be half-blind for the remainder of his life. The comment of the Ottawa Journal is pertinent:

> It is reasonable to suppose that the defence would have been equally effective had the accused been charged with drunken driving, or manslaughter, or burglary, or any other crime he might have committed in a drunken blank, and thus we have the odd situation that a man is safer from the legal consequences of his actions if he drinks to the stage of complete unconsciousness than if he stops at a stage where his memory and reason still function, even if haltingly.
>
> If a drunken stupor is to be accepted as as proof of innocence of a criminal charge perhaps the law should be tightened against that situation. After all nobody is compelled to drink, and it seems strange that excessive drinking should excuse so senseless and brutal an assault as one that deprives an innocent citizen of an eye.

* * *

It is often difficult to prove that a man is drunk at all; it is almost impossible to prove the degree of his drunkenness. If it is a first-rate defence to plead complete drunkenness in cases of this kind, that plea will become popular. Indeed, it is surprisingly popular now, and that is a most disgraceful state of affairs.

* * *

Very few people want prohibition in Canada. But what could strengthen the hands of the prohibition forces more than a situation in which people who are blind drunk are regarded as privileged persons, beyond the ordinary penalties attaching to bad behaviour? Liquor is sold in Canada under circumstances of considerable freedom; almost anybody can get as much liquor as he wants. That freedom brings with it a responsibility to use liquor with discretion.

* * *

There is no such thing as perfect justice. If the law held a man to be fully responsible for all his actions when drunk, some injustice might be done to a few people. But it would be trifling compared with the injustice which is now possible under laws which make drunkenness a useful plea in cases where serious harm has been done to others. The law must protect the innocent; its chief purpose is not the provision of loopholes through which the guilty may escape. It is time that Canadian law provided for the punishment of guilt, drunk or sober.

Sabbatical Leave For Schools?

The ancient Mosaic law laid down that in every seventh year the land should lie fallow; vineyards and olive orchards also should remain uncultivated. Whatever might grow under such conditions was for the poor and the wild animals. In modern times the sabbatical year has come to mean a period of freedom from academic duties every seventh year. Until recently this has been restricted to university professors, who need an occasional protracted absence from the lecture room in order to carry out research and to keep abreast of the latest achievements of scholarship. The university professor has a dual role. Not only is he responsible for the instruction and guidance of undergraduates, but also he is expected to make a certain contribution to the knowledge of his own specialized subject in the shape of articles and books. He can only carry out the latter task if he is granted remission from the former. It is true that the university vacations are long, but are not long enough. If, for example, a professor is to write a treatise on the poetry of Dante, it is necessary for him to travel to Italy in order to consult the source material at first hand in the libraries and private collections, to chase up clues in out-of-the-way monasteries, to visit the great libraries in London, Paris, Washington and elsewhere. If he is lucky and intelligent enough he may unearth fresh facts from some obscure little hamlet.

It is now proposed in Toronto to send four school teachers away on sabbatical leave. If the proposal goes through these teachers will receive half pay during their leave of absence. In addition the Toronto Board of Education will pay the salaries of the substitute teachers, and the tuition fees of the four teachers will be paid for them. This proposal has already encountered stiff opposition from the Trustees, who rightly feel some misgivings.

We feel that the sabbatical year for school teachers, however justifiable in certain individual cases, is unadvisable. The nature of their work is such that the benefits accruing to the Board and the educational profession would not be in any way commensurate with the expense involved.

A far more practical proposition is the scheme already in force in this City, whereby exchanges of certain selected teachers are arranged. In this way the teacher is able to broaden his experience. In return the educational authorities of the City are not obliged to pay one-and-a-half salaries for each teacher absent, and moreover the teachers from abroad arriving with new ideas and new methods cannot fail to have a stimulating effect.

We are of the opinion that more could be done to further inter-provincial co-operation. As things stand at present any Ontario teacher wishing to teach in another province must pass a sabbatical year, willy-nilly, without pay, before receiving his new teachers' certificate. This results in a sort of provincial "in-breeding." We need fresh blood, and doubtless the other provinces do, too. It is time that the provinces agreed on a common standard from coast to coast.

Bruce MacDonald

We extend our deepest sympathy to the parents and relatives of Private Bruce MacDonald of the Princess Pats, reported killed in action in Korea on April 25. This is the first time one of our own City has been killed in the fighting, and his death may help to bring home to us the fact that our own boys are fighting and dying out there. We have become so absorbed in the business of getting and spending, so full of self-pity at the rising cost of living that we tend to forget these brave young men who are fighting for us in a remote land, and putting up with hardship and danger when they could have remained at home.

Some of them will return to the friendly atmosphere of their home town. Others, like Bruce MacDonald, will never come home again. Without false heroics we salute his memory: he has done well for his country.

Darling (Ulp) I Am Growing Old (Burp)

The Russians, that wonderful people, have made a great new scientific discovery. It is now possible for great numbers of people to live to be two hundred years old. The secret is plenty of bicarbonate of soda, in the bathwater and in internal doses. The Moscow House of Scientists has graciously made this information available to the world at large. Strange how generous they are about such a valuable secret, when they are so stingy with even the slightest hint about what they are doing with atomic energy.

However, we are glad to hear that bicarbonate of soda is coming up again. Ten or fifteen years ago dire warnings against it were issued in the Western World. Repeated doses of the stuff, it was said, hardened the arteries—presumably by coating their inner linings with solid soda. Whenever a democratic dyspeptic crept to the kitchen cupboard for the relieving box, he looked at the cow on the label as if it were his worst enemy. Nevertheless, he mixed up the dose, downed it, and awaited results. How the Russians must laugh at such an idea, as they wallow in the soda baths, dipping their heads below the surface from time to time for a refreshing swig of the life-giving substance!

For centuries it has been the custom in Europe and on this continent to cry "God bless you!" when a friend sneezes; in Russia, when anyone belches, we understand that the whole assembly cries "Live a thousand years!" Frankly we are just as glad that this great discovery was made in Russia. There is no sense in being greedy about scientific advances.

NOTE AND COMMENT

An economist describes wealth as a disease. But not a highly contagious one.

This is the season when young blood calls to young blood. And when that happens, the telephone may be busy for hours.

A science writer points out that the earth revolves at the rate of 700 miles an hour, the earth moves at a rate of 70,000 miles an hour round the sun, and that our motion around the galaxy is at 1,000,000 miles an hour. Query: is this a time to slow up the postal service?

Italy's Free Economy

by
RICHARD LOWENTHAL

ITALY has been one of the chief pioneers of European trade liberalization—i.e. of the abolition of quota restrictions on foreign trade. She has outstanding liberal economists in the most responsible position, from Professor Luigi Einaudi, the President of the Republic, downward. She, therefore, enjoys an international reputation for having a liberal economic system. Nothing, however, could be farther from the truth.

IN fact, Italian industry has always been protected by one of the highest tariff walls in Europe—and since the tariff revision which followed the end of the inflation, the wall is back again in its old place. The country abounds both with extremely powerful private monopolies—like Montecatini and Snia Viscosa, which control 80 per cent. of the chemical industry and over 90 per cent. of the rayon industry respectively—and giant combines, like the Fiat motorcar works which have branched out into many other industries and now employ some 70,000 workers, the Falk steel combine and the Edison electricity trust.

It has a very large "public" sector, "nationalized" in 1932 when the Fascist Government took over the big banks and industrial firms threatened with bankruptcy, and run on strict private enterprise principles by the IRI, the State Reconstruction Institute, and its subsidiaries. IRI now owns all the big banks, more than 40 per cent. of Italian steel capacity, 80 per cent. of the shipyard capacity, 25 per cent. of the electricity (or most of what is not Edison-controlled), more than half the telephone industry and 20 per cent. of the merchant marine, as well as a large number of engineering firms.

ALL that this highly monopolized, subsidized and politically controlled economy has in common with a liberal system is the absence of a central economic plan. But the survival or death of a given firm is not determined by the competitive laws of the market, but by the balance of political pressures and counter-pressures. The main objects of this struggle are to influence subsidies to suffering industries and the Government's general credit policy. The restrictive credit policy hitherto pursued by the Government has resulted in an effective interest rate of 10 per cent. and more for non-favoured long-term investment and in considerable idle productive capacity co-existing with two million unemployed.

On one side in this struggle stand the big private monopolies. They are always sure of getting credit at preferential rates owing to their strong position, and they are closely linked with leading personnel of State-owned companies who have no Government directives to guide them. They defend the policy of credit restriction, even opposing an export-credit scheme, and reject subsidies to the weak in the name of the laws of the market.

ON the other side stand the large number of firms above all, in the engineering industry, who are short of credit and of orders. They are supported by their local authorities and by their workers who are threatened with unemployment. They oppose credit restriction and cry out for subsidies—in the name of a fairer basis for competition.

Torn between these two opposite pulls which both find frequent expression within the ranks of the ruling Christian Democratic party, the Government has so far maintained its policy of credit restriction but tried to mitigate its effects by underhand subsidies. It argues that credit expansion and a higher degree of employment would encourage greater consumption of goods which are not there, and would therefore—in a nation thoroughly unresponsive to rationing and price control—lead to rapid inflation. It also argues that many of the idle factories and shipyards are inefficient and produce at too high a cost, and so permits others to buy machines and ships abroad which could be produced in Italy.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT is true that many of these firms, created during the armament drive of the Fascist era have so far proved inefficient in civilian production. But it is also true that their costs are disproportionately increased by political factors—a turnover tax levied again and again whenever any intermediate product changes hands, which puts any attempt at rational specialization at a disadvantage. A social security system which makes the employer pay all contributions (with the result that the small firms give wrong employment figures and the big ones remain in arrears for months, thus greatly reducing the benefits of the system); the violent resistance of the workers against any dismissal of redundant colleagues, because there is no hope of other employment; and, finally again the high interest rate. With low wages, lack of capital and enforced employment of redundant workers, there is also little incentive for technical progress, and Italy is probably the least "productivity-conscious" country in Western Europe. It is characteristic that piece-work is practically non-existent in Italian industry.

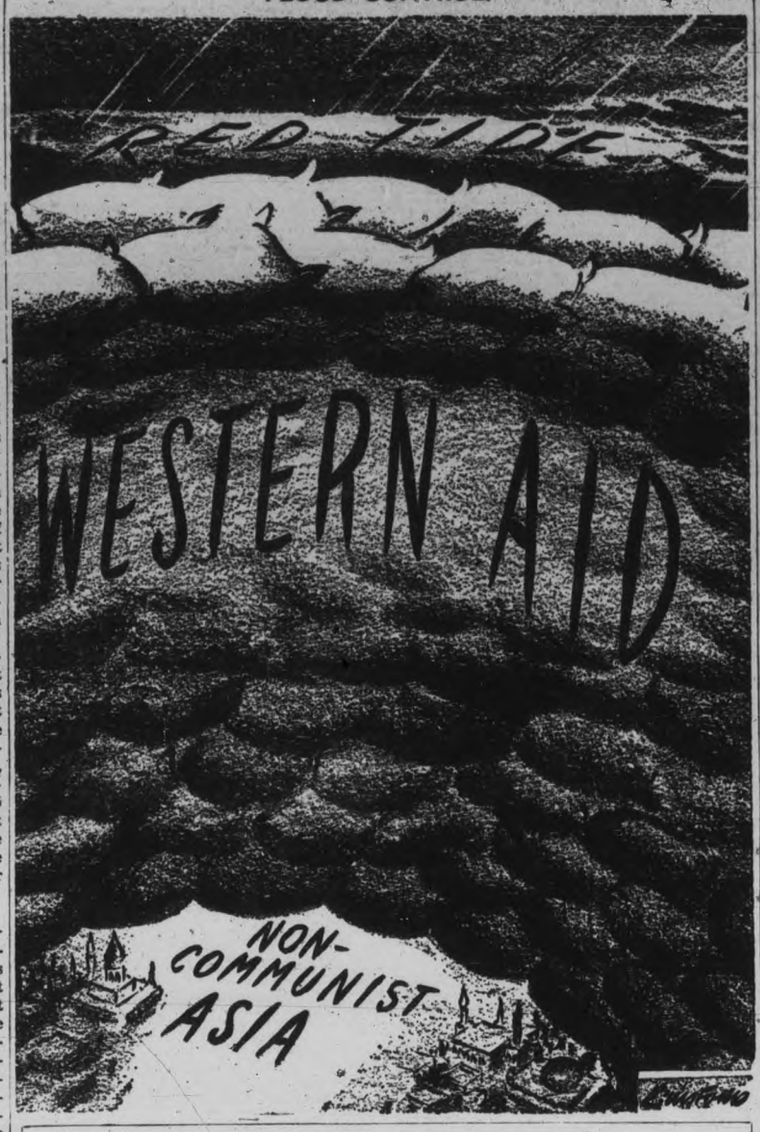
✧ ✧ ✧

INEVITABLY such a system keeps down the standard of living. Nominal wages in the Northern Italian towns, together with the family allowances, are on almost the French level; but the cost-of-living is swollen by monopoly prices and by the endless indirect taxes, ranging from the multiple turnover tax to a municipal tax on "imported" foodstuffs which forms one of the chief sources of local government revenue. Meanwhile the electricity trust keeps up the price of power (partly by opposing further hydro-electric development as "impracticable") and the chemical trust does the same for the price of fertilizer. Wages in the South are only half what is paid in the North; unemployment means the immediate reduction of family allowances to a nominal sum; unemployment assistance ceases after six months, and to most groups of agricultural labourers it is not granted at all.

It would be unfair to say that the Government is indifferent to this combination of a backward economic structure with widespread misery. A number of initiatives for improvement have been undertaken lately with American assistance and, in part, American prompting.

✧ ✧ ✧

A REMARKABLE plan for the modernization of the State sector of the steel industry, based on deliveries of cheap Algerian ore within the framework of the Schuman Plan, is being carried out with Marshall Aid funds, despite furious opposition from the private steel producers.



The aim is to reduce the cost of steel to Italian industry to the general European level—so far it has been 50 per cent. above.

An official productivity committee with investigating powers has recently been created, with American advisers on it. Special development funds have been set aside for creating industries in the South, but so far no one has taken advantage of them.

YET in the framework of present over-all policy, these initiatives are isolated. Only in the field of agricultural improvement and land reform is there a visible will for a comprehensive policy of economic and social change; and even here, the political obstacles are by no means finally overcome.

FLOOD CONTROL!

Britons On Gambling

(NEW YORK TIMES)

In a 190-page report, Great Britain's Royal Commission on Betting, Lotteries and Gaming (1949-51) decided recently that the social fabric of Old England was hardly likely to be shredded by the placing of a shilling or two on horses, greyhounds or football teams. This was in direct contradiction to conclusions reached by church groups and others, which held that much time, money and brain power were wasted in gambling and besides it was immoral. Herewith are a number of pros and cons.

THE OPPOSITION—

The Scottish National League Against Betting and Gambling: "* * * The exploitation of the nation's nitwits by the unscrupulous gambling interests is a prime factor in the nation's apostasy from religion, in the collapse of conscience * * * and a moral insensibility * * *."

✧ ✧ ✧

The Rev. E. C. Urwin, secretary of the Methodist Temperance and Social Welfare Committee: "The whole mass of evidence points to a constant interruption of industrial effort by gambling."

✧ ✧ ✧

The Churches' Committee: "(Gambling) provides an easy way of gratifying the desire of adventurous risk, but adds to it a debasing desire for adventitious gain, which increasingly corrupts the desire for adventure, together becoming a feverish passion and vice."

✧ ✧ ✧

The Scottish National League: "The vast scope and set-up of the gambling industry is created for one vile purpose, to exploit a particular weakness in a man and to make money out of it."

✧ ✧ ✧

The Churches' Committee: "Gambling is a form of transaction which divorces wealth from worth * * * if it becomes a government principle of business and finance it would mean utter chaos."

✧ ✧ ✧

The Churches' Committee submitted a number of examples in which gamblers had been led into crime either to make good their gambling losses or because of deterioration in character caused by gambling.

✧ ✧ ✧

The Churches' Committee: "(There are employed) several hundreds of thousands of people exerting a constant and powerful pressure upon the community to indulge in the varied forms of gambling."

THE COMMISSION—

"We are left with the impression that it is extremely difficult to establish by abstract arguments that all gambling is inherently immoral, without adopting views as to the nature of good and evil which would not find general acceptance among moralists."

✧ ✧ ✧

"We conclude that gambling, on the scale on which it is indulged in at the present time, cannot be regarded as imposing a serious strain on our national resources or manpower * * *."

✧ ✧ ✧

"* * * We can find no support for the belief that gambling, provided that it is kept within reasonable bounds, does serious harm either to the character of those who take part in it or to their family circle and the community generally."

✧ ✧ ✧

"* * * The great majority of those who take part in gambling do not spend money on it recklessly and without regard to the effect of their expenditure on the standard of living of their families."

✧ ✧ ✧

"We think that the average person finds it almost as easy to dissociate gambling from the more serious side of his life as he does to dissociate any other form of amusement or indulgence."

✧ ✧ ✧

"* * * The evidence which we have heard from those responsible for the enforcement of the law and those with experience of criminals does not suggest that gambling is an important cause of crime."

✧ ✧ ✧

"* * * It could not, in our view, be said that gambling provides whole-time employment for the equivalent of as many as 100,000 persons. * * * less than 1 per cent. of the total of employed persons."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

But one of the young men told Abigail, Nabal's wife, saying, Behold, David sent messengers out of the wilderness to salute our master; and he railed on them . . . Now therefore know and consider what thou wilt do; for evil is determined against our master, and against all his household: for he is such a son of Belial, that a man cannot speak to him. Then Abigail made haste, and took two hundred loaves, and two bottles of wine, and five sheep ready dressed, and five measures of parched corn, and an hundred clusters of raisins, and two hundred cakes of figs, and laid them on asses . . . .

And it was so, as she rode on the ass, that she came down by the covert of the hill, and, behold, David and his men came down against her; and she met them . . . . And when Abigail saw David, she hasted, and lighted off the ass, and fell before David on her face, and bowed herself to the ground, and fell at his feet, and said, Upon me, my lord, upon me let this iniquity be: and let thine handmaid, I pray thee, speak in thine audience, and hear the words of thine handmaid . . . . I pray thee forgive the trespass of thine handmaid: for the Lord will certainly make my lord a sure house; because my lord fighteth the battles of the Lord, and evil hath not been found in thee all thy days. And it shall come to pass, when the Lord shall have done to my lord according to all the good that he hath spoken concerning thee, and shall have appointed thee ruler over Israel; that this shall be no grief unto thee, nor offence of heart unto my lord, either that thou hast shed blood causeless, or that my lord hath avenged himself: but when the Lord shall have dealt well with my lord, then remember thine handmaid.

And David said to Abigail, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, which sent thee this day to meet me: and blessed by thy advice, and blessed be thou, which hast kept me this day from coming to shed blood, and from avenging myself with mine own hand . . . .

So David received of her hand that which she had brought him, and said unto her, Go up in peace to thine house; see, I have hearkened to thy voice, and have accepted thy person. (I Sam. 25: 14, 17, 18, 20, 23, 24, 28, 30-33, 35.)

Montaigne Wondered

(Ottawa Journal)

We knew that just about anybody would be able to get into the Truman-MacArthur debate. We've even thrown our own views into the thing a few times. But somehow we hadn't thought the 16th Century philosopher Montaigne would figure in it. Such are the surprises of miscellaneous reading; last night we ran across this passage of Montaigne:

"I should rather know the truth of the talk he had in his tent with one of his close friends on the eve of the battle than the speech he made the next day to his army, and what he did in his study or in his own room than what he did in public and in the Senate."

There it is, just an old quotation. Who are we to add to Montaigne?

In Our Freedoms

(London Free Press)

The freedom to criticize, to set forth in print what the man in the street thinks about this and that—no matter how highly placed the person or custom under observation—is one of the dearly bought and rightly treasured privileges of a free nation. Lost, the nation loses an essential part of its inheritance. No truly free community will forego this right without a protest and a struggle.

Old Pet Mallard Famous On Coast

VANCOUVER— (CP) —A 15-year-old pet Mallard, "Goo-Goo" has become a famous duck in these parts.

It was a laying duck until two years old, when it laid the biggest egg of all by turning into a drake. Since that time 13 years ago Goo-Goo has never looked back.

His pins are rusty with age and he hobbles wearily around the backyard of Mrs. Lamountaine, who found Goo-Goo when it was a downy baby.

In the first blush of growth Goo-Goo laid some 324 eggs, then output slowed and it began clucking. The tail feathers changed and the colored ring typical of male Mallards appeared on the neck. The beak darkened and the eggs stopped entirely.

Experts came around and suggested its name be changed to "Sir Francis" or something suitable to its sex.

As a lady duck, Goo-Goo had only one brief fling. "A wild Mallard was winging over the yard and saw Goo-Goo and put on his brakes," said Mrs. Lamountaine. "Goo-Goo fluttered nobly and got about four feet off the ground. Then she sank. She'd put on too much weight to fly."

So Goo-Goo resigned herself to the quiet life, and now wobbles around in the sunshine, smug in its fame.

Delayed Too Long Can't Get Money Back

TORONTO, May 3 — (CP) — Lionel V. Lloyd, of Kingston, took too long to make up his mind to return a motorboat he had bought for $1,000.

The Ontario Court of Appeal ruled Wednesday that, because he waited "two or three days" before taking the boat back to S. C. Sedgwick, of Gananoque, he should not get his money back.

Evidence was that Lloyd accepted the boat, kept it two or three days, then stopped payment on his cheque and returned the boat to Sedgwick.

The Court of Appeal reversed a decision by Judge W. S. Lane that Lloyd was entitled to a refund.

Take Ruest Appeal Under Advisement

QUEBEC, May 3 (CP)—Court of King's Bench, appeals side, Wednesday took under advisement an appeal by Genereux Ruest against a conviction of murder in the time-bombing of an airliner Sept. 9, 1949.

Ruest was found guilty of manufacturing the time-bomb that blew up an airliner at nearby Sault Au Cochon killing 23 persons including Mrs. Rita Guay. The 53-year-old crippled watchmaker is under sentence to be hanged Sept. 21.

J. Albert Guay, Mrs. Guay's husband, was hanged Jan. 12 as the mastermind in the plot. Mrs. Arthur Pitre, Ruest's sister, also was found guilty of murder for her part in the plot and is awaiting death by hanging July 20. Her appeal is due to be heard in June.

United Church Urges Wheat Sent To India

TORONTO, May 3 (CP)—The executive of the United Church of Canada Wednesday called on the federal government to ship Canadian wheat to India at once to relieve famine areas.

"Failure to act may be regarded as weakness at the practical level of furthering international goodwill and peace," said a resolution presented by the Rev. D. H. Gallagher of Toronto and passed by the general council executive.

The executive approved a five-year plan to raise $3,300,000 for church extension. A country-wide appeal will seek $2,500,000, with the remainder to come from existing reserve funds.

HALIFAX, May 3 — (CP)— Maintaining the steady influx of immigrants to Canada through this port, 20 liners will arrive here before the end of the month. In March, 18 ships brought some 10,000 persons and in April 17 liners brought nearly 8,000. Number of passengers expected to arrive here in May exceeds 10,000.

Braves Down Cardinals 5-0 Keep Up Dream Pitching

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The first-place Boston Braves are burning up the National League with the kind of pitching that managers dream about. The big four of the Braves' mound staff — Warren Spahn, Johnny Sain, Vern Bickford and Matt Surkont—have turned in four shutouts in seven days.

Adding to this splendid performance, the big four has turned in nine route-going performances in 15 starts. No wonder Manager Bill Southworth is all smiles.

Wednesday it was Spahn's turn. The crafty southpaw, who led all National League pitchers with 21 victories last year, hurled the Braves back into first-place with a six-hit 5-0 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

Pittsburgh's surprising Pirates made it two in a row over Brooklyn when Murray Dickson set the Dodgers down with five hits to win 4-3. The little righthander, who now owns a 3-0 record, couldn't beat the Dodgers last season. Don Newcombe, making his first start in more than a week, dropped his first decision. Ted Beard's pinch double in the eighth inning drove in what proved to be the winning run.

A two-bagger by Connie Ryan and a single by Grady Hatton featured a two-run ninth-inning uprising that gave Cincinnati Reds a 6-4 triumph over the Phils in Philadelphia. Ewell Blackwell racked up his third win.

Rookies Collaborate

A couple of rookies collaborated to lead the Giants to an 8-1 victory over Chicago Cubs at the Polo Grounds. George Spencer, 24-year-old freshman righthander, pitched a six-hitter. Catcher Ray Noble, substituting for the injured Wes Westrum, singled in two runs with the bases loaded to open the gates for a six-run seventh inning.

Cleveland and Washington remained deadlocked for the American League lead. The Indians shaded Boston Red Sox 4-3 and the Senators whipped the Browns in a St. Louis night affair, 8-1. The hitting of rookie Harry Simpson and the pitching of Bob Lemon and Lou Brissie highlighted the Indians' second straight decision over the Red Sox. Simpson, filling in for the ailing Luke Easter at first base, slapped out four hits in as many times at bat.

Lemon pitched shutout ball for five innings before he was forced to retire because of a pulled muscle in his back.

Sandy Consuegra limited the Browns to five hits for his third victory without a defeat.

Scoring five unearned runs on a couple of Chicago errors, New York Yankees came from behind to defeat the White Sox 6-4 for a sweep of the two-game series. An error by Chico Carrasquel, after two out in the fifth, opened the dikes for three runs. Another miscue by Orestes Minoso, the new third-baseman, paved the way for the two inning runs in the ninth.

Singles by pinch-hitter Pat Mullin and Johnny Groth accounted for a pair of runs in the bottom half of the 10th to give Detroit a 5-4 victory over the Athletics.

Monarchs Edge Valleyfield 4-1

TORONTO, May 3 (CP). — In the words of a never-say-die hockey star who made himself a reputation beating goaltenders: "Get Phil Hughes' number and you get St. Michael's."

Hector (Toe) Blake wasn't fooling.

His Valleyfield Braves were handed a 4-1 licking by Toronto St. Michael's Monarchs Wednesday night which tied up their best-of-seven series for the Alexander Cup at one game apiece. Valleyfield won the first game 4-1.

It was Hughes, a 195-pounder from Port Arthur, who once again put the damper on things.

Hughes, who has robbed opponents right and left all season, hadn't much work Wednesday night. But when he was called upon, he came up with some dazzling saves. He stopped only 12 shots but at least six of them were labelled.

HOW THE PITCHER WINDS UP

Many beginners at pitching cultivate an elaborate wind-up hoping they will thus terrorize the hitter before the delivery and make up for their own other deficiencies.

Usually these are such in that pitcher that he would be better never to stop winding up, at all. When he does throw the ball, there is nothing much on it and energy has been used up to no avail.

A smart pitcher does not wind up much therefore, because he feels he must put the work into the actual pitch. Pitching is a strenuous job, so conserve your energy as much as possible as you go along. Always have something up your sleeve—something in reserve.

With men on base, except when all bases are occupied and not always then, if the man on third is a fast runner, the pitcher must never wind up, at all. Watch that boys—no wind up with men on. With no one on base, the pitcher may use a simple wind-up. It will be very simple, if he is wise. Just enough to loosen up a bit.

Many great pitchers simply stand facing the batter on the mound and swing both arms high over the head, clasping ball and other hand in so doing. Then the arms swing down again to sides.

George White, the old Cleveland and Detroit twirler never used any other wind-up but this, repeating the simple stretch once or twice. Hundreds of others do likewise.

The old windmill wind up is all right in moderation but must never be used with men aboard, of course. Lefty Grove always used it—twice around—and zingo!

You need not try to scare the batter with preliminary razzle-dazzle. You still must get that ball into the catcher's mitt past a bat or into a fielder's glove from that bat. So stick to the business of doing just that.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

John Stott writes again from Florida to inform us he was the father of girls' softball in Peterborough back in 1920. Includes a photo of the first Woollens' team, which he organized, but the only name he recalls is that of a Miss Slaughter. Anyone recognizing the players might give us a call, and we'd appreciate it. He also remembers that one of his players was hurt in a fall on the cement floor of the Armouries. Says he was a signal sergeant in the militia here that time. "I think it was called the 38th," he writes, "and I believe the commanding officer was named McDonald."

* * * * * *

Mr. Stott's memory of names of that time isn't too good. He sent a picture of the Otonabee, saying: "Several of the men that had boats on the Avon River then will remember me as I had an 18-footer I rowed and didn't have an engine, so sometimes they towed me in. I had lots of good times in Peterborough. There was a family named McIlwain that lived there and Mrs. McIlwain visited me later. I lived on Patterson St. I am glad to have heard from you and I hope I win the pennant again this year in Lakeland as I did last year. Good luck to Peterborough." Thanks; and we'll send along the names of girls on that first team if anyone will identify them.

The Minors Need Help

More interest must be shown by officials and prospective ones if minor baseball is to be a subcess here this season. You can't expect four or five men to do all the work in re-organizing this large loop for the kids. The Recreation Commission can help get things going, and the service clubs could really put the sport over if they would swing in behind it. But also a number of fathers and others are needed to take office, to manage teams and to act as umpires. The senior club helps financially and also supplies a daytime coach in the summer months, but a lot more adults interested in the game and in aiding the boys are required to put the PMBA over the top. They should attend the meeting at 8.30 p.m. next Tuesday in the "Y".

A mulligan on local lacrosse: Juniors drill at 6.30 p.m. today and Friday in full equipment. They're in the Alliston tourney on May 15, but take part on May 11 in the junior-senior exhibition here. A memorial trophy for Blain McDonald's father—Blain is with Hamilton Tigers—has been put up for the OLA junior "B" winner, so the young Petes are the first to hold it. They'll also receive city council recognition. Lots of PMLA-ers coming out to the first drills, and peewees may go this week-end. Seniors practise nightly at seven in Miller Bowl under Coach Don Crowe. They open their schedule in two more weeks, so the lineup will be selected shortly.

Rated The Best Rookie

Wally Hergesheimer of Cleveland Barons was voted outstanding rookie player of the past season in the American Hockey League. The honor carries with it a $300 prize. George (Red) Sullivan received a vote from the St. Louis club but he wasn't eligible as he had played more than 20 games the previous season with Hershey. Don Ashbee got votes from Buffalo and Hershey, but Hergesheimer had a hefty majority over all others. The flashy right-winger was born in Winnipeg in 1927 and has played for Brandon juniors, Minneapolis and San Francisco on his way up to the AHL. The nine league coaches do the voting in the case of outstanding rookie.

A typical Giants-Dodgers' rhubarb came up the other day in the National Baseball League. Jackie Robinson laid a bunt down the first base line and then ran into pitcher Sal Maglie of New York who came over to field it. Jackie claimed Maglie was trying to bean him at the plate. In reply to a charge by Durocher that it was a "bush play", Robinson retorted that he'd learned it from Durocher who one time advised his players: "If a pitcher tries dusting you off, lay down a bunt and then run right up his back." Jackie claims a batter being dusted has a right to try to even it up with the offending pitcher. It was Ty Cobb many years ago who started this bunt-bash business—as well as "accidentally" letting his bat slip a mile a minute toward a beaning pitcher. They left him severely alone in a short time.

Hudson Stops Royals 6-1 For Maple Leafs

By The Associated Press.

You've probably never heard of Hal Hudson. Few people have. But all this may be changed by next year.

Hudson, who'll be 23 Friday, is a young lefthander who has been pitching minor-league baseball since 1944. Each season he has advanced, and today is twirling with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League. Manager Joe Becker likes the look of the kid, who has had two straight victories—one in relief and one as a starter.

Hudson, a 175 pounder, stopped Montreal Royals 6-1 on five hits Wednesday. He struck out seven and walked four. To top it, he belted in a run with a single.

Bobby Rhawn, with two singles and a triple, paced Toronto's 11-hit assault. Bob Alexander, battered out in the second inning, was the loser.

The defeat knocked Montreal out of first place. Syracuse took over the top spot by defeating Springfield Cubs 5-2. Jack Robinson scattered seven hits to chalk up his third straight victory.

A four-run first inning sparked Buffalo Bisons to a 7-3 win over Ottawa. Rookie southpaw Jake Schmidt struck out nine as he pitched Baltimore to a 3-2 victory over Rochester. Schmidt himself drove in what proved to be the winning run in the ninth.

Real Pay-off for the Pro. Progress Made by Duffer

By JIMMY DEMARET
Three-Time Masters' Winner

Duffers are the professional's fuel for his own activity.

No one can tell me that a pro's biggest pay is the dollars he picks up for teaching. The real pay-off is the duffer who suddenly hits the pin because he swung exactly as he was told.

As I wrote in the P.G.A.'s Teachers' Guide, the real optimists on the courses are the boys who know their next game will be a better one—even though it isn't, usually.

You can't hold people like that down.

Therein lies the future of golf.

Having finished the round, the typical whiffer surveys his score of 105, and says: "If it hadn't been for this-and-that, I'd have done better. Wait till next Saturday!"

"Whereas it takes 18 holes in par or less to keep a good shooter even mildly happy," says a professional I know of duffers in general, "it takes only one good shot in a day to keep a whiffer happy."

Duffers want to improve, but are reasonable about it. It would shake the souls of some of them to step out some fine day and shoot an 80 instead of a 98.

The lower the score, they feel, the greater the fall next time.

They're happy with a par on the seventh.

Along with the don't-care duffers comes the army of tomorrow's golfers.

The hundreds of thousands of beginners and duffers make up the great game.

Today's whiff will be tomorrow's solid sock!

Next: Skip Alexander says there is no such thing as too much practice.

THIS WAY — Gene Sarazen straightens out Joe DiMaggio. The Clipper, who doesn't golf during the baseball season, is happy to break 100.

Fellowship Fund

NEW YORK, May 3 (AP) — Establishment of a $50,000 Grantland Rice Fellowship Fund to honor the sports columnist's 50 years of "distinguished service" in newspaper work, was announced Wednesday by the New York Community Trust. The gift, from a source who asked for anonymity, expressed the desire that the trust make an annual award of the Grantland Rice Fellowship in Journalism, preferably at the graduate school in Columbia. The first grant will be made next September.

Fort Frances Defeats Mercurys 4-2

OWEN SOUND, May 3 (CP).—Fort Frances has evened the best-of-seven Allan Cup final series, but coach Bud Jarvis still is unhappy.

Although his team defeated Owen Sound Mercurys 4-2 Wednesday night for the squad's second victory, Jarvis said he wasn't satisfied with the refereeing "even if the officials do come from the lakehead."

Fifth game of the series is Saturday night. All games are being played at Owen Sound.

Jarvis was sputtering in the dressing room following the team's victory.

Declaring "the refereeing was lousy," he said Fort Frances played a better game than the hometowners but could do even better.

In the losers' dressing room, coach Jack Markle of Owen Sound had a brief "no comment" on the game itself.

Bob Fero, John Irving, Willie Toninato and Sambo Fedoruk scored for the winners. Centre Tommy Burlington and linemate Jack Ingoldsby racked up Owen Sound's two markers, with Burlington pulling the trigger to Ingoldsby's assists.

Better Team

Fort Frances, who hold the distinction of inflicting the only losses the Mercurys have suffered on their home ice during the season, outclassed the Owen Sounders during the first two chapters.

Fero and Burlington both scored in the opening stanza. Then Owen Sound went ahead on Burlington's second goal but Fort Frances rapped in two from Irwing and Fedoruk to make it 3-2 as the middle period ended.

Despite a frantic last-period effort by Owen Sound, the Fort Frances margin was lengthened by Toninato who bounced a long shot from left wing.

MEN AT WORK—Left, Pierre Montane, lightweight champion of France and Europe, belts the heavy bag in preparation for his 10-round battle with Armand Savoie at the Montreal Forum. The bald gent holding the bag is the former great little French fighter, Eugene Huat, now Montane's manager.

Fans Doubting Louis Able To Beat Savold

By HARRY STAPLER.

DETROIT, May 3 (AP).—If Joe Louis can't kayo the lesser lights with his best punches, what'll happen when he tackles someone like Lee Savold?

Louis said Wednesday night he was satisfied with his right-hand punch. Maybe he is, but many of the 7,004 fans at Olympia Stadium weren't.

They thought the former heavyweight champion might knock out Omelio Agramonte of Cuba in the way that made Joe a great heavyweight champion for 12 years.

But Joe couldn't finish off the lanky Cuban in the 10-round fight although he floored him once. Joe won a unanimous decision.

And now it's on to Lee Savold. British and European heavyweight champion, although International Boxing Club promoters haven't settled on the June date or place for the fight.

If Joe can beat Savold, who figures to be tougher than Agramonte, the brown bomber hopes to tangle with world champion Ezzard Charles again.

No Blockbuster

In the second round Louis — trim-looking but still minus the blockbusting right that ruled the heavyweight world till last September—floored Agramonte. It was the first time in five comeback fights that Joe had knocked a fighter to the canvas.

In the ninth round he battered and dazed Agramonte, who weighed only 188½ to Louis' 208¼. But again he couldn't kayo Omelio, who's not a big name in the boxing world.

Agramonte lasted 10 rounds against Joe back in February, but this time Louis trained harder and experimented with a tip-toe prance in an effort to regain some punching speed.

Louis got 40 per cent of Wednesday' night's net receipts and Agramonte 12½. The gross gate was $21,666.80. Louis also gets a $10,000 television cut and Agramonte $1,000.

Retain Local Option

DURHAM May 3 (CP). — The town of Durham' Wednesday retained its local option status in the voting for a brewers' warehouse. The wets won by a vote of 577 to 516 gaining 52.8 per cent of the total vote but failing by 79 votes to secure the required 60 per cent to repeal local option. Over 1,000 votes were polled—almost every available vote in the town.

Barrie Flyers Wallop Winnipeg Monarchs 5-1

By AL VICKERY.

WINNIPEG, May 3 (CP). — Barrie Flyers are one step closer to giving the central Ontario town its first Dominion Junior Hockey championship.

Happy Emms' hustling club Wednesday night walloped Winnipeg Monarchs 5-1 in the opening game of their best-of-seven Memorial Cup final.

"Three more to go," was the Flyers' chant as they trooped to their dressing room after the one-sided contest. The next game is here Friday night and the third at Brandon Saturday.

Monarchs figured they got a bad game out of their systems.

The Barrie club marched to a 1-0 lead in the first period on Jackie White's goal and never looked back. They added four unanswered goals in the second by Jerry Toppazzini, Jim Morrison, Leo Labine and Danny O'Connor.

Goalkeeper Lorne Howes' shutout bid was ruined late in the third period when Monarch defenceman John Riley beat him.

The speedy Flyers only held a 23-19 edge in shots but appeared to have a much-wider margin in territorial play. Despite drawing 15 of the 25 penalties handed out by referees Mel Snowdon of Montreal and Louis Lecompte of Ottawa, Barrie passed and checked the Regals to a standstill throughout most of the contest. Heavy ice—the temperature outside was about 70 above—hampered many of their nicely-started passing plays.

Monarchs' best period was the last, when they came to life and checked both ways. Their defence, which had been clearing badly in the first two periods, also seemed to tighten and give goalie Don Collins better protection.

Collins, who starred for the team in two previous playoff series, turned in one of his poorer efforts.

Batting: Harry Simpson, Indians—Rookie outfielder subbing for the injured Luke Easter at first base cracked four hits in four times at bat to lead the Tribe to a 4-3 victory over the Red Sox.

May Investigate Baseball Now

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP)—Organized baseball soon may come under the eye of monopoly investigators in the U.S. House of Representatives.

This became known today in advance of a scheduled meeting of the House Judiciary Sub-committee on Monopoly Power. The session was called to map new avenues for the committee's two-year-old inquiry into monopolistic tendencies.

Chairman Emanuel Celler (Dem: N.Y.) was reported to favor a proposal to give baseball a quick once-over on its compliance with the federal anti-trust laws.

The baseball investigation, in the event it is voted, is expected to centre on organized baseball's long-discussed "reserve" clause. This is a contract provision giving club owners virtually-absolute rights over the services of their players.

It has been criticized as a denial of the right of free bargaining in the commonly-accepted sense.

New Trophies For Swimmers

Public school swimming teams will be competing for new trophies, donated by the Peterborough Examiner, when the annual public school swimming meet is held Friday night at the YMCA.

The trophies, to replace the old cups awarded to the seniors, intermediate and junior champions and the trophy to the winning school, are expected to arrive in time for the meet.

The old Examiner trophy has been won seven years since 1940 by the swimmers of Central school. They were victorious in 1940, 41, 44, 45, 47, 48 and 1950.

Queen Mary school which won the championship twice, 1942 and 1943, saw the trophy taken away by Central last year on the last event. King Edward won it in 1946 and King George in 1949.

Diving Cup

Besides the swimming trophies the boys will compete for the Cliff McInroy-Stan McBride diving cups. Presented by two of Peterborough's outstanding swimmers and divers, one cup was won last year by King George school after a lapse of two years. Lorne Hale won the McInroy-McBride trophy for the best individual diver.

Only one new event has been added this year, an intermediate relay race. Two other relay races, the inter-school medley relay of 120 yards and the inter-school free style relay of 160 yards have been retained.

Other events include heats in free style, breast stroke and back stroke for the three age groups as well as diving for the juniors (11 years and under), the intermediate (13 years and under) and the seniors (14 years and under).

The meet will be conducted by Fraser Wade, YMCA physical director.

The officials will be: announcer, Gordon Minty; scorer, Bill McFarlane; starter, Fraser Wade; judges, Charles Forsyth, Gordon Dobbin, Stanley McBride, Mrs. Pansy Forbes; timers, Clair Porter, Nels Stanger, Ralph Wood and Alex Sinclair.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove joined the great list of major league pitchers who have struck out 2,000 batsmen when he fanned six Detroit Tigers 13 years ago today. The Boston lefthander joined such baseball greats as Walter Johnson, Cy Young and Christy Mathewson by that game, his 260th victory in 15 years of ball.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The Canadian racing season got its earliest start in history Wednesday when 10,000 prospective bettors crowded into Dufferin race track, Fred Orpen's half-mile oval in Toronto's west end.

The only certainty about the 146 days of racing between now and Nov. 5 is that the government will wind up ahead—something that will happen to only a small part of the betting public.

Eighty-one cents of every dollar bet at mutuels goes back into the betting pool. The other 19 cents, a reduction of about 2½ cents from last year, is divided between taxes and the track. Taxes range from 10 to 14 per cent with the rest going to the track.

Right winger Doug Verity of Brighton Tigers of the English National Hockey League has been voted "rookie of the year," friends have been informed.

Verity, 28, a former member of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, is a native of Paris, Ont., and as a junior played with Guelph.

Ray Borowicz, former bonus rookie with New York Yankees, has signed a contract with Waterloo Tigers of the Intercounty League.

He hit .296 with Niagara Falls last year and was best fielding shortstop in the Niagara loop.

Ford Frick, president of the National Baseball League, said Wednesday night the "whole question of television" will be taken up at the league's mid-summer meeting in Detroit at the time of the all-star game in July. At the present, rights to baseball-TV is vested in each home club.

Roger Bannister, British distance star who ran a blistering 4:08.3 in the Penn relays last Saturday, accepted an invitation to defend his Benjamin Franklin mile title next year prior to leaving today for London.

Bannister stepped a :56.7 last quarter en route to his new meet record.

Frank Sargent, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association representative at the lakehead, said on Wednesday there is a possibility that the sixth and seventh games of the Memorial Cup finals will be played at the Fort William Gardens.

The best-of-seven junior hockey finals between Barrie Flyers and Winnipeg Monarchs opened Wednesday night at Winnipeg.

Tom Lawton, famous England and Notts County centre-forward turned down a New York offer Wednesday to coach American soccer teams this summer.

Lawton had a "tempting" cable offer from the manager of the German - Hungarian team of Brooklyn who said an acceptance would give a big boost to soccer in the United States.

Wally Hergesheimer of Cleveland Barons, has been chosen the American Hockey League's rookie of the year.

With the league's nine coaches voting for three candidates on a 5-3-1 points basis, Hergesheimer received 34 points out of a possible 45.

He was also chosen as right-winger of the league's second all-star team, which earned him $200.

Hergesheimer scored 84 points during the regular season in 71 games. His 42 goals set a record of tallies for a first-year player.

Merchants Say Meat Ration Ruined Free Enterprise

By GAYNOR MADDOX

LONDON — (NEA) — Covent Garden is London's great produce market.

On a grey morning at 6.30, rain drizzled over thousands of crates of cabbage and brussels sprouts and bags of potatoes.

Inside, under the glass roof, miles of other foods stretched before me—oranges and grapefruit from Israel, bright red tomatoes from the Canary Islands, South African grapes, Argentine pears, Canadian apples.

There were crates of carrots, too, and bags of onions from Holland, mushrooms from Surrey, lettuce and green beans neatly packed in boxes from France.

But the merchants told me business was 'way down. They said the Labor government was ruining private enterprise with its 10 pence worth of meat ration.

"People just don't eat greens and vegetables and fruits unless they have a large joint to go with them," they argued.

A uniformed guard, employed by the market, pointed toward trucks laden with more produce. "Lots of those trucks don't belong to their rightful owners anymore," he said. "The government has just nationalized long distance trucks, reducing the owners to mere agents."

I met the same protest again in the Smithfield Central Markets, the largest dead meat and poultry market in the United Kingdom.

Sells Reindeer

A former butcher whose father, grandfather and great-grandfather had all been butchers in Smithfield, now sells reindeer, goats and rabbits instead of beef and mutton.

"I'm a free enterprise man, myself," he explained. "I couldn't degrade myself or my father's memory by being an agent for the government. So I gave up being a butcher and sell these unrationed things instead."

Frozen carcasses of Swedish reindeer hung behind him. There were rabbits, too, hung up for sale, with a few goats and unplucked chickens breaking the monotony.

Other stalls in this section of the market displayed cases of plucked chickens, some of them purplish and many of them conspicuously underfed. Most of them had been imported from Australia and Ireland.

At a stand where turkeys and tinned luncheon meat from Poland and tinned cherries from Czechoslovakia were displayed, I told the merchant that in the United States the public would boycott products from Russian satellites.

He laughed drily. "But we're hungry, you aren't," he said.

Barrels of pigs maws from New Zealand garnished another stand. These flabby, greyish pink things are the outer lining of a pig's stomach and today go into what was once the famous English pork pie.

Next to them were tightly packed faggots. They are dried blocks of animal offal—lights and livers. As explained to me at the London Press Club, no one knows what goes into faggots today, but everyone knows faggots go into cottage pie, and that's why cottage pie has degenerated into the national riddle of England.

Over in the meat section of Smithfield Market, where the hooks, if placed end on end, would reach 45 miles, there were carcasses hanging on fewer than one out of every 10 hooks.

The business is still conducted by private firms, but they now act as government agents. The government allocates the meat, and the job of butcher firms is to see that it is delivered.

A butcher touched a side of beef hanging before us. "That," he said, "is rations for about 400 people for one week." (I estimated roughly it was the amount 300 Americans would eat in one day.)

He added that the government has so thoroughly controlled purchase and distribution of meat that every ration book holder is guaranteed that his ration will be available at his local butcher's when he goes for it.

Although there were thousnds of empty meat hooks in Smithfield Market I saw few empty chairs in London restaurants. Every man who can afford it takes one meat meal a day way from home in order to give his family more rationed foods. The government itself fosters canteens for industrial and agricultural workers.

At Simpsons on the Strand, once world-famous for its roast beef, I found beef and mushroom pie, curried beef, really plump and tender chicken. But I never found any roast beef.

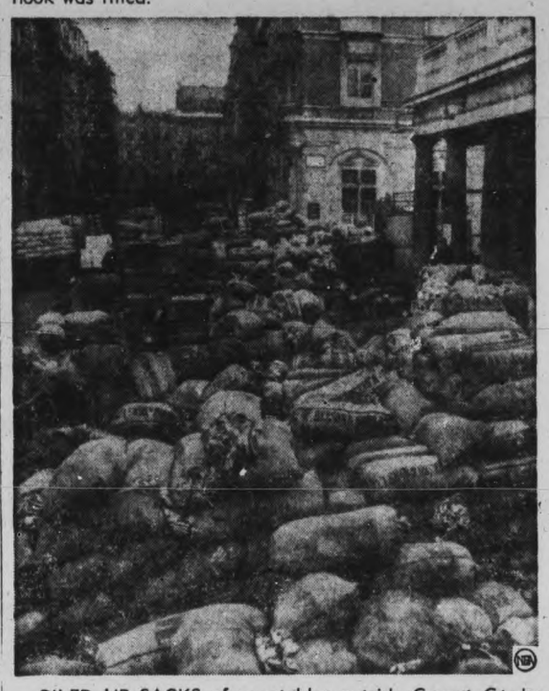
There was a roast beef, tender and rare, at Cafe Royal on Regent Street. On other visits there I had fillet of pork and fillet of veal, with a rich sauce.

At Scotts, reputedly the best sea-food restaurant in Europe, we had shrimp cocktail, broiled lobsters, green salad, Camembert cheese and coffee, plus an excellent white burgundy. The bill for four was almost £8, or £3 more than the average weekly wage of a worker.

At our hotel on Piccadilly, just across from Buckingham Palace where the King and his household were living on rations, we had bacon for breakfast on Saturday, and each Sunday, called fried egg day, we had eggs. On various menus were roast lamb, roast beef, baked ham, veal scallopini, roast goose, various chicken dishes, and always Scotch salmon or Channel sole.

The serving of these foods in restaurants is sanctioned by the government. The basis of rationing is an allowance which is in general related to the number of meals served by the establishment.

In the pubs, too, there was food. Usually, stacks of ham or cheese sandwiches on the bar, and in some, a small restaurant where you could get an inexpensive but far from exciting meal. With a mug of warm beer in one hand and a tightly rolled cigarette in the other, the average Londoner can contemplate the stack of sandwiches with satisfaction.



There is deluxe non-rationed but mostly price controlled food available in fine shops—Danish and Holland hams in tins, glassed tongues, jewel-like fruit preserves, imported cheeses, olives and anchovies, and other such luxuries.

I found the regular customers of these expensive food shops unreserved in their hostility to the Labor government. Leaders in the food processing industry and representatives of foreign, including American, food corporations feel about the same way. They say private capital could bring more food into the country.

But many serious observers feel that if private enterprise were permitted to import more meat, free of controls, the price of that meat would be out of line with the average worker's income. This would defeat the Labor government's policy of fair shares for all, which was the coalition government's policy during the last war.

EMPTY HOOKS in London's Smithfield Market till the story of England's meat shortage. In pre-war days every hook was filled.

PILED UP SACKS of vegetables outside Covent Garden market in London prove there are plenty of greens, but few customers.

Group Therapy Discussed As Way of Helping Addicts

By JACK SCOTT

Another broken man trudged off this week to a prison sentence that will do him no good whatever.

It was the fourth conviction for a 46-year-old drug addict and the court simply had no other alternative. Everyone knows that the sentence is not the cure. No one yet has done anything about it.

This particular case interested me because the defence counsel wondered out loud why no attempt has been made to form what he called a "Drug Anonymous."

The idea isn't a new one by any means. Been advocated from time to time ever since Alcoholics Anonymous became an international success. Anyone who has had occasion to look into the spectacular record of AA in beating the liquor habit has naturally asked himself why a similar approach might not beat the narcotic habit.

Judge Supports Idea

Many judges across Canada have expressed the need for some program to rescue the addict, not merely to punish him.

In British Columbia at the moment there's a plan afoot to set up a treatment centre for addicts, as a sort of test case for the whole of the country, and while this must still pass both federal and provincial governments, it's at least a hope that some intelligent approach will be made to an old and tragic problem.

It's an important problem now. Addiction is on the increase, particularly among younger men, in spite of the claim of police departments that the stuff was never as hard to obtain.

It's a problem to be dealt with cautiously, too. Many informed doctors and jurists feel that there's no final solution except to completely eliminate the source of supply.

Different Opinions

There's some considerable difference of opinion on the Alcoholics Anonymous approach—a kind of group therapy in which drunks conquer their problem by confronting it together, but it's well to remember that AA, itself, now generally accepted, was not born without its share of derision.

Recently I've been discussing the Addicts Anonymous idea with some men who might qualify as experts, including two of the founders of AA, a doctor, a police court magistrate and a former drug addict.

The latter was also an alcoholic and has been a member of AA for about a year. He's a rare case of a man with two vices (or diseases, to put it more properly), since very few alcoholics are also in the narcotic group. The drinkers usually depend on drugs of the hypnotic-sedative type, such as membutal, seconal, sodium amytal and phenobarbital.

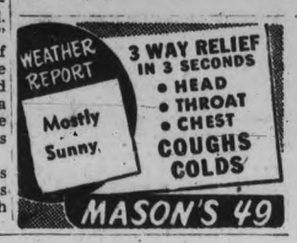
"I'm a self-made expert on both addiction and alcoholism," this middle-aged man told me wryly. "I'm convinced that addicts who sincerely want to quit, as I did, have just as much chance as the boozers. They need the fellowship and understanding of men who know their problem and who can look at it without hypocrisy."

The doctor disagreed. He pointed out that many men become drunks through being exposed to liquor socially. The drug addict is frequently anti-social, an introvert who would not readily respond to the group or brotherhood idea essential in AA.

"In every way the man who takes narcotics is a tougher nut to crack," he said. "He is a man with obviously less will power, hence a poor risk for voluntarily adjusting himself, and the effects of drugs are so much farther reaching than alcohol that the road back is considerably more difficult and complicated."

Doubted Usefulness

The police court magistrate (who pointed out that the problem involves many women as well as men) felt that AA or some such organization might well assist addicts by giving them medical advice and encouragement, but he doubted if they'd respond to the mutual-help method.

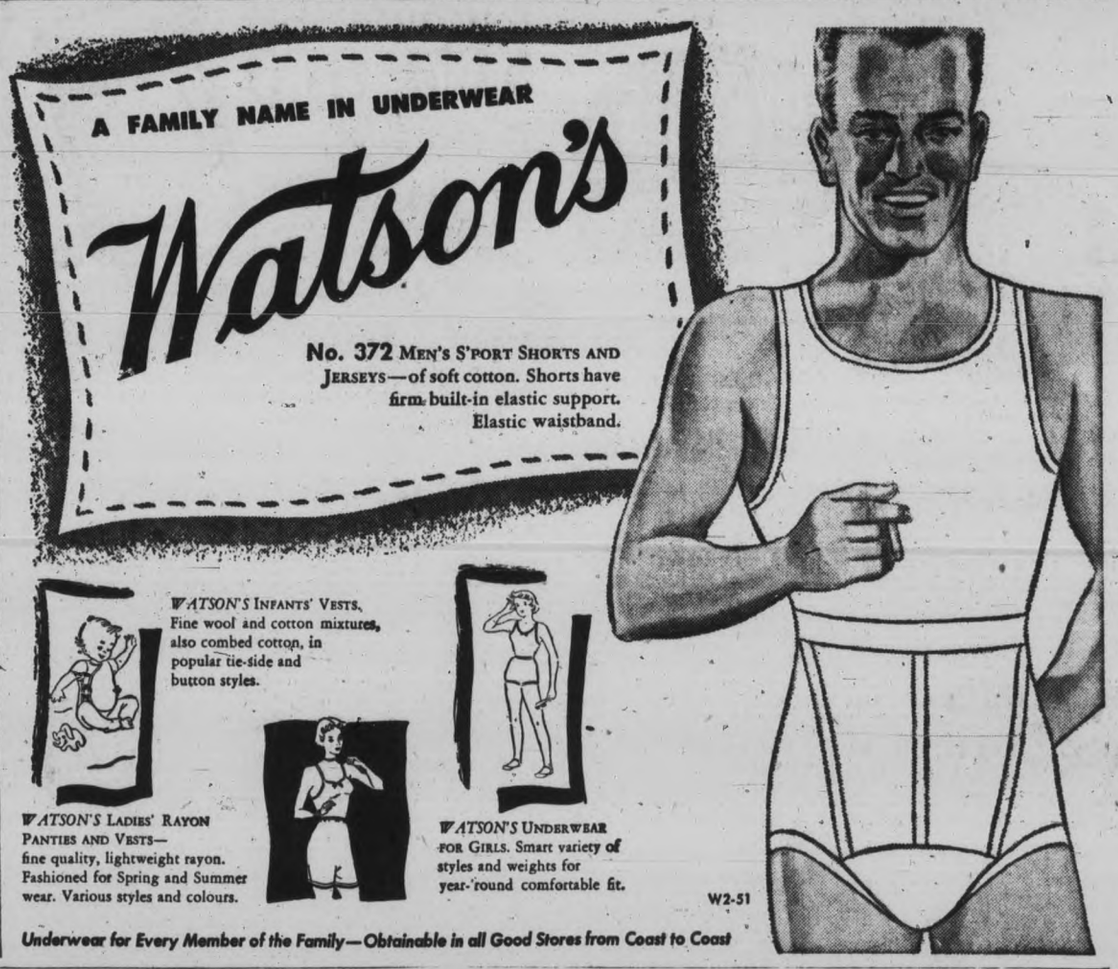


"Might be possible with some," he agreed, "but a good many of the addicts who come before me have mental quirks and warped personalities. The alcoholic is a far simpler and more adjustable person and that's why AA has succeeded."

The two members of Alcoholics Anonymous, both men whose lives have become worth living through that group, are inclined to take the optimistic view. "We believe in miracles," one said with the religious enthusiasm of the saved.

"The basic psychological difficulties of the addict and the alcoholic are pretty much the same," he said. "Each has the same unstable personality, the same desire for escape and sensation, the same inability to meet the normal stresses and crises of life without artificial stimulation or an outlet into illusion."

These men would advocate a plan by AA to invite drug addicts into their membership with the eventual idea of forming a purely addict group if the original experiment worked out. They think it would be a fine idea, too, if AA could arrange for talks and psychiatric lectures to addicts while they are still doing time.



It's the kind of thing that might die a natural death from the sheer weight of obstacles in its path. On the other hand, like Alcoholics Anonymous, itself, it might be a God-send to many thousands of persons with ruined, wasted lives.

Pension Pact Near Completion

OTTAWA, May 3 — (CP) — Justice Minister Garson said Wednesday night the federal government has reached agreement with a majority of the 10 provinces on a constitutional proposal lead to a system of old age pension [illegible].

He said he did not wish to name the provinces that have already reached agreement with the federal government because it would point up those yet to sanction the phrasing of a proposed constitutional amendment.

"And we expect agreement from all provinces shortly," he added.

Longer Work Hours Urged For Canadians

TORONTO, May 3 — (CP) — James Stewart, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Wednesday called for longer hours of work and a return to the labor force of retired persons and housewives if Canada is to increase its physical output.

Speaking at the three-day annual conference of the Association of Canadian Advertisers, Mr. Stewart said increase in production will also entail a natural increase in the labor force and the transfer of workers from non-essential industries.

"We stand at the beginning of an era which may mean 10 or 20 years of defence preparations—which may mean many years of all-out war, or which may mean peace," he said. "In any case, we should prepare for the future by extending and sustaining our productive capacity."

The question of inflation is a thorny one, Mr. Stewart said, but reduced consumption or, alternatively, increased production, is the simplest of solutions.

Suggests Housing Plan

TORONTO, May 3 — (CP). — A start by Toronto on a long-range, low rental housing plan was recommended Wednesday by H. S. Rupert, city welfare commissioner. It would replace emergency housing projects now being closed down, he said in a report to the welfare committee.

St. Laurent Hoping US Will Back Seaway

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Wednesday the Canadian government has not yet given up hope that the United States will join Canada in a joint undertaking of the St. Lawrence seaway.

However, he told Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) in the Commons that the government is not in a position to make an accurate forecast on the prospects of an early start on a joint undertaking.

The seaway and power development project, which already has Canada's blessing, currently is under survey by a U.S. congressional committee. The scheme, which the U.S. government also endorses, has not yet been able to win the approval of Congress itself.

Film Board's Picture Makes Top 10 List

NEW YORK, May 3—(CP)—The National Film Board's "Family Circles" has been chosen among the 10 outstanding films of 1950 by audio-visual education leaders, Scholastic Teacher announced Wednesday.

The 16-millimetre film was shown at the educational film festival at Columbia University.

It was produced by Gudrun Parker and directed by Morten Parker, with Grant McLean as cameraman.

Try To Mechanize Diamond Work

WINNIPEG —(CP)— A Canadian, Dr. John T. Williamson of Montreal, several years ago discovered one of the world's richest diamond mines in Tanganyika, British East Africa.

Now another Canadian, Robert A. Kipp of Winnipeg, may help mechanize the diamond-extracting process at present done by hand by native labor.

The firm, Kipp Kelly Ltd., manufacturers concentrating and separating machinery used in the mining industry. Several months ago it received an inquiry about machinery which could separate diamond concentrates.

Mr. Kipp suggested samples be sent for laboratory tests here. But it developed Dr. Williamson was not allowed to ship diamond concentrates out of Tanganyika, so it was decided the Winnipegger should make the 10,000-mile air journey with sample machines for on-the-spot tests.

The company previously has sold machines to the tin-mining industry in Nigeria, to a Wolfram plant in Egypt and to mining concerns in North Africa, Australia, Scandinavia and other countries.

O'Dwyer Says Critics Try To Discredit Him

MEXICO CITY, May 3 (AP)—U.S. Ambassador William O'Dwyer Wednesday night accused his critics of trying to "discredit" him "for reasons unknown to me." He added he had "no fear."

O'Dwyer's statement was his first reply to the United States Senate Committee report which charged him with contributing to the growth of organized crime in New York, and to individual Senators who demanded that he either resign or be recalled.

WA To Hold Maytime Tea

BETHANY, May 3 (ENS) — Mrs. J. J. Clarke entertained the members of the Women's Association of the United Church on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. A. H. Monk presiding. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. T. Jackson. The treasurer reported the net proceeds of the dinner served to the Peterborough Presbytery delegates as being $32.22. Mrs. James Hampson, Mrs. C. Page, Miss Elsie Richardson and Mrs. Clarke Pomeroy were appointed as delegates to attend the Women's Presbytery meeting to be held at Hastings on May 9.

A Maytime Tea was planned to be held in the church basement on May 15 with group leaders appointed in charge of arrangements. A collection of $3.35 was received.

The program was in charge of group five. Mrs. T. Malcomson gave a reading "What Have I To Praise God For." Mrs. H. Jakeman read a poem "Maytime Is Spring Cleaning Time." Mrs. R. Carr sang "It Is No Secret." Mrs. A. H. Monk gave a talk on the topic of the meeting "The Parable of the Sower" comparing the sowing of seeds in different types of soil to the growth of Christ's kingdom in human hearts. Mrs. Harvey Fallis and Mrs. Wellington Fallis sang "I Heard the Voice of Jesus." Mrs. Harold Sanderson gave a reading "As We Grow Older." Mrs. A. Thorndyke gave a reading "Weeds And Their Habits."

Following the closing exercises, the hostess served lunch, assisted by Mrs. T. Malcomson and Mrs. Harvey Fallis.

Miss Lily Thompson tendered the thanks of the ladies to Mrs. Clarke for the use of her home.

Suspend Marshall Aid

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP)— The United States today suspended Marshall Plan Aid to the Republic of Ireland on grounds it no longer is needed. The economic co-operation administration announced the United States has allocated $146,200,000 to Ireland under the aid program since it started three years ago.

Local, Foreign Missions Subject Of Talk

LAKEFIELD, May 3 —(ENS)— Mrs. F. Harris of Peterborough was guest speaker at the annual church service of the Missionary and Service Club held in Lakefield United Church on Sunday evening.

She spoke on missionaries abroad and at home.

Assisting with the service was Mrs. Lloyd Bailey, Mrs. George Carey, and Mrs. W. Whetung. The offering was taken by Mrs. Carm. Payne and Miss Irene Darling.

Mrs. Don Hendren sang a solo, and the choir an anthem. John David Grylls was at the organ.

Following the service, a friendship hour was held in the church parlor. Mrs. W. Whetung, president of the Missionary and Service Club, presided at the tea table which was laid with lace cloth, tall candles, silver service and centred with spring flowers. Mrs. Harris was presented with a bouquet of flowers by Mrs. L. Leonard from the club.

Seamen Refuse Work With Scabs

WELLINGTON, May 3 (Reuters)—British merchant seamen in this New Zealand port today refused to work with "scab" dockers who abandoned the waterfront strikers and formed a government-approved trade union.

The government withdrew recognition from the dockers' union because it backed the wage strike which has imperilled the country's industrial life for the last 10 weeks.

In Auckland, the other chief trouble spot, about 300 pro-government dockers went to work this morning escorted by the biggest force of police and servicemen ever seen there.

The men were taken to the docks in army trucks manned by armed soldiers, sailors and airmen. There was no trouble.

Wellington, Auckland, Christchurch and Dunedin — life-line ports of the island dominion — were still half idle today. The dockers' work was done mainly by armed forces.

Thirty-three-year-old Roger DeFoy died of a heart seizure while on bail awaiting trial on the charge of breaking and entering.

At the preliminary hearing of the case, Mr. DeFoy elected trial by a higher court, and this was to have taken place very soon in Cobourg.

Primary demands for energy were 21.8 per cent higher last week than in the same week a year ago.

He said the death toll now was 10, including six dockyard workers. Three local dockyard workers were missing, presumed dead. Eleven others were known to be seriously injured.

Clean Chimney Will Erase Greatest Single Fire Hazard

By BOB SCHARFF

DEFECTIVE CHIMNEYS cause more house fires than any other single known cause.

A chimney is a necessity with any fuel-burning equipment. When properly designed and cared for, it will always give good service. But a chimney that is defective or lined with soot is the greatest single known cause of house fires.

No chimney should be allowed to go more than a year without inspection and cleaning. A visual inspection of the chimney can be done with a flashlight from the top or with a flashlight and a mirror at the furnace clean-out door in the base. If there are thick deposits of soot, it obviously needs cleaning.

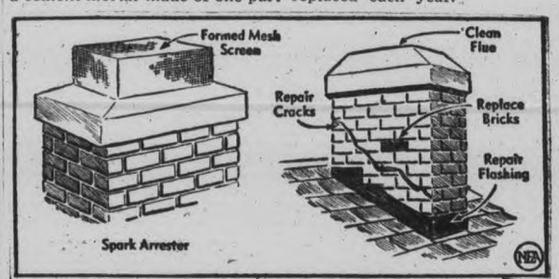
To clean the flue, stuff a burlap bag with excelsior and weight it down with two or three bricks. This is tied to one end of a rope and is lowered and raised several times in the flue. Be sure the bag is not so full that it might stick in the chimney.

If the chimney serves a fireplace, cover the fireplace opening with a piece of cloth hung from the mantle, to prevent soot and ashes from entering the room. Professional chimney cleaners nowadays use vacuum cleaners to avoid dirtying the house.

Chemicals are not recommended for use in cleaning chimneys or heating equipment. Some have been found to be made of common salt, which is not effective in removing soot. Other materials tested are oxidizing agents, which if applied to soot at high temperatures and in sufficient quantities may produce an explosion or intense uncontrolled combustion. The danger of fires from these chemical soot removers is great.

Once the chimney is clean, it should be inspected for leaks around the furnace connections. If any of these are found, they should be cemented up with one part of sand to one part of cement.

To test the chimney for any possible leaks, start a fire in the stove, furnace or fireplace and when it is burning briskly, throw on some material that will cause smoke. When the smoke from this appears, the top of the chimney should be covered with a board or piece of wet carpet. The smoke in the flue will then seek another exit and will disclose any leaks that may be in the masonry.



Once a leak has been located, remove all the loose mortar around it with a sharp object such as an ice pick. Remove all dust that remains in the joint with a stiff brush. Dampen the surrounding area and refill the crack with a cement mortar made of one part cement to three parts fine sand. Chimneys serving gas-burning equipment require special attention because water vapor, formed by the combustion of gas fuel, may condense and form diluted acids. Without the protection of a flue liner these acids may attack both the mortar and the brick, eventually weakening the chimney.

Therefore, homes heated with gas should consult a chimney expert or the local gas company on the condition of their chimney.

To avoid sparks flying out of a chimney top, and also to keep insects and small animals from climbing down the flue, a piece of wire screening should be built across the top of the flue and embedded in the chimney. Be careful not to use a wire of too fine a mesh, because this may have a tendency to choke the draft. It also should be cleaned or replaced each year.

DUCK!!—These three U.S. soldiers jam their faces against protective rocks when enemy mortar shells explode uncomfortably close. They're part of the forces fighting desperately to slow the all-out offensive of Chinese Communists in Korea.

Boy Chess Champion Three Years In Row

LONDON— (CP) — Malcolm Barker, 16-year-old Birmingham schoolboy, has been crowned British Boys' Chess Champion for the third successive year.

In a round-robin tournament against four opponents, he won three games and tied one, finishing half a point ahead of R. E. Borland, of Plymouth. The feat of winning the title three years running has been accomplished only twice before in the 26 years' history of the event.

Barker will represent England in the first world junior chess championship at Birmingham in June. Entries have already been received from Canada, Australia and Argentina and 15 other European countries are expected to be represented.

Pastor Busy Man, Accountant Too

TORONTO— (CP) —By day Denys Rankilor works as an accountant.

By night—and on Sundays—he becomes the Rev. Denys Rankilor, rector of St. Martin's-on-the-Hill reformed Episcopal church.

But even two jobs aren't enough for the young Cambridge graduate.

When he makes his pastoral call he asks to see the children's report cards. If a student has fallen down in one or two subjects Mr. Rankilor becomes an unpaid tutor, going to the home and coaching the child in his weak subject.

"Education consists of physical, mental and spiritual training," says the rector, "and to arrive at this we use the home, school and church."

Being both preacher and accountant has its problems. Often he is called upon to hold special services, such as funerals, on week-days.

"You have to be able to prove to your employer that you are of value to him, even though you must take time off during working hours," said Mr. Rankilor. "And you have to be good to do that—and work an average 16 hours a day, seven days a week."

Movement Grows

GUELPH — (CP) — Suggestion that a national junior farmers' organization was a possibility in the near future was made by Jack Cockburn, of Drumbo, president of the Ontario Junior Farmers' Association, at a meeting here.

SPRINGTIME IS SARNAK TIME

after a long Winter your resistance is low, old troublesome symptoms are apt to bother you

Rheumatic, arthritic, neuritic pains, sciatica, backache, bilious dizzy spells, some kidney and liver and stomach upsets, indigestion, heartburn, bloat, getting up nights, lack of energy, nutritional anemia and nervousness and sleeplessness due to these symptoms.

READ BELOW WHAT SARNAK IS DOING FOR OTHERS

Mrs. Phil Annweiller, 225 Avenue E. South Saskatoon, Sask., writes — "For the last fifteen years I have suffered greatly with Rheumatic pain and pain rising from a Gall Bladder condition. Although I have taken many forms of analgesic, nothing I took seemed to help me. Just recently I read about Sarnak and bought my first bottle. I am thankful to say that Sarnak has been a great help to me right from the very first. It relieve my pain as nothing else I have taken.

Mrs. George Weston, Selkirk, Man., writes — "I must thank you for what Sarnak has done for me. I am now starting my fifth bottle. I have suffered with the pain of Varicose Veins for a long time and Sarnak certainly has relieved my pain. The pain was so bad that I was unable to do my housework, but since taking Sarnak I am able to get about as usual."

Mr. M. R. Sereda of Beaverdale, Saskatchewan, writes — "For quite some time I suffered with Neuritic and Arthritic pains in my left leg and shoulder. I couldn't move my leg or walk during my last attack for the pain. I started taking Sarnak and after my first bottle the pain was relieved and I can now get around and do some work. I am going to continue with Sarnak for I know it will benefit me."

Mr. Gustav Roemer, 138 Aherns St. W., Kitchener, Ontario, is over 70 years of age and is an engineer who suffered on and off for 16 long years with upset stomach, bilious dizzy spells and indigestion. Mr. Roemer started taking SARNAK and wrote us as follows: "SARNAK brought me relief within a few days. My poor health had made me nervous and almost afraid to eat. I can truly say now that SARNAK relieved my stomach upset and nervousness. I'm grateful for what SARNAK has done for me."

Mrs. F. Plouffe, Point St. Charles, Montreal, Quebec, is 60 years of age and had suffered with rheumatic pain in the knees and sharp pain in the small of the back. After Mrs. Plouffe had used just one bottle of SARNAK she wrote: "I was in such pain I could hardly do my work and had trouble getting my proper rest. The first bottle of SARNAK relieved my pain; allowed me to do my housework. I don't know how to thank you for what SARNAK has done for me."

Mr. Stanley P. Dexter, Deep Cove, B.C. is a retired locomotive engineer and 64 years of age. Mr. Dexter had suffered from arthritic pain in both knees and his left hip for seven years until he started to take SARNAK, but here's what Mr. Dexter says: "I tried many different kinds of medicine to relieve my pain but nothing helped until I started taking SARNAK. I got relief from the first day with SARNAK and continued taking it because of the good it did me.

Mrs. C. E. Lyons, Burdett, Alberta, is now 74 years of age and has enjoyed good health, but a few months ago Mrs. Lyons started to suffer from rheumatic and arthritic pain in her knees and legs. Mrs. Lyons tried several things but nothing helped. Here is what she wrote after taking SARNAK: "After taking SARNAK for two months I am free of stabbing arthritic pain. Right from the first two or three doses SARNAK helped me. Now, of course, I wouldn't be without it.

Making Money On Wool Natives Enjoy Air Trips

JOHANNESBURG—(CP)— An almost naked Basuto boy stepped from an airplane here the other day. Unconcernedly he strolled up and down until the coolness made him wrap himself in his brightly-colored blanket.

Passengers and airport officials in South Africa are becoming accustomed to such sights as these. But the Basutos who fly today, were yesterday on their ponies, and probably never before saw an airplane or a train.

The lives of the 564,000 Basutos who live in the beautiful mountains of the 12,000-square-mile British Protectorate between the Orange Free State, Cape Province and Natal are changing rapidly.

For the Basutos are mostly sheep- farmers, and of all sheep farmers they pay no income tax on the fortunes they have been reaping in the wool boom of the last few years.

The Money

Now they're in the money and some of the best wool-growers are getting cheques for as much as £2,000 ($6,000) at a time. But they're thrifty people. When a payment of £7,000 was arranged for a Basuto co-operative of 200 members, they told the district commissioner they would like to cash the cheque. The plane that brought the cash returned with £4,000 of it to be placed in the savings bank.

Other natives hoard their earnings in a hole in the wall or a niche in the floor.

Enlightened Race

The Basutos however are not content with merely saving their money. More than any other tribe they appreciate the benefits of education. They are planning to impose a graded levy on wool profits to speed developments of their schools. At least two-thirds of their children now receive free schooling, a very high attendance record for African natives.

Many of them are buying "luxuries" that were only dreamt of in former years. They ride down the steep gullies on their ponies to local stores to purchase dress lengths for their women, and the multi-colored blankets that are their national costume. They order bicycles and baths, refrigerators and expensive saddlery.

In a region where the only roads are mere tracks, air travel has made an enormous appeal to the natives. Five chartered air companies operate to Basutoland while planes are frequently chartered for special trips by parties of natives. Football fans for instance recently hired an airplane to attend a match at a place that would have taken them three days to reach by horse.

Tom Gard's Note Book

It is supposed to be everyone's duty to take an interest in community and municipal affairs. Realizing that my participation in such things was nil, I decided to attend an open meeting called by the local Junior Chamber of Commerce for their annual spring clean-up, paint-up, plant-up campaign. Things turned out as I might have expected! Home beautification is one subject on which I can really get wound up. As you may have guessed, I talked myself right into a job helping to organize the program. Oh well, it's one job I'll like as time spent trying to help people improve the appearance of their home and their property is time well spent.

Does Your Gate Say Welcome

One task I must do this spring is finish the entrance to our garden behind the house. The barbecue was completed last year and some of the border planting but nothing was done to divide the service area from the garden area. I decided on a white random-width picket fence and have been collecting old packing box boards, cleaning them up and applying the first coat of paint. The archway will offer support for some climbing roses I'm going to plant as soon as I can get them. My dahlias, too, must be divided and planted soon.

Storm Door to Screen Door

I'm certainly glad time was found last fall to convert that screen door into a storm door. It has saved fuel and made the back hallway much warmer. The task was not difficult once started and angle irons at the four corners took the extra weight of the glass. Now the door stays put and just the screen and window section is changed each year.

An idea that has been filed away for the future was picked up in Orillia the other day. A young couple I was visiting had taken a cheap office table, cut the legs off, made a shelf of the drawer cavity and finished it up as a coffee table. Painted black and trimmed with gold it was right smart and blended well with their other furniture.

Slipper Chairs

All of the cleaning up is not being done outside these days. I found my wife making slipper chairs for the bedrooms out of three old kitchen chairs she picked up at an auction several days ago. All the talent is not confined to one side of this household!

Mayor Charges Data Withheld

LONDON, Ont., May 3 (CP).—A charge by Mayor Allan J. Rush that Chief Constable A. E. Knight is "reluctant" about giving him information on police department matters was denied by the chief at a London Police Commission meeting Wednesday.

The exchange was over a sergeant's report on an incident involving one of the detectives and a constable.

"There is a right way and a wrong way to do things," the chief said, and made no move to comply when the mayor asked for the report and held out his hand.

The report had been read aloud on instruction of chairman Judge Ian MacRae after the chief told Magistrate Donald Menzies there was no reason it should not be.

The chief had returned the report to his desk when the mayor again said: "Let me see it."

Chief Knight made no move from the table where he sits with the commissioners.

Mayor Rush rose and walked toward the chief's desk.

"Don't touch that desk," said the chief.

The mayor stopped, turned about and returned to his chair.

At the chairman's request Chief Knight again produced the report and placed it in front of Mayor Rush. The mayor glanced at it briefly and passed it back.

Mayor Rush said that as mayor he felt he should have access to police department matters the same as with other city departments.

Chief Knight contended the mayor should act through the commission.

Famous Male Quartet Final Concert Series

The Revelers, famous male quartet, will be guest artists at the last of the 1950-51 series of the Peterborough Community Concerts Friday night at the collegiate auditorium.

Equipped with an extensive and varied repetoire especially arranged for them, the quartet sings entirely in English. Versatility is another pleasing characteristic of the Revelers' singing. Their program ranges from Bach to Gershwin.

The members of the group are: William Hogue, tenor; Thomas Edwards, tenor; Calvin Marsh, baritone; Wilfred Glenn, bass. Each member of the group is a soloist of established reputation.

The quartet will be accompanied by Paul Sargent, pianist-composer, who will play one of his own compositions at the concert.

3 Children Drown

HOSLTOWN, Sask., May 3 — (CP). — Three young children were drowned Wednesday while fording Eagle Creek half a mile from their home. They were the children of Jan Czubak: Saphie 12, John 8, Billy 6. A fourth child Jeannie 10 escaped by grabbing hold of the harness of a team of horses as the buggy they were pulling floundered under water.

Believe US Beef Ceilings Mainly Seasonal Trend

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP).—Government meat experts said Wednesday that a U.S. price control program for beef—if it works — may lead to lower prices for beef at Canadian butcher shops.

But they viewed with some doubt whether initial price ceilings announced by the United States last Saturday will do more than follow seasonal price trends for that product.

"The ceilings will have to be lower than those announced if there is to be a material reduction in beef prices," one authority said.

In Washington, a U.S. Senate agriculture committee said the government's price control order on beef will cause "a severe meat famine leading to early rationing." It adopted a resolution calling for repeal of the order "without delay.")

Under the American price control program, retail prices for beef will be cut four to five cents a pound Aug. 1 and again by the same amount Oct. 1, making a total rollback of 10 cents a pound at the butcher shop.

Beef, however, usually is more plentiful in the fall than at any time of the year. And this is the time when prices normally decline slightly.

Normal Development

The experts believed the rollback would just about equal the normal seasonal price drop. The price rises sharply again during winter months. It was their feeling that if the U.S. continues to hold the price line during the winter at the level established during the fall, then there may be some consumer savings on both sides of the border.

Canada's beef prices have been geared to American levels ever since Canada lifted the embargo on cattle shipments to the U. S. five years ago.

Canadian beef is attracted by high American prices. About 20 per cent of all beef marketed by Canada, or the equivalent of about 620,000 head of cattle and calves a year, finds its way into the American market. This is about 2.17 per cent of American production.

This year, a new problem has been injected into the Canadian meat picture. Marketings have declined and experts estimate there may be about 10 per cent less beef for sale by Canada this year than the 2,123,000,000 pounds last year.

Just what impact this decline will have on prices is still unknown. This will depend on American demand, and American price controls.

Canadians are eating less and less beef as prices climb, and the same appears true for the U.S. But this lower per capita consumption hasn't prevented prices from climbing. Sirloin steak, which sold at about 70 cents a pound at the butcher shop a year ago, now is selling at 90 cents a pound or better.

Special Stamps

LONDON, May 3 (AP). — Special postage stamps commemorating the Festival of Britain went on sale in all British postoffices today as the big show began. The Postmaster-General, said the Festival stamps would appear in two denominations, 2½-penny and four penny. Both will be double the normal stamp size and will have designs symbolic of the Festival.

Not Much Change

OTTAWA, May 3 — (CP). — Government-guaranteed housing loans in the first quarter of this year were issued at about same rate as the corresponding period of last year. In the Commons on Wednesday, Reconstruction Minister Winters informed Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw) 5,764 loans for 7,649 units were made this year, compared with 5,871 loans for 7,493 units.

Ottawa Won't Interfere With Rail Strike Award

OTTAWA, May 3 — (CP). — The Canadian Government does not plan to interfere with the award made by its arbitrator in settling the wage-hour dispute that led to a nine-day general railway strike last year.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons Wednesday he would not ask Parliament to intervene. He spoke before members voted 134 to 39 against a CCF move to force the government to reconsider the award.

The motion, sponsored by Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre), sought to revise the railway strike decision to grant to approximately 9,000 hotel and water-transport workers the same settlement terms given 125,000 railway workers generally. The award was made by Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada, the government-appointed arbitrator.

The arbitrator, appointed by virtue of legislation adopted by Parliament at a special session last fall, granted the railway workers a seven-cent-an-hour pay boost, a two-year contract and a 40-hour week to begin this June 1.

One-Year Contract

The hotel and water-transport workers, members of the same unions involved in the strike, received the four-cent wage increase contained in the strike legislation and a one-year contract which expires in September.

Mr Knowles and other Opposition speakers said Prime Minister St. Laurent had left the impression with Parliament last September that all those involved in the dispute would be given equal treatment.

In the vote, the CCF motion won support from the Social Credit and Progressive Conservative Parties and three Liberals.

Provokes Debate

In the Senate, a bill increasing the size of the council which administers the northwest territories provoked an hour-long debate. Senator John T. Haig, opposition leader, said the northwest territories should be made part of the three prairie provinces by extending provincial boundaries northward.

The government, for the second time in a month, rejected a prairie demand for another $48,000,000 to settle a troublesome five-year western wheat pool.

The demand was based on the domestic price farmers received for their wheat during the first two years of the 1949-50 wheat pool, when wartime price control still existed.

A delegation representing major western farm organizations, including the wheat pools and farmers' unions, called on the cabinet to make the $48,000,000 contribution which would be in addition to the $65,000,000 already contributed by the government.

In the rail debate, Mr. St. Laument said that he had merely told the Chamber that the government did not feel it should ask any of the unions involved to "abandon any of their fellows with whom they had bound themselves together for a common cause."

His Responsibility

The government had said it was recommending a four-cent wage increase for all groups, but that that was all it was doing. The arbitrator would have before him "the example of what the government was recommending to parliament and what parliament was doing, but . . . it would be his responsibility to make the decision."

He had not considered the government's example to be binding on the arbitrator.

Mr. Knowles said the operative sections of the strike legislation had not given effect to the expressed intention of parliament to see all parties to the dispute treated equally.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said he felt those involved in the dispute had had good reason to believe that none would be excluded from the final settlement.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said he was sure such an impression had been left with all parties to the dispute when the legislation was being discussed last fall.

Quebec Agreement

QUEBEC, May 3—(CP)—The Quebec government has reached agreement with the Federal authorities on a constitutional proposal covering a system of old age pensions at 65, it was learned Wednesday unofficially. Under the pension proposals, Federal and provincial governments would share the cost of $40-months pensions, extended on a means-test basis, to persons aged 65 to 69.

Caterpillars Early

TORONTO, May 3 (CP) — Tent caterpillars are hatching in Ontario's Muskoka area, two weeks earlier than last year, the lands department announced Wednesday. "Northeastward from the Muskoka area, there will be noticeable evidence of hatching within a matter of a few days toward North Bay and Sault Ste. Marie," it said.

Request Uniformity

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP) — The Canadian Postmasters' Association Wednesday passed resolutions calling for uniformity in statutory holidays for postmasters and rural letter carriers, a 44-hour week for some postmasters and annual sick leave for certain others. The group, meeting in convention here, later presented their resolutions to W. J. Turnbull, deputy postmaster-general. R. F. Shantz of Preston, Ont., was elected vice-president.

Aid For Koreans

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., May 3 (AP)—The United Nations said Wednesday that 41 member countries have pledged $225,000,000 for the relief of civilians in war-torn Korea—$25,000,000 short of the goal. It does not include an estimated $85,000,000 which the U.N. said the United States has already spent for civilian relief in Korea.

Farm Labor Drops

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP) — The persistent drift of farmhands to the cities is reflected in the latest figures on Canada's labor force issued Wednesday by the Bureau of Statistics. The new labor force high of 5,172,000 at March shows a drop of 97,000 farm workers from a year earlier and an increase of 161,000 non-agricultural workers. The total is up by 64,000 in the year.

Eskimo Serves As Chief Pilot

CHURCHILL, Man. —(CP)— Eskimo John Ell has been official pilot at one of the world's most northerly harbors for more than 30 years. And he's the official interpreter, too.

He has been in Fort Churchill hospital most of the winter undergoing treatment. There, he finds the central heating a pleasant contrast to the igloo he lives in at Coral Harbor, on Southampton Island at the top end of Hudson Bay.

Southampton Island is 500 miles northeast of this Hudson Bay port.

Mr. Ell first saw a white man when a United States whaler put into Coral Harbor when he was six. Later he joined a whaler crew and learned the English that has stood him in good stead as an interpreter throughout his adult life.

When not serving as pilot or interpreter, he hunts white fox and norwhal, the latter for its tusks. On his hunting trips over the polar ice he uses 12 dogs, hitched fan style.

MASTER BEDROOM — New official home of Canada's prime minister has this main bedroom suite of two rooms with a connecting dressing room. Besides the master bedroom there are six guest rooms at 24 Sussex Street.

Ex-D.V.A. Deputy Asked To Write History

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP)—Walter S. Woods, former deputy minister of Veterans Affairs, has been engaged to write a history of what Canada has done for her veterans, a Commons return said Wednesday.

Now retired and living in Vancouver, Mr. Woods has some stenographic assistance from the DVA office in that city, the return told John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre).

Mr. Woods, an artillery sergeant in the First World War, was the main figure in the long studies and discussions which culminated in Canada's Veterans Charter, the document embodying all legislation for former servicemen.

Both Drivers In Accident Face Charges

Two Cars Crashed Head-on On Hill. Four Men Injured

Both drivers in an accident in which Mrs. Mrs. Irwin Yateman, RR 9, Peterborough, wife of one of the drivers, lost her unborn baby in the early hours of April 22, were charged in police court today. Their trials were set for May 17.

Yateman was charged with reckless driving and careless driving. Derek House, 665½ Reid St. driver of the other car, was charged with careless driving only.

The two cars crashed head-on on the Parkhill Rd. hill a short distance east of Aylmer St. Police said both drivers were in the centre of the street when they crashed.

Four men were injured in the accident. Injuries consisted mostly of cuts from flying glass and bruises. Both Yateman and House were hurt and Frank Hall, 605 Chamberlain St., a passenger in the car Yateman was driving, and Barrie Killborn, 856 George St., driving with House, also were injured.

Mrs. Yateman, who was eight months pregnant, was rushed to Civic Hospital, but her child was dead.

Yateman told police he was driving Hall's car because Hall was too drunk to drive. About $600 damage was done to the front of the House car and about $500 to the front of the car Yateman was driving.

CHIEF SURGEON of Women's College Hospital, Toronto, Dr. Jessie Gray, (centre) was guest speaker Wednesday evening at the annual banquet of the Civic Hospital Nurses' Alumnae. Thomson, superintendent of Civic Hospital School of Nursing, Mrs. Roy Taylor, president of the Alumnae Association, Dr. Gray, and representative of the '51 graduating class of Civic Hospital, Misses Dorothy Jackson and Betty Barr. —Examiner Staff Photo

Shift System To Be Used At Exam Time

With Crowded School General Congestion Expected at PCVS

New department of education regulations requiring all secondary school students to attend at least until June 6 will result in unprecedented congestion of students during the June examinations at PCVS.

Arising from the belief at Queen's Park that a certain amount of time is wasted in June and that secondary schools do not operate at full capacity that month, all the students in Ontario secondary schools will attend as least a week longer this year, as reported in the Examiner for Peterborough two weeks ago.

Different Systems

In some Ontario high schools if the students have 65 per cent or better during the term they are excused from the June examinations which begin early in June. This year these students will have to attend until June 8.

But that system has not been followed at PCVS for six years. The students there are all required to write June examinations whether they have a 65 per cent or better average throughout the term. C. S. Browne, principal, explained that the present system reduces the examination sets from three to two, allowing at least 10 days teaching during the two terms.

The June examinations in the past few years have begun around June 4 and were completed before the Grade 13 students began to write departmental examinations usually on June 12.

This year, Mr. Browne announced two weeks ago to comply with the regulation the Grades nine to 12, examinations will begin on June 11 and continue until June 21. The Grade 13 students begin departmental examinations on June 12 and finish June 22.

Congestion Expected

Usually the Grade 13 students are alone when writing but this year the whole school will be writing examinations causing unprecedented congestion. Since an empty desk must be left between each student, they take up twice as much room as normally.

Mr. Browne said that the present plan will place the Grade 13 students in the gymnasium where tables will be set up five feet apart and two or more teachers presiding. There the conditions will be fairly quiet and the students will not be disturbed. In case of warm weather, the gym will be cooler than other rooms.

Under the seating plan the capacity of the school is so reduced that it is not possible to have all classes writing at the same time. A shift system will be employed this year for the Grades nine to 12 examinations.

The new regulation is directed at schools where the students with the 65 per cent or better are excused from the June examinations. These students in some cases leave June 1. The regulation stems from a recommendation made by the Royal Commission on education which deplored the action of letting students in the lower forms out for the summer before the senior students.

Technically the spring term does not end until June 29. The commission would have all students in all forms attend until that date.

Dr. J. G. Althouse, Ontario director of education, said Wednesday night that the term was lengthened because the department, since it is giving large grants to school boards, wants to be sure that the schools are giving the maximum of schooling.

He also said that some school boards, in doubt about the closing date for secondary schools, had asked for clarification. The date of June 8 was given as being reasonable.

ONLY A MEAT HOOK

A frantic young housewife called city police this morning to come and shoot a snake she had found in the basement of her Aylmer St. south home.

Constable Louis Rodreque went to the house and the housewife from a good distance pointed to the snake on a shelf in a dark part of the cellar.

Constable Rodreque investigated what at first glance appeared to be a snake pearing out from behind a paper package on the shelf. He found — a meat hook.—B.H.

HOW BIG CAN THEY GET?

Sucker fishing stories are a dime a dozen these days. But news comes of a few monsters of the species that are being caught three miles north of Bonarlaw on the Moira river.

Small suckers down that way average 6 to 7 pounds, but the really large ones tip the scales at 15 pounds, or more. It is thought that these large fish, which have a peculiar all-over silvery scale, are different from the common variety. District people claim that they appear in no other streams of southern Ontario and that they are never seen returning downstream later in the season. NN.

4 Art Groups Hear Schlienger

A commentary address by renowned local artist Oscar Schlienger and four colored films on art were the highlights of a combined meeting of four Peterborough art groups at the public library Wednesday night.

The four groups attending were the Brush and Palette Club, the Men's Sketch Club, the Peterborough Group of Painters and Artists Anonymous.

Mr. Schlienger gave a commentary on the Canadian portrait paintings now on display at the library.

The films shown were: "Brush Technique," Chinese landscape painting and figure painting and "What is Modern Art?" The latter film was obtained especially for this showing from the National Film Board, Ottawa, who imported it from the Museum of Modern Art, New York city, New York. The former three films were obtained from the Canadian Film Institute.

Trade Minister Howe told the Commons in Ottawa Wednesday he is hopeful that there will be an adequate supply of fuel oil available for home furnaces next winter. He told G. K. Order Return Of Fine Paid By Russelle

Finds City Council Had No Authority To Carry Out Bylaw

Peterborough's by-law, regulating the hours of business for gasoline service stations in the city was ruled invalid Wednesday by the Ontario Court of Appeal. Justices Henderson, Laidlaw and Hope ordered a $50 fine collected by the city returned to John A. Russelle, north Water Street service station operator.

The Appeal Court ruled that the Council had no authority to carry out the by-law.

Twice in slightly more than two years county judges have upheld the by-law and Mr. Russelle has been fined $25 and costs, and $50 and costs. This decision of the Appeal Court kills the present city by-law, and it will have to be redrafted if the city wants a restriction on the hours of sale for gasoline.

Nine Charges Pending

At present nine charges of violating the by-law are pending—five of them against Mr. Russelle and one against Thompson Bros., two against Vincent Crebar, one against Harry Tudhope of the Parkhill Service Station.

Because of the Appeal Court decision all of them will likely be dismissed.

T. J. Carley, KC, went to the Appeal Court Monday to argue an appeal by Mr. Russelle against a conviction in February by Judge J. A. McGibbon in county court.

On November 1, Magistrate Baxter dismissed the charge claiming it was discriminatory, invalid and outside the powers of the city to enforce.

The city appealed the Magistrate's decision, and Judge McGibbon allowed the appeal and convicted Mr. Russelle.

On the first charge, laid in 1948, Mr. Russelle was convicted by Magistrate W. R. Philp and fined $25 and costs. He appealed but Judge S. L. Smoke upheld the validity of the bylaw and dismissed the appeal.

On that occasion it was not taken to the Court of Appeal.

Claimed Discrimination

The Factory, Shop and Office Building Act lays down the powers given to a municipality to enforce closing hours. Mr. Carley argued that the present bylaw is discriminatory.

It allows any operator who had been open for emergency road service for 364 consecutive days up to April 1, 1948, to obtain a permit to stay open 24 hours a day. Mr. Russelle had no permit.

Mr. Carley argued that the bylaw was dicriminatory as it would allow any operator who came within the provisions of the bylaw to have a monopoly in gasoline selling.

Sleepers Disturbed By Cement Trowel

Sleeping residents of the Benson Ave.-Wolsley St. area were jarred awake at 2:45 this morning by the loud clatter of a motor driven rotary cement trowel starting up.

The rackety machine is used to give a smooth surface to newly-poured cement that has set a few hours.

This one was being used to finish the floor of a garage a resident is going to build. After about 20 minutes the job was completed and neighbors tried to settle their shattered nerves and go back to sleep.

Ski Club Names James Craig Its President

James Craig, a member of the Peterborough Ski Club for the past six years, was elected president Wednesday night to succeed Eric (Toby) Westbye. Mr. Craig has served on the committees for training competition and ski patrol as well as being a promoter of skiing at Kemp's Hill.

Other officers elected were: vice-president, Jack Sackville; secretary, Mary Dodds and treasurer, Cyril Monkman. Committee chairmen are: Al Metcalfe, property; Don Denison, tows; Lois Enborg, membership and women's racing; Dave Johnson, men's racing; Ted McCaig, ski patrol; Toby Westbye, junior ski school; Shirley Sackville, phone and typing; Mollie Craig, instruction; Jack Sackville, publicity and advertising.

All the committees will organize in the next month and then will present their 1951-52 program at a June meeting.

Office Workers Leave Jobs Suspended For Day When They Return To Work

Impatient with a delay in contract negotiations, 360 CGE office workers walked off the job Wednesday afternoon to hold an emergency membership meeting. This morning the absentees were suspended for the day by the company when they returned to work. Union officials of Local 599, International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO-CCL), describe the company's action as a lockout. They claim that a lockout of office workers is without precedent in Canadian labor history.

J. E. Girven, assistant works manager, said the employees would lose their half day's pay Wednesday and full pay today.

Local 599, bargaining unit for 426 employees, has been negotiating with the company since January for the union's first contract.

The present company wage-offer, IUE officials say, is a minimum 14-cent-an-hour wage boost. That figure includes a $2-a-week cost-of-living bonus. The alternative is a nine per cent boost, plus the cost-of-living bonus.

The 14-cent offer is the same for both men and women.

Today at 1:30 p.m. the office workers will attend another membership meeting at the Orange hall to decide on a course of action.

Committee in Session

The half-day walkout Wednesday was staged while the negotiating committee was conferring with company representatives. One estimate is that 85 per cent of the bargaining unit left work. And well over 300 attended the meeting.

Joe Wirtz, IUE international representative, told the Examiner: "The company has so far failed to agree to any kind of settlement which is considered reasonable by the members of the union. Finally, Wednesday afternoon, a number of our members decided to leave work temporarily in order to hold an emergency meeting.

Claim Locked Out

"Today when they reported for work they were sent home," said Mr. Wirtz. "The Peterborough management of CGE this morning locked out its office employees."

He claimed that the best offer so far made by the company leaves 60 per cent of the office employees below the lowest paid production worker in the plant.

Some of the office workers worked briefly this morning, but at 9 a.m. they were told by their supervisors to return home.

"The membership is plenty heated up over this," said Mr. Wirtz.

On the negotiating committee are Orville Martin, president of Local 599, Dave Hatherly, A. E. Feeley, and Mr. Wirtz.

Mass Carp Hurt Yields 11 Fish

The carp menace in Rice Lake was more than resort operator Jack Doherty of Harwood could stand. He appealed to Conservation Officer Victor Harris of Gore's Landing to help him get rid of them in the marshes around his Cedar Cove Camp.

They tried shooting the fish without much success and in the evening, with about ten district people, supplied with confiscated spears by the game overseer, a mass hunt took place with much better results. They pulled ashore 11 carp that weighed well over 100 pounds. "A lot more fish had some big holes in them," said Mr. Doherty today.

He plans to continue cleaning out the fish menace and says that he hopes other resort operators will organize similar hunts for the betterment of the whole Rice Lake-Trent system. Mr. Doherty is past president of the Rice Lake Tourist Association.

Previously principals were selected from the ranks of high school teachers on the basis of their general teaching ability without any other check on their academic or administrative ability.

The new course will start this summer.

Court Tries Sheep Farmer For Shooting To Kill Dog

PORT HOPE, May 3.—A Newtonville sheep farmer, J. B. L. Cole, was charged in Port Hope Police Court this week with attempting to kill a neighbor's young dog. The trial was adjourned for judgment to May 12.

Cole told the court room, crowded mostly with his farm neighbors that he shot the dog with a .44-40 calibre hunting rifle because it was chasing his sheep. He said that he had much trouble with dogs chasing his sheep, but he thought this dog, Spot, owned by neighbor Harry Wade, had not bothered his sheep before.

"I shot to kill," Cole said, "but I missed."

Wounded Dog

The bullet ripped through the dog's shoulder and out its throat, witnesses said.

"He was bleeding badly when I found him," Wade told the court. "For a while I did not think he was going to live. The dog was led into court as an exhibit.

Mrs. Florence Cole, wife of the accused man, said that the morning of April 7, she looked out her kitchen window to the pasture where their sheep were grazing and saw them running.

"I said to my husband, 'There's a dog chasing the sheep.' But her husband could not see the dog at first. Mrs. Cole then said, "Hurry and get your gun, and this time kill it."

Mrs. Cole said she saw the dog separate two sheep from the panicky flock and chase them across the field.

"I saw them tearing across as tight as they could go across the field and the dog grabbing at their sides and pulling the wool out in bunches. Then when the dog reached the break in the fence, my husband raised his gun and fired. The dog yelped like everything," she exclaimed, "and rolled over and over like a ball, and then I went into the house, because I knew he had not killed him."

Cole said he did not know nor care that it was Wade's dog. He later went hunting for it, and found it lying in a creek bed.

"I raised my gun and shot to kill again and missed," Cole related. "When I hit him, he howled." The dog crawled away and was later found by his owner.

Court Stumped Too

TEMPLE CLOUD, England — (CP)—A doctor told a juvenile court in this Somerset village that a 14-year-old boy could not answer a question relating to the similarity between a cow, a snake and a sparrow. The court did not know and the doctor gave the answer: "They are all alive."

Beyond Criticism

SWANSEA, Wales—(CP) — A pottery society president intrigued by a poem in a magazine by Henry Vaughan, wrote inviting Vaughan to join the society. "Writers find our criticisms useful," the letter said. But Vaughan is beyond criticism—he died in 1695.

Government Poor Example In CuttingDown Expenses

MONTREAL, May 3— (CP)— Provinces and municipalities are setting a poor example in the matter of cutting down spending, says the Dominion Mortgage and Investments Association.

The federal government, too, in the association's opinion, is doing less than it should, and so are businesses and individuals.

The association's comment is made in the report of its officers' committee to the annual meeting today of member companies, which includes the majority of loan, turst and insurance companies in Canada. It says in part:

"In the area of fiscal policy the federal government deserves the commendation of every thinking Canadian for adopting a pay-as-you-go policy . . .

"What is to be deplored is that the budget this year is being balanced almost entirely by increased taxes rather than a real effort to cut non-essential spending. The fact that the upward trend in non-defence expenditures has been reversed is encouraging, but a reduction of less than two per cent in such expenditures is hardly good enough at a time when business and individuals are being urged to spend less and save more.

Provinces Not Trying

"The Dominion is making some effort to economize, but the provinces and municipalities are making little. This illustrates one of the grave difficulties of fiscal policy in a federal state. The good achieved by a reduction of expenditures at the federal level may be nullified by increases at other levels of government.

"Provincial governments are planning to spend more this year than last and municipal budgets generally are up substantially. Furthermore, both provinces and municipalities have plans for substantial capital projects which are not included in their ordinary budgets, so that they are a long way from a pay-as-you-go basis.

"To say the least, the provinces and municipalities are setting a poor example when people generally are being asked to cut spending and increase savings. They also have a responsibility in the fight against inflation . . .

Would Oppose Plan

"The provinces are also seeking an amendment to the constitution to give them power to levy a three-per-cent indirect sales tax. One of the major objectives of tax policy in recent years has been to eliminate the duplication and overlapping of taxes and tax powers. Now it is proposed to increase the duplication and overlapping.

"On this ground, as well as on many others, the proposal to give the provinces the right to levy an indirect sales tax should be opposed."

As to business and individuals: "Both have been increasing rather than decreasing their spending. In the past six months there has been a good deal of forward buying because of fear of shortages. This has merely aggravated inflationary pressures. The increase in income taxes and the taxes on spending (sales and excise taxes) will, of course, tend to reduce spending, but voluntary restraint is necessary."

Say Doing Best Keep Milk Down

TORONTO, May 3 — (CP) — Toronto consumers who fear the price of milk may rise as high as 24 cents a quart got some encouragement Wednesday from Mayor Hiram McCallum.

The consumers' representative on the Ontario Milk Control Board, Mayor McCallum said the board intends to make all concerned—producers and distributors—show reason why the increases should be put into effect. He added that the board is exploring all possible means of effecting economies and didn't think that Toronto would have 24-cent milk.

The board has two applications for increases on its hands. The first is from dairies who want prices raised to 21 cents from the present ceiling of 20½ cents for delivered milk. The farmers supplying the Toronto market asked Tuesday for a hike from $4.20 a hundredweight to $5.71.

The board wants more information from both groups and the price will remain stable for a while at least.

Newspaper Control

HONG KONG, May 3 (Reuters) —A bill giving the government of this British colony power to suppress or suspend a newspaper was introduced Wednesday in the Legislative Council. It provides for the control, including licencing, of printing presses and news agencies in this trading centre just off the coast of Communist China.

Need More Promotion To Get U.S. Tourists

LISTOWEL, May 3 (CP)This section of Western Ontario has tremendous tourist possibilities but little effort is put forth to sell it to American tourists, said Tom McCall, department of travel and publicity ,to a regional conference of Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade here Wednesday. Many United States dollars are escaping this year because of lack of promotion, he said.

He addressed about 60 representatives from Owen Sound, Kitchener. Guelph, Stratford, Toronto, Hanover, New Hamburg, Elmwood, Kincardine, Clinton, Mount Forest, Wingham, Chesley, Listowel.

Says Canada Now Grown Up To Great Nation

LONDON, May 3 (CP) — Viscount Simon said Wednesday Canada's decision to end appeals to the Privy Council shows that the country has grown in every respect to the status of a great nation and an equal partner with other nations in the British Commonwealth.

Lord Simon, presiding at one of the last Canadian appeals before the judicial committee of the Privy Council, said the committee accepted Canada's decision with complete fullness.

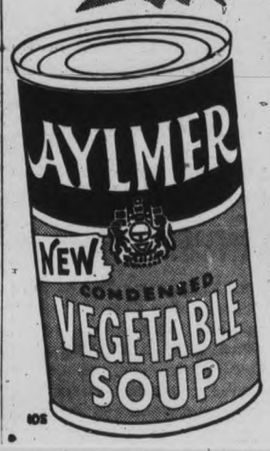
A bill abolishing appeals to the Privy Council was passed in the Canadian House of Commons Oct. 11, 1949 without lengthy debate. It was approved by the Senate Nov. 3. The measure, an amendment to the Supreme Court Act, made the nine-man Supreme Court of Canada the final arbiter in the country.

Senator J. W. deB. Farris of Vancouver, who represented a Canadian union in an appeal case, paid tribute to the Privy Council's work.

Need Special Education For Mentally Deficient

TORONTO, May 3 — (CP) — Adaptation of the mentally deficient to modern social life is one of the most serious problems of education, Dr. Garard L. Barbeau, director of psychological services at Mount Providence, Montreal, Wednesday told the annual meeting of the Canadian Welfare Council.

"Society at present will not give the mentally deficient any special consideration with regard to employment," he said. "In fact, it ordinarily discriminates against them. Therefore, the only protection of the mentally deficient is in special education."



The condition of mentally deficient persons was constitutional, not a temporary abnormal condition and could not be cured. Mental deficients needed special training, guidance and placement to profit from their schooling and to live a normal life as citizens and workers.

Approve Hope Report

TORONTO, May 3 — (CP) — Toronto and Kingston synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada Wednesday adopted a resolution calling on the Ontario Legislature to follow a recommendation by the Hope Commission on Education which limits separate schools to the teaching of pupils in Grades One to Six. They now carry on to Grade Eight.

Strong Hints Film Industry Should Make TV Movies

NEW YORK—(AP)—While the movie industry faces the problems of films for television, a survey shows that newspaper reading has been virtually unaffected by the increase in television and radio listening has been affected a lot less than many had expected.

A leading advertising agency, after a survey in all 48 states, reported "the number of persons who read daily and Sunday newspapers is about the same in homes with television as in homes without it." While radio listening drops when television comes into the home, 67 per cent of those with TV sets reported they still tune in radio too.

But the report said that movie attendance is apparently the hardest hit, with 18 per cent of those in homes without television attending on an average day, compared with only 12 per cent from homes with television.

This points directly to the problem facing the movie industry. The Federal Communications Commission has strongly hinted that the movie-makers should make their films available for television.

To which the movie industry replies, in effect: How can you sell a house that cost $100,000 to build to someone who can afford to pay about $4,000?

A good film costs around a million dollars and some much more —the forthcoming "Quo Vadis" hit $7,000,000. Very few of the top television programs cost as much as $40,000 to $50,000 for production of a one-hour show, which is exclusive of the costs for network and station broadcast time.

If this film is released on television so you can see it at home for nothing, who is going to pay to see it at a theatre, ask industry observers. And if the producer not only fails to make a profit but gets back only a fraction of his cost, how is he going to keep making films of that quality?

A number of movie companies have television and radio stations on the air or applications pending with the FCC. The industry is asking the FCC to set aside special television channels for use by theatres so they can have their own networks with television programs exclusively for theatre showing, to supplement film fare.

The FCC said that in considering applications it would examine the co-operation of the movies with television which, it declared needed Hollywood's films and services of Hollywood's stars — many of whom are required by their contracts to stay out of television.

However, a half dozen or more independent producers are turning out films specifically for television.

United Television Programs, Inc., with headquarters here, handles the television film output of four independent producers, particularly for second showings. But on the question of costs, a spokesman said a producer can't spend over $15,000 for a half-hour video film (at the rate of $30,000 an hour) and make a profit on it. Even at $15,000, he said, the producer has to sell the film for second or third showings before he gets onto the profit side.

Man Survives 16 Day Ordeal Locked In Cold Chamber

AUCKLAND, N.Z. — (CP) — Some people might like to be shut up for 16 days with unlimited supplies of rum and fruit juice, but Ivan Dunkley, 44-year-old Jamaican stevedore, is not one of them.

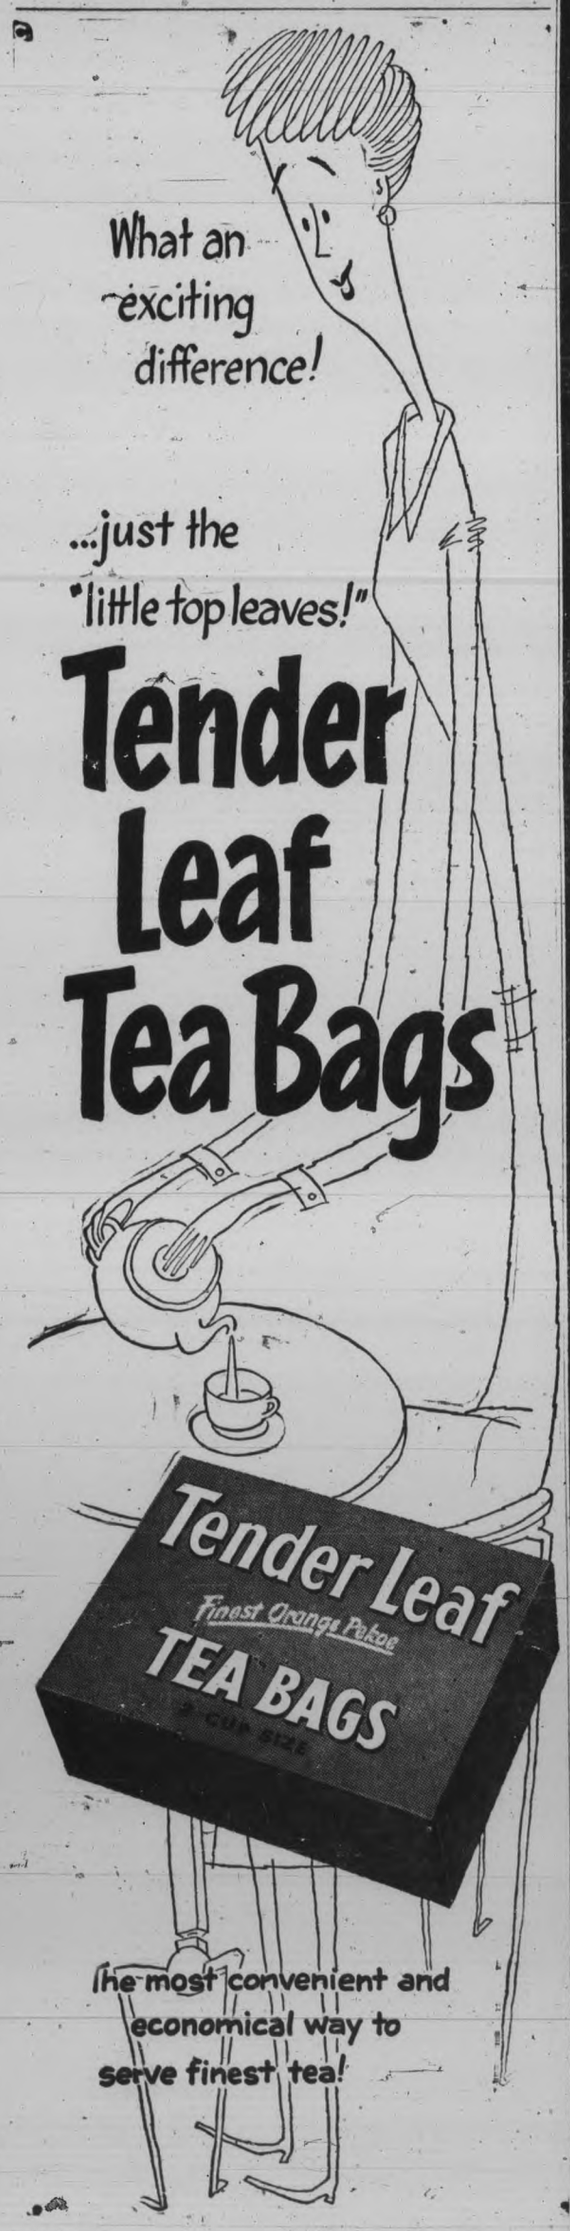
After loading cargo into the ship Port Phillip at Kingston, Jamaica, Dunkley went to sleep and awoke to find himself locked in a refrigeration chamber. He stayed there 16 days.

Luckily the freezing apparatus was not working, but cold from an adjoining chamber bit into his bones. While the Port Phillip was in harbor, Dunkley had hoped he would be missed and the chamber opened, but when the vessel put to sea his plight became desperate He shouted and hammered on the walls of his prison, but his calls were unheard.

Fought off Numbness

He had to fight off a compelling numbness as the air in the chamber became foul, and he seldom dared go to sleep. With a six-inch nail he opened fruit juice and rum—the only cargo in the hold. He used rum to massage his body to restore the circulation when the cold became too intense.

Eventually he broke through the cork lining of the door, but came to a layer of zinc which his six-inch nail could not penetrate. After 16 days the chief officer opened the chamber at sea on a visit of inspection. He found Dunkley in an advanced state of exhaustion and starvation, lying near the door trying to get air.



Cared for in the ship's sick bay, Dunkley had made a good recovery by the time the ship reached Auckland. Because of the cold he was still partially blind in one eye, but there were prospects that this would not be permanent.

Cobourg Council Orders Grader Costing $15,000

COBOURG, May 3 ((ENS). — Claiming it was cheaper in the long run to buy than rent one, Town Council at its regular meeting authorized purchase of a new grader costing approximately $15,000 The old one will be scrapped.

It was pointed out by Councillor Jack Erskine, chairman of the Board of Works, that renting a grader would cost $600 a month with no guarantee it would be available when wanted.

A request for removal of a tree from K. S. Cooper's property was granted subject to Mr. Cooper paying the cost of getting it out, estimated at $150. Dr. W. E. Wilkins wrote Council to inquire about getting a roadway at his property on Elgin Street, but Council was in doubt whether Dr. Wilkins intended the Council to put in the roadway, and referred it to him for more details.

Regulate Tourist Camps

A by-law was passed regulating tourist camp and trailer camp locations. It stipulated that with the exception of the park tourist camp and licensed private tourist establishments, nobody could make land available for a tourist camp or a trailer for residence. Another by-law hoisted the weigh rates at the market scales to 8 cents for soft coal and coke and 13 cents for hard coal, effective immediately.

In order to secure a new bridge through the Counties of Northumberland and Durham, thus participating in the Provincial Department of Highways subsidy, Council passed a resolution assenting to the bridge being taken into the counties road system. After a new bridge has been built it will revert to the town of Cobourg. The bridge in question is an ancient but much travelled one over the Factory Creek.

The wandering course of the Factory Creek at the mouth, where it empties into Lake Ontario has been spoiling the beach and endangering property at the outlet. Council agreed to Reeve Roy Dodge's suggestion that a survey be made and that consideration be given to the proposal that the east bank at the mouth be protected by a retaining wall.

New Meter Heads

The new parking meter heads have now been installed, and Deputy-Reeve George Galbraith chairman of the police committee, said that there was no excuse now because of the heads being out of order most of the time as was the case with the old type, and the Police Department would be instructed to enforce all the parking regulations to the letter.

Reeve Galbraith also said that Chief of Police W. J. Carey, who has been on leave of absence, would not draw any salary for the balance of his leave.

LUDGATE, Ont., May 3 (CP)—A post mortem examination of the bodies of Patrick and Bernice Newton, young married couple who died of gunshot wounds in their two-room home here, was ordered today by police.

Police said Tuesday it was probable that Mrs. Newton, 23, shot her husband as he slept and then turned his 12-gauge shotgun on herself. Newton, 26, was a section hand at this Canadian National Railways whistle stop, 56 miles north of Parry Sound.

Neighbors said that Mrs. Newton, mother of three children, had been in ill health for some time. Grandparents are caring for the children.

Red Cross Hospitals Aided 88,000 In 1950

TORONTO, May 3—(CP)—The 423 members of the Red Cross outpost hospital staff gave assistance to more than 88,000 Canadians in 1950, Dr. L. O. Bradley, chairman of the National Outpost Advisory Committee, said Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Red Cross Central Council.

"In accordance with the Red Cross policy of turning over hospitals to the various communities as soon as they are able to assume responsibility for their operation, seven hospitals changed hands last year," said Dr. Bradley. "Five new Red Cross outposts were opened and by the end of 1950 there were 81 outposts across Canada."

Fire Bomb Used In 300 AD By Ancient Desert City

By FRED ZUSY

BAGHDAD, May 3 —(AP)—Scientists have begun their first excavations in an ancient desert city which claim the fire bomb of modern warfare as its own.

The city—deserted for about 1,650 years—is Hatrah in western Iraq, about 100 miles southwest of the Middle East oil city of Mosul.

Hatrah was a circular city with double walls nearly 1½ miles around. It was an important trading centre on the old caravan route from the Far East to the western world.

Hatrah flourished as a city-state until about 300 AD. During that period it repulsed two powerful Roman armies.

Dr. Naji Al-Asil, director-general of the Iraq Department of Antiquities, says that from their strong defensive positions, the fighting men of Hatrah developed a trick—the jellied-gas bomb of their day—of throwing balls of fire at their foe.

Hatrah Fire

The Greeks referred to such methods of warfare as "Hatrah Fire," indicating how widespread the fame was of this defensive system.

Dr. Al-Asil says the "Hatrah Fire" probably consisted of big balls of some absorbent substance soaked in naphtha from nearby oil wells. Set afire, these were launched at the foe by catapults.

In this manner, he said, the men of Hatrah destroyed the war chariots of Trajan and others who threatened.

The evacuation work began in Hatrah only in March, but remains of several temples have been found already, along with 18 fine statues and reliefs.

Equality's Penalty

CHELTENHAM, England (CP) —Mrs. A. R. Pelly, chairman of Cheltenham Marriage Guidance Council, told a conference of women: "You cannot be emancipated and equal to men in every way, and at the same time demand chivalry and seats in buses. I am convinced that in marriage a little wife-beating is a good thing."

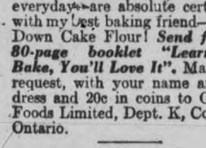
Windows All Steamed Up? Spring housecleaning certainly uncovers the greasy film that seems to accumulate during closed up winter months. But, I find WINDEX SPRAY a Spring cleaning 'life-saver'... the way it sprays on and wipes off in a wink, leaving each pane sparkling clean! No rubbing... scrubbing... or heavy pails of dirty water ... not for me, not with Windex's clear, active solution that works swiftly, leaving no telltale dusty powder marks in window corners. I find Windex costs far less to use than other cleaners too—remember to use it sparingly for best results, and do choose the 20-ounce refill size at your grocer's or cleaning supplier's.



Everything In Margie's Home is delightful—from her gaily coloured drapes to her handsome bathroom accessories... including those coloured C-I-L Cellulose SPONGES! They're grand! The C-I-L label is your assurance of quality!

Are You Busy With Wedding Plans? Then here's something to remember—something every bride should know about. It's that modern, convenient, completely satisfactory method of feminine hygiene... ZONITORS. Zonitors are effective, greaseless, stainless, snow-white vaginal suppositories that are powerfully germicidal, yet absolutely safe to delicate tissues and so dainty to use! Ask your druggist for Zonitors and write to me—Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St. Montreal, P.Q.—for a free booklet giving frank facts on feminine hygiene. It will be sent to you in a plain wrapper.

Like Magic! I have before me, as I write this, two glassfuls of water and two tissue handkerchiefs crumpled into balls. I drop the Face-Elle hankie into one glass, the ordinary tissue into the other. In a matter of seconds, the Face-Elle tissue has sunk to the bottom of the glass while the other is still floating long after. There's proof that FACE-ELLE is many times more absorbent than ordinary tissue handkerchiefs. And just wait 'til you feel the difference! Face-Elle's finer quality means extra comfort! You can get Face-Elle tissue handkerchiefs at drug and toiletry counters everywhere ...and when you're shopping at your grocery store, there's the same fine quality in Gibson's Face Tissues.

Columnist Brought Joy To Thousands With Writing

"FARMER SMITH"—Laura Carten, known for 35 years to readers of the Halifax Chronicle-Herald as "Farmer Smith," is retiring. Miss Carten started her children's column in 1916. The Rainbow Club which grew out of the column has been responsible for many charitable doings in the area. A Memory Club for grown-up members was formed and membership spread through the Maritimes, New England and central Canada. Many of its members were present at a farewell party in her honor.

By HERB HILL

HALIFAX — (CP) — A little brown-haired woman who became teacher, counsellor and friend to thousands of children has relinquished her pen name of "Farmer Smith" to go into retirement as Laura Carten.

Miss Carten, who for 35 years wrote the Farmer Smith column in The Halifax Chronicle-Herald, wept unashamedly when she was given a farewell party by her "children," who had grown up since she started her column in 1916.

"It has been a joy to know you, big and little," she said. "To know you through letters, to watch your steady progress in story, poetry and drawing contests."

Miss Carten began her club "to entertain and amuse children, to give them a corner (in the paper) they could call their own." It began with a short simple talk for children and a bedtime story. During 35 years it expanded across the page.

Membership Spread

As the club grew, Miss Carten formed a memory club for older members. Membership spread throughout the Maritimes, New England and Central Canada.

"In 1919," says ex-Farmer Smith, "came our first really big achievement. Rainbow Ward was opened in the Halifax Children's Hospital, completely furnished by members of my Rainbow Club.

"It was a memorable occasion. The sunny ward with its 10 little white beds, framed nursery pictures, phonograph with its dozen children's records, hanging baskets with blossoming plants, kindergarten tables and chairs, a mammoth birthday cake spanned by a rainbow arch in candy."

Anniversary Parties

Three years ago a new ward was opened and on every anniversary, a party is held throughout the children's hospital.

A former Rainbow, now a florist, fills the wards and corridors with flowers. A club member plays the piano for the children and another brings her song birds.

Farmer Smith set aside one day every week to write her column especially for 10-year-olds and under. Saturday was reserved for older members. For many years Saturday talks were literary. One season was devoted to British prose, another British poetry and similarly to Americans and Canadians. During the last winter Saturday was devoted to sketches of world-famous women.

Greatest Achievement

The club's greatest achievement, Rainbow Haven, a summer camp for Halifax's neediest children, started in 1919. It began by sending one boy away for a month and since then it has meant holidays in the country for more than 6,700 children.

For one winter, Rainbows supplied hot cocoa and biscuits to school children in a distressed mining town and a fishing village. The same was done for one of the poorer schools here. When clothing and food campaings were needed for Europe's war-torn nations, the Rainbow Club contributed hundreds of large parcels and raised more than $2,000 for the Queen's Canadian Fund.

In closing her last column, Farmer Smith emphasized the beauty of charity, the club's main aim.

British Artist Declares Color Big Factor In Modern Design

TORONTO (CP)—Inexpensive things can be beautiful, says the British artist Anna Kinkeisen. It's the design rather than the price that counts.

Miss Kinkeisen, now on her way home following a visit to Canada, said in a recent interview that Canadian women are much like British women in their tastes.

Commissioned by the Lawley group of potteries at Stoke-on-Trent to create china designs, she visited New York, Montreal and Toronto—to discover what Canadian and United States women seek when they go buying china.

"Canadian women all have a feeling for designs more or less traditional," she said. "They don't care for anything very violent."

Design Counts

Pretty, with smooth brown hair and gentle grey eyes, this Scottish-born artist has decided ideas on beauty and its price.

"A thing doesn't necessarily have to be expensive to be beautiful," she said. "It's the design that really counts."

So much can be done with color. Even a subtle change in the shade of a wall can make a tremendous difference to a room, she said turning to one of her favorite themes.

Miss Zinkeisen, who has made a name for herself in Britain as a potrait-painter, chose the colors for the St. Mary's hospital at Paddington where she worked as a volunteer nurse in the last war.

"Hospital walls needn't be white," she said. "Think of all the delicate pastel shades there are—there is a tremendous range between white and the palest blue."

She thought the paint manufacturers have yet to investigate the wide range of color.

Again on the subject of hospitals she suggested a 'pearly pink" for the walls of private rooms.

"And give the patients a picture to look at," she said, "something cheerful."

Outstanding examples of Miss Zinkeisen's work include the equestrian murals on board the Queen Mary, scenes which the artist took particular delight in doing. She confessed that she is "keen on horses," and has "hunted a lot."

Miss Zinkeisen is married to Col. Guy Heseltine and has a 17-year-old daughter who also is studying to be an artist.

FUNNY BUSINESS -- By Hershberger

"Joe added an attachment so he can enjoy a siesta at noon!"

DOROTHY DIX

Cheating Husband Forces Wife To Make Sorry Choice

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 25 years old, have been married for ten years and have two children, aged 8 and 1. My marriage has been far from a happy one, since I have had a philandering husband the full ten years. We have been separated and I have worked. We have gone back together and he would promise to be true. I have broken up many of his love affairs. However, he has supported us as well as any family man can. He doesn't drink or gamble. He hasn't taken much interest in his children, or put forth any effort to improve our small home.

Dorothy Dix

For a few months I can be happy, then for several months I am miserable. I haven't been well for the past six months but my doctor says I won't feel better until I get out of this mess. I have my two small children to consider. Would it be right to deny them a father and the things he can give them so I might have peace of mind? Is there any future for me or the children living like this? Is there ever a cure for a philandering husband? M. B.

ANSWER: Your husband doesn't take much interest in the children or his home; he certainly can't have much concern for you and act the way he does, so I can't see where the future holds much for any of you. The only thing you seem to be getting out of the marriage is support and as your husband will have to support you and the children even if you leave him, I can see little point in going though the misery of a marriage that is little more than a farce.

Patience May Be Solution

You don't give your husband's age, but as you were only 15 when you married, he probably wasn't much older. Immaturity may be the basis for his philandering and if you're patient you may wait around for him to grow up.

Look to your own ways, too. Are you providing him with a pleasant cheery, well-kept home with good home cooking? Do you resist nagging him about his affairs or other deficiencies? Do you go out with him, or do the children keep you in? A baby-sitter, hired occasionally to give you an evening's dancing with your husband, might be a good investment.

If you think over all these points and are still convinced that you are married to a chronic philanderer, you'll either have to accept the fact and settle down to make the best of it, or separate. In other words: half a husband, or none.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am in love with a fine girl who has all the qualities that I admire in a woman, but my three years at college will mean that I will be thrown with a different group of people and a different environment from my home town. I will come in contact with many girls very different from the one I love. Will I be able to remain true to her in this new atmosphere? Through your experience with youth you must have seen examples of this type of problem and I would like to know how they generally work out.

CONFUSED BOY

ANSWER: I have known many cases like yours of a boy tying himself up in an engagement to a girl before starting off to college, and I have seen very few of them—almost none—that worked out satisfactorily to either the girl or the boy. Generally it brought unhappiness to both.

Occasionally, I have known a boy and girl love that was strong enough to last through their separation and the changes that came to both as they matured into men and women, but such cases are almost as rare as hens' teeth. Generally the romances have just died from lack of anything to feed on.

You see, son, your three years at college will do things to you which will to all intents and purposes change you into a different man from the one you are now. You will enter into a new environment in which you will learn new habits and customs. You will be taught to look at all life from a different angle. So when you come back home it is entirely possible that you will find that you have outgrown your sweetheart and that she no longer has the allures and charm for you that she once had.

After all, you and the girl are very young. You are at the puppy-love stage of life and you have no more idea of what you want in a wife when you grow up than you have of what sort of a hat you will want when you are a man. So my earnest advice to you is not to go off to school with any strings tied to you.

DEAR MISS DIX: We are a young married couple who want to go to housekeeping, but my father has just died, leaving only my mother and brother at home. I feel it selfish to leave them, but my mother wants me to go on about my own life. What shall I do? MRS. B. A.

ANSWER: Take your mother's advice. You have your life to live and very likely Mother will enjoy having her house to herself. Married daughters are not always a blessing when they live with you.

Hair Styles For All Ages Demonstrated In YW Show

Teen-agers were breathlessly absorbing every word said and older women quietly making mental notes as Mrs. Jo Donoghue Wednesday evening gave freely of her knowledge of hair styling and care in an informal fashion show at the YWCA recreation room. Mrs. Donoghue was presented by the Kappa Gamma Club a group of ex-High School girls, who are contributing proceeds of the affair to the YWCA World Service Fund.

The hair stylings covered a full range of age groups, starting with small Mardi Donoghue who was given the "Buster Brown," to Mrs. J. H. Miller whose lovely grey hair was done in soft, short curls and called "Silver Charm." Operator Jean Dunn did these models. A chic, trim style was adapted for Mrs. Maurice Holt by operator Joyce Campbell, called "The New Yorker." Mrs. Chas. Levine was given an "Office Tailleur" by operator Joan Healey. Miss Jackie Rose allowed her blond hair color to be deepened and styled in "Tempo" by Lois Fredericks.

Volunteer models were demonstrated on by Mrs. Donoghue as she gave running commentary, constantly full of new tricks for achieving beauty. Miss Joy Blakely had her hair cut in the popular style which requires only proper pushing into place with the hands after washing, and Miss Lois Hutchinson allowed her eyebrows to be plucked into more becoming shape.

Mrs. Donoghue also gave hints on make-up and care of the skin. On the finished coiffures she demonstrated a few ways to glamorize the hair styles for sports, parties and dances with silk scarves, flowers, veils and net. And also showed this year's way to keep hair in place with a kerchief — duster-style with the comfort of an eyeshade which can be becoming too.

An added feature of the evening was the display of locally-manufactured jewelry by Meredith Miller who also told the latest notes on jewelry fashions as seen at a recent fashion show.

An intermission was taken at nine o'clock and club girls served tea and cookies in the Green Room. They had arranged the table with centrepiece of yellow roses and pink and white candles and president Miss Irene Tucker and Mrs. Tom Cook poured the tea.

Servers were Misses Ruthann Brown, Wilma Watson, Norma Harrison, Kay Calladine, Marjorie Lacheur, Pat Nixon, Edith Miller, Shirley Wood, Fern Carveth, June Hutchinson, Grace Ingram, Kay Benton, June Adams and Mrs. Clayton Selkirk.

Loss Respect for Marriage

George St. WA on Tuesday afternoon was addressed by the Rev. Mr. Husser of Springville who chose as his subject "Morals, Marriage and Divorce." Children Add Novelty To Trinity Maytime Tea

A tea could hardly have been anything but a huge success on such a beautiful day as Wednesday. So this fact need not be mentioned of the Trinity Maytime tea, especaily since 500 tickets were sold out in advance and a good many friends paid cash admissions at the door.

The novelty flavor of this tea was added by Billy Edmondson, and Nancy Kemp. Billy's mother, Mrs. Eric Edmondson, heads this organization of 100 mothers of children six years and under who belong to the Baby Band. He was dressed in the fashion of colonial days, a black silk suit with trousers tightly buttoned at the knees and with lace frills showing beneath the coat sleeves and trimming his shirt front, and he stood at the outside door of the church parlours to welcome the guests.

As people stopped to chat with Billy and comment on his attire, they were perhaps most intrigued by the fancy buckled shoes he wore. And he completed his costume for the day with a smart white carnation boutonniere. Nancy took up a position just inside the tea room door — in a small-size garden swing, and she seemed always to find company among the young guests to enjoy this sport. She wore a pretty floor-length organdy dress with ribbon sash. Mrs. Edmondson was receiving at the door, assisted by Mrs. W. B. Gordon.

Booths Effective

Candy girls, Linda McIntyre and Marilyn Clark, were very busy throughout the afternoon going among the quartette tables in the two tea rooms, adding youth and novelty to the affair. Home made sweets were also available at the Candy Kitchen where Mrs. J. Lillico, Mrs. G. Miller, Mrs. W. F. Swayne, Mrs. R. McRae, Mrs. R. Gibbons and Mrs. W. E. Van Steenberg were attendnats.

The booths were all effectively decorated with gay skirtings and canopies displayed the trade names.

The Sewing Basket was a veritable children's wear store where the quality of workmanship and material surpassed. During winter months the group purchased full bolts of pretty cottons and garments for young maids and misters, up to 10 years, were cut out and distributed to the mothers for finishing. Salesladies during the tea were Mrs. K. Barltrop, Mrs. L. W. Thompson, Mrs. E. Gregg, Mrs. L. Isaac, Mrs. R. Kearns and Mrs. J. Fraser. There was the usual rush for home baking and though the supply was large, the table sold out within an hour. Mrs. R. Huffman, Mrs. Clare Northey, Mrs. Don Clarke, Mrs. R. E. Seabrooke, Mrs. R. Scrutton and Mrs. Wm. Taylor were the attendants.

Federated Group, the mothers of children who have graduated from Baby Band, had a bazaar table of their own and operated a fish pond for the children which took the form of a wishing well where lowering of the bucket brought up a surprise package. In charge were Mrs. T. Stanley, Mrs. J. Clark, Mrs. D. Hamilton, Mrs. E. Reid, Mrs. B. F. Smitheram, Mrs. S. Heard, Mrs. J. W. Miles and Mrs. K. Gibson. A tiny booth offering only greeting cards and stationery was looked after by Mrs. Errol Wilson.

Popcorn Blossoms

Popcorn, a bit of paint, some blue and bare tree branches took on new significance under the hands of a decorating committee and became the delicate appearing blossoms typical of springtime. They were fascinating as the tea table bouquet and as little blossom trees centring each small table, but quantities more with roses twining the garden trellises transformed the tea room into "Spring Lane" indeed. Mrs. R. Rood convened the decorating committee and her assistants were Mrs. E. Wellman, Mrs. G. Robson, Mrs. G. Miller, Mrs. J. Nichols and Mrs. R. Kemp. Tickets and publicity for the tea were looked after by Mrs. R. A. Kelly and Mrs. E. McWilliam.

Food convener Mrs. R. Bogle handled well a very important and mammoth job. Mrs. W. Maynard took charge of the kitchen and had as helpers Mrs. W. B. Gordon, Mrs. K. R. Harrison, Mrs. B. Jack, Mrs. B. Northey, Mrs. K Kemp, Mrs. G. Archer and Mrs. G. White.

Hostesses were Mrs. Wm. Cuppy, Mrs. B. Till, Mrs. F. Stenson, Mrs. J. Pierce and Mrs. O. Jamison. The mothers serving were Mrs. J. D. Moes, Mrs. R. M. Elliott, Mrs. J. Dyble, Mrs. L. McCullough, Mrs. G. Kiff, Mrs. G. Tanney, Mrs. D. Aiken, Mrs. F. E. Hambly, Mrs. H. Coon, Mrs. H. Redmond, Mrs. L. Croft, Mrs. J. Cranfield, Mrs. M. Knox, Mrs. J. Davern, Mrs. L. Nesbitt, Mrs. K. Kemp, Mrs. R. Gibbons, Mrs. A. Purdon, Mrs. L. Calvert, Mrs. G. Harrison, Mrs. G. Thompson, Mrs. K. W. Milne and Mrs. A. Parker.

Tea pourers were past president Mrs. Russell Philp, Mrs. Norman Elliott, Mrs. Vernon Skitch, Mrs. Arthur Malby, Mrs. Harry Corner, assisted by Mrs. A. Legon, president of Trinity WMS.

Pianists for the afternoon were Mrs. J. T. Stewart and Mrs. Wm. Messervey.

New Building?

Mrs. J. Nichols and Mrs. Wm. Cuppy, co-conveners, and assistants worked longest and hardest perhaps on decorating and though they achieved an effect that brought them congratulations from all sides, they are happily looking forward to next year's tea when decorating is expected to be much less a problem. Why? A Sunday School Building Fund is mounting rapidly and will receive a big boost with proceeds from this tea, so it is pretty safe to say there will be a new, freshly decorated building at the south side of the present hall by next May.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

When Roast Is Used Up Why Not Serve Eggs

A gentleman who is considered to be an authority on the subject of cost-of-living (and who isn't?) says "the peak of the index is nearly reached, chiefly due to consumer-resistance-non-buying."

I knew if I stopped drinking coffee something would have to happen. The only drawback is it hasn't left any residue in my wallet as yet.

Meanwhile, when Sunday's roast runs out we eat eggs. And one meal where we had hard-cooked eggs with a special sauce on toast is worth writing about.

Supper Eggs

Miss Pattinson told us when we were school girls that we should never call an egg hard-boiled, for when rightly cooked it was not boiled, for being a delicate protein the water should only simmer, then the egg would not be tough.

Okay, then hardcook 9 eggs. You will also need one tablespoon each minced onion, prepared mustard, and lemon juice, ¼ cup sliced stuffed olives, shake of tabasco sauce, salt to taste, about ¼ to ⅓ cup mayonnaise (enough to moisten), and 2 cups cheese sauce ((see recipe below), and English muffins or plain white toast.

Cut the eggs in halves lengthwise and carefully remove the yolks and mash them with all of the remaining ingredients except the cheese sauce and muffins. Fill the whites, heaping them high, with the mixture. Place 3 egg halves on toasted muffin or white bread. Pour over cheese sauce. Pass under broiler until cheese sauce bubbles and toast and eggs are warmed through.

Cheese Sauce

(1) In top of double boiler place ¼ pound processed cheese and when it melts stir in ½ cup whole milk until blended and heated through; or (2) Make 1 cup medium white sauce by melting 2 tablespoons margarine, stirring in 2 tablespoons flour and when blended 1 cup skim milk. Add ½ to 1 cup cut up processed cheese or ½ to 1 cup grated cheddar cheese and heat until cheese is melted. A good variation to either of the above cheese sauces is to add ¼ teaspoon each dry mustard and paprika.

Spinach and Eggs au Gratin

If this is to be used as a supper dish where no meat is served allow 6 eggs for four people.

Six hard-cooked eggs shelled, 1½ lbs. spinach, cleaned and cooked without any additional water for 5 minutes and chopped, 1½ cups medium white sauce, about ¼ pound grated processed or cheddar cheese. Cut the shelled hard-cooked eggs in halves. Arrange a layer of the chopped spinach in the bottom of a greased casserole, then a layer of egg halves, then a layer of white sauce. Repeat until all ingredients are added, finishing with sauce, then a generous sprinkling of cheese. Bake at 350 degrees Fahr. until heated through and bubbling and flecked with gold.

Eggs a la King

Make cream sauce as in above recipe. Add ¼ or ½ pound sauteed sliced mushrooms. Put halves of hard-cooked eggs on slices of toast while both are hot and pour over sauce.

Eggs Goldenrod

Make cream sauce as in Spinach and Eggs recipe above. Add ½ cup chopped parsley. Separate yolks from whites of hard-cooked eggs after cutting them in halves. Chop or slice the whites and add to sauce and pour over slices of buttered toast. Sieve the yolks allowing them to drop over the toast as you press them through the sieve, for if they are spooned after sieving they pack. Sprinkle with paprika, and garnish with sprigs of parsley.

What's Right

As you are entering or leaving a restaurant you see a couple that you know.

WRONG: Stop at their table and stand chatting, after urging the man not to remain standing.

RIGHT: Speak to them and move on, so as not to interrupt their meal.

MOVIE COLUMN

Movie Writer Can't Keep Ahead Of Science

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, May 3 (AP)—The trouble with writing science fiction movies, observes Richard Landau, is that science too often catches up with fiction.

Landau, a writer of musicals, was pressed into service for the latest of Hollywood cycles—science fiction films.

So he hiked out to a university to bone up on science. Then he went to work on what must be the ultimate in science fiction yarns—a prehistoric atomic film. It is called "Lost Continent."

The gimmick is this: The United States Army sends out a test rocket with atomic power. The gadget is supposed to return to the proving grounds, but this one falls. A plane is sent out to fetch it.

The party pursues the course to a radioactive island in the Pacific where the plane crashes. The Army officers ascend to a plateau where they find a civilization of 160,000,000 years ago.

All this was strictly in the dream division when Landau penned the script many months ago. So what happens? Government announcements and the Las Vegas experiments indicated that atomic rockets are in the development stage.

And then an expedition of the Navy and the University of California announced discovery of a lost continent in the Pacific between Hawaii and Wake Island.

"I just can't keep ahead of them," frets Landau over his typewriter.

Capsule Review

"The Brave Bulls" is good in some respects, not so good in others. On the credit side are the fine Mexican settings, exciting bull-fight scenes and a sensitive portrayal of the troubled matador by Mel Ferrer. But the theme gets off the track too many times and is never sure of where it's going. The result is an interesting story that reaches certain heights but quickly drops back to trivialities. The climax is also a disappointment after such a dramatic build-up.

GREAT COLLECTION

The Fitzwilliam Museum at Cambridge University has one of the finest coin collections in the world, some 80,000 pieces.

6—In Memoriams

DeCARLONIS—In loving memory of my dear wife, Mary, who passed away May 3rd, 1945.
Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory fond and true,
Just a token of affection
And a heartache still for you.
More and more each day I miss you,
Though our thoughts are not revealed,
Little do they know the sorrow
That is within our hearts concealed.
—Ever remembered by husband Peter.

DeCARLONIS—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary DeCarlonis, who passed away May 3rd, 1945.
No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered, since we lost you
Life has never been the same.
In our heart your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true,
There is not a day, dear mother,
That we do not think of you.
—Ever remembered by daughters and son.

Law Lord Urges Commonwealth Appeal Court

LONDON, May 3 —(CP)— A suggestion that the judicial committee of the privy council should become a Commonwealth appeal court, including representatives of Dominion governments, was made Wednesday by one of the law lords.

Viscount Simon, 78, made the proposal in replying to an address by Senator J. W. deB Farris, KC, of Vancouver. Senator Farris, speaking at the close of an appeal to the committee, said this was likely the last time he would appear in the privy council chamber.

Future Canadian appeals will be tried in Canadian courts.

Senator Farris expressed regret that "this intimate tie" between Canadian lawyers and the committee was being severed.

Lord Simon, replying, said that whether appeals should go to the privy council depended entirely on Canada. He said he would like to see the judicial committee constituted to include Dominion members. This would make it a truly representative Commonwealth court.

Go On Tour

He said these circumstances might make it possible for the judicial committee to go on tour, and sit in Ottawa and other capitals.

"It may have been that if these ideas had prevailed in time," Lord Simon added, "we should have created a new kind of supreme Commonwealth tribunal, and there would have been no feeling that by coming to London, Canada in some way was travelling outside its natural judicial orbit."

The Canadian House of Commons passed a bill abolishing appeals to the privy council Oct. 11, 1949. The Senate approved it less than a month later. The measure made the nine-man supreme court of Canada the highest tribunal.

Senator Farris assured the law lords that Canada's abolition of appeals to the privy council did not reflect a lack of appreciation of the old system. The courts of England had been the cradle of the common law and the traditions of the British bench and bar had brightened and enriched Canadian jurisprudence.

Iranian Gov't Plans Reforms

TEHRAN, May 3 (Reuters).— Prime Minister Mohammed Mussadegh told the Iranian Parliament today that he will introduce electoral and municipal reforms besides nationalizing the oil industry.

"Our foreign policy is based on the Atlantic Charter and the United Nations organization," he said. "Our relations with all other countries are friendly."

The oil nationalization bill, pushed through both Houses of Parliament by Mussadegh in five days, became law yesterday when the Shah signed the executive decrees.

But Mussadgh's propaganda department announced that any claims of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, the British-controlled operator of Iran's vast oilfields and refineries, will be considered before the law is effective.

The British and Unjted States ambassadors called on Mussadegh just before the Shah signed the decrees and expressed their countries' disapproval of any one-sided action by the Iranian Government.

Woman Surgeon Operates For 7 Hours Before Speech

Part of a nurse's duty is to "wait on" doctors. On Wednesday evening 105 nurses "waited for" a doctor. That they did it with such good grace, even though their dinner was being delayed an hour, may be the effect of the excellent training received at the Civic Hospital throughout past years.

Alumnae members who now live in Toronto, New York, Cannington, Norwood and other points came for the May Day dinner meeting at the Empress Hotel. Head table guests included three women doctors, the speaker Dr. Jessie Gray, chief surgeon, and Dr. Blatchford, anaesthetist, from Women's College Hospital Toronto and Dr. Agnes K. Moffatt, child specialist of Peterborough, who were introduced by chairman Mrs. Roy Taylor, president of Civic Hospital Alumnae.

Dr. Gray explained to the nurses why she had been so late in arriving. She had operated for seven hours continuously on Wednesday. An operation begun at noon developed unforseen complications, which she at one time feared would prevent her trip at all, but she was able to bring the patient to a satisfactory condition in time to leave by five o'clock.

She remarked that she does not think anyone realizes just how much doctors depend on nurses or how much patients depend on nurses for recovery. So the nurse is doubly important.

Speaking of the increase in nurses' fees, Dr. Gray said "No matter how noble, all women go into this business to make a living. I think they have been underpaid for years, the same as teachers, and when I look at the amount I pay my cleaning woman I feel they are still underpaid."

However, Dr. Gray said, she is alarmed for fear the special duty nurses are going to "price" themselves out of work. A week under full-time nursing care would cost more than $200. with hospital and doctor bills to be added, and the average patient is not able to pay in this fashion. "I feel we are headed for government control of hospital nursing," she said.

Congratulations were extended to the graduating class by Dr. Gray who offered them some advice, headed with "Keep your head." Going through the daily routine of a hospital nurse she reminded of little things that keep a patient comfortable and happy, sometimes overlooked.

The address was full of anecdotes and stories, a few of them true incidents of her career as an interne and surgeon.

In introducing Dr. Gray, Mrs. M. B. Pringle spoke of the high esteem in which she is held by all Canadian doctors. The surgeon's two hobbies are golf and skiing and she goes yearly to the Laurentians for the skiing season.

Twenty-nine young ladies are in this year's graduating class of the Civic Hospital and comprise an outstanding class in the hospital's history with the highest percentage of marks in the three-year course. Miss A. L. Thomson, their instructor, said they have "more than average intelligence." This dinner each year takes the place of an initiation into the Alumnae.

The graduates invited to become members are:

Misses Betty Allen, Mary Ann Ashmore, Betty Barr, Esther Borland, Jean Bulmer, Beryl Christy, Mary Jane Collins, Lillian Coones, Anita Davis, Barbara Deyell, Wilma Deyell, Marigold Elmhirst, Shirley Gordon, Dorothy Jackson, June Luffman, Mae Northey, Pauline Pengelley, Beverley Pringle, Norma Robinson, Bernice Scott, Joan Shier, Joan Smith, Margaret Smith, Betty Strebe, Evelyn Taylor, Mary Trumpour, Patricia Weston, Stella Wilkinson, Vivian Latondresse.

"A visit to an Old Times Music Hall" comprised the first course of entertainment by Tony Burns, and Frank Booth and the second was Burns as "The Jolson Singer." The boys received hearty applause for their fine showmanship. Burns in black face completely hid his English accent and like the famous singer was called on for more songs. He gave them I'm Happy, Sonny Boy, Rockabye, Mammy, April Showers and for one guest sang "Drink to me only."

Appreciation to the speaker and guest artists was voiced by Miss Elsie Crawford, who also thanked pianist Miss Mae Renwick and impromptu soloist, Mrs. Knox (nee Mary Robson).

ROK Division Played Important Role

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA, May 3 (AP).—The Republic of Korea's first division played a major role in the successful Allied defence against the Communist offensive that struck in full force the night of April 22.

For days there had been indications of a Communist build-up. The division, commanded by Brig.-Gen. Kang Song Bong, sent out long-range patrols.

"They kept in close contact with friendly guerrilla groups. The Communists thought they were our main line of resistance, and when they came in force we were waiting for them," Gen. Kang said in an interview Wednesday.

The Communists hit the 1st ROK division outpost line at 10.30 p.m., April 22. In a few spots small groups of North Koreans and Chinese infiltrated the defence line.

When the Communist offensive started the 1st was holding a 15-mile front.

Kang estimated 75,000 North Korean and Chinese Communist troops, representing nine divisions, faced his men. The Communists struck Kang's front with three assault divisionss. When these had been badly battered they were replaced in the line by three fresh divisions.

Kang said that during the first three days of fighting his men rendered those nine Communist divisions completely ineffective.

Reds Ask Punishment For Two More Nuns

HONG KONG, May 2 (Reuters) —Communist reports from China Wednesday said a mass meeting in Chungking called for the punishment of two more Roman Catholic missionary nuns for alleged neglect and ill-treatment of orphans.

This is the latest incident in the Communist "orphanage purge" in which several foreign missionaries in China have been arrested for alleged neglect of orphans.

Five Canadian nuns are being held in Canton on similar charges.

The reports today said an "accusation meeting" last month had called for the arrest of the Mother Superior of the Franciscan Mission in Chungking, identified by Catholic sources here as Mother Chrysanth, a Swiss citizen.

Hyman Kaplan Dies In North

KIRKLAND LAKE, May 3 (CP)—Hyman Kaplan, the man who underwrote Sir Harry Oakes first mining ventures, died here Tuesday night. He was 69.

One of the district's pioneers, he built Kirkland Lake's third business establishment, a general store, and parlayed the enterprise into a fortune from the fur trade while Kirkland boomed with the discovery of gold. His business interests included six theatres and numerous properties in and around Teck township.

Shortly after gold was found at the Lake Shore Mine, Sir Harry offered to pay off his debt with mine shares. Mr. Kaplan rejected the offer, however, saying that he knew nothing about the gold industry. Lake Shore went on to become Canada's richest gold mine and its founder one of the wealthiest men in America.

Born in Lithuania, Mr. Kaplan came to New York in 1902. A few years later he moved to Toronto and came to Kirkland Lake in 1915.

He is survived by a brother, three sons and a daughter.

Leonard Withers Awarded $800 Judgment

Justice R. W. Treleaven Wednesday awarded Leonard Withers $800 and costs for damage to his truck caused July 18, 1949, by the negligence of two car drivers.

Negligence of 75 per cent was found against Hugh Leeson, Smith, one of the car drivers, and 25 per cent against J. H. Fulton, Buckhorn, the otheh driver.

Neither defendant claimed negligence by the plaintiff but Fulton made a counter-claim against Leeson for personal injuries and damage to his car caused by the collision with the plaintiff's truck.

Leeson was assessed an additional $549.35 and costs on this counter claim.

Withers' dump truck was being driven south on Highway 28, a mile and a half south of Lakefield, by his brother Gerald. First he saw Leeson's car turn north toward him out of a Smith township concession. Then Fulton's car, also coming north around a curve.

The Fulton vehicle swerved and skidded onto the left side of the highway and collided with the truck on the left front corner. Leonard Withers, anticipating trouble, had pulled onto the right shoulder so only his left wheels were on the paved surface.

Fulton received minor injuries in the collision.

Leeson's car was not directly involved in the collision but he was considered the more negligent of the two defendants.

Stomach Upset, Had Aches And Pains—Tells Of Relief

Had Awful Gas, Distress In Pit Of Stomach, Headaches, Backache, Dizzy Feelings; Got First Relief By Taking Syntona Says This Man.

Mr. Joseph B. McCollom

"For 3 years I suffered from stomach troubles, with rheumatic pains in my limbs, joints and muscles and couldn't get anything to really help me until began taking Syntona Herbal Compound," said Mr. Joseph B. McCollom, 305 King Street, London, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I would get awful gassy pains in the pit of my stomach, would belch up hot sour liquids, and get sick bilious attacks that sometimes lasted for days. The gas made me short of breath. I'd have dizzy feelings and dark specks floated before my eyes. Backache and the rheumatic pains were becoming so bad I couldn't get my proper sleep at night.

"I was trying a number of things without getting any better, so one Sunday while walking home from church with a friend he told me about Syntona. Next day I got some of this medicine and in less than a week I noticed a big improvement.

"As I continued taking Syntona the trouble in my stomach cleared up, backache and rheumatic pains went away, and now I am free of dizzy spells and the splitting headaches I used to get. I eat hearty meals, sleep well, and feel much better and I think anybody suffering as I did should certainly give Syntona a trial."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. Find out how it can help you, too. Advt.

Israel-Syria Accept Cease-Fire

Both Sides Claim Victories In Last Few Days

TEL AVIV, Israel, May 4.—(AP)—Israel and Syria agreed today to a cease fire in their brief but bloody warfare on the frontier. A communique said the "complete and sincere cease fire" was effective at 1:30 p.m., Greenwich Time (9:30 a.m., EDT).

The agreement was reached by the heads of the Israeli and Syrian delegations in the mixed armistice commission which has been meeting near the frontier under United Nations auspices. Announcements of the cease fire arrangement were made simultaneously in Damascus and Tel Aviv.

Earlier Today a Syrian communique alleged a big new Israeli attack in the demilitarized zone northwest of the Lake of Galilee.

It said that 500 Israeli soldiers launched a "heavy attack" at 4:45 a.m., local time, on Arab tribesmen, covered by heavy artillery and mortar fire.

The Arabs repulsed the attack and the battle was still raging at 8:30 a.m., the communique said.

Heavy Casualties

The communique described Israeli casualties as "very heavy" and said three Arabs were slightly wounded.

(A report from Tel Aviv, Israel, said Syrian troops renewed their attacks on the Israelis. An Isreali spokesman said the two Syrian attacks were thrown back by the Arabs.

The Syrian government alleged earlier that more than 300 Isreali troops launched two heavy attacks Thursday in the demilitarized zone.

The communique said United Nations observers witnessed the second Israeli attack as they were touring the area in their white-painted cars. The Israelis fired on them and they withdrew into Syrian territory, the communique said.

Return Fire

In the middle sector, Huel area, it said, eight Israeli tractors resumed drainage work but Arab land owners opened fire. Israelis stationed at Mararat, El Khoury and Ghannama, Arab villages, machine-gunned them. They also fired on advance Syrian army posts in Syrian territory.

The communique denied Israeli charges that Syrian forces had entered the demilitarized zone or had fired on Israelis, saying that U.N. observers were "fully aware of this truth."

A Bad Moment

LONDON, May 4—(Reuters) — A woman cleaner panicked officials today by announcing she had seen a naked man leaning against a pillar in London's Festival of Britain Exhibition site—just before the King and Queen arrived. All rushed out to investigate. They found the wax figure of "The Fisherman," an exhibit, had been stripped of his trousers and sou'wester and left only in rubber boots and gloves. His head had fallen off. He was hastily removed to a dressing room.

Split In Forces Approved MacArthur Says

WASHINGTON, May 4 (AP)—Gen. MacArthur said today the joint chief of staffs approved when he split his United Nations forces last fall in a drive for the Korean-Manchurian border.

MacArthur made that statement while under questioning from Senator Brien McMahon (Dem. Conn.), a vigorous supporter of President Truman's position in the Far Eastern policy row that led to the general's dismissal from his commands.

There has been some criticism of MacArthur because he split the Eighth Army and the 10th Corps, sending them off on different slants toward the Yalu River.

When the Chinese Communists poured into Korea in force, the Eighth Army and the 10th Corps were not in position to join forces for support of each other.

A Different Story

McMahon recalled MacArthur's statement of last fall that his forces were launching a "win-the-war" offensive which would have them home by Christmas. He noted also that MacArthur Thursday had described the November drive in Korea as "a reconnaissance in force."

He asked the general if he anticipated that a reconnaissance in force would get the troops home by Christmas.

MacArthur replied that the line between the reconnaissance in force and an assault attack "is a rather nebulous one." He said the reconnaissance would have developed the enemy's strength and if this was insufficient, the reconnaissance could have turned into a drive which would have destroyed the enemy.

Earlier in his day-long testimony MacArthur had made these major points:

1. There are three possible courses in Korea: "Either to pursue it to victory; to surrender to the enemy and end it on his terms; or....to go on infinitely and indefinitely, neither to win or lose, in that stalemate."

2. If the other United Nations are unwilling to go along in direct attacks against Red China, "then we had better....go it alone."

New Defeat For Chinese Ridgway Says

Red Forces Regroup For Attack Against Allied Lines

TOKYO, May 4. (AP)—Lt.-Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway returned today from the Korean front confident Chinese armies will "continue to pay the blood price they have been paying" as long as they stay in Korea.

By US Eighth Army estimate, the price is close to 80,000 Red casualties since their now-bogged-down spring offensive started April 22. The Eighth Army revised its estimate of Thursday's Communist losses to 1,815.

On a two-day trip, the United Nations supreme commander saw a front dominated by allied planes and freely-roaming U.N. tanks.

Ridgway shared with his front-line troops their "complete confidence, complete self-assurance in their ability to handle anything that's thrown at them."

Friday the Communists threw artillery, mortar and high velocity shells from self-propelled guns at tank columns fanning out from Seoul.

Tank Force Active

For the third straight day, a heavy allied tank force raided Uijongbu, 11 miles north of Seoul. Communists made no attacks.

The Reds were gathering today under the protective cover of rain clouds for another attempt to destroy the U.N. army.

UN planes reported Communist trucks rolling southward by the hundreds.

Combined attacks of planes and tanks early Friday drove small groups of Reds out of forward positions. The dug-in Reds had been holding up the armored column. American Mosquito planes sprayed them with fire bombs.

Tank and infantry patrols brought back 75 prisoners Thursday They also accounted for most of the day's toll of 1,740 Reds which the Eighth Army estimated were killed or wounded.

Tighten Regulations

OTTAWA, May 4. (CP)—Canada is considering means of further tightening passport regulations, informed sources said today. Loopholes have been plugged since the 1945-46 espionage investigation disclosed Red spies were using illegal Canadian passports, but informants said further — undisclosed — measures are being considered. Government officials have taken notice of the current trip to Russia of Jacob Penner, Labor Progressive alderman in Winnipeg, reported to have been present at Russia's May Day celebration.

Fire Rangers Alerted Forests Very Dry

TORONTO, May 4 — (CP) — Forested areas throughout Southern Ontario and a considerable portion of Northern Ontario were reported to be in dry condition today.

The Lands and Forests Department has put its district offices and ranger headquarters on the alert to keep rigid control on the issuance of fire permits and to intensify aerial patrols where ice-free conditions permit.

Fire control officers said that weather forecasts indicated low humidity, high temperatures and no general precipitation continuing from today through the week-end.

Meanwhile a total of 26 forest fires were reported being handled, all under control with the exception of two which were reported late Thursday night, one in the Gogama district and another in the North Bay area. Action has been taken on both these blazes.

The largest of this season's fires in Blezard township near Sudbury was reported under control today with a preliminary estimate of 200 acres having been burned over. A total of 105 extra firefighters have been aiding department forest rangers in combating the fires.

Fires burning and the districts in which they are located are: Gogama 1; Timiskaming 1; Sudbury 8; North Bay 7; Quinte 6; Parry Sound 3.

So far this season there has been a total of 39 forest fires reported in the province, most of them minor.

Give Congress Till December To Keep Pact

Ottawa Hints Action May Be Decided Within One Month

OTTAWA, May 4. (CP)—Canada is not going to wait beyond this year for United States congressional action on the St. Lawrence Seaway, authoritative informants said today. There is some possibility, these sources indicated, that the government may propose at the current session of parliament that Canada go ahead with the $800,000,000 project on its own.

The feeling in Cabinet, they said, is that another Congressional failure this year to ratify the Canada-U.S. treaty for joint construction will result in Canada "giving up" on the prospects for the two countries getting together on the navigation-power undertaking.

If that happens— and the outlook for Congressional ratification at this session is regarded here as very dim—Cabinet would immediately take up the question of making a decision on going ahead alone.

That situation, it was expected here, could develop in the next month. This year, the St. Lawrence project has been under consideration in Washington by the Public Works committee of the House of Representatives, which now has completed evidence and is going to make a flying tour of the project before taking a vote.

If the vote is favorable—and belief is that it will be close—the matter still has to be dealt with by the House and then the Senate foreign relations committee. The prospects as seen here, are that either it will be knocked out by the House committee or will drag out through the remainder of the Congressional session.

It was emphasized here that Canada is still anxious to undertake the project in co-operation with the U.S., in line with its 1941 treaty. So is the Truman administration.

But Canada has decided that it can go ahead alone with the seaway, and, the spokesmen said, is convinced it can pay for itself by tolls over a period of years.

Cost-of-Living Up 2.1 Points, Blame Butter

OTTAWA, May 4. (CP)—Canada's cost of living is still climbing. Trade Minister Howe told the Commons Thursday that the official index reached a record 181.8 at April 2, and increase of 2.1 points from the previous high of 179.7 a month earlier.

His announcement was immediately used by Apposition parties to bolster arguments that some of the tax increases proposed in the 1951-52 budget should be repealed. They unsuccessfully moved to repeal increases in the sales and excise taxes. As substitute sources of revenue they proposed higher corporation taxes and a tax on capital gains.

When the repeal moves failed, the Commons voted 59 to 39 for a resolution to a bill which will give the law to the sales and excise tax changes announced in the April 10 budget.

The resolution contained all of the commodity tax changes, including two under heavy fire—the new 15-per-cent excise tax on stoves, washing machines and refrigerators, and the 25-per-cent increase in the general sales tax, lifting it to 10 per cent from eight per cent.

Still to be passed are resolutions providing for increase in personal income and corporation taxes and for minor changes in tariffs.

Blames Butter

February jump of 4.5 points and it meant that barometer—which uses the 1935-39 price level as its base of 100—had moved up 9.3 points since the start of the year.

Dud Mortar Shell Explodes Kills 3 Children, Injures 3

STE. BRIGIDE D'IBERVILLE, Que., May 4. (CP)—A "dud" Piat shell, fired at a Farnham, Que., training range during the Second World War, exploded Thursday night, killing three children and wounding three others. Army authorities launched an investigation into the tragedy that resulted in the death of Jean-Noel Lamarche, 10, his four-year-old brother, Martial, and Edgar Remillard, 13.

Taken to a nearby St. Johns, Que., hospital with facial and chest wounds were two other Remillard boys, Gilles, 9, and Jean Paul, 10, and Edmond Lamarche, 7.

An Army spokesman said the children found two live Piat shells on a training range that has not been used since the end of the war.

The boys took the shells home and were hammering at one of them in their backyard when it exploded, killing three on the spot. The other shell was found intact.

Piat (projector infantry anti-tank) is a type of mortar used in anti-tank warfare. A stubby shell more than a fot long, it is fired by a bazooka-like mortar and is capable of penetrating the superstructure of tanks and exploding inside.

Army officials said shells fired during the war sometimes entered the ground without exploding and some were found each spring when the thaw washed away layers of the earth surface.

They said the children picked up the shells on a range that was out of bounds for civilians and

Hears Cheers Premier Faints

TEHRAN, May 4.—Mohammed Mossadegh, Iran's new Premier, was given a thunderous ovation by his supporters Wednesday morning when he emerged from the parliament buildings after addressing the lower house.

Overcome by emotion, he promptly fainted.

The aged leader of the extremist National Front presented his cabinet and its program to the House and pledged his government to a faithful execution of the oil nationalization law which provides for an immediate expropriation of all assets of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co.

One of the country's most successful demagogues, the new Premier frequently breaks into tears in the course of his perorations before parliament.

LONDON, Ont., May 4 (CP)—Investigation into the crash of Canada's secret jet fighter, the Avro CF-100 has been completed and evidence is being compiled into a lengthy report at RCAF Station, London, Sqdn. Ldr. John McClure, chairman of the probe board said today.

Impose 50% Surcharge On New Zealand Freight

WELLINGTON, May 4 — (Reuters) —Shipping companies operating out of New Zealand will impose a 50-per-cent surcharge on freights as a result of dock strikes which have tided up cargoes during the last 11 weeks.

The Montreal-Australia-New Zealand Shipping Line announced today that the increase will apply on North American cargoes as well as those to other parts of the world. It goes into effect Monday.

Prime Minister Sidney Holland said he received assurances that the surcharge is only temporary. It also applies on cargoes to New Zealand.

Earlier today, the New Zealand Importers' Association forecast a rise in the cost of living in Britain as a result of the surcharge.

"It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that New Zealand will become entirely isolated if there is no settlement of the perpetual watersiders' troubles," a spokesman for the association said. "Shipping companies cannot be expected to commit their ships to a service from which it is impossible to schedule their return."

Efforts to form local unions of stevedores received a setback today when dock workers in Lyttleton, biggest port on the South Island, voted overwhelmingly against replacing the de-registered Watersiders' Union.

About 600 members of the Lyttleton branch of the de-registered union attended the meeting at which only three members supported a motion to form a port union.

The government cancelled the registration of the Watersiders' Union during the dockers' strike for higher pay. It encouraged the formation of new unions to replace the striking body.

Meanwhile, members of the Home Emergency Force stood guard over the homes of men who answered the government's call to go back to work. The civilian force was on the watch for dockers who might attack the returned watersiders' as "scabs."

Living Standard Cut Facing Europeans

STRASBOURG, France, May 4 —(AP)—European civilians face a definite cut in their standard of living because of the Communist threat in Korea, the Council of Europe was told today.

The organization for European economic co-operation an 18-country group which helps administer the Marshall Plan made this analysis in its first report to the European Consultative Assembly.

The report is for assemblymen who open their 1951 sessions here tomorrow afternoon.

The OEEC warned that unless co-ordinated controls keep civilian consumption within lower limits, the nations of Europe will be upset by "disorderly and inequitable inflation."

MacArthur Offered Five Million Dollars

NEW YORK, May 4 (AP) — Gen. MacArthur, whose salary and allowances come to $18,761 a year, has been offered $5,000,000 for his memoirs.

The offer was disclosed Thursday night by Maj.-Gen. Courtney Whitney, MacArthur's personal aide. Whitney declined to say who made the offer and whether MacArthur accepted.

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP).—Defence Minister Claxton will make an important statement in the Commons tonight and in an address at 9 p.m. EDT, over a nation-wide network on the subject "An Enlargement of the Canadian Army."

It is expected the minister will announce plans for the formation of a new force for service in Europe with Gen. Eisenhower's Atlantic-Pact Army, and a new recruiting drive to raise this force.

New Atomic Flashlights Can Locate Brain Tumors

NEW YORK, May 4 (AP). — A new atomic flashlight for locating brain tumors was announced Thursday in Science, official journal of American scientists.

The atom flash works like an ordinary flashlight would if it had two ends and shot beams simultaneously out of each one. The atomic flash is made by positrons —electrons with a positive electrical charge.

Ordinary electrons have a negative charge. This is the first practical use for positrons since their discovery more than 15 years ago.

Positrons are emitted by some kinds of radioactive bombs. Such atoms are made in the atomic reactors that also produce bombs.

When a positron is emitted it lasts only a few millionths of a second. Then it meets a negative electron, the two disappear, and in their place appear two gamma rays, travelling in opposite directions. Gamma rays are identical with X-rays.

This union of positron and electrons makes the atomic flashlight. When the substance emitting positrons is placed inside a cancer in the brain, the gamma rays are powerful enough to penetrate the skull. New-type counters pick up these rays and identify them.

Each double-end flash comes from the cancer. Each one appears respectively on the opposite side of the skull and this draws a straight line through the cancer. These lines in different planes locate the cancer precisely.

The methods by which this is done were developed at Duke University, Durham, N. C.

The positron-emitting atoms are placed in a dye that concentrates in brain cancers. Injecting this dye into the blood lights up the cancer.

Belle Of All Captures Second Racing Classic

NEWMARKET, England, May 4. (Reuters)—Belle of All, ridden by Gordon Richards, today won the One Thousand Guineas—Britain's second classic horse race of the season.

Subtle Difference ran second over Newmarket's straight mile. Bob Run was a photo-finish third in the 18-filly race.

Three furlongs out, R. S. Clark's Javotte—a Whirlaway filly out of Galatea—showed briefly in front but faded up the final hill. She was the only American entrant.

Belle of All started favorite at 4-1. Subtle Difference was 100-8 and Bob Run 50-1.

Ottawa Liffs 11-Year Ban On Hog Shipments, Can Now Be Sent To U.S.

Believe Britain Unlikely To Receive Bacon With Change In Policy; Government Will Buy At 32½ Cents Pound

OTTAWA, May 4. (CP)—An 11-year-old embargo against the shipment of Canadian live hogs to the United States ended Thursday. And with it ended hope, too, that Canada will be selling bacon to Britain this year. The decision to end the ban was announced in the Commons by Agriculture Minister Gardiner. Permits for such shipments will be issued by the Government freely. Sale of live hogs to the United States was banned in 1940 to channel all available bacon into the United Kingdom market.

This year the Government decided against taking up a UK offer to buy Canadian top-quality bacon at 29 cents a pound—Britain's 1950 price. In previous years, it subsidized food shipments to Britain.

However, the government did announce it would continue to buy bacon from the domestic market at 32½ cents a pound—if any was available at that price—and arrangements could be made later whereby Britain might buy some of this bacon, if she wanted it at cost.

Now with the U.S. market thrown open it is unlikely Britain will get any bacon from Canada.

No Heavy Flow

TORONTO, May 4 (CP)—Lifting of the embargo on shipment of Canadian hogs to the United States is unlikely to result in any heavy flow across the border, William P. Watson, Ontario livestock commissioner, said Thursday night.

During the last week, he said, there was a difference of six cents between the 34 cents being offered in Toronto for dressed hogs and the prices quoted in Buffalo, N.Y. A similar gap existed between prices being paid for live hogs.

Mr. Watson said that while some of the difference might be made up by payments in United States currency, the American duty would just about cancel this out.

60 Cars Damaged In B.C. Blaze

VANCOUVER, May 4 (CP) — A warehouse containing about 60 new automobiles was swept by fire early today.

Firemen said few—if any—of the cars escaped damage or destruction when the fire, brief but spectacular, broke out in the McLeod Rae Motors warehouse.

The building was located on the fringe of the crowded False Creek industrial area, near the downtown district.

The cars, about half of them small English models, would have an approximate retail value of $150,000.

UK Revises Estimate Of Russian Army

LONDON, May 4 (AP).—British government intelligence has revised its estimate of Soviet army strength to 200 divisions, a qualified source said today.

Two months ago American and British estimates of Russian strength placed Soviet army manpower at 175 divisions and 2,800,000 men. An average Russian division is believed to be made up of 10,000 combat troops.

The new figure does not necessarily mean that the Soviets are mobilizing, the source said. It could mean better intelligence reports brought about the revision.

Heavy Gales Mar Part Of Sea Voyage

PUSAN, Korea, May 4 (AP)—Whistling, high-spirited Canadian soldiers, vanguard of the Canadian 25th Infantry Brigade, docked today on the United States Navy transport Marine Adder.

They said their two-week 6,000 mile voyage from Seattle was uneventful except for a heavy 24-hour gale near the end.

They were met by a U.S. Army band, South Korean officials and their commander, Brig. John M. Rockingham of Vancouver. He and an advance party arrived some time ago after having flown the Pacific.

Rockingham said he had "never seen troops as willing and anxious to do their jobs as these fellows." He said they would leave for the front soon, after more training.

The rest of the brigade is due in a few days.

Largest single unit aboard the ship was the 2nd Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment. Its commanding officer, Lt.-Col. James Dextraze, was the first to land.

First Off Boat

"I'm glad to be here," he told Rockingham and the Korean officials.

First other ranks off the ship were Cpl. George Barnard Dodge of Vancouver and Spr. Edwin Colpitts of Saint John, N. B.

Among unit commanders aboard were Majors D. C. Rochester, Toronto; R. C. Laughton, Ottawa; J. L. V. Patrick, Yorkton, Sask.; R. E. Hallam, Vancouver; H. R. Ferris, Saint John, N. B.; J. W. Quinn, Saskatoon; R. I. Lukar, Kingston; J. R. Lumpien, Drummondville, Que.; and Roy C. Durnford, Vancouver.

Forty per cent of the brigade are veterans of the Second World War. The new arrivals said they are anxious to meet their comrades, the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, already veterans of the Korean fighting.

Outposts In Arc

Columns probing out from Seoul found Red outposts in an arc about 10 miles from the war-shattered old South Korean capitalital

One column knifed 11 miles north of Uijongbu. It returned with 21 prisoners and an American soldier who had been wounded eight days ago.

The tankers shot their way through heavy small-arms fire. None of the raiders was reported hurt.

None of the armored probings ran into the main body of Reds.

Intelligence officers reported two big groupings. One was north of Seoul. The other—apparently heavier—build-up was in the Chunchon-Hwachon area. This is north of the Central Korean plain and the site of the Reds' biggest success in their costly spring offensive before it bogged down.

Fly 1,000 Sorties

Airmen hammered at this build-up as they flew more than 1,000 sorties Thursday for the fifth successive day. They reported 800 killed or wounded in blows directed at transport and supply buildings

Jet fighter-bombers chased one railroad train into a tunnel near the Red capital Pyongyang, then sealed it in by blasting shut both ends of the tube.

Pilots reported their bag included five locomotives, 140 railroad cars, 120 motor vehicles, two tanks, nine gun positions, 1,200 buildings, 10 fuel dumps, and 13 bridges.

Hope Japanese Treaty Finished In Few Weeks

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP)—Canada is hopeful that a draft of a Japanese peace treaty may be completed in the next few weeks, but prospects for a similar treaty for Germany do not look bright, an authoritative spokesman indicated today.

Russia continues to be the stumbling block with regard to Germany. And the spokesman said failure of the western powers to reach an agreement with Russia on a formula for settling the state of war with Germany probably will result in them putting their relations with West Germany on a more permanent basis.

As for the Japanese treaty, he said interested countries including Canada, are narrowing down points of difference in continuing conversations.

Cost-of-Living

The announcement brought a question from George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, as to whether the government now intends to use emergency power to deal with the cost-of-living problem. Mr. Howe said defence buying has not contributed to the rise in consumer costs. He gave no indication that price controls are in prospect.

The Commons was told by Mr. Howe that ordinarily changes in the cost-of-living index are announced by the Bureau of Statistics. However, he had decided to make the announcement to the chamber since it was there he had said in a speech April 9 that the index would hold about even or at most show an increase on not more than one-half of one per cent in the month.

Almost half of the 2.1 point increase, the Bureau said, was accounted for by the fact that butter prices moved to high levels in March and early April.

Butter prices then dropped sharply, and Mr. Howe told the House that if the mid-April price for butter had been in effect at April 2, his forecast of the size of the increase would have been correct. The forecast had been based on a more rapid decrease in butter prices than actually occurred.

Adult Circulation Increases At Library

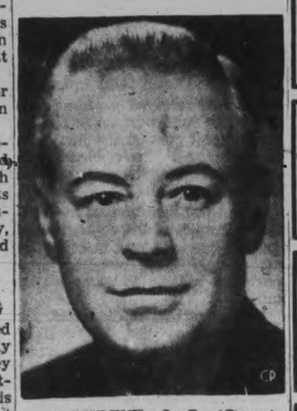
Peterborough

The total increase for April 1951 over same month last year was 1,946. The increase for the first four months of 1951 as compared to this period last year was 6,308. The greatest increase in April was registered in the adult section of the main library, 954.

Since the beginning of the year there has been a total circulation of 33,942.

Organizations and grooups totalling 24 used the library and committee room during the month for meetings. Two art exhibits were on display and special displays on past and present history, United Nations, gardening and home repair were arranged.

CATERPILLARS ARE COMING



Forest tent caterpillars started to hatch in the Kawarthas early this week, according to a survey by entomologists of the Department of Lands and Forests. This is two weeks earlier than last year. In Muskoka the hatch was a few days earlier but they are of a different variety—Eastern tent caterpillars. This variety attacks cherry and fruit trees. The species in this area concentrate on maple, oak and poplar.

Finds Masher Only A Bird

NEW YORK, May 4 (AP). — As brunette Dorothy Campbell put it:

"I don't go around assuming men are whistling at me. But I defy you to ignore it for three weeks."

So Thursday she called the cops.

They went to her Manhattan office, and sure enough, they, too, heard the wolf whistle, a lusty, suggestive whee-wheeoo.

A house-to-house search led police to the near-by apartment of explorer Carveth Wells. There they found the masher—a black-feathered talking Mina bird named Raffles.

Mrs. Wells said her husband taught the bird to whistle at pretty girls as an act.

"In a very seductive voice," Mrs. Wells conceded.

Said Miss Campbell:

"I'm a nature lover—I'm happy it was a bird."

Cracked the pleased-with-himself Raffles:

"Hello, Darling."

THIS PICTURE SHOWS all that remained of the 1,192-ton Royal Fleet auxiliary ammunition ship "Bedenham," which blew up in Gibraltar Harbor, Friday, April 27. Sabotage is suspected. Latest casualty figures give ten dead, three missing and many injured and detained in hospital. Two sections of the wrecked ship are seen blown up on the wharf, one on the right of the crane, the other on the left. The third section is seen half submerged in the water (right). Cause of the accident has been attributed to explosion of a depth charge in a lighter moored alongside the ship.

Have Explosion At Ballroom

WINDSOR, May 4 — (CP). — An explosion Thursday night shattered windows of the Show Boat Ballroom, a river front hall, and brought down huge sections of plaster from the ceiling. Its cause was unknown.

Fire officials were notified of the incident by an unidentified railway worker. They found all doors and windows of the ballroom locked, but every pane of glass blon out.

Inside, a heavy wooden bench had been blown to pieces at the spot where the explosion occurred. Part of the bench had been driven into a brick wall 10 feet away.

A check of the premises dispelled any theory that leaking gas was responsible. oN gas service was installed in the building.

Czech Gov't Refuses To Admit AP Reporter

FRANKFURT, Germany, May 4 —(AP)—The Czechoslovak foreign ministry today said it would not admit a new Associated Press correspondent to Prague until the case against the imprisoned AP bureau chief, William N. Oatis, is settled.

Press officials of the ministry said they could not accredit a replacement at this time "because we don't know what is going to happen to Oatis."

Oatis, 37, was arrested in Prague April 23 and accused of activities hostile to the Communist Government.

Neighbors Help Fire Victims

COBOURG, May 4 (ENS) — Neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Taylor, residents on the western outskirts of town, whose home was gutted by fire Thursday, are providing temporary accommodation for the couple and their several children.

The upper part of the two-storey house was practically destroyed by the flames, believed to have originated in defective wiring, and the bottom floor was covered with water and plaster that had fallen from the ceiling. The water also accumulated to a depth of about a foot in the cellar. Much of the furniture was destroyed upstairs and on the main floor it will be necessary to repaint and plaster before the house can be lived in again.

Hold Closed Meeting On Salary Increase

COBOURG, May 4 (ENS) — The Cobourg Public Utilities Commission held a closed meeting to consider the 10% increase in salaries asked for by 21 of the 22 employees. If the increases are granted it would add $5,000 a year to the total payroll expense and would mean an increase in the rates.

Cobourg's wage rate is higher than several municipalities. The salary increase was brought up at a meeting of the commission on Tuesday night and it was decided to meet in committee Thursday night and go into the matter thoroughly. Decision of the committee meeting will be announced at the next regular meeting of the commission.

Would Like New Tribunal

LONDON, May 4 — (CP) —The Times says editorially today that it would still like to see some "wholly-new tribunal" which would maintain legal ties between Canada and Britain.

The independent newspaper was commenting on the suggestion Wednesday by Viscount Simon, a British law lord, that the judicial committee of the Privy Council should be reconstituted to include representatives of the Dominions.

"It is still possible to speculate whether at some future date," says The Times. "a wholly-new tribunal might be constituted, which in the mode of its appointment as well as in its membership should give no primacy to one member of the Commonwealth over another, and which should be capable of sitting anywhere in the King's Dominions."

On the Canadian decision to abolish appeals to the Privy Council, long the Commonwealth's last resort of appeal, The Times says it seems unfortunate that no way consistent with Canadian pariotic feeling was ever found to preserve "the historic link between these two branches of one great system of law."

Arena Directors Buy Roller Skates

While a few arenas in Ontario are having midsummer ice skating, the Peterborough Civic Arena this year will be featuring roller skating as its main attraction.

Walter Smillie, manager, said today that the arena directors have ordered 150 pairs of skates which will be available on skating nights, Tuesday and Thursday, throughout the summer. These skates, ordered from Chicago, were recommended for the rink surface and are fibre wheels with a rubber cushion, slanted at a 45 degree angle for the turns.

Last summer when roller skating was introduced to arena fans the skates were rented. Early season attendance numbered on the average 15 persons but by the end of the season had increased to 175.

The ice in the arena has been out for the past two weeks.

Britain's Relations With China

The British Government is suffering embarrassment in its own relations with China and also in the relationships which British trading interests have formed with China. It is now eighteen months since Britain decided that, as the Communist government was in effect the government of China, and as the hopes of Chiang Kai-shek were so slight as to be inconsiderable it would be wise to give diplomatic recognition to the Communists. Such recognition was offered, but the Chinese Communists have not yet said that they accept Britain's offer, and have stated no terms upon which they are willing to establish diplomatic relations. The Chinese Communist government has now seized all the property of the British Asiatic Petroleum Company; why they have done so and what they think that they will do with it are mysteries, for that company is an importing company, and its value is based on British reputation and British credit. If the Chinese think that it will function as usual under their management they are either optimists or amateurs in business. But this seizure is a slap in the face to Britain.

* * *

The British Government is embarrassed because the Colonial Office has revealed that since the outbreak of the war in Korea companies in British Malaya have sold 120,000 tons of rubber to Communist China and 40,400 tons to Russia. Undoubtedly some of this rubber, and perhaps all of it, is being used to manufacture arms which are being used against U.N. troops in Korea. The increase in the sales of rubber since the outbreak of war is further evidence to this effect. Sharp questions have been asked in the House of Commons about this matter, and Emanuel Shinwell, the Defence Minister, has not been able to answer them. The questions were asked by Mr. Churchill after Mr. Shinwell had announced heavy losses to the first Gloucester Battalion in Korea. Although Mr. Shinwell asserts that Britain has tried to keep strategic materials from China, it appears that steel and locomotives, as well as rubber, have been going there.

* * *

It would be foolish to try to make judgements upon such a mess as this. But it looks like the old story: government policy and trade policy are working at cross purposes. The men who can make money out of war are making it, without regard for what the consequences may be to their own countrymen. It is not for us to point the finger at Britain in this instance; has anyone forgotten that Canada was selling scrap iron and scrap steel to Japan right up until the time when Japan began to shoot it back at the Allies? Every nation has a record of this kind.

* * *

It is interesting, though melancholy, to see that this has taken place under the nose of a socialist government, for socialists have long boasted that these things were a consequence of capitalism, and could not happen under a government which had the interests of all the people truly at heart. But apparently trade works very much the same under socialism—with its great power to control and direct trade—as it does under capitalism. This cannot be a source of satisfaction to anyone; it is a comment upon human nature.

* * *

The breakdown of British relations with China is one more proof that ordinary diplomatic relations, based on mutual commercial advantage and international courtesy, are impossible with Communist countries. Britain's gesture toward China was one of political realism; another kind of realism compels us now to see that it is a failure. The alternative is not, of course, recognition of the discredited Chiang Kai-shek. It is a recognition of the fact that diplomacy on traditional lines is impossible with Communist countries.

The Prime Minister's Rent

Mr. St. Laurent has acted very wisely and cautiously in insisting on paying a rent of $5,000 a year on his new residence. However unreasonable it may seem to depart from the custom of most other countries in this respect Mr. St. Laurent showed a fine appreciation of the vagaries of Canadian public opinion in refusing to listen to the objections of friend and foe alike. He has made it quite clear that he does not wish to profit financially from his change of address. Instead of paying $250 a month as he did for his apartment he will now be paying $416.67. This is a very effective way of silencing critics who will lose no opportunity to prove that the government is feathering its own nest.

Festival Of Britain

Yesterday marked the opening of the much-heralded Festival of Britain, which is attracting visitors from overseas in large numbers. The government was strongly criticized for sponsoring such an ambitious scheme at a moment when difficulties at home and tension abroad seemed to call for anything but celebration. Nevertheless the government went ahead with its plans. It intends to show the world that Britain is still very much alive in industry, science, arts and crafts. 1951 also happens to be the hundredth anniversary of the Great Exhibition in Hyde Park, forerunner of all the big international exhibitions and world fairs. It is pointed out, too, that tourist traffic to the United Kingdom should reach a record high level, bringing in valuable foreign currency, especially American dollars. It is hoped that firms may get many orders from overseas as a result of the Festival.

One interesting feature of the Festival is that it is spread all over the country. There are seven or eight main centres, where special celebrations are being planned, but every town and hamlet will be doing something to mark the occasion. In London itself, which naturally acts as the focus of attraction, a large area of the South bank of the Thames, once the site of dingy warehouses and conveniently flattened out by Hitler during the war, has been transformed into an exhibition ground, with pavilions, booths, exhibits and a fun fair. A new concert hall, the Royal Festival Hall, has been built and will remain after the Festival is over to fill a great need in the musical life of the metropolis.

We in Peterborough could have done with some permanent memorial to our centenary celebrations last year. Even now it is not too late to undertake some scheme for beautifying the City. In Canterbury, England, the blitzed centre of the ancient cathedral city is being cleared with the aid of volunteer labour. An honorarium of a pint of beer for an afternoon's work is being dispensed by the City Fathers. With beer at its present price this sounds like a good wage.

Piecing The Evidence Together

"Whom the nose fits, let him wear it" might be the moral of a story that comes to us from Bremen, Germany. A radio store was broken into. When the police investigated the scene of the crime they discovered the tip of a man's nose amongst the fragments of a broken window-pane. Rejecting the theory that a customer, having been made to pay through the nose, resolved to cut it off to spite his face they kept a sharp lookout for noseless types.

The next morning they stopped a man in the street with a bandage around his head and discovered that the severed nose fitted his face perfectly. It must have been like fitting together the last piece of a jig-saw puzzle. Further explanations were useless; the man admitted his guilt and was charged with burglary. Let us hope that it will teach him a lesson not to poke his nose into things that do not concern him.

Daylight Saving Not Compulsory

A group of farmers of the Tweed district have sent us a clipping from The Canadian Countryman which they ask us to reprint. Here it is:

One "Daylight Saving" supporter says the question of setting clocks ahead should be left to cities and to individual citizens. The second one says that "some of us like to get up an hour earlier. We get to our office earlier and home earlier for golf and gardening." Men that make such remarks simply have no consideration for farmers or their fellow man. Mr. Ontario Farmer, let us take a stand and do as Alberta did—outlaw Daylight Saving Time. Manitoba had its first reading to outlaw Daylight Saving Time. Let us tell the city people that without the farmer people would soon starve, and that farmers must follow nature's way to do farm work.

City people have no argument in favour of tampering with the clock. They can get up to work or play at any hour they wish. So Mr. Ontario Farmer, let Ontario be the third province to have Daylight Saving Time abolished.

The time is past due for farmers and Standard Time supporters in town and cities to take action at once to bring pressure to bear on [illegible] have Daylight Saving Time outlawed.

The writer of this letter apparently thinks that Daylight Saving is a compulsory measure. It is not, and any farming community which does not want to adopt it is under no pressure to do so. Indeed, several places in the Peterborough district pay no attention to it, as they prefer to work by Standard Time.

For townsmen there are practical advantages in Daylight Saving, and it would be unreasonable to outlaw the measure for them, simply because countrymen—who are under no obligation to practise it—do not like it. The letter which is quoted above makes the statement that without the farmer city people would soon starve; it is equally true that without city people the farmer would soon starve, or perhaps perish of exposure. The best plan is for townsmen and countrymen to be tolerant. If countrymen do not like Daylight Saving, they are free to ignore it.

Researchers at Yale find that the average alcoholic is 40, is married, and has a job. Three good reasons why a man should seek temporary oblivion.

The Economics Of Bevanism

by ROBERT STEPHENS

STRIPPED of rhetoric, the dispute between the Attlee Government and Mr. Bevan and his friends concerns two fundamental points, the first primarily economic and the second essentially political.

The first point is a disagreement over the extent to which present difficulties in obtaining raw materials and machine tools will affect the total amount of the nation's resources this year. The second is how these total resources are to be allocated between the defence programme and the civil economy.

✧ ✧ ✧

ON the first point Mr. Bevan and Mr. Wilson contend that shortages of raw materials and machine tools caused by the excessive American demand, must restrict the national resources to a degree which makes it impossible to carry out the projected arms programme without (in Mr. Bevan's words) "irreparable damage to the economy of Britain and the world".

Consequently on the second point, when faced with the alternative of reducing the arms programme or restricting the civil economy—which means cutting the standard of living and the social services—Mr. Bevan and his friends assert that it is defence that must be cut. Their arguments for this assertion are chiefly political; they say that the cut in the civil economy needed to maintain the defence programme in full would undermine the foundations of political liberty and parliamentary democracy.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Government's case, as set out in the economic Survey (Government White Paper) and the Budget, admits that no accurate estimate of future production can be made in view of the uncertainties about raw materials and machine tools. But after carefully examining all the factors involved, it assumes that industrial productivity during 1951 will increase by four per cent as compared with an average increase of seven per cent. during the previous three years.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS assumption about the nation's resources is, as the Economic Survey pointed out, of crucial importance. On it depends the degree to which civilian consumption has to be cut and the standard of living lowered in order to carry out the defence programme. If the assumption proves accurate the defence programme can be carried out, as the Government proposes, out of the proceeds of this four per cent. increase plus a restriction of civilian consumption which, although unpleasant and disheartening, cannot seriously be considered so severe as to threaten the foundations of the national economy or the future of parliamentary democracy.

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT to the extent that this assumption proves over optimistic so will the impact of the defence programme on the standard of living prove more severe. Here we come to the Government's view on the second, political point. The Government has declared that if its admittedly uncertain assumptions about increased production are not fulfilled, owing to shortages, then the defence programme may be modified, but so far as possible the additional cuts will be in the domestic economy.

✧ ✧ ✧

AS far as the economic aspect of this dispute is concerned, it is impossible to say whether the estimates of the Government or those of Mr. Bevan are right. Both cases are based on nothing more than vague estimates into which enter many uncertain factors, principally the supply of raw materials and machine tools, over which the British Government single-handed has little or no control. At least one may say that the Chancellor of the Exchequer has given detailed reasons for his assumption, while Mr. Bevan has so far produced nothing but dramatic generalities.

✧ ✧ ✧

NOWHERE has the danger of raw material shortages been more repeatedly and earnestly pointed out than in the Government's Economic Survey, and the Chancellor's Budget speech. In view of the Government's own insistence on this point, it may well be asked whether its assumption of increased national output was not too optimistic. But this optimism seems to have been an act of faith in the solidarity of the Atlantic alliance and the good sense of the Americans—a faith which in the past, in spite of frequent temporary misgivings, has usually proved justified. It was also an act of faith in the ability of British industry to use its technical ingenuity to economize on scarce materials, employ substitutes and develop additional supplies.

AS stocks of raw materials are low, owing partly to the Government control of dollar imports during the first half of last year, production will depend on what Britain can get from abroad. Some of the scarcest and most vital materials, such as sulphur and certain non-ferrous metals, as well as some of the most important types of machine tools, are obtained almost entirely from the United States. Until some agreed system of international allocation is established, Britain—in common with other countries—is dependent on decisions of the American authorities for adequate supplies of those goods.

As far as sulphur is concerned, the Americans have given Britain an allocation of just over 195,000 tons for the first half of this year. This is less than Britain needs and will mean a cut of about 20 per cent. in supplies to the rayon industry. But it removes from British industry, for the time being at least, the threat of "partial paralysis" or "unparalleled disaster" of which Mr. Harold Wilson spoke when he was still President of the Board of Trade.

The plans for international action to ensure fair shares of scarce materials have admittedly made slow progress. Although the supply crisis was foreseen many months ago, the various commodity committees set up by the International Materials Conference in Washington have not yet got beyond the stage of collecting information. It is obvious that a greater effort must be made to speed up this work, extremely complex though it is.

✧ ✧ ✧

SUCH an effort will have to come from Britain as well as from America. Some of the materials concerned, such as wool, tin and rubber, are produced in the sterling areas and controls over these may be the price demanded for the international allocation of other indispensible materials that Britain herself needs from the dollar area. Whether or not such a bargain can be struck—and the speed with which it can be done—may largely determine whether the Government or Mr. Bevan has guessed right about Britain's economic future.

Indian Names In Ontario

(SAULT STE. MARIE STAR)

THE lack of imagination and of descriptive quality in Western Ontario place names came in for some critical comment the other day from a broadcasting playwright and historian, who held that the pioneers took too many of their places names from three general sources—from their old homes, from local Indian names and from the first settlers. Only in the West, where such names as Medicine Hat are common, did the pioneers show any imagination, he claimed.

Some mild exception might be taken to this and the gentleman's attention called to Northern Ontario. Although it may lack Medicine Hats and Moose Jaws, and although aside from a few of the old-home and early-settler christenings the great majority of its place names are of Indian origin, a great many of them are none the less picturesque and descriptive for that.

To stick close to home, the Sault itself may be a case in point—Sault Ste. Marie, the St. Mary's "leap" or rapids. It is a name lacking in neither uniqueness nor descriptive qualities, although it is a question whether this name, which first appeared on a map by Joliet in 1671, is quite as picturesque as earlier designations—the "Sault de Gaston" applied by Brule in 1617 or earlier in honour of the brother of King Louis XIII of France, or the "Pawiting" or "Baw-a-ting" by which the Ojibways denoted the place of shallow water rushing over stones.

Thessalon's is another name which is both unique and descriptive. Newcomers to the district are apt to remark on and wonder about its resemblance to the biblical Thessalonica, but there is no connection. The name is actually a corruption of the Ojibway "Deysun-ong" describing a place featured by the nests of big birds in flat-topped trees. Incidentally, the same name has been applied to the locality for more than 250 years, so it is a question whether Thessalon may not claim to be the oldest community of unchanged names in Ontario.

So of Batchawana, "the narrow current place", and Michipicoten, a name which rather freely translated refers to "the great wilds there", or the rugged hills or foreland which form the region's feature.

Blind River is another name fitting enough as it was applied first to the stream whose mouth was so masked by the conformation of the land that early voyageurs along the north shore passed close by without knowing of its existence. Mississagi, the river given the name of the big mouthed snake, was the opposite, just as well described.

Even Bruce Mines, if the origin of the name is more prosaic, is not without distinction. The name apparently developed in the early part of the 19th century when the copper deposits there were being worked and the north shore was regarded as simply an adjunct of the Bruce Peninsula, the nearest more settled land.

It may be that the early explorers and settlers hereabouts were sometimes lacking in imagination in simply accepting the placenames applied by the Indians. But it does not seem to us that they could often have bettered the Indian effort in the matter of picturesque and descriptive qualities. "Pawiting", for instance, is one that always has a particularly musical and graphic appeal to us.

Abacus Revival

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

The advance in science has introduced much that is modern into university and school life. But one of the "newest" devices for teaching the young is being brought out of the far, far distant past. It is no less than the ancient adding machine known as the abacus, which was used by the Greeks more than 2,500 years ago and, in various forms, by the early Romans, Chinese and Japanese.

The original abacus resembled a child's counting frame, with its bead-strung wires, as used in some primary classes. It is the basis of today's electric calculating machines.

Its simplicity of appearance—even the more elaborate models look like a couple of bead frames joined together, end by side—is deceptive, for the abacus in the hands of an expert is capable of producing very fast answers to mathematical problems.

Well remembered still is the surprise the Western world felt when, in a series of tests a few years ago, a Japanese abacus operator defeated an American using an adding machine.

ROBBERY

Two Scots were mountaineering, when one of them slipped and fell into a crevasse. The other, peering over the edge, saw his companion holding on by his finger-nails.

"Are ye a' richt, Macpherson?" he shouted.

"No' exactly that," said the other, "but if ye run down to the village an get a rope I'll try to hang on till ye come back. Hurry, for Heaven's sake."

His companion disappeared and was gone nearly an hour. Suddenly his face appeared again over the edge of the cliff.

"Are ye still there, Macpherson?" he called down.

"Aye," in a low, weary tone. "Have ye got the rope?"

"No; indeed. The scallywags in the village wanted two pounds for it."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Abigail came to Nabal; and, behold, he held a feast in his house, like the feast of a king; and Nabal's heart was merry within him, for he was very drunken, wherefore she told him nothing, less or more, until the morning light. But it came to pass in the morning, when the wine was gone out of Nabal, and his wife had told him these things, that his heart died within him, and he became as a stone....

And when David heard that Nabal was dead, he said, Blessed be the Lord, that hath pleaded the cause of my reproach from the hand of Nabal, and hath kept his servant from evil. (I Sam. 25: 36, 37, 39.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Righteousness keepeth him that is upright in the way: but wickedness overthroweth the sinner. (Prov. 13: 6.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Cast away from you all your transgressions whereby ye have transgressed; and make you a new heart and a new spirit: for why will ye die, O house of Israel? For I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth, saith the Lord God: wherefore turn yourselves, and live ye. (Ezek. 18: 31, 32.)

Unconsidered Trifles

An Irishman on a scaffolding four storeys high heard the noon whistle. But when he would have descended, he found that the ladder had been removed. One of his fellow workmen on the pavement below, to whom he called, explained that the foreman had carried off the ladder for another job.

"But how'll I get down?" Pat demanded.

Mike, on the pavement, suggested jumping as the only means. Pat's lunch was below, he was hungry, and he accepted the suggestion seriously.

"Will you kitch me?" he demanded.

"Sure, an' I'll do that," Mike agreed.

Pat clapped his arms in imitations of a rooster, and crowed to bolster up his courage, and leaped. He regained consciousness after a short interval, and feebly sat up on the pavement. He regarded Mike reproachfully.

"For why did yez not kitch me?" he asked, and the pain in his bones sounded in his voice.

"Begorry," Mike replied sympathetically, "I was waiting for yez to bounce!"

✧ ✧ ✧

"Why don't you take him into partnership?"

"Well, he was engaged to my wife before I married her. I'm not taking on a business partner who's smarter than I am."

Spoiling Good Food

Good farmers take pride in the excellence of the foodstuffs they produce, whether it be fine beef, high grade pork, very good wheat, vegetables or fruits. It must dismay them to walk into some eating establishments and learn the sad story of what has happened to the food they produced. All of which illustrates the best of food can be ruined by a poor cook or baker.

It was Edward III, we believe, who ordered the heads cut off all the innkeepers between Dover and London because their food was so bad. This, indeed, was a drastic punishment. But it must have encouraged other innkeepers to avoid this fate.

There are, of course, many excellent cooks, in public eating places and private homes. A new tourist season is about to open and every effort should be made to improve meals generally. With food costs at their present peak, it is no less than tragic to have so much of it treated so badly in the cooking of it.

"I bet she don't put me pension up."

IT'S MAY—Residents of Salt Lake City, Utah, needed to recheck their calendars to assure them it wasn't January. Tons of wet, clinging snow descended on the city, ripping down tree branches and shrubs with its weight. Freezing weather threatened more damage.

More Prisoners

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bishop A. H. Sovereign, founder of the John Howard Society in Vancouver, told a meeting here that "every time a man goes to jail society admits a failure." He noted that more people are going to jail now than ever before with the prison population 4,740 in 1950.

Five Metal Dealers Appear In Nickel Theft

WHITBY, May 4 — (CP). — A load of nickel ingots, allegedly stolen from a company in Oshawa, brought five Toronto metal dealers into court Thursday charged with conspiracy to steal nickel ingots from the Skinner Co. and conspiracy to receive stolen metal.

The five, Sidney Stern, Sam Fruitman, Morris H. Baker, Joseph Levy, and Sam Swartz, elected trial by higher court, and were remanded on bail of $10,000 each. Their case was adjourned to May 10.

Ralph McQuire, superintendent of International Nickel Company at Port Colborne, Ont., said Skinner's was the only customer in Canada that purchased nickel anodes in the size the Crown had enptered as exhiibts at the hearing.

Veterinary Surgeon Dr. T. Waghorn Dies

TORONTO, May 4 (CP).—Dr. Thomas G. Waghorn, 81, retired veterinary surgeon, died Thursday. He was an inspector with the Brockville health department from 1926 until 1943.

Born in Huron County, he was a graduate of the Ontario veterinary college. He practiced in Huron county for several years and lived at Walton. Later, he was private veterinarian for Senator A. C. Hardy of Brockville.

He had lived here since his retirement eight years ago.

New Treatment Tried On Cancer

LONDON, Ont., May 4 (CP)—A Western Ontario physician said Thursday he is treating cancer victims with a relatively simple and inexpensive extract of calf spleen and getting "impressive results." Dr. George F. Watson of Kitchener treated cancers of the breast, uterus, mouth, skin, tonsil, stomach and rectum. He says all the cases improved and, in some, the malignant growths disappeared.

Dr. Watson added, however, that the extract will have to be tried on hundreds of other cancer victims and the results watched for years.

In his treatment, the spleen extract is combined with sterile water in varying concentrations and injected into the patient's veins.

In earlier published reports of experiments he said the extract apparently deals a death blow to the hearts of cancerous cells, leaving only a lifeless shell.

Prevents Split

NEW DELHI, May 4 — (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru's intervention prevented a serious split in India's ruling Congress party Thursday. Nehru pleaded for Congress unity in view of the international situation and the threats from Communists, Hindu Communal Naitionalists and other anti-government elements.

Learn Golf From The Stars

Move Back Carefully When Practising Vital Iron Shots

COMPACT—As the distance to the green decreases, Claude Harmon's stance for an iron shot is spread slightly, but never wider than the shoulders.

By SKIP ALEXANDER
Ryder Cup Player.

In golf, there is no such thing as too much practice.

Golf is a game in which perfection is anywhere from six to 60 strokes ahead of us.

There always is room for improvement.

Leading competitors on the tournament circuit spend much of their time practicing.

Tournament play is a minor part of their routine.

Practice rounds provide the time to work on weaknesses and seemingly unimportant imperfections.

Weaknesses show up under the pressure of a tough tournament.

Every type of shot is given a thorough workout in practice, with as much attention given to iron play as to wood shots and putting.

Accuracy is the key to any good iron shot—not only in direction, but in selecting the proper club for the distance.

Under- or over-shooting the green costs a stroke almost every time, so we must learn accuracy with our irons.

Practicing, I place my ball at the edge of the green and chip up. I gradually move back and keep hitting. As I increase my distance from the green, I get the feel of my hitting capacity with each club.

The only way to discover and successfully utilize your iron play is to practice.

A compact swing helps develop accuracy with irons.

As the distance to the green decreases, the stance may be spread slightly, but never wider than the shoulders.

Woods and the putter should not be disregarded.

Strive for distance and a fair amount of accuracy with the woods.

Although putting is one of the most elementary parts of the game, it probably is the most important. Tournaments have been lost because of a poor putt.

Consult a regular club professional. To practice the wrong thing is worse than spending practice time at the 19th hole.

As I wrote in the PGA Teachers' Guide, the golfer who classifies practice as a necessary part of the game is the one who will improve more rapidly.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The Petes' senior ballsters should be pretty well set as far as a battery is concerned this Viaduct League season. Schedule, by the way, will be drawn up this week-end in Toronto. The team has two good catchers, experienced receivers and hard hitters, in Al Menzies and Bill Huntley. Latter came here last fall for football, and he has played semi-pro baseball in the States. Al was leading hitter and rated most valuable player for the locals last season. It might be that to keep two good hitters in the lineup at the same time, they'll have to take turns catching and maybe do alternate duty in right field. That may be the solution.

* * * * * *

Three starting pitchers are working themselves into condition now, Bill Edger, Doug Plunkett and Lefty Bill Dadson. Latter's arm was on the blink about half of last season, but he proved a fine first baseman during that time, hitting well and being the fastest man on the club. When he returned to the mound, he pitched swell ball and was the hurler most feared by the champion Oshawa Merchants —whom he trounced in his one start against 'em in loop finals. Plunkett, of no-hit fame, has completely recovered from a fractured collar-bone suffered in the first grid game last fall, and big Doug should be a valuable flinger this year. Bill Edger has been an ace righthander for Petes for some years now, and will be right in there again this season.

* * * * * *

The Gunner's There, Too

Manager Ed (Gunner) Whitehill will gradually work into shape, too, to take a turn when needed or maybe a spot of relief twirling. Even last year, the veteran was rated one of top curvers in the whole league. He always had swell control for spot pitching—seldom walking a man—and plenty of zing to the fast heave. Ed has been chucking them in there for quite a few years, being a star here before the war—he comes originally from the States—and he's at his mound best in the real hot weather. "St. Louis weather", as the big leaguers say in July and August. Ed's brother Earl was an ace southpaw for many years in the majors.

* * * * * *

Then, also, the executive figures on one more on the pitching staff. They're presently considering a college tosser from New York State, but promise they'll bring in one more pitcher in any case—either a forksider or an orthodox thrower. So, that should put the Petes in a sound position as far as pitching and catching goes. Four or five proven pitchers and two experienced receivers, who are also consistent hitters. The club is working out regularly and we'll know more soon on the infield and outfield possibilities. Right now, we think the team is shaping up well and should be a strong contender for league honors in the summery months ahead.

To Meet The OLA Players

Hefty plans afoot to open the lacrosse season here next Friday night with an exhibition game between the senior Petes and the local provincial junior "B" champs. That's only part of the evening program at Miller Bowl at which the Mayor and council are invited, as well as the kids from the Orphanage and Shelter. The Mayor will faceoff to start the season, after the players are introduced to the fans. The Ontario peewee semi-finalists will fill in too, with a 20-minute game. A right snappy program starting at eight, the big game being at nine. No less than 30 prizes up, plus 10 OLA sticks to be drawn for by the kids on deck. Also a junior draw. Strictly a friendly "meet the team night" for the many lacrosse followers here.

* * * * * *

The soccer football season officially opens tomorrow at three p.m. in Morrow Park when Brockville meets the local UEW team. The Ex. is home grounds for UE, while O'Halloran's—who go to Trenton on the morrow—play home fixtures at King Edward Park. These two Peterborough teams are in the large and strong Eastern Ontario League, and will give the city its only organized soccer club swimmer. UEW looked impressive here a week ago in taking an exhibition victory handily over Batawa, another loop entry. Belleville and Kingston teams are in the same circuit, also. So, soccer fans can wend their way down south Saturday to see the seasonal lid pried off.

Ottawa Edges Bisons 5-4 In 15th Inning

By The Associated Press

The Ottawa Giants believe in doing things the hard way in the International League.

They had a game won Thursday night, 3-0, with two out and two strikes on the batter. Then it happened. George Moskovich drove a hot grounder off pitcher Chuck Eisenmann's ankle for one run. Then two more off reliefer Al Corwin sent the boys into extra innings.

For three hours and 54 minutes into the chill early-morning air they battled the Buffalo Bisons until they finally won, 5-4, in the 15th. Each side scored in the 10th but Ottawa finally took it on Bobby Hoffman's single, a sacrifice and John Metkovich's single.

Syracuse continues to lead the parade, knocking over Springfield, 7-4, by routing Andy Varga in a five-run first inning.

Southpaw Bill Houtz allowed only one hit in 7 2/3 relief innings after Jack Griffore was knocked out. Charley Teague homered for Springfield.

Karl Drews pitched and batted Baltimore past Rochester, 3-2. The ex-big leaguer threw a six-hitter and singled home Bill Glynn with the winning run in the eighth. Nippy Jones hit a Rochester homer.

A six-run fifth inning helped Toronto down Montreal, 9-6, with Don Robertson getting the win over Clary Podbielan. George Shuba hit a homer for Montreal. Bobby Rhawn and Les Fleming led the Leafs.

Elect Pope Coach Of New Cricket Club

PORT HOPE, May 4.—Alf Pope, a member of the Canadian cricket team, which will compete against the touring English eleven this summer, was elected vice-captain and coach of the newly formed Port Hope Cricket Club at a meeting of the executive. Pope is cricket instructor at Trinity College School.

G. R. Gwynne-Timothy will be the team captain. Eric Oswald is the club's president, and P. A. C. Ketchum, TCS headmaster, was named honorary vice-president. Harold Grover is secretary-treasurer.

Watson And Stack Teamed Against Mask And Manager

The Masked Marvel and his manager, Mayes McLain, accepted Whipper Watson's challenge to a team match for next Tuesday's main bout at the Brock Arena. Watson chose as his partner his protege, Bill Stack of Bowmanville.

Watson and Stack will prove a combination hard to beat, Whip's experience and science plus Stack's willingness to mix and take it. The Mask and McLain will be plenty tough, being masters at team grappling, and using any tactics they can get away with. It will be an action-packed red-hot battle.

A newcomer will be in the semi-final, Lou Pitoscia, known as the Golden Panther. He will tangle with Hi Lee, the Ozark giant.

Tony Lanza and Jack Wentworth will round out this stellar card.

Leading Jockey

NEW YORK, May 4 (AP) — Steve Brooks, who is expected to ride Fanfare in Saturday's Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, now leads in the race for the 1951 national jockey championship. Latest figures from the Thoroughbred Racing Association shows Brooks has ridden 91 winners from Jan. 1 through April 25. Johnny Longden is second with 77. Jockeys Joe Culmone and Willie Shoemaker, who tied for the 1950 title, were not listed in the first 10.

Konstanty Fails To Click Phils Bow To Cards 8-4

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Jim Konstanty is running behind his 1950 schedule and the "I told you so" choir is tuning up.

They said around the training camps that Konstanty, the Phils' relief ace, couldn't possibly repeat last year's success. So far they're right. Because he failed Thursday night, the St. Louis Cards ride in first place today.

Konstanty didn't lose a game until May 30 last season. Already he has lost two. But it's much too early to judge.

Failure of Eddie Sawyer's pitchers, with the exception of Robin Roberts, has thrust a heavier burden on Konstanty. It seems impossible, but so far he's working more than last year, when he made 74 appearances.

Jim stopped a Redbird rally Thursday night that knocked out Jocko Thompson and tied the score at 4-4 in the seventh. But in the eighth, four hits, a walk and an error by Del Ennis accounted for three Cardinal runs and brought in Milo Candini to relieve the reliefer. A fourth run crossed before the side was out. The final count was 8-4.

Part of Woes

But Konstanty's troubles were only a part of the Phils' woes Catcher Andy Seminick was hit behind the left ear by Max Lanier's pitch in the fourth inning. Carried from the field and taken to a hospital, Seminick soon regained consciousness. They'll have to wait for the X-rays to find out how long he'll be out.

Pittsburgh Pirates continued their sweep through the east by ruining New York Giants' baby three-game win streak, 7-4. After Spider Jorgensen's pinch homer tied the score in the ninth, the Pirates batted around in the 10th scoring four runs on only two hits.

Brooklyn solved an old charmer, Herm Weihmeier, who beat them four times last year. With Preacher Roe throwing a six-hitter, the Dodgers shut out Cincinnati Reds 8-0. Carl Furillo and Billy Cox homered from manager Chuck Dressen's new batting order.

Trip Braves

Andy Pafko's homer with the bases loaded paced Chicago's 9-3 win over Boston Braves. That opened the door for St. Louis to slip past Boston into first place. Hank Sauer also homered as the Braves latest pitching hotshot, Max Surkont, suffered his first loss. Sam Jethroe, with a homer and single, drove in all three Boston runs.

The big explosion of the day was in St. Louis, where New York Yankees scored 11 in the ninth inning to flatten the Brownies 17-3. The 11 runs were an American League record for a ninth inning and the 24 total bases in the inning tied a record.

Gil McDougald, playing second base for injured Gerry Coleman, hit a grand-slam homer and a two-run triple in the ninth-inning riot, tying a modern major league record with six runs batted in for one inning. Allie Reynolds had little trouble going the route in his first start.

Chuck Stobbs got Boston Red Sox their first win of the western swing with the help of Walt Dropo. Steve O'Neill took Dropo off the bench and he responded with a double and single to knock in four runs of the 6-1 edge over Detroit's Ted Gray.

Washington continued to mop up the west, whacking Chicago 7-1 to take over the undisputed lead from idle Cleveland. The Indians and Philadelphia A's were not scheduled. Connie Marrero, Washington's stocky little Cuban ace, scattered nine hits for his third straight victory.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League said on Thursday at Philadelphia that absolutely no bans will be imposed on players who jump to the Canadian leagues.

But the czar of pro football admitted that he wouldn't think very kindly of any "jumpers" who get their fill of Canada and decide to come back to the National League.

Bert didn't say outright he wouldn't take a boy back into the fold but he warned guardedly:

"I'm paid to protect pro football. Anything detrimental to the game must be curtailed. And I'll say this, contract breaking is detrimental to the game."

Several club owners are reported even more incensed over the exodus above the border of some of the United States' finest grid talent—a situation paralleling the famous Mexican League jumping case in baseball.

Expanding the United States Hockey League to a seven-team circuit next season was considered by directors of the league here Thursday at Kansas City. President Ron Cook said Wichita, Kas., was the new site being considered for membership. No action will be taken, however, until the next meeting in Omaha June 15.

There'll be mint juleps aplenty at Saturday's Kentucky Derby in Louisville. The Bartenders' Union (AFL) announced Thursday a threatened strike at Churchill Downs has been averted with the signing of a new contract.

The United States Trotting Association predicted Thursday that harness racing is due for its biggest season in 1951. Don R. Miller, executive vice-president, based his prediction on the fact requests for racing certificates for trotters and pacers are running about 12 per cent ahead of last year's record.

Jack Gardner, British and European heavyweight champion, agreed again Thursday to fight Argentina's Cesar Brion. This time the 10-round bout will be held outdoors in London's White City Stadium, June 5. The young Briton twice pulled out of scheduled bouts with Brion because of an injured left thumb.

Holland won both singles matches matches Thursday from Monaco to take a 2-0 lead in their first-round series of European zone Davis Cup play.

Switzerland swept both singles matches from Luxembourg to gain a 2-0 lead in their best-of-five series.

The double at Dufferin Park Thursday, second day of this season's racing, paid $203 for $2. Fred L. a $45 long shot won first race and Grace A, a 3-to-1 risk, took the second.

Derby Likely Be Wide Open

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 4 (AP) —In the absence of a solid betting favorite among the horses lined up for Saturday's Kentucky Derby the "battle of the brains" was swaying considerable smart money today.

The big battle features two of the smartest trainers in the business, if Derby performers count. It pits Ben Jones, the Mr. Brains of fabulous Calumet Farm, against Max Hirsch, the Mr. Master Mind of the just-as-fabulous King Ranch.

It's a somewhat strange departure from custom that neither of these professors of the paddock has a horse that figures to be on the shortest end of the odds. But the post-time figures probably will reflect plenty of respect for each.

Jones, champion trainer of Derby champions, was complaining as usual just a few days ago that "I don't have a Derby horse this year." Then Fanfare won the Derby trial Tuesday and stirred up talk that Mr. Brains has produced again.

Jones-trained horses have won five Derbies — more than any other trainer. In addition he has saddled two horses that finished second, one that came in third, and one that wound up fifth. Citation and Coaltown formed his greatest one-two punch, finishing first and second, respectively, in 1948. He got Whirlaway ready for a Derby record that has stood since 1941. Whirly ran the mile and one-quarter in 2:01 2-5.

Hirsch, on the other hand, has been at the business of training Derby horses longer than any other handler. His first starter was in 1915, and he has had 11 since. Three of them have been winners and two others have been in the money at third.

Central Victorious

Central trounced Queen Elizabeth at Central 26-7 yesterday in a Public School Softball League. The winners scored seven runs each in the first and fourth frames, one in the second, two next time up, five in the fifth and four in the last. The losers counted a marker in the fourth and six in a belated last-inning rally. Brooks went the distance for Central, fanning 10, as the other side used up three hurlers. It was the opener for Central. Teams:

Queen Elizabeth: Medland, Heard, Whitnell, Dillman, Yee, Ward, McMillan, Johnston, Harrison, Frise.

Central: Patterson, Matthews, Gibbs, Brooks, Dunford, Gardner, Craymer, Harrington, Brown, Tranter, Martyne, Findlay.

King George Wins

King George intermediates of the School Softball League squeezed out a 13-12 victory over Queen Mary yesterday. The latter got four runs first time up, two more next heat and six in the third. The winners shoved nine over in a big initial inning, adding one next time to bat and three in the last. Dorrington hit wo homers for them and Baptie one, as walks figured prominently in the counters for Queen Mary. Teams:

Queen Mary: Atkinson, Brown, Lincoln, Haig, Milne, Staves, Vincent, McWilliams, Dafoe, Brisbois, Loucks, Dobbin.

King George: Grills, Dorrington, English, Baptie, Clarke, Innis, Barkley, Moffatt, Harding.

Umpire—Mr. Bolton.

Hints On Sports

By FRED MAYBEE

HOW TO THROW A "SINKER" AND "KNUCKLER"

Many a pitcher has a good curve and fast ball and fair control, but somehow the batters get to him and hammer the ball all over the lot.

Oh, if he only had Merriwell's 'double-shoot', Rommel's 'knuckler' or Hubbel's 'screw-ball'. Or if he could only throw a 'sinker' or an 'upshoot'. Anything but this disgrace of being knocked out of the box before his friends who thought him a hero, until this moment of ignominy.

Come, fellow, you too can have something up your sleeve. It's all a matter of practise. What others have done you can do—and do well.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, the Chicago Cub and Cardinal star, who fanned Tony Lazzeri with bases full in the seventh inning of the final game of the world series of 1926 with the game hanging in the balance, could throw a good sinker among other deliveries. We are going to show you the grip today, boys, as shown by Alex himself.

Hold the ball with ends of index finger and second finger touching seams. Thumb and fourth finger avoid contact with seams. Draw back and throw ball with slightly more elevation than usual, extending index and second finger forward with as much force as possible thus imparting a downward spin to the ball—a rather slow downward spin. The ball should sink as it approaches the plate, beginning about half way or better. Its course is unlike the old schoolboy drop which breaks sharply. The 'sinker' just sinks gradually and deceives the best hitters.

Much practise is required to develop and control the delivery, hence few pitchers can persevere long enough to do it. But it you can master the 'sinker' you should go places, boys. The grip for the 'knuckle ball' or 'floater' is the same except no fingers must touch seams and the ball is sort of pushed platewards. Try this one. The ball does not rotate at all.

GOOD START—Jim Busby came to the White Sox from the Sacramento Coasters hailed as a clever outfielder. So he started off as such and is leading American league hitters.

Plan To Replace Belleville Loop

BELLEVILLE, May 4.—At a meeting in Point Anne Wednesday night, preliminary plans were discussed for the formation of an Intermediate "C" baseball league to replace the defunct Belleville and District Baseball League. At the annual meeting of the local league a few weeks ago, only one team was represented. This was due to the fact that Belleville has an entry in the Central Ontario Senior League this season for the first time in more than 15 years.

Teams represented at Wednesday night's inaugural meeting included the Point Anne Cementmen, the Napanee Merchants, Picton and Strathcona. The Cementmen and the Merchants played in Belleville and District League last year.

PRIZE POSSESSION—One baseball that will never be hit into a double play is this one held by Rudy Thiessen of Kingsville, Ont., after it was autographed by Connie Mack, president of Philadelphia Athletics. The grand old man was guest of honor at a Lions Club banquet at Kingsville, near Windsor, which was attended by more than 400 old and young baseball devotees. On the right is George Karry, president of Kingsville Lions.

TRANSPORTATION CENTRE— North Bay, Ont., plays a key role in Canadian transportation. On the main route from Eastern to Western Canada, it is the hub of five main highways, six railway lines and two air routes. Along the shore of Lake Nipissing, the city is bordered by shops and yards of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Diesel locomotives like the one shown have sparked construction of a $1,000,000 diesel shop by the Province-owned Ontario Northland Railway, which makes its headquarters in North Bay.

"GATEWAY TO THE NORTH"—This welcome sign at the southern entrance to North Bay, is a familiar one to thousands of American and Canadian tourists who pass through the city on their way to Northern Ontario. The famous landmark is an unofficial dividing line between Northern and Southern Ontario.

Quintuplets Gave North Bay Start As Booming Area

By BEN WARD
North Bay Nugget Reporter

NORTH BAY, May 4—(CP)—If anything ever comes of Northern Ontario's sporadic threats of secession from the rest of the province, North Bay will be in a peculiar fix.

Straddling the three-mile strip of land between Lake Nipissing and Trout Lake which links the province's booming northland and it raw materials with the industrial south, North Bay is a little bit of both. It's a Southern Ontario city with a Northern Ontario atmosphere and the combination is quite agreeable.

City officials are trying to parlay the combination of varied transportation facilities, plentiful water and an abundance of hydro-electric power into a profitble industril future.

On one side of this "gateway of the north" construction equipment hums the birth of a $6,500,000 R.C.A.F. fighter base. On the other a $1,000,000 railway diesel shop for the Ontario northland railway is starting to take shape.

Three major railway lines cut through the heart of the city. Long distance trucks [illegible] dime - a-dozen on Main Street. Craig Bit Company's plant works around the clock turning out drilling bits for every part of the world and crews of the Canadian Longyear plant go to every part of Canada on contract drilling surveys.

By the end of the year, 1,500 airmen will move into the RCAF base to provide jet fighter cover for such vital points as the Chalk River atomic pile, Ottawa, Toronto and the Sault locks.

Prosperous Centre

In the midst of the flurry and bustle, the average Bayite is an easy-going, contented fellow — quite unimpressed by it all. Two factors contribute to the feeling that all's well with the world—thanks to high wage rates, the effective purchasing income is $4,872 a family, second highest in Ontario; and 84 per cent of the city's homes are owner-occupied.

On the surface, North Bay citizens look like go-getters. Its Chamber of Commerce boasts the highest per capita membership in Canada (one in 36 belong) and there are 140 active clubs and organizations. But they are home-lovers too—the average resident reads more library books in a year than in any other Eastern Canada city.

Probably three out of five Bayites have never seen the world-famed Dionne quintuplets who live in a stucco mansion nine miles away. Yet visitors come from all over the world to see the humble farm home where they were born, and perhaps to catch a glimpse of the girls themselves.

Quints Give Sendoff

North Bay's prosperity may be said to date from the birth of the quints. Before they were born May 28, 1934, this was a small, unpublicized city, depending entirely on railways—then struggling through the depression of the 1930s. There were no secondary industries and an insignificant tourist business.

But the birth of the famous five—Annette, Marie, Yvonne, Cecile and Emilie—hit the world like a bombshell. And hundreds of thousands of visitors hit North Bay with an impact that is still felt.

Tourist Hub

Corbeil, the birthplace, lacked facilities for handling the army of tourists and the chore fell on North Bay. The visitors couldn't look at the quints all the time. So they took to swimming, fishing and holidaying along Lake Nipissing and a gigantic tourist industry was born.

In the summer the city's population of 22,000, including the suburbs, is doubled by tourists—most of them from the United States. This creates one of Ontario's worst traffic congestion problems. But the city finds its compensation in the $5,000,000 the visitors leave annually with business men and a multi-million dollar by-pass highway network the Provincial Government has started to build.

But the steady year-round economy still depends on the three railways. Locomotive shops of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the provincially-owned ONR employ the biggest labor force. Resident train crews of the Canadian National Railways, the CPR and the ONR run a close second.

Transportation Destiny

Transportation, it seems, is North Bay's destiny. The Indians passed by the city's site on the canoe route between Georgian Bay and the Ottawa River. After Samuel de Champlain travelled the route in 1615 it took on added importance in the development of Canada. Each summer hundreds still make the 42-mile trip by canoe over the historic "Champlain Trail."

After the canoe came the train. A CPR construction crew set up the city's first home in 1881 and a young worker inadvertently gave the community a name. He ordered a keg of nails for the new campsite and, taking his cue from the bay which curves in from the big lake, he wrote: "Send it to North Bay." The name stuck despite later efforts to make a change.

Women Never Given Full Credit For Their Part In Armed Services

By JACK SCOTT

VANCOUVER, May 4 — The armed forces are once more opening their ranks to the ladies, offering the heady bait of free nylons, and while I am not leaping up and down with joy about it, I think some notes about gals in uniform may be in order.

Must confess at the outset that I never got quite accustomed to that sight in the last one. Never really got accustomed to myself in a uniform, for that matter.

I do recall, however, that there were a great many senior officers who frowned on the whole idea in the early stages of World War Two and, indeed, the gals never did get their full credit for the quite wonderful job they did.

I don't think many of the gals joined up out of sheer, flag-waving patriotism any more than the men did. "Why I enlisted" is a subject on which too much hypocrisy and wishful thinking has been written.

It was, in most cases, a mixture of going along with the crowd, of thinking it might be an interesting adventure, of knowing you would probably have to go some day, anyway. The conscious patriotism came later when you caught up with reality a long way from home.

This was true then and it is true now with Canadians who are fighting in Korea. I talked with many volunteers in Petawawa last year and found none who burbled about democracy or laying down their lives for their country. In most cases it was a chance to improve themselves financially or an escape from boredom.

But it's true that the young women had much more of a decision to make and not merely because they were not under compulsion. The service life and, indeed, the very fact of wearing a uniform, could hardly be said to have an appeal to the average girl in spite of what the recruiting posters promised.

Good Soldiers

On the whole the members of the women's auxiliaries of the Army, Navy and Air Forces were a wonderful credit to Canada.

It always gave us a tug of pride in London or on the continent to see one of our gals swinging down the street with her "Canada" patches up. Even in Paris the boulevardiers would direct an expert eye after one of those trim, free-swinging figures.

This wasn't primarily why they happened to be around, of course, but it is part of the story. Somehow those ladies at war were able to do a man's job and remain completely feminine.

Their work was more than satisfactory. Towards the end of the war even those senior officers who had taken an anti-female stand were howling for more CWACs or WDs or Wrens not merely to free a man for active service but because in paper work they were often a lot better than the men.

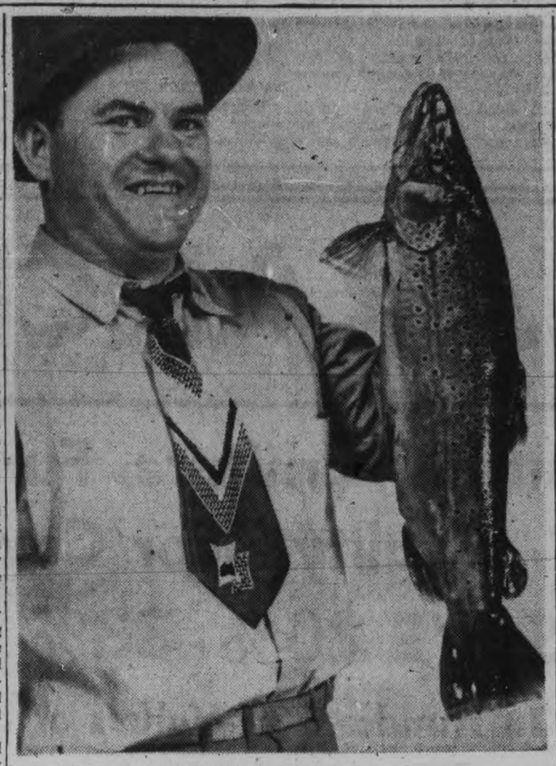
Especially overseas, there'd been a feeling that young women might be unstable and perhaps more trouble than they were worth. You know how men are about such things. It was as if they expected a bunch of the girls from a burlesque house.

The gals themselves answered that. It pains me to admit it, but on the whole they usually had a more adult and level-headed view of that strange and uncertain life than the men.

Many a small-town, unworldly Canadian girl took the bombing of London with more courage than will ever be known. And took, too, the paralyzing and discouraging life of barracks and training with great good sense and patience.

They were, if you like, good soldiers, and while I get gloomy at the need for that, its worth remembering.

The Sisters



All this deserved praise should go double for the Nursing Sisters, as almost any man who was wounded will be happy to tell you.

They used to say there was only one trouble with the nursing sisters. Their patients were always falling in love with them. So much attention, so much cheer and tenderness was often too much for a weary guy who had ended up as a casualty. His recovery might be a hundred percent, but a lot of times he left a part of his heart in the hospital.

On many occasions I watched these young women (and many not-so-young) working under nightmare conditions, surrounded by pain and death, and marvelled at their spirit. That is a story you must have heard before. It can bear repeating.

I would not want this to sound altogether like a recruiting tract. Most gals in the service were probably delighted to be rid of a uniform as the men were and the adventure of service is usually a pleasant experience only in retrospect.

It seems to me an unusual life for a gal and I would caution any young ladies who might confuse their motives in elisting. Still, I know many who matured and who, in effect, found themselves in uniform.

A CAVAN POND BROWN TROUT, 5 pounds, 9 ounces, was taken by Gordon Ellis of 587 Gilmour St. The fish became so entangled in the line in the landing process, it nearly choked itself, Mr. Ellis said.—Garfield Studio Photo.

Screening Completed

MONTRTAL, May 4 (CP). — Screening of Canadian lake seamen will be completed in Montreal this weekend, a Labor Department official said Thursday. The spokesman said a total of 1,400 Great Lakes sailors will have passed through Labor Department screening agencies here.

Million Casualties

WASHINGTON, May 4 (AP)—Gen. MacArthur estimated Thursday that battle casualties in Korea already have passed the 1,000,000 mark. He said American casualties total 65,000 and the South Koreans have lost about 140,000 but "the enemy probably has lost 750,000 casualties. . ."

Make Bomb Site Rustic Garden

LONDON —(CP)— A rustic garden, costing £40,000 (about $120,000) is being built on a bomb site in the shadow of historic St. Paul's Cathedral as a permanent retreat for city workers. The project represents London Corporation's contribution to the Festival of Britain.

The garden will have a magnificent lawn of Cumberland turf, a pond, twin fountains and will contain some of the most elaborate stone work of its type in London. The work which began last December is expected to be completed before official opening of the Festival next month.

Already in position around the edges of the site are 50 lime trees which will provide a protective screen 10-feet high between the garden and the street traffic. Around the lawns will be three lines of flower beds.

Laying the paving stones around the sunken garden will pose a tricky task for masons assigned to the job. Two experts from the Yorkshire quarry from which the stone comes, were sent to London to study the plans calling for 192 stones, all different in size and contour. The experts returned to the quarry to supervise the cutting.

Naval Gun Order At Sorel Doubled By U.S.

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP).—Informed quarters disclosed Thursday that the United States has expressed confidence in Canada's gun-making ability and has doubled its order for three-inch naval guns to $20,000,000 from $10,000,000. The order is expected to be expanded again in the months ahead.

This latest increase brings to about $35,000,000 total American defence orders placed in Canada in the last 12 months. Canada, on the other hand, has placed about $125,000,000 worth of defence orders in the U.S.

The drive is on to get more American orders, to add steam to help offset a deficit in international trade which has run to $125,000,000 in the first three months of 1951.

The new order for guns, like the original one, will be filled by Sorel Industries Limited, Sorel, Que., now Canada's main gun-producing centre.

Plant Expanding

That plant now is expanding and negotiations are being completed whereby Sorel can take over the government's $50,000,000 arsenals plant at Longeuil, Que., on rental basis.

The new three-inch weapon, which Sorel also is producing for Canada's navy, is an American-pattern weapon which will be standard equipment in Canada, the U.S. and Britain.

It replaces the old wartime four-inch naval gun now considered obsolete, and will be mounted in pairs on escort and small fighting vessels. The barrel is a little better than 12 feet long. Its role principally will be against other surface craft and against hovering aircraft.

Britain now is believed to be looking over her requirements. She may also place an order at Sorel.

The story said a major upheaval in the radio industry appears imminent, and cited this other development:

The National Broadcasting Company anounced an over-all reduction in its afternoon and evening rates, effective July 1. The Times said CBS also has cut its rates, declaring that the reductions stem from loss of radio listeners to television.

Just before the opening of the two-day appeal, Mrs. Twiddy's counsel moved for dismissal, claiming Mr. Twiddy was in contempt of court until 25 minutes before the hearing started.

He said Mr. Twiddy was $360 in arrears on alimony and maintenance payments. The cheque for that amount was deposited just before court opened. The appeal court reserved decision on the motion.

Deputy Fails To Answer MP's Question: Would Buck Private Report A General?

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP).—Officers at Defence headquarters from generals down don't abuse their right to use military passenger cars, the Commons public accounts committee was told on Thursday.

That was headquarters' answer to charges in the committee by George Cruickshank (L, Fraser Valley) and Ross Thatcher (CCF, Moose Jaw) that there appears to be indiscriminate use of official cars by officers.

The reply was given by C. M. Drury, deputy defence minister, who reported there has been one case of abusing the privilege in the last few years.

Mr. Drury said headquarters has had 28 passenger cars on call including four "quite old Buicks in reserve for ceremonial occasions."

At least that was the situation at March 31, 1950, and it hadn't changed much since.

The deputy minister said 1,152 officers can use them. They can only be used by officers on duty when public transport is not available and only one officer in each directorate has authority to call such cars.

In addition, the driver of each car has a work ticket he must get signed by the officer using the car. And he is instructed to report any abuse of regulations in use of the car.

"Would a private report a general?" asked Mr. Thatcher.

Mr. Drury did not reply.

No Large-Scale Drive

TORONTO, May 4 (CP). — Col. R. C. He added that the number of soldiers missing from their units is not large enough to warrant such procedure.

Plane On Fire Lands Safely

HAMILTON, Bermuda, May 4 (CP). — A big US military transport with 38 passengers and a crew of 11 caught fire over the Atlantic late Thursday, but was landed safely at nearby Kindley Field.

The C74 Globemaster, on a hop from the Azores to New York, caught fire in No. 4 engine. The starboard wing was suddenly enveloped in flames.

Maj. Eugene P. Pitts, Jr., of Clarkesvale, Miss., the pilot, was able to extinguish the fire and cut off the failing motor, while Master Sgt. James A. Bain, radio operator, signalled the headquarters of rescue operations at Kindley.

In about 12 minutes a B-17 Flying Dutchman of the rescue squadron was airborne. The crippled Globemaster was intercepted about 225 miles north-west of this vacation isle.

The rescue plane escorted the transport to Kindley, where an uneventful landing was made.

Havelock Grocer Retires After 32 Years In Business

HAVELOCK, May 4 (ENS)—A surprise family party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Ketchen on Tuesday in honor of Mr. Ketchen's 78th birthday.

The celebration took the form of a family dinner followed by a social evening and games. Mr. Kentchen was the recipient of many personal gifts and messages of congratulation. The event had special significance in that it was the day he turned over his grocery and butcher business after operating it for 32 years to his successor, John A. Davidson.

Born In Seymour

Born at Burnbrae, Mr. Ketchen is a son of James Ketchen and Mary Anne Whitton, and it was there he obtained his education. In 1900, Mr. Ketchen came to Belmont township and settled on a farm a mile east of the Preneveau school. While there, in addition to operating his farm, he sold meat from a meat wagon to residents of the township and resorts. He moved to Havelock 32 years ago where he operated his grocery and butcher business until May 1.

Served As Reeve

Mr. Ketchen has been prominent in municipal affairs both in Belmont township and Havelock. He served as reeve for a year, ten years as councillor and ten years as school trustee in the township and eight years as councillor for Havelock. He states that for the summer his hobby is going to be gardening.

Mr. Ketchen has three sons, William of Havelock, Clinton and Frank of South Bend, Indiana; three daughters, Mrs. J. Reynolds of Apsley, Mrs. William Copp and Mrs. George Sisco of Havelock; and a step-daughter, Mrs. B. A. Curtis, also of town.

Two sons, Pte. Donald Ketchen of the 48th Highlanders, and Pilot Officer Jack Ketchen of the RCAF paid the supreme sacrifice in World War II; two other sons, Harold, died in 1933, and Ronald, the twin brother of Donald, was drowned at the age of eight years in Crowe Lake.

Contempt Conviction

WASHINGTON, May 4—(AP)—Philip Bart, general manager of the Communist party's newspaper, The Daily Worker, was convicted Thursday of contempt of Congress. No date was set for sentencing. The indictment was on his appeal to answer questions put to him by the House of Representatives Un-American Activities Committee in an iquiry into Communist activities.

Daring Little Minesweepers In Every Big Coast Attack

By O. H. P. KING

TOKYO, May 4 —(AR)— The story now can be told of the little minesweepers that prepared the way or fought in every major amphibious assault by the United Nations around the battle-scarred Korean peninsula.

The minesweepers have suffered more than any other division of the UN fleet. Almost all the losses of Allied vessels and an overwhelming proportion of naval deaths were theirs.

To date the UN forces have lost eight minesweepers, half of them American. The total loss of life is undisclosed, but American casualties are 42 dead or missing and 56 wounded.

The navy has frowned on relating its activities in this field. Many of its operations cannot be described without giving information to the enemy.

Minesweepers were part of the invasion armada at Inchon last September. They swept and patrolled the coastline and harbor mouth.

Paved Way for Invasion

They paved the way for the Wonsan invasion on the east coast a month later. In a period of one week two US vessels were among four lost. About 100 mines were swept up and destroyed.

The over-all commander of minesweeping operations, Rear Admiral Allen E. Smith, gives full credit to helicopters and navy flying boats for an invaluable assist to the minesweepers. Their flying eyes pick out mines ahead of the little vessels as they crawl along at six to 10 knots. Aircraft spour suspected water at low tide when the mines can be most readily seen. Then the surface craft sweep at high tide. As they bob to the surface the mines are destroyed.

In three weeks of mine clearance work in the Chinnampo area of western Korea, more than 200 mines were sighted. All but seven were accounted for.

Say New Nickel May Not Be Used

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP) — A howl by owners of coin-operated vending machines has put future production of Canada's new steel five-cent piece in jeopardy.

An official at the Royal Canadian Mint Thursday said there was a "serious doubt" whether the new coin will ever see the light of day.

The coin crisis arose after the government announced that it is switching production of five-cent pieces to steel to conserve strategic nickel.

Equipment of coin-operated vending machine owners includes a magnet which ejects slugs and other dubious metal pieces. Nickel passes through.

Steel, however, is highly magnetic.

Retired Minister Killed By Train

GORMLEY, Ont., May 4 (CP) —The Rev. A. T. Gooding, 65, retired minister and rural postman, was killed Thursday when a CNR freight train rammed his car at a level crossing. Witnesses said he apaprently didn't hear the train whistle.

He entered the ministry of the United Missionary Church, a Mennonite group, in 1908. He was ordained in 1912 and married the former Flossie Duncan of Dundalk, Ont., the same year. He served in churches on Manitoulin Island and in the Ontario communities of Stayner, Palmerston, Shrigley, Port Elgin, Markham and Vineland. He retired from the ministry in 1936.

RARE TWINS—Twin son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Young were born nearly 10 days apart in Vancouver's Mount St. Joseph Hospital. Shown with their mother are James Douglas, left, and Wendy Joan.

Fair Board Will Not Oppose Morrow Park As Site For New Memorial Centre

Progressive Farmers Not Satisfied With Occupation of Park Mainly For One Week's Exhibition

Directors of the Peterborough Exhibition decided this week not to impede a proposed recourse to expropriation of the northeast corner of Morrow Park as site for the Memorial Community Centre. That negative attitude does not actually express the wishes of the rural community of Peterborough and district in the broader uses of Morrow Park as generally declared in the deed of Mr. Harold Morrow, himself. Peterborough Exhibition was given first acceptance of Morrow Park because they have been engaged for many years in a form of promotion of the industry of agriculture.

Not Satisfied

But, progressive farmers, including rural members of the Exhibition Board, have not been satisfied with the occupation of Morrow Park mainly for one week's fair each year. In their view of its potentials, they see the Park, especially with the modern type of building such as the proposed Community Centre, fulfilling in a larger measure than probably Mr. Morrow conceived, the general purpose he had in thought when he drafted the deed of the Park to this community with priority to agricultural ends.

It is that rural opinion which has been unable to understand the position taken by the Morrow Park trustees who fully agree with the Exhibition lease and use, but somehow fail to visualize the proposed Centre building as a definite and practical advantage to the agricultural purposes for which the Park was set aside by Mr. Morrow.

Several projects may be cited as evidence of the possibilities in agricultural aid which encourage the hopes of securing the erection of the Centre building on the Park ground.

Several years ago, a Peterborough committee injected new life and vision into the Quinte District Seed Fair, when it was last held here. Associated with it was the Eastern Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen, then actively represented here by the late Arthur McIntyre.

Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, assisted in the larger project in which Canada Packers Limited co-operated by their bacon display. That was only one new phase of it.

Other demonstrations were held in addition to the seeds and bacon show. And they were all of practical interest to the farming community. The old shooting gallery of the military camp period of the park was used for meetings at which agricultural subjects were discussed by experts.

Home of the Seed Fair?

That combined show late in March was so successful that it was assumed here as likely to be approved by Quinte District Seed executive as a permanent event in Peterborough. Instead, it was switched the next year to Kingston and nearly flopped. In 1949 it was transferred to Lindsay and was almost as satisfactory as the Peterborough affair. This year it went to Blackstock in Durham.

But, meanwhile, the suggestion was put out that this annual fair be again considered for permanent establishment here. Peterborough had the accommodation that was then suitable to enlargement of the scope of the fair. And beyond that is a local industrial background closely related to agriculture in such industries as Quaker Oats, DeLaval, Canada Packers, Canadian General Electric Company, Whitakers, the local milling companies and so on.

With the facilities a Community Centre could offer for a week in April, that kind of spring event for a week's programming, right here at the hub of ten counties could be made more attractive and helpful to agriculture than the Exhibition itself.

The Holstein championships show is another event that can be confined to one day, but the idea it presents could be expanded for other breeds, and could be enlarged to provide livestock sales events.

These agricultural affairs are mentioned as evidence of the broader use of Morrow Park for the promotion of better farming in this county and district, as Mr. Morrow plainly intended.

450 Students Expected To Enter PCVS

Enrolment in grade 9 at PCVS for the 1951-52 is expected to be about the same as last year, Howard Moebus, vocational guidance director, said today. About 450 students from the grade eight classes in the city, suburban school area and the county enrolled last fall.

From the seven main public schools, Confederation, Central, Prince of Wales, Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra, King Edward and King George 290 pupils are expected to enter PCVS next fall. Approximately half that number will be from Prince of Wales and Queen Mary schools. The other schools will send an estimated 30 students each.

About the same number as last year, 150, are expected from the other areas, the suburban and county schools.

Although the increase has been gradual for the past several years, Mr. Moebus said that a sharp increase in pupils from the grade eights to grade nine is expected in 1954-55. After those years the affect of the large birth rate during the war years will be felt at the collegiate.

Last year 280 pupils from the city public schools commenced classes at PCVS while in 1949 more than 250 began their secondary schooling at PCVS' grade nine.

During the past week Mr. Moebus has been visiting the grade eight classes in the public schools. There he outlined the possible choices in grade nine courses offered.

At the end of June the city, suburban and county grade eight pupils will meet at PCVS to decide what course they plan to enter in the fall.

Parents of the grade eight pupils will visit the collegiate next Wednesday night. Mr. Moebus will then describe the courses offered and a short tour of the school will be made. In each room will be a parent, a teacher of the subject and students of the graduating class in that field of work.

No Need To Lime Lawns Soil Is Not Leached Out

Peterborough's lawns do not need lime, Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, remarked to The Examiner today. "We get quite a number of local enquiries from householders who would like to improve their home surroundings. In most instances they appear to have been reading magazines which recommend certain care of lawns. Liming is one thing mentioned, and so they ask us about it.

"But, generally speaking, this district does not need lime, as most of our farmers know. So, we don't need to be concerned about lime for our lawns.

There might be the odd exception, but that is the general experience and also recommendation. The land in the Niagara district, Welland and again in Leeds is leached out, and needs liming, but that is not so in our district.

We could talk about the geology of the province and its local effects, but I don't think we need say anything more except our land does not need lime.

Moss On Lawns

We also get enquiries about moss on the lawn. That condition may be the result of too much shade or poor soil. It needs sunlight and some fertilizer to build up the fertility of the soil. In some cases subsoil is spread around new houses, and people forget about it.

You can't grow grass on that kind of soil. What we have to do is manure the lawn in the fall, or use commercial fertilizer, compost and so on.

Then we get occasional questions about what to do for the apple tree. I'd feel like saying cut it down and try to grow something easier than that. The spraying of apple trees is quite a complicated job these days. For that reason I am not advising apples in Peterborough.

Because of the series of sprayings they are a real problem. That is all right for the commercial men. Trade is no offering insecticides and fungicides, so far as I know, and it is not easy to look after apple trees and keep them healthy looking. There is no use growing apples to let the worms eat them, and have the leaves look sick.

We can grow apples in this district, although it is wise to get a hardy strain, and if anybody is thinking of setting out a number of them, that is another matter.

But, for around the garden, I'd say plant something that will do better than the apple tree in Peterborough conditions."

Open Season For Moose?

Consideration is being given to an open season on moose in Ontario this year, Hon. Harold Scott, M.P.P. for Peterborough said today. It will be for residents only in that area north of the northernmost transcontinental railroad.

Mr. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, said in this announcement that if the hunting season is sanctioned it will be held late enough to enable Indians and trappers to freeze the meat for winter use.

The department is also giving thought to open seasons for deer "on the general license" throughout the province from Lake Erie to Hudson Bay. Lengths of season and dates would vary according to the shortest and latest seasons in the far south.

"It has been found that increasing deer herds in agricultural areas, where damage to property creates a considerable problem, may make necessary more freedom in hunting them on these areas than has previously been allowed," Mr. Scott said.

TRANSPORT TIPS OVER

When the driver pulled too far over to his right, a transport-trailer tipped over in the ditch early today, a mile and a half north of Kendry crossing. The transport driven by Ernest J. Lough, 32, Madoc, spilled part of its load of bagged marble stone, but received only minor damage. Lough told Provincial Constables T. H. Armstrong and George Rose that he pulled onto the side of the highway to let a car past and his rear trailer wheel caught on the soft shoulder causing the rest of the vehicle to slip into the ditch where it overturned. Lough was not injured.

Police To Use Highway Traffic Act

Ontario Legislature Overcomes Trouble In City's Traffic Bylaw

Peterborough drivers who think that they are safe from prosecution when they drive through a red light because of the recent failure in court of the traffic bylaw, had better think again.

In future, men who drive through the red lights will be charged by police under the Highway Traffic Act.

In a court case this week a charge under the city's traffic bylaw against a man who drove through a red light was dismissed because the meaning of the traffic signal lights was not defined in the bylaw. Magistrate W. R. Philp K.C., said he considered the by-law of little help in the traffic light charge.

Previously the same thing had happened in a similar charge and after that the city council decided to make an amendment to the traffic bylaw defining the meaning of the lights. However, the Ontario Municipal Board quashed it, saying that it didn't want municipalities making their own interpretation of the meaning of the traffic light colors. The interpretations might very well be conflicting.

Defined in Traffic Act

The board pointed out that the meaning of the lights was defined in the Highway Traffic Act. Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw K.C., said that the only clause in the bylaw which referred to the Highway Traffic Act said that the bylaw was subject to the Highway Traffic Act.

He interpreted that to mean that, if the two conflicted, the Highway Traffic Act would overrule the bylaw. The magistrate agreed. He described the wording of the clause as "most unfortunate."

Both the magistrate and the crown attorney felt that a person could not be convicted under the bylaw of going through a red light.

But if they are charged under the Highway Traffic Act, which can be done even though the offence takes place in the city, the difficulty of the meaning of the light colors is overcome.

Mr. Cowan is circulation manager of The Examiner, and Mr. Baer manager of CHEX.

2,000 Attended Opening Sportsmen Show

Executives of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association, sponsors of Peterborough's second annual Sportsmen's Show, were extremely gratified at public interest and attendance on opening night, Thursday. They estimated that more than 2,000 citizens were on hand to enjoy the attraction.

Starting off with a parade at 7 p.m. from Inverlea and George Sts., the Peterborough Citizen's Band led the procession along the route, down George, west on Charlotte and south on Park St. The hit float appeared to be the PCVS square dancers who cavorted on top of a large trailer "without missing a step." The Trojan Club had an athletic float showing sportsmen—boxers, lacrosse, ball, hockey and rugby players. The Peterborough Roller Skating Club was represented by 20 youngsters in costume being towed behind a car for the full length of the route. There were also several new cars and trucks in the lineup.

His Worship Max J. Swanston officially opened the show from the large stage in the Civic Arena. He wished them every success in this and future shows.

Display Booths

The large auditorium was ringed around with display booths. Electrical appliance merchants had booths as well as those selling fishing tackle, guns and all manner of sporting tackle. What the well-dressed sportsman should wear was also prominently shown.

Much attention was created by the Chamber of Commerce booth which was at the Cleveland Sportsmen's Show. The Peterborough Recreation Commission had a fine display of crafts and the Ontario Lands and Forests Department, a large northern forest with similated fire and a tank stream of live trout. From the Filtration Zoo were several live animals, a deer, three monkeys, two racoons and several wildfowl.

Large marquee tents at the Park St. entrance showed new boat and outboard motor models and cars. Some carefully handmade canoes by a local boatmaker attracted much attention in their wealth of craftsmanship.

Dog Show

Also in the tent section was a splendid exhibition of pure bred dogs, sponsored by the Kawartha Kennel Club. It was not a full showing such as the public will be able to see today, according to club secretary Ethel McFadyen; it was too cool for the smaller dogs and some of the larger ones, which will only come with their masters, will not be shown until tonight.

The popular one-hour stage show was protracted for a much longer period. Four weight-lifters hoisting bells of 230 pounds, were Al Blondin, Stan McBride and Jerry and Harry O'Rourke. Tumblers were Jim Heffernan and Scott Allain. Vic Reid with his trained dog and roping act got a big hand as did the professional square dancers. The Oddfellows ran a continuous bingo game.

One of the crowd attractions tonight will be the draw of air-dropped luck number leaflets for handsome prizes and on Saturday evening the draw for boat and motor will take place.

All Back On Job Or None Attitude Followed By GE Officeworkers Union

Walkout of IUE At CGE Continues When Thursday's Sympathizers Are Also Suspended For One Day

The walkout of 360 office workers at the CGE plant continued today when the union and the company disagreed over the company's decision to suspend a number of employees who left work Thursday without permission. Joe Wirtz, IUE international representative, charged the company with reneging on a previous agreement to meet with union officials so that the present dispute can be settled. Thursday afternoon 150 office workers, members of Local 567, IUE, also walked out at the Davenport plant, Toronto. Local 599 in the Peterborough plant, and Local 567 are in joint negotiations with the company to try and get a contract.

Yet To Get Master Agreement

The two locals were certified last fall but they have yet to obtain a master agreement with CGE.

IUE leaders say the membership are impatient with the delay in drawing up contract terms and Wednesday afternoon some 360 of the officeworkers in the Peterborough bargaining unit walked off the job. Thursday afternoon their union colleagues in Davenport did the same.

A number of officeworkers included in the bargaining unit, have remained in the plant.

Thursday morning company supervisors informed those who had left the job Wednesday without permission that they were suspended for the day. When this was done a number of other officeworkers who worked on Wednesday walked out as well.

That's where the present complications arose.

Returned To Work

The main group of officeworkers were permitted by the company to go back to their jobs this morning, but those who joined the walkout Thursday were to be suspended today.

Local 599 refused. Everybody goes back or none, was the union attitude. The result: the walkout continues.

Mr. Wirtz told The Examiner today: "Our position is this: the officeworkers are prepared to return to the plant Monday morning providing nobody is locked out. That's it. There are no qualifications."

A plant gate meeting has been called by the union for 3 p.m. today. Delegates from the Davenport works will address their Peterborough colleagues. Then the officeworkers will enter the plant to get their last week's pay. (Deductions will be in next week's pay).

Company officials said it would mean working up to the deadline but they expected that the payroll would be made up in time for normal payment.

Award Girl, 16, Hurt In Crash $4,000 Damages

A 16-year-old Emily township girl has been awarded $4,000 for injuries she received when knocked down by a car while she was pushing her father's stalled car on Highway 7, two miles east of Fowler's Corners.

The award was made Thursday by Justice R. W. Treleaven at the present non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court.

Marlene Martin of Emily and her father, Arthur Alvin Martin, were plaintiffs in the action. The money, in compensation for injuries and pain and suffering, is to be paid into court. The father was awarded an additional $1,596 for damages, plus costs of the action.

Miss Martin was in hospital and in a cast for three months. She received a slight fracture of the spine, a broken left leg, and a severe gash on her right knee.

Accident In 1949

The accident occurred just before dawn December 30, 1949. Mr. Martin's car had stalled on the highway, just outside his own driveway. He and his son Bill were going into Peterborough.

Rather than wear the battery down Mr. Martin suggested they shove the car, and they got the help of his two daughters—Marlene, now 16, and Eileen, 13.

The two girls started to push from the rear and the son from the south side of the car.

Eileen testified that she noticed a car approaching them from the rear and she shouted to her sister to look out. But the oncoming car hit Marlene, flinging her unconscious into the ditch, and it crashed into the Martin car.

The other eastbound car was driven by John Millen, 19, Emily township, and his father, Edgar Millen, was a passenger.

Blinded By Lights

Young Millen said he was driving about 35 miles an hour along the dark highway just before the accident. He said he became blinded by the lights of a westbound car and did not see the Martin car until only a car length away.

"Then I put on my brakes and swung left," he told Justice Treleaven.

He said he didn't see the two girls pushing and didn't notice any lights on the rear of the car.

His father was thrown forward by the force of the impact and his head went through the windshield. Twelve stitches were required to close the cut.

The Miller car was badly damaged and the Martin car was knocked into some trees and wrecked.

Mr. Martin and Eileen were both slightly injured.

Small Greenhouse Fields Sped Grain Breeding Work

SASKATOON — (CP) — Plant breeders at the University of Saskatchewan are getting three cereal grain crops a year by simulating summer conditions through the winter by artificial light and controlled temperatures.

The crops, growing in miniature greenhouse fields, get maximum growth 24 hours a day all through the late fall, winter and early spring.

The process greatly speeds up the university's plant-breeding program for new varieties and for the reconstruction of others after crossing with disease-resistant strains.

Summer sunlight is simulated through the night by use of 128 special 100-watt electric light bulbs in each of the field husbandry department's two greenhouses. A total of 25,600 watts is in use at one time.

The scientists work to produce ideal growing conditions for any plant. The right amount of moisture is applied to the various plots and the temperature is controlled to suit the various periods of plant growth.

Keep Same Temperature

If the natural field condition in the spring to stimulate stooling in certain plants is a temperature of 50 degrees, for instance, then these plants are grown in the greenhouse at this temperature soon after planting.

As the days go by the temperature is raised to simulate the mid-summer conditions in the field as the plants reach maturity.

Wheat and barley are brought to maturity in the field in about 90 to 100 days, so when these grains are grown in the greenhouse plots they are harvested about 90 to 100 days after planting.

In the greenhouse program the gain is planted in September, a cross with another variety is made in November and the grain is harvested the first week in January.

The seed from this first generation crop is immediately planted and brought to maturity in approximately 90 days, so that the seed from the second generation can be sowed in the field in May.

The reconstitution of a grain variety after it has been crossed with another disease-resistant grain would take at least six years if carried out solely in the field.

By the use of the greenhouses to get two crops off in the winter a reconstitution program can be completed in two or three years if no complications arise.

Typical Program

A typical program now under way is with Montcalm barley in an effort to make it rust—and smut-resistant. Montcalm is susceptible to both stem rust and smut. These two strains are therefore crossed and the result is a grain with the qualities and characteristics of both strains embodied in it on a 50-50 basis.

Having transferred the rust—and smut-resistant qualities in the first cross with Valentine, the plant breeders then try to reconstitute as much as possible the qualities and characteristics of the original Montcalm by making back-crosses with this variety.

The result of the first back-cross is to change the ratio to 75 to 25 in favor of Montcalm. The second and subsequent back-crosses change the ratio to 87½ to 12½, to 93¾ to 6¼, to 96⅞ to 3⅛, and finally 98 7-16 to 1 9-16.

After the fifth back-cross the plant breeders hope to have a Montcalm with none of its former yielding or malting qualities impaired, but with added resistance to stem rust and smut from the one-sixth strain of Valentine bred into it.

Warn Business Against Green Pastures

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

A word of caution is given to business men who "are experimenting with new products and exploring the possibilities of invading new fields."

The caution was expressed Thursday by Arthur C. Nielsen of Chicago, market-research executive in an address to the annual conference of the Association of Canadian Advertisers.

This trend of new products and new fields, said Mr. Nielsen, "has taken on some of the aspects of a gold rush."

"And, as in every gold rush, some companies will reap highly-worthwhile rewards while others will dissipate their assets, curtail their earning power and jeopardize their trade position.

"We should vaccinate ourselves against the most insidious new-product disease I know; the 'greener pastures disease.' From across the fence, conditions in the other fellows' industry may seem bountiful indeed.

Many Failures

"Yet the Nielsen food-drug index records shows a far-higher percentage of failures than of successes where companies, established in one field, have invaded a non-related field. Even in closely-related fields (i.e., tooth paste to tooth powder; hair tonics to shampoos; all-purpose flour to special-purpose flour, etc.) the number of outstanding successful invasions appearing on our records has been quite small. . .

"When a manufacturer pioneers a particular field, he builds a position of leadership and a consumer and trade acceptance. To dislodge him from his position is usually a costly, difficult, long-term risk. . . In general, it is better to pioneer a new product of substantially improved or different characteristics than to imitate a successful competior."

Mr. Nielsen, a research man, suggested research on prospective markets before acting.

Ottawa Forest Plan Big Step—MacDougall

TORONTO, May 4 (CP)—Ottawa's announcement that contribution will be made to forest inventories and reforestation programs is a momentous step and most encouraging, Frank A. MacDougall, Ontario's Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests, said Thursday.

Resources Minister Winters announced the government would split the cost of forest inventories and pay 25 per cent of the cost of reforesting Crown lands.

The announcement was the start of a federal policy of sharing forest works, Mr. MacDougall said. Ontario's five-year-old forest inventory would be completed in another year.

Alan Ladd Gets Unusual Contract Deal

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, May 4 (AP)—Alan Ladd is the envy of his fellow stars these days. He's being serenaded by virtually every producer in town.

The reason for the wooing is that Ladd has only a year and four months to go on his Paramount contract—a short stretch in terms of star contracts.

Already Ladd has negotiated a deal with Warner Brothers. One of the most-unusual star contracts ever made, it is a picture-a-year deal over 10 years.

The star will get a reported $150,000 a picture plus a whopping 10 per cent of the world gross.

Happy Ladd

Even the modest Ladd couldn't hide his delight with his new-found popularity. When the "Rage of the Vulture" company broke up for lunch, he told me: "I might as well get the best deal I can. You can get the gravy in this business only so long, and then you're through."

The star has made no secret of the fact that he has been dissatisfied with the vehicles provided him. Despite poor roles, his fans have remained amazingly loyal. A Ladd film always shows a healthy profit.

Ladd says the future will mean he wont work quite as hard. He has done three and four pictures a year for Paramount.

"That means you're in virtually every scene and working every day. You can't find enough good scripts for three or four pictures a year."

With his freedom, he will be able to do television.

"That's a big step," he said. "I'll do a lot of studying before I make any move."

District Hereford Association Sale Here May 18 . . . W. W. Dawson Retained As President of Kawartha Medical Services . . . Peterborough Junior Clubs Organized . . . . George Shoniker Is Leader of Swine Club.

George Shoniker of Asphodel has taken on the leadership of the new swine club of the Department of Agriculture's projects this year for boys and girls. It is one of the seven, most of them already organized, with a prospective membership of 150. The clubs' aggregate is in sight of that figure right now.

Parents who are interested in their young folks joining a club are asked to note that memberships should be at the office of Frank C. Paterson by Tuesday, May 8.

"We have 16 boys in the swine club, and Mr. Shoniker recruited nine of them himself," Robert E. Bell, assistant to Mr. Paterson, told the Examiner yesterday.

The officers they elected are: president, Howard Johnston, grandson of Melville H. Johnston; vice-president, Gordon Chamberlain of Asphodel; secretary, Barry Wilson of Smith.

"Mr. Shoniker is a young farmer in his early twenties, although he is from Toronto. He took the two year OAC course with Everett McFarlane and Keith McIntyre, and is setting out to develop a Shorthorn herd."

Two Dairy Groups

President of the west Peterborough dairy club is Jack Sargent of Springville; vice-president is Barbara Mann of Smith; and secretary-treasurer is Lila Seymour of Cavan.

John Edmison is continuing as club leader. It will have 20 or 21 members, most of whom have already signed their applications.

The Otonabee River separates the west from the east group. Officers of the East dairy calf club are: president, Archie Davidson of Otonabee; vice-president, Norma McConkey; secretary, Jim Doris, Otonabee. The dairy clubs have a present membership close to 45, and should at least reach that number by Tuesday, possibly taking on another one or two.

Keith McIntyre is leader of the East Club. Its 24 or 25 members are all entering Holstein calves. But there is diversity in the west. Its boys and girls are equipped with Jerseys, Ayrshires and Holsteins.

Gerald Bell, of Woodville, and Ivar. Bell, of Kirkfield, junior class winners at the International plowing match at Alliston last fall, are leaving Lindsay Sunday on a tour of two weeks in the United States. TO LEVY ONE-FIFTH MILL

Pickering township council has agreed to increase from one-fifth to one-half a mill the levy for the Federation of Agriculture. This section followed a petition from the township federation of which F. V. von Pilis is president. The higher rate is to be applied in 1952, and is expected to raise $1,500. It applies to all farms of five acres minimum area.

Encroachment of suburban housing developments into the rural area of Todmorden has moved George S. Henry, former Premier of Ontario, to sell his Holstein herd next month. AUCTION OF HEREFORDS

Friday, May, 18, is the date of the third annual auction sale of the Eastern Ontario Hereford Breeders' Association at Peterborough Exhibition Grounds.

Mr. E. V. O'Toole, secretary, reports 26 head are being consigned by the following breeders: J. R. Noakes, Manilla; Col. F. E. Birdsall, Asphodel; H. J. Hawkey, Indian River; H. L. Elmhurst, Keene; Lloyd Asnmore, Lindsay; Winston J. White, Balsame; Charles Fisher and Son, Bailieboro.

The quality of the listed animals, 12 bulls and 14 heifers, is better than last year, according to government inspectors, and quoted by Mr. O'Toole. Some of them are of W.H.R. breeding, and the George Rodanz Domino line is represented.

W. J. O'Neil, of Denfield, is returning as auctioneer. With the stronger position of beef cattle during the last year, Mr. O'Toole says this sale should attract more buyers than ever.

TRACTOR CLUB MEETING

Irvine McIntosh, group leader, will be in charge of the tractor maintenance club meeting Wednesday night at the implement store of Stuart Hall, Simcoe and Queen Streets. Ralph Gregg, of the agricultural engineering section of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, will assist. Subject will be motor fuels and fuel systems. Parents and friends of the members are invited.

PRIMITIVE FERTILIZING

According to musy historical records, the Indians and early colonists inhabiting the eastern shores of North America knew the value of a balanced plant food. With scientifically prepared chemical fertilizer not even thought of at that time, they followed the practice of burying one fish under each hill of corn.

The fish used at that time were the non-edible "Menhaden," one of the most abundant species in Atlantic coastal waters, states CIL Agricultural News. On an average these weighed three-quarters of a pound each. Assuming there were 4,000 hills of corn per acre, the following table indicates how many pounds of nutrients per acre were added by the use of this fish fertilizer:

Nitrogen—55 pounds
Phosphoric Acid—30 pounds
Potash—6 pounds
Sulphur—12 pounds
Calcium—30 pounds

Soil research studies in recent years show that a 50-bushel per acre corn crop removed the following amount of soil nutrients in the grain and cobs:

Nitrogen—48 pounds
Phosphoric Acid—19 pounds
Potash—13 pounds
Sulphur—15 pounds
Calcium—5 pounds

While fish is not generally used as fertilizer today, the Indians did point the right way to our agricultural scientists who developed more exact methods of replacing plant nutrients through the use of commercial fertilizers, crop residues and animal manure.

LIVESTOCK ILLS

Dr. H. H. Hamilton, veterinary surgeon, said yesterday that the variable weather of this spring had caused considerable sickness among livestock.

"I don't think I have ever been so busy as in the last three months," he said. "There was some recurrence of shipping fever from changes of warm and cold weather, with a lot of dampness. We also had quite a number of calls for winter dysentery. It is something like flu in people."

✦ ✦ ✦

TWO GOOD HERDS GONE

With the dispersal of the J. T. Tully Holsteins this week, the western area of Otonabee has lost two good herds of the Black and White cattle in recent months. The other was the herd of Matchett Brothers which went in its entirety to an Alberta buyer. Total of these two herds was close to 75 animals. Several have been retained at the Tully home, and they are not all out of Holsteins at the Matchett place.

✦ ✦ ✦

14,000 MILES IN 8 DAYS

Fred Griffin and Wilfred Dennis of Burgessville, who were in charge of the 18 Holstein bulls, most of them from Otnario, recently delivered to the Argentine, made the round trip of 14,000 miles by plane in eight days. They had four days on the ground.

That rolling up of distance is gradually losing its wonder in this age of travel through the air. One of the bulls was from the Stuart Nelson herd of Otonabee.

The route south was by way of Nassau, Trinidad, Belem in Brazil, Rio de Janeiro, San Paulo to Buenos Aires. The two Ontario men reported Argentine farms much larger than those in Canada. The Bullrich and Company farms, where they visited, comprise 80,000 acres with 30,000 Holstein cattle, including 700 bulls and from 10,000 to 16,000 cows milked daily by hand.

Another impression was that Holstein cattle are gaining wide popularity in South America. The two men went to a movie theatre and were surprised when the audience applauded a Holstein bull in a newsreel. Mr. Griffin took a consignment of Holsteins to Chile last December, and a year earlier he had the responsibility of delivering 135 cattle exported to Italy.

✦ ✦ ✦

W. W. DAWSON, PRESIDENT

W. W. Dawson was re-elected president of Kawartha Co-Operative Medical Services at the directors' meeting this week.

Henry A. Sharpe is vice-president, and Miss Olive Bell is secretary-treasurer.

"We are beginning our third year," Miss Bell told the Examiner to day. "We have 515 membership contracts embracing 1,400 persons. Mr. Harold Lewis is fieldman, and will be glad to discuss Medical Services with people who are interested in this form of protection."

SAW MODERN FORESTRY

Thirteen boys and girls of the Emily forestry club visited the Northumberland forest last Saturday. They were accompanied by R. E. Bell, John Bell, district forester, and Ron Frankish, the club leader. They saw machine planting of young pine trees, and each member of the club was given an opportunity of planting a full row. They already have a personal interest in the county forest near Baltimore.

SHORTHORNS AVERAGE $365

Durham County Shorthorn Association sold 33 animals at their recent auction at Blackstock averaging $365, with a $650 top for a two year heifer, and $560 for the highest priced bull.

The heifer was consigned by A. J. Howden & Sons of Columbus and was bought by Ivan Wright of Cookstown.

W. P. Sharman of Scotstown, Que., took the top bull which was consigned by A. W. Wright and Fred Trewin of Blackstock.

Stewart Whittington, Peterborough, paid $380 for a female from the John Rickard herd, Newcastle.

Fraserville Bull Club paid $550 for a bull sold by John McIntyre of Myrtle Station.

Wm. H. Elmhurst & Son, $300 for a female consigned by H. J. Miller of Myrtle Station.

W. I. Skuce, Bethany, $440 for a female offered by Cyril H. Mumford, Hampton.

Wilfrid Jobb of Camborne, paid $400 for a Garnet Rickard female, and $285 for another consigned by Robert Parrott & Sons, Myrtle Station.

The Durham Shorthorn Association was founded 30 years ago. John Baker of Solina was first president, and Frank C. Paterson, then Durham agricultural representative, was secretary-treasurer.

A Bowmanville recollection says Mr. Paterson was the prime mover in organizing the club, and did much toward getting better sires for the Shorthorn breeders. On his transfer from the county, Mr. Baker became secretary-treasurer, followed by Charles Allin who continued in office until two years ago after he had retired from the business. John Rickard is present secretary.

DUAL-PURPOSE UNIT?

Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association is reported planning a dual-purpose Shorthorn unit in addition to the four beef Shorthorn bulls already at the Belleville barn.

Directors of the Peterborough and District dual-purpose Shorthorn Club discussed the project at a meeting at the farm of Leonard Trotter, Madoc.

Dr. J. M. McLean, manager of the Belleville breeding group, said it would be necessary to have 1,000 cows in prospect to warrant purchase of dual-purpose sires. A committee was appointed to canvass the area.

17 IN BEEF CLUB

Lorne Pimmett is continuing as leader of the beef calf club. Officers are: president, Murray Pimmett; vice-president, Francis Walsh; secretary, Gaye Hancock of Smith.

The two Otonabee officers comprised the Ontario club team in the national judging finals last year.

Club program includes a visit to Louada Manor Farms in Harvey township, the home of Louis Cadesky, on Saturday June 9. That is the date of the Shorthorn field day which will be a special event of the season. Shorthorn breeders of a large area are expected to be present.

Speakers will include Prof. R. G. Knox and W. P. Watson, livestock commissioner with the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Dr. McIntosh of Ontario Veterinary College, is also on the list.

Of special interest will be the Louada Shorthorns imported late last year from Scotland.

The organization meetings were well attended. Mr. Bell is happy about the Junior Farmers who are helping as Club leaders. Monthly meetings will be held, and the season's work will be laid out to stimulate interest and increase information of these boys and girls of the 1951 classes.

Mr. Bell says the leaders conducted the details of getting organized, and the young folk had their initiation in setting up administration through the election of officers. There may be a bus trip and field day of sports, and finally the date of Achievement Day is Sept. 29 at the Exhibition Park.

The Apsley forestry club has held one meeting, but as a group they are not yet organized. Three of their members are from Harvey township.

300,000 Pesos For Bull Holstein Bred In Canada

A total of 1,712,500 pesos ($288,333 at the basic Argentine exchange rate for imports of 7½ pesos to the dollar) was realized on the sale of 143 head of purebred Holsteins of Canadian breeding at the dispersal of the herd of Alejandro Bustillo in Argentina. This is a general average of 11,975 pesos or $1,596. No less than 88 of the cattle offered brought $1,000 or more.

Highlight of the sale was the purchase of Rockwood T. E. Rocket the four-year-old herd sire for 300,000 pesos ($40,000) by Cia Mabe S.R.L. This is the highest price ever paid for a bull of any breed in Argentina. Rooket was grand champion at Palermo in 1950, this being the top show in Argentina. He also sired the Junior Champion bull, the Reserve Junior Champion bull and the Junior Champion female. The Reserve Junior Champion bull sold at the time of the Palermo Show for $6,000 while the Junior Champion bull brought the second high price at the present sale of 70,000 pesos ($9,333). He is out of a dam bred by Norman C. Schell, Woodstock, Ont.

Another son of Rocket from a dam bred by C. J. Cerswell, Beaton, Ont., brought 35,000 pesos ($4,666). Altogether 58 Rocket progeny, all under two years, sold for $96,493, an average of $1,663. These included 28 bulls at an average of $2,145 each; 9 open yearlings at $1,355 each and 21 heifer calves at $1,153 each.

Highest price for a female was 26,000 pesos ($3,466). This was for the two-year-old bred heifer Arxitektos Eureka, a daughter of Glenafton General who was bred by J. J. E. McCague, Alliston, and sold to Argentina by J. Ross Williams and J. Russell Hood, Alliston, Ont., in 1944. This heifer was bought by Suc. de P. F. Quostiguy.

The top milking female was Flemingdale Rag Apple Alcarta bred by A. D. Fleming, Reaboro, Ont., and now six years old. She brought 22,000 pesos ($2,933) also on the bid of Sus. de P. F. Quostiguy.

The blood of these Canadian animals was widely disseminated, the animals going to 70 different buyers in Argentina.

Complete averages are as follows: 34 bulls averaged $3,066; 75 females 2 years or older $1,085; 10 open yearlings $1,282; 24 heifer calves $1,060.

The Miracle Of Top Soil Foot In Ten Million Years

"A river at flood stage may lay down a foot of top soil in an hour's time. On the other hand, it may take 10,000,000 years to build a foot of top soil on the slopes of a mountain."

The graphic contrast in that quotation from an article in Nation's Business (US) sharpens even the layman's idea of the precious value of soil. That top layer of land should never be associated with the word dirt.

"Creation of the thin layer of topsoil which keeps the human race alive is the supreme miracle of the universe.

Dozens of forces are constantly at work weathering rock into soil. The sun heats rocks, chill night winds cool them, and they crack.

Winter rain enters crevices, freezes, pries small pieces apart. Rain dissolves carbon dioxide from the air to make carbonic acid—which eats away rock particles.

Trees and other plants act as pumps. Their roots suck mineral nourishment from rocks below the surface, and incorporate this in roots and trunks. When plants die they leave these minerals on the surface, making a considerable contribution to soil fertility.

In the tropics, plants may yield as much as 90 tons of humus a year to the soil,—in arid regions it may be no more than a few pounds. The rich, black soils of the prairies represent the accumulated decay of grasses that have grown in these areas tens of thousands of years.

Similarly, microbes make their contribution to soil fertility. Some of them extract nitrogen from the air, incorporate it in their tissues and leave this valuable fertilizer in the ground when they die.

Only Recently Known

While the process of soil formation has been quite well understood for some time, the soil itself remained an enigma. Thoughtful men studied the stars, invented mathematics, probed biological function, but let the soil which supported them severel alone.

Almost nothing was known c its inner mechanics until quit recently.

To be sure, the first farmers,- and agriculture is as old as civili zation—had a certain crude fac to work with. They knew tha manure helped crops along, tha land allowed to lie fallow wa more productive.

The Greeks and Romans wrot knowingly of those things indicat ing that there was nothing ver new or exciting about them 2,00 years ago."

If any farmers are inclined t grow cool about the importance o conservation, they should fin fresh stimulus in such ideas abou soil and its care and use.

Here is another topic from th Nation's Business article.

Life in the Soil

"We regard soil as dead, iner stuff. Actually, it is miraculously alive. It is the bridge between th dead rocks and all living materia —plants, animals, man. The soi itself teems with life. A fleck o dirt the size of a pencil eraser may contain more than two billion microbes—more than there are people on earth. . . It is the scene of chemical reactions more intricate than any performed in laboratories. It changes from month to month, day to day, and even minute to minute."

This story discusses the dis covery of soil properties and con stituents and types. So, a con cluding quotation:

"A fourth great group of thes soils are those laid down b rivers—the alluvial soils, whic produce a third of the world' food. The building process whic creates such areas as the vas Mississippi Delta—which 'begin in the lobby of the Peabody Hote in Memphis and ends on Catfis Row in Vicksburg'—is almost in comprehensible.

The Nile Delta, for example contains the equivalent of 12,00 cubic miles of rock."

Try to imagine that cube o rock!

Recipes For Danish Pastry Find Ready Reader Demand

QUESTION: Enjoyed your Danish pastry very much and would appreciate seeing more of them in your column. Mrs. J. O. P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I am glad you liked the Danish pastry Mrs. J. O. P. and hope the next one is sufficiently different to please you.

Danish Pastry

Into a large mixing bowl put ½ cup scalded milk and add at once ¼ cup sugar, 4 tablespoons shortening, and 1 teaspoon salt. When lukewarm add 1 yeast cake softened in 3 tablespoons warm water, 2 egg yolks, ¼ teaspoon each vanilla, mace, lemon flavoring and 1 cup bread flour. Beat this well. Add another cup of bread flour and stir with a knife until well mixed, then add just enough flour to knead to a soft dough. Knead until dough is elastic and squeaks. Let rise in buttered bowl, covered until doubled in bulk. Chill in refrigerator for 30 or 40 minutes then roll out to ¼-inch thickness.

Washed butter is recommended for the next step but I have made good Danish pastry without washing the butter. You may buy unsalted butter if you care to. Measure 6 ounces, (¾ cup) butter and cut in halves. Cut one half in small pieces and place in centre of strip of dough. Fold one end of the dough to cover the butter, place remaining butter cut in small bits on top and cover with the other end of the dough, pressing edges together firmly. Turn one-quarter way round, and roll it as thinly as possible, lifting edges of dough to prevent it sticking. Fold each way to the centre, press firmly, fold to make four layers, turn one-quarter way round, pat, lift, roll and fold 3 times, chilling between rollings. Roll thin, cut in strips one-quarter to one-half inch wide, shape like figure eights or knots, or coils. Let rise until doubled and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 to 25 minutes.

When Danish pastry is baked and cold brush with confectioners' frosting and put choice conserve or jam in the hollows in the pastry.

Confectioners' Frosting: To 4 tablespoons liquid (cream, milk, hot water, fruit juice or egg whites) add 1 2/3 cups icing sugar and ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Beat well. Add more icing sugar if this is not enough to make of spreading consistency.

✧ ✧ ✧

Danish Pastry Variation

When dough is at the stage in above recipe roll it out to ⅛ inch thickness in a sheet 9 inches wide. Cut into strips 9 inches long and ¾ inch wide. Twist these from both ends and coil like the letter S or like the letter B. Cover and let rise until nearly doubled, then brush top with egg white and put a bit of jam in the centre of each coil. Sprinkle the jam with bits of chopped almond. Let rise some more or until better than doubled in bulk. Bake these thinner pastries at 425 deg. Fahr. When you take them from oven brush sides with confectioners' frosting.

(2) Danish Pastry may be rolled out in 2 or 3 sheets and put together in layers with raspberry or pineapple jam between and cut into rectangles and baked, or it may be shaped in nests and these may be filled with lemon filling after baking.

I would welcome other variations of Danish pastry from readers who know them.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Strawberry Fluff Dessert Tasty Treat For Mother's Day

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Sounds wonderful, this "strawberry fluff" dessert for Mother's Day—just as long as mother isn't the figure-watching type.

Because this recipe, released by the consumer section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, is weighed with calories. But it's good.

Ingredients: 20 marshmallows (six ounces); one cup hot milk; three-quarters cup crushed frozen strawberries; few grains salt; one cup whipping cream.

Add the marshmallows to the hot milk and stir until dissolved. Cool and add the three-quarters cup of well crushed strawberries. Chill and allow to partially set. Add a few grains of salt to the one cup whipping cream and whip until stiff. Fold the whipped cream into the chilled strawberry mixture. Pour into a refrigerator tray and freeze.

Savings In Meat

Be sure to remember that when properly cooked with moist heat the less tender cuts of meat are just as satisfying and just as nourishing as the more tender cuts—and less expensive.

Rump or pot roast or fresh brisket are the best buys when concocting a boiled dinner.

Lamb shanks braised and combined with vegetables make another variation of the boiled dinner. When buying lamb be sure the meat is moist but firm; the fat, creamy and slightly pink in color.

Pork also can serve as the main ingredient in the boiled dinner. Fresh, pickled or smoked hocks, picnic shoulders or cottage rolls are the best cuts. The flesh of fresh pork should be firm, fine-grained and light greyish pink in color. The fat should be clear and white.

Fish Consumption Up

As meat prices rise more families are turning to fish as a main dish. In its latest bulletin the Canadian Association of Consumers reports that every Canadian ate an average of 14 pounds of fish in 1950, an increase of 1½ pounds over the 1949 average.

While fish prices haven't climbed as much as meat prices in the last year, the association doesn't think that is the only reason Canadians are eating more fish.

"Improved methods of transportation and the better methods of handling the fish right from the boat to the consumer have made it possible for the fishing industry to offer a better quality of fish throughout most areas of the country," says the CAC.

Cooking Tips

Home economists from the consumer section of the Fisheries Department offer the following suggestions for fish cookery:

1. A piece of orange peel or a few cloves burned in another pan on top of the stove during the cooking of fish will prevent odors.

2. Dishes which have been used in preparing fish should be washed in water to which vinegar has been added (two tablespoons to one pint of water) before washing in hot soapy water.

3. Fish odor may be removed from the hands by rubbing with salt, then rinsing in clean warm water.

Hospital Alumnae Entertains Graduating Class

St. Joseph's Hospital Alumnae numbering 67 attended the annual dinner on Thursday evening at the Empress Hotel. They had as guests 26 members of the 1951 graduating class of St. Joseph's School of Nursing, who were thus invited to become members. Also, Dr. Robert Bell, president of the medical staff, and Mrs. Bell, Mr. Wilson Gemmell, guest speaker, and Mrs. Gemmell.

President Miss Adeline Bradmore was chairman and Miss Veronica O'Leary introduced the guests.

Graduates are Misses Jean Arnott of Toronto, Marjorie Baskey of Mactier, Doreen Brown of Lindsay, Shirley Corcoran of Kearney, Mary Crowley of Peterborough, Joyce Ellery of Brighton, Marcella Farrell of Stirling, Lillian Furrie of Old Chelsea, Kathleen Goodyer of Toronto, Elizabeth Grimes of Brighton, Catherine Houle of Keene, Patricia LaForce of Gravenhurst, Rita Leveque of Maynooth, Marion Lorimer of Belleville, Inex MacDonell of Cornwall, Dorothy McFadden of Lindsay, Ruth McIntyre of Lindsay, Jean Meagher of Read, Mary Moher of Douro, Rita and Lenore Murray of Ennismore, Elizabeth Nichols of Peterborough, Claire O'Keefe of Campbellford, Anita O'Neill of Douglas, Leona O'Reilly of Little Britain, Kathleen Swift of Omemee. Unable to be present were Miss Mary Weir of Pefferlaw and Sister M. Cabrini of Peterborough.

A welcome to the field of graduates and the Alumnae was given by Miss Teresa Walsh in a toast to the class. Miss O'Keefe replied.

The speaker was introduced by Miss Leona Shearer and a vote of thanks for his fine address was moved by Mrs. Miles Rundle.

Dr. Bell expressed pleasure in seeing a strong Alumnae, which, he said, can be a great help to the medical staff in this time of shortage and increasing shortage in the nursing field.

Musical background throughout the dinner hour was provided by Miss Teresa McCall, pupil of St. Cecelia's School of Music, who also accompanied the Misses Chretien when they entertained with vocal duets.

A period of entertainment by Gordon Minty playing Stephen Foster melodies, classics and old-time songs on his banjo was an enjoyable finale to the evening, which closed with Mr. Minty leading the nurses in a sing song.

Fallis Criticizes Senate's Lack Of Fair Sex

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP).—One of the Senate's two women members offered a main criticism of Canada's Upper Chamber today—it doesn't have enough members of the fair sex.

Senator Iva Fallis, 67, a Progressive-Conservative appointed to the 102-member House by Prime Minister Bennett in 1935, thought things would be better and criticism of the Senate reduced if it had more women and if it had more members in opposition.

Stepping into the long-drawn oue debate on Senate reform, she decried the fact that since the Privy Council ruled women eligible for Senate appointment some 20 years ago, only two women have been appointed. The other is Cairine Wilson, a Liberal appointed to represent Ontario in 1930.

As for other Senate reforms, Senator Fallis said she agreed with Senator C. J. Veniot (L., New Brunswick) who yesterday suggested opposition strength should never be allowed to fall below a quarter of the Senate membership. He said the opposition leaders of the Senate and Commons should have the right to suggest suitable appointments to the Prime Minister of the day when opposition strength fell below that percentage.

Present standing in the Senate is 79 Liberals, 11 Progressive Conservatives with 12 seats vacant.

She could not agree with suggestions that part of the Senate be elected or that a third of the membership be appointed by the provinces. In the matter of retiring senators at the age of 75 instead of giving life appointments as at present, she said the suggestion had merit and if it came to a vote she would be inclined to vote for an age limit.

Woman's Fight Frees Husband In Red Prison

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK, May 4—(AP)—It took a beautiful blonde to rip a hole in the Iron Curtain — a hole big enough to extricate her husband from the clutches of the international bogey men.

Her name is Lucile Vogeler.

Now that she's safely back home in the United States with her husband, Robert A. Vogeler, and their two sons, let's take a closer look at this small dynamo.

By throwing a case of international hysterics in the laps of President Truman and State Secretary Acheson, this fragile-appearing little woman pried her husband out of a Hungarian prison cell.

When she heard that her husband had "confessed" to charges of espionage during the travesty of a trial in Budapest in February, 1950, pretty, blonde Mrs. Vogeler merely reported briskly:

"Ridiculous! He's been drugged."

Then she proceeded to show the world what a fighting-mad woman can do.

Kept On Fighting

From the time her husband, vice-president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, was kidnapped by Hungarian Communists Nov. 18, 1949, until he walked out of prison, a free man, 17 months later, Lucile Vogeler didn't stop fighting.

Although warned by friends and diplomats that her own safety and that of her sons was in danger, she waged a one-woman war on two sides of the Atlantic.

She flew to London to plead personally to Acheson on one of his visits there last spring. She cabled Truman. She harassed all the minor diplomats in sight. She worked out a plan for economic sanctions against Hungary to force the release of her husband.

She bombarded politicians; kept up a ceaseless barrage of strictly-feminine hysterics—and last Saturday her husband walked out of the Communist prison, after 17 months of despair.

When she learned that her husband's release at last was imminen , Mrs. Vogeler permitted herself one frivolous remark:

"I've unpacked some beautiful nylon nighties."

Says Agriculture Being Jeopardized

GUELPH, Ont., May 4 (CP)—The future of Canada's agriculture is jeopardized by too much concentration on other industries, W. H. Cranston of the Midland Free Press Herald said Thursday.

He was addressing 800 delegates attending a two-day conference of the Federated Women's Institute of Canada.

"A 20th-century industrial revolution is building up giant cities in what was once primarily a rural nation," Mr. Cranston said. "The basic importance of sound soils is in danger of being forgotten."

One way of promoting a greater interest and understanding of Canadian agriculture is through establishment of local museums. Women's Institutes can play an important part in such projects, Mr. Cranston said.

Not Much Glamor In Model's Life

VANCOUVER (CP)—A model's life is a lot of hard work and early-to-bed routine, and little glamor.

A Vancouver girl, former top-flight New York Powers model, Rosemary Sankey, pricked the glamor myth surrounding models.

She said any girl with a decent figure (reasonably thin) and fairly regular features, who isn't clumsy as an ox, can make the grade in New York—provided she is willing to work hard all day and sleep plenty at night.

It's work, not glamor, that brings results.

"Girls go to New York starry-eyed at visions of sessions at the Stork Club and such," she said, "but a successful model has to skip the night life."

Warns Nurses of 2 Evils Enemy Uses As Weapons

"The world today is torn by two major evils—greed and intolerance," declared Mr. Wilson Gemmell Thursday, addressing the evening dinner meeting of St. Joseph's Hospital Alumnae at which this year's graduating nurses were special guests.

"'Gimme,' to use the vernacular, is the first thought of too many," [illegible]nued. "I ask that you stand firm for payment for your services, but that you never allow money to set the limit of your service." Mr. Gemmell said he was thinking of the extra, little acts of kindness such as a nurse can perform for her patient, but also those little, good deeds that can be done every day. "These are things that count. They are things that cannot be turned against us in time of war."

As frequently happened in this address, the speaker drove home the point with a quotation from Shakespeare: "Vaunting ambition that o'erleaps itself and falls on the other side," (Macbeth). Mr. Gemmell said he believes that a man with the Bible and Shakespeare is equal to any situation.

Intolerance Worse

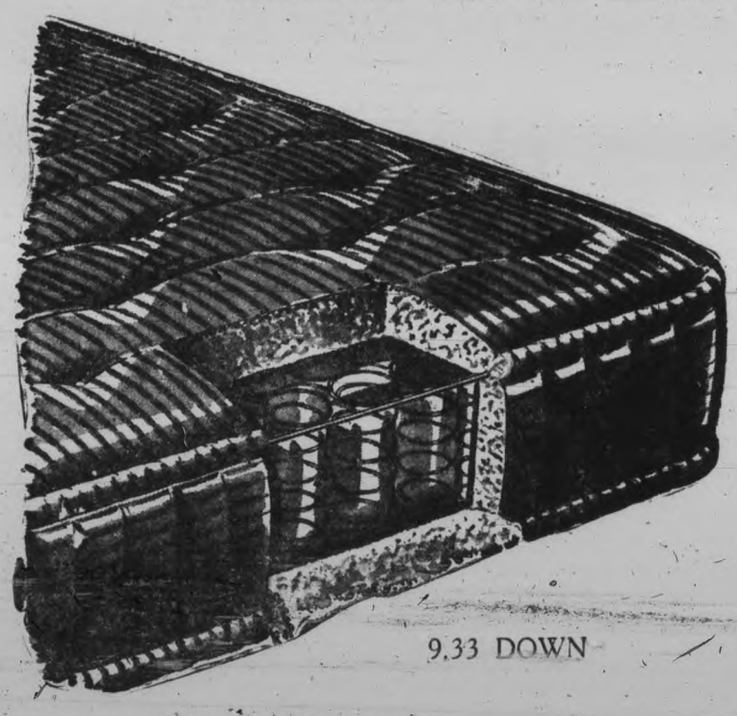
"Intolerance is a worse evil," said Mr. Gemmell. "It causes wounds to the spirit which have a more devastating effect than other wounds and they cannot be bound up." Many people are intolerant about little things, but the greatest intolerances are of religious beliefs and race. The speaker referred to the type of people who will call fellow humans 'Wops, Chinks and Yids.' "The hurt is worse than if they held a gun to your head," he said.

"Communism knows well these weapons," he warned. "Their greatest weapon yet is our fear of our fellows. It is called bacterial warfare—the destruction of faith and respect for the human soul of others." Mr. Gemmell said Communism will not be beaten by arms, but by improvement of relationship with fellow men.

Nursing Requisites

Turning again to nursing, he said, "Healing the sick without relieving their minds is only doing half the job." A sense of humor that sees no situation so devoid of hope there isn't a lighter side is needed in the sick room, and also a sense of proportion, ability to sum up the proportion of things—not to leave a patient because he seems a little better.

"Lose no opportunity to improve your mind," Mr. Gemmell told the nurses, mentioning a number of books for the purpose, and also the daily comics: "You need the lighter touch, too," he said. "To the extent you have prepared yourself the easier it will be for you to assume the responsibilities of a graduate nurse." He suggested reading the biographies of great characters of history, including Florence Nightingale, Edith Cavell, the Countess of Aberdeen, who founded VON in 1897.



The speaker allowed himself brief reference to his own business—banking. "May I take this opportunity to expound the old-fashioned habit of thrift," He explained that "more buying" of such items as expensive hats has led to higher prices. "You cannot mortgage your income and not have something to give; price gives most easily."

"Remember from whence you came," Mr. Gemmell said to the graduating class as he concluded. "Remember the reverend sisters who taught you, the Alumnae; never let the associations tarnish or grow dim, so that those to follow may always have cause to say the same of you."

Handicapped Woman Tells Of Her Happy Marriages

DEAR MISS DIX: I thought maybe you would like a letter from one happy woman. I will be 42 years old next week. For 30 of those years I have been partly paralysed on the left side. In spite of that I managed to snag myself a wonderful husband.

I try to make the most of the assets I do have. There's no use sitting around sobbing because I am handicapped. I've found a smile will get me further than a long face. We don't have too much of this world's goods and have to spend a lot on doctors, but my husband never gets impatient and he is always so proud when I do something that is difficult for me.

Dorothy Dix

If I make up my mind to do something, it takes a lot to convince me I can't do it. I do my ironing—even to shirts—though I have only one hand to use. It gives me a grand feeling to do things, and as I said, I am

A HAPPY WOMAN

ANSWER: A letter like this is like a breath of spring in a room that's been closed all winter. It brings to shame the whimpering, snivelling women who complain because their husbands don't say enough sweet things, or pay them enough compliments or take them out dancing every night.

Strength From Weakness

It also can be a comfort to many girls who fear that they will never be sought in marriage because of a handicap. Some of the happiest marriages I know have been made by women with handicaps. The knowledge that they lack physical perfection seems to inspire such women to greater heights of understanding, generosity and kindness, and these assets are the greatest things that any woman can bring to her marriage.

Three cheers, too, for the husband. He realizes he has a jewel of a wife and isn't wasting any time chasing other women for a tawdry thrill.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am having in-law trouble and from a sister-in-law who is aged 2½ years. She is the ban of my existence for all her tender years. She is the baby in a big family, born after her parents were well in their forties and she is the worst spoiled child that ever lived. The whole family kowtows before her. They think all of her badness is smartness and that it is cute for her to do things for which she should be spanked. Even my husband joins in this worship and calls her clever. Devilish is the word for her. At our wedding breakfast not six months ago this infant ruined the happiest moment of my life by screaming and laughter and taking the centre of the stage. I guess I should be ashamed for disliking such a young child, but I cannot help it. What can I do to overcome this feeling and stop the families' constant chatter about her? ALICE

ANSWER: Have a baby of your own and divert the family child-worship to it. A baby always puts the two-year-old's nose out of joint, and certainly your husband will have no eyes for little sister when he has an infant prodigy of his own to adore.

It is too bad about your husband's family spoiling the child, but it is what always happens when the stork pays a belated visit to a middle-aged couple. They always give the baby of their old age an adulation that they never bestow upon their older children. It is the Benjamins and Benjaminas, who are never disciplined or denied anything they want, who lead their fathers and mothers around by the nose.

But I sympathize with you in your dislike of a spoiled, fresh child whose misguided parents give it the centre of the stage and expect everybody to keep quiet and listen to its prattle. There is no greater social pest.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have been married five years and worked until a year ago. As long as I worked I had some spending money, but now I have none. My husband refuses to give me even a penny for myself. He says he can't understand why I need money, as he pays all the bills and I have a charge account at the grocery. When the insurance man and the paper boy come I have to tell them to come back when my husband is home, as I haven't a cent. I wouldn't dare start a charge account for clothes, yet he doesn't give me any money to buy them with. If he didn't have the money, I would not say anything, but he has plenty and gets what he wants. When I was working I always helped pay the household bills. I have thought of going back to work, but I have a small boy and don't like to leave him. What shall I do?

WORRIED

ANSWER: I don't suppose that talking to a tightwad like your husband and explaining to him how unjust he is and how his niggardliness is killing your love for him would do the slightest bit of good. Such a man always loves his pocketbook more than he does anything else on earth.

But, on the other hand, you cannot stand the life of slavery that he is imposing upon you, so you will have to buck up and take a stand and tell him that he has to, at least, pay you a servant's wages for doing his cooking and washing and ironing, or else you are going back to your old job, or into somebody else's kitchen, where you will get a pay envelope on Saturday night.

THE TWO SCHOOLS of thought with regard to the June bride are represented here. The first bride (left) picks an ankle-length gown in pure Italian silk by Philip Hulitar. Formal bride (centre) is wearing Miss Emily's Victorian bridal gown in imported lace with matching gown. The third bride choose a short bridal dress in imported ecru re-embroidered alencon lace by Pauline Trigere.

Wedding Dresses Made For Wear, Keeps

By GAILE DUGAS

NEW YORK —(NEA)— It's all in the point of view. The view, that is, of a June bride. Some are sentimental. They want yards of frothy tulle, the sweep of white lace, a regal headdress. They want a dress they can pass on to others, a dress to be cherished. Above all, they want a dress that will help to create a beautiful picture on their wedding day.

But other June brides have different ideas. They want to be pretty as pictures, too, but they're very practical about it. They want a dress, not to cherish, but to wear after the wedding. They want a dress that will double as a summer evening dress, one that will fill a real role in the wardrobe.

To this end, they choose the short bridal gown that sometimes has an apron that doubles as a stole, a stole that looks like part of the dress, a tiny cape that comes off to reveal a strapless top for dancing.

For the bride who likes the ankle-length gown, Philip Hulitar has designed a dress in pure Italian silk and banded it in a woven sheer. This is a strapless dress with a small, triangular scarf which snaps on to form a shawl top. It's anchored with a lily-of-the-valley corsage. The bodice has diagonal trim in chartreuse grosgrain ribbon.

Miss Emily does the very formal, very Victorian bridal gown in imported lace worked in apron effect over a white satin underskirt. The bodice is snug and very fitted, the sleeves are puffed. A wide V neckline is filled in with transparent net. The flowing train of tulle is attached to the dress. The headdress, a little crown, is made of matching lace.

For the flower girl who attends the bride, Anne Fogarty has designed a bouffant organdy dress in ballerina length. It has a companion in a lace coat that is the miniature of an adult's. It's worn with white satin slippers that have paste buckles.

Designer Pauline Trigere uses ecru imported re-embroidered alencon lace to make a short bridal dress that's charming. The bodice neckline is cut high and straight across, dipping to a V in the back. The skirt is very full and stiffened. A white organdy border on the skirt picks up the white organdy used to edge the neckline and cap sleeves. With it, this bride wears face veiling caught with a spray of white flowers at the back of the head.

Tree nurseries of the Ontario Lands and Forests department in 1951 shipped 20,000,000 young trees for reforestation.

Agricultural Headquarters

It is likely that Don Milburn, John Kitney and other junior directors of the Exhibition remember the intimations some years ago that Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario's minister of agriculture, was proposing a building at Morrow Park that would be an agricultural headquarters for this area.

That idea has not been discarded. It has been dormant for a time, but echoes of it are heard in a proposal that the city, with the Ontario and Dominion governments, assume equal parts of the cost. Its purposes might be thoroughly accomplished in accommodation within the premises of the Community Centre, and also with the financial support of several departments.

The interests and the knowledge of Junior Farmers are rapidly broadening. It is a simple truism that they are going to be the farmers of tomorrow, and they are not satisfied with one week's exhibition as achieving the purposes of Mr. Morrow and the possibilities of that property as a great local aid to Central Ontario agriculture, including Peterborough county.

Can Be Developed

Comparatively few farmers have given much thought and expression to their opinions of the uses of Morrow Park, "for the promotion of the industry of agriculture." Those who have considered it, and its gift, can perceive agricultural utility of the Park that could develop with the years beyond their present thinking and horizons.

The more they comprehend those vistas as fulfilling the purposes of Mr. H. A. Morrow, the more are they at a loss to understand why expropriation for his purposes should have to be projected into discussions of a Community Centre site.

Thier chief assumption is to the effect that the proposed Centre would provide for agricultural uses. That should prove easy of arrangement.

One other aspect of the Park's facilities is in the temporary type of building of the old drill hall of war time. Its days of usefulness are numbered, but the Community Centre at Morrow Park would be available "for agricultural purposes" for many years.

Ordain New Minister At Fenelon Falls

KITCHENER, May 4 (CP). — Two Kitchener men, Max V. Putnam and Granville Taylor-Munro, were ordained into the Presbyterian ministry in services at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church Thursday night.

Rev. Kenneth G. MacMillan, Guelph, preached the ordination sermon and Rev. W. J. Walker, Galt, moderator of the Guelph Presbytery and of the Toronto and Kingston synod carried out the ordination.

Mr. Putnam has been called to Fenelon Falls and Mr. Taylor-Munro to St. Catharines.

Dramatic Club Presents Play At St. George's

A near-capacity audience enjoyed a one-act play and other varied entertainment presented by St. George's Anglican Church Junior Dramatic Club Thursday night in the church Sunday School Room.

The play, "On the Sentimental Side," was a light comedy revolving around the struggle of three students of a school of journalism in New York City to get a news scoop. The incentive behind this struggle was a prize of $250.

Added persons of interest on the scene were a world-famous woman game hunter and the prime minister of Great Britain, not to mention Hopkins, the English sailor.

The action took place in a small waiting-room aboard the SS Scotia at dock in New York harbor on an afternoon in spring.

Laboring under the difficulties of a small stage the youthful cast under the direction of J. James Edwards gave an enjoyable performance.

Members of the cast were as follows: Hopkins the English sailor, David Perry; the three journalist students, Jerry (Allan Doleman), Clara (Patricia Caccavella), Daisey (Marion White); Mrs. Daggett Grimm, the game hunter, Irene Kelly; Woodsie, the prime minister, Bert Ross.

Albert Rogers, master of ceremonies, delighted the audience with clever impersonations. Four boys from the church Boys' Club did a humorous impersonation of The Ink Spots. The boys were Ron Brown, Eddy Warner, John Tushingham, and Clayton Outwater.

Musical entertainment was provided by R. Bryce Steele on the organ and John Hodson on the piano accordion.

The new rector of St. George's Church, the Rev. H. J. Scuse, who arrived in Peterborough Wednesday, was introduced at the end of the evening by the director, Mr. Edwards.

The play will be presented again tonight at St. George's Church.

Greek Pastor Likes Life In Canada

TORONTO, May 4 (CP).—The Rev. Christos G. Vais, a prisoner of war in Greece for 11 months, has found "new life" in a Canadian pulpit.

Mr. Vais, attending the Toronto and Kingston Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, says he finds preaching in Canada "just the same as it was in Greece, perhaps a little better, because my concern is the salvation of souls."

He was minister at the Nicaen Presbyterian Church in Athens and brought his wife and three children to Canada two years ago. He was imprisoned by the Germans during the Second World War.

His first charge was at Braeside near Ottawa, after he answered a call from the Presbyterian Church of Canada.

"Gathering together at this Synod means already accomplishment because we are working for the same end," he said.

Prices Still Climb On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, May 4 (CP). — Prices continued advancing slowly as the session progressed on the stock market today.

In industrials, papers, steels, utilities, agricultures, foods, banks and refining oils showed a majority of gains. Liquors, constructions, manufacturing companies, textiles and retail stores were about evenly mixed. Most price changes were in small fractions.

Base metals were fairly mixed but the tendency was to advance. Consolidated Smelters stood out with a $1.50 jump and Falconbridge, Labrador, International Nickel, and Quemont added fractions.

Western oils were a little higher.

Golds were irregular with little activity. Senior producers were slightly lower while secondary golds posted a handful of moderate gains.

Wm. McFarlane To Direct Camp

William McFarlane, boys' work secretary at the YMCA, will be camp director of the annual Y's Men's Club's boys' camp on Clear Lake this year. He succeeds Earl Druery. Consultant director will be N. C. Munro.

Already applications for the camp, which opens June 30 and closes August 11, have been received from boys in Peterborough, Toronto, Cobourg Niagara Falls and Ottawa.

Mr. McFarlane explained that the camp is mainly for Peterborough boys but that a number of out-of-town boys attend annually. It accommodates 60 boys a week.

Plans for this year include a new boat house and an additional cottage for the boys. Situated on Clear Lake there are five new junior cabins and a modern hospital amongst the permanent structures on the 600-acre ranch.

Camp Kawartha began in 1921 under the ownership of the Peterborough Rotary Club. But in 1940 the club leased land and property to the Y's Men's Club. This year's committee includes William Moorhead, chairman, and J. Rowan, W. McFarlane, B. Loomis, B. Dietrich, R. Brown, G. Moore, J. Richardson, C. Munro, E. Spencley, C. Osborne, J. Wilson, A. Holmes, A. Holmes, R. Simmons, W. Pinn, R. Bell and D. Harwood.

Dollar Unchanged

MONTREAL, May 4 — (CP) — The American dollar today opened at 5 13/16 per cent premium to the Canadian dollar unchanged from Thursday's close. That is, it took $1.05 13/16 Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.96¼, also unchanged.

Londoners Enjoy Celebrating Festival Opening

LONDON, May 4—(CP)—The King today threw open to the world the century's greatest display of Britain's achievements—the 1951 Festival Exhibition.

The royal family arrived in a typical grey London mist at the shining modern pavilions, the fountains and towers on the south bank of the River Thames.

The King and Queen drove from Buckingham Palace to the Festival Exhibition. They advanced through dense cheering crowds to the site, not far ahead of the retreating figures of the last workmen.

Carpenters and electricians had worked all night to put the finishing touches to the 27-acre festival area.

The ceremony had none of Thursday's processional pomp and splendor, when the King officially opened the festival as a whole after a dedication service in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Thursday night the United Kingdom celebrated the start of the festival with revelry. Two thousand bonfires were set off simultaneously throughout the kingdom at a broadcast signal—the sound of a massed chorus of 5,000 voices outside St. Paul's Cathedral.

London made a full night of it. Its celebration extended throughout the town and especially along the brilliantly-lit banks of the Thames. Every big light in London was turned on Londoners moved happily through the town, looking at the lights and just celebrating. London newspapers said it was the happiest night since the end of the war.

Canada To Recruit Brigade Of 6,000 For Use In Europe

By DOUGLAS HOW, Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 5. (CP)—A manpower drive to recruit a new Army brigade group primarily for Europe will be launched Monday. It will rely heavily on the traditions and prestige of reserve Army units from coast to coast. In an unprecedented move, the Government last night asked 42 reserve units to shoulder the major responsibility for recruiting the 5,500 to 6,500 men needed for the brigade group itself. In time they or other reserve units will be asked to raise nearly as many more as replacements.

This will mean in effect partial mobilization of the reserve forces.

The formation will be called the 27th brigade group and will muster at Valcartier, Que. It will be unique in that it will be made up of composite units of infantry, artillery, armored, engineer and other arms raised by reserve units.

The three infantry battalions, for instance, will each be made up of five companies. Each company will be recruited by a separate reserve force regiment.

Wear Own Insignia

Each company will wear the badges and insignia of the reserve force regiment which raised it. The same system will be followed by the other arms of the service.

A brigade commander and unit commanders will be named soon.

Defence Minister Claxton, in making the announcement in the Commons and later over the CBC, said the present plan is that the new brigade group "would be available to become a component of the European integrated (Atlantic Pact) force commanded by Gen. Eisenhower."

But it couldn't yet be said when it would go to Europe. The top priority of the Canadian army overseas was the support of the 25th Brigade in Korea and the men who enlisted in the 27th would be available for service anywhere.

(It takes six to eight months to train a brigade to battle readiness.)

The decision about when a Canadian force would go to Europe "will depend on circumstances as they develop, including the course of events in Korea, the speed with which the required troops are raised and trained as well as developments in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

May Go To Korea

This was taken as an indication that some of the men or units raised for the 27th Brigade may have to go to Korea if that war continues for a long time.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC (PC-Nanaimo) asked Mr. Claxton flatly if that is possible. The minister said it is all one army.

Syrian Army Attacks Inside Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel, May 5. (CP)—Syrian Army forces supported by artillery and mortars today resumed the attack inside Israeli territory in the demilitarized zone, an Israeli army spokesman announced.

The spokesman said the Syrians assaulted the height of Tel Al Muteila in continued disregard of yesterday's United Nations-sponsored cease-fire agreement.

He said Israeli forces repulsed the attack after an 80-minute battle and inflicted heavy casualties. Israeli forces also were reported to have used mortar and artillery fire.

(A report from the frontier quoted an Israeli spokesman as saying Syrian troops were consolidating and fortifying their positions inside the demilitarized zone.

(The report said the Syrian assault was the 18th in the last three days. It said scores of Syrian dead littered the battle area.

Israeli sources said three Syrian air force planes flew over the battle area this morning, but did not drop bombs.

The cease-fire agreement halted fighting yesterday only briefly. It was shattered last night by heavy artillery and mortar fire across a wide sector of the demilitarized zone, a buffer area between Israel and Syria set up in the armistice which ended the Palestine war in 1948.

Each side claimed the other violated the cease-fire agreement by attacking in the demilitarized zone north of the Sea of Galilee. Each claimed also to have beaten back the attacks and to have inflicted heavy casualties.

An Israeli spokesman charged the Syrians attacked Israeli territory 3½ hours after the cease-fire had gone into effect yesterday at 11:30 p.m. Greenwich time. (6:30 p.m. EDT).

Congress Slashes Emergency Funds

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Economy forces in the House of Representatives today pointed to a walloping 96-per-cent in President Truman's emergency funds as evidence that they are out to reduce government spending.

The President's funds came under the axe yesterday when the House passed on to the Senate a $6,144,450,355 Appropriations Bill financing 27 independent Federal agencies.

The total was $693,137,110 less than Truman wanted. And $24,000,000 of that was slashed from the President's own emergency money request. The fund is given the President to meet emergency needs arising from domestic or foreign developments not provided for in specific appropriations.

Truman had asked $25,000,000 for the fund. He got $1,000,000.

Another blow was dealt the administration when the House reduced to 5,000 the number of new public housing units that may be started in the fiscal year 1952. The President already had whittled the program down to 75,000 units from 135,000.

Rare Operations Save 2 Premature Babies

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 5 —(AP)—Two rare operations on premature infants have apparently proved successful, officials at St. John's hospital reported last night.

The hospital said one operation was performed in April on a 3¾-pound boy who had a "blind pouch" in the lower part of the neck—caused by the esophagus and stomach being below their proper places in the body at birth.

Surgeons freed the two organs and placed them in their proper places.

The infant now weighs 4½ pounds.

Last Tuesday surgeons performed the first of a series of operations on an infant born with several of its vital organs outside the body.

The first operation involved placing the esophagus inside the body, taking out and replacing a rib. Other organs outside the body will be treated by surgeries over a period of two years.

Reds Order 97 Ships From European Yards

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 5 (AP)—Russia has placed orders for at least 97 ships with West European shipyards it was reported here today. Two of them were for 1951 delivery.

The prospective additions to Russia's merchant fleet range from trawlers of a few hundred tons to a 13,000-ton tanker according to a survey made by the Stockholm newspaper "Dagens Nyheter."

Sweden alone had accepted orders for 45 steel trawlers of about 500 tons each. About 30 are scheduled for delivery this year.

Most of the orders for bigger ships have been placed in Denmark, Holland and Belgium, the paper said.

Commonwealth Unit

Told To Fight With Guts

In a cable just passed through censorship, Bill Boss, Canadian Press correspondent with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in Korea, tells of an order of the day issued to the British Commonwealth Brigade last Monday. It was just before the big Chinese drive, later repulsed, to capture Seoul. Censorship does not permit Boss to name the unit.

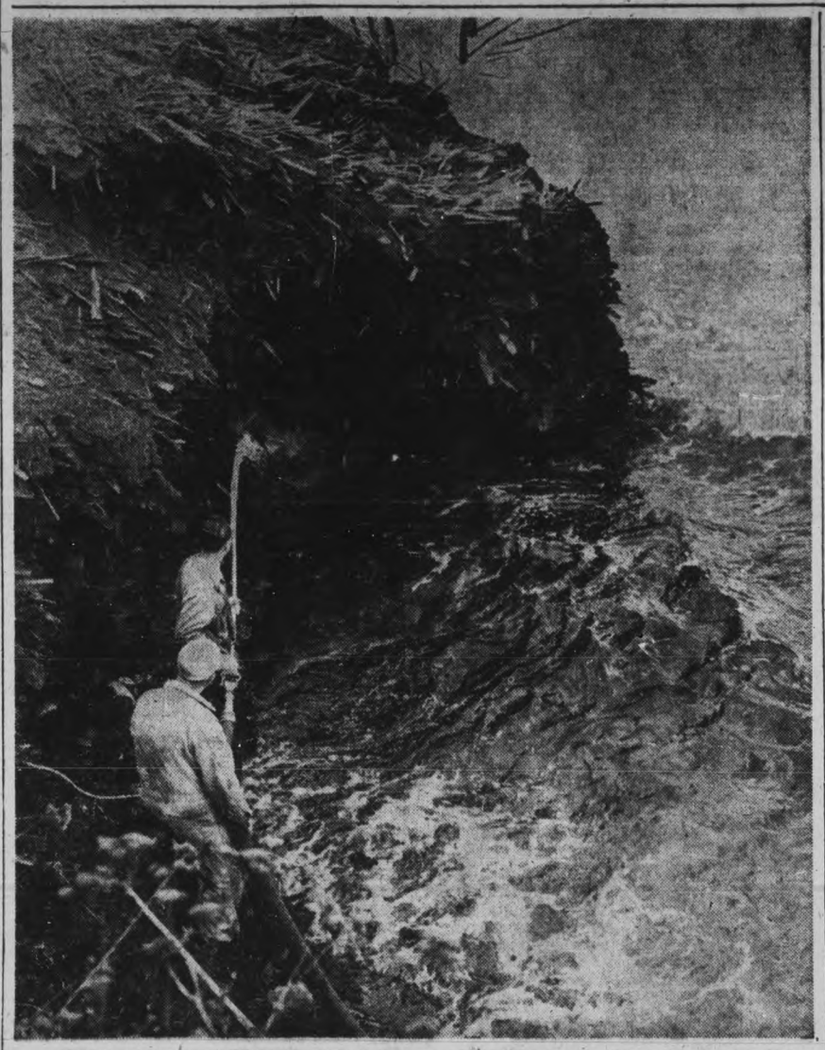
By BILL BOSS

WEST CENTRAL SECTOR, Korea, May 5 (CP)—An order of the day calling on the 28th British Commonwealth Brigade to fight with "guts" now that "the menace of the urgent hour is upon us," was issued Monday by Brigadier George Taylor, commanding officer.

(In later cables, Boss told of United Nations mountain troops exploiting a breather offered by a lull in the enemy's spring offensive to strengthen positions Tuesday through Friday. These were north of the Han River in a series of 300-foot hills east of Seoul.)

Brig. Taylor—whose Canadians, Australians and Britons saved the Eighth Army's bacon last week by stopping the Chinese advance cold in the central sector north of Kapyong—issued his order on mimeographed sheets.

It read:



"The British Commonwealth Brigade has been given the most important job in a big battle. We are to hold high ground. As long as this is held the enemy cannot break into our positions....

"General Van Fleet (Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Allied ground commander) has decided to destroy the enemy on ground of our own choosing. In our strong positions we can hold on for weeks."

They were ready for enemy attack at any time in any strength. The ridge bristled with every weapon in the battalion's armory, plus a healthy number of others, including tanks and mortars loaned by other formations.

Extra artillery was allotted, too. The force was ready and determined to hold for weeks if necessary, even if cut off.

Friday the commanding officer made rest the number one priority and rest they did, regretful only that a strong spring sun had given way to a persistent drizzle and thickly-overcast skies.

Oscar Peterson Refused Haircut

HAMILTON, May 5 (CP). — Oscar Peterson, popular Canadian Negro pianist, said he was refused a haircut in a Hamilton barber shop Friday.

The Montreal musician who won the Down Beat all-American award last year said the refusal of the barber shop to cut his hair was an "out-and-out insult, not only to me but other Canadians."

Peterson said he was told "the shop is closed" when he entered.

He said his base fiddle player, Ray Brown, also a Negro, had been given a haircut earlier in the week in the same shop, and that despite the statement that the shop was closed, a man in work clothes came in and was given a haircut after Peterson left.

Glen McQuaid, proprietor of the shop and president of the Hamilton Barbershop Owners' Association, confirmed that Peterson had been refused a haircut.

"What can I do about it?" he asked. "It's hard enough trying to get barbers these days. If I told them to cut their hair I wouldn't have a barber working in the shop."

$40 Pensions To Start Early 1952; No Means Test

OTTAWA, May 5. (CP)—A $350,000,000 Federal program to provide $40-a-month pensions to Canadians 70 and over regardless of means likely will be inaugurated early next year. Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons yesterday that no time will be lost in getting the program into operation.

He made the statement after informing members that all 10 provinces have agreed to a constitutional amendment which will clear the way for the Federal Government to enter the pensions field, now under provincial jurisdiction.

The cost of the pensions to all 70 and over will be financed out of taxation but the government has not indicated how the contributions will be collected. A parliamentary committee on old-age security suggested last year the pensions might be financed through a two-per-cent levy on incomes.

Once the new program is in operation, the federal government plans to share on a 50-50 basis with the provinces the cost of pensions to the needy between 65 and 69.

At present, pensions of $40 a month—some of the provinces pay a bit more—go to those of 70 and over who can prove their need for such a payment. The federal government pays 75 per cent of the cost and the provinces the remainder.

Mr. St. Laurent said the federal government does not plan to hold up the pensions program until the provinces agree on a constitutional amendment that would allow them to collect an indirect sales tax of three per cent.

Pappa Won't Interfere In Aly-Rita Split

NICE, France, May 5 (AP)—The Aga Khan said today he will not meddle in the affairs of his son, Prince Aly, and daughter-in-law Rita Hayworth. But he said he hopes their child, Yasmin, will be raised in the Moslem religion.

"There is no question of my intervening in the Aly-Rita affair. oBth will do as they please," he said.

"I hope that Rita will not raise any difficulties about raising Yasmin in the Moslem religion. That is the only thing that counts for the moment," he said.

Blow Restores Partial Vision

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—For 20 years, newspaper man Frank Kennedy has been groping around in the darkness of the almost-totally blind.

Then, on the night of April 8, Kennedy awoke to remember he had forgotten to turn down the thermostat on the gas heater.

Leaping from bed, Kennedy struck a chest, reeled and sat down on the bed. His wife had moved the bed a foot closer to the chest, after some furniture repair.

That blow he got now seems to have restored partial vision and Kennedy is exuberantly happy. He can pick out the figures on playing cards, spell out newspaper headlines.

Doctors say Kennedy is and will continue to be blind in his right eye. The left eye had developed a cataract. The blow on the edge of the chest made the cataract drop below the pupil.

UN Advances As Reds Pull Back

No Man's Land Narrows, Only Patrols Fighting

By OLEN CLEMENTS

TOKYO, May 5. (AP) — United Nations tank-infantry columns clanked into the Korean No Man's Land on the hunt for withdrawing Communist forces.

"This isn't a general advance," said a spokesman at United States Eighth Army headquarters, "but we're sparring for an opening."

The armored columns struck ahead on the western front for the fourth consecutive day.

The Reds had pulled back on the central front. They withdrew on a smaller scale on the western front.

The Red spring drive that began April 22 had wilted in its first stage. Now the United Nations Army was taking up slack in the lines.

Except for the Royal Gloucestershire battalion which was badly mauled, no Allied units suffered severely in the Red drive that was stopped just short of Seoul.

The Chinese and Red Korean forces suffered heavily, however.

Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, estimated the number of Red casualties in the bogged spring drive at about 70,000. A daily compilation of U.N. air and ground forces communique tolls placed the enemy dead and wounded at around 50,000.

Eighth Army staff officers reported heavy Red troop movements in rear areas. Field reports Saturday listed 21,000 men and 500 horses north of Chunchon on the central front.

Mine Fields

Presence of mine fields on the western front north of Seoul also indicated the Reds were planning another drive.

AP correspondent Robert Eunson at Eighth Army headquarters reported the general belief is that the next Red shove won't come immediately. When it does, Army sources said, it will be in the form of pressure on Seoul.

Eunson said most military men believe the Reds will need more armor than they have displayed up to the present to sweep around behind U.N. forces defending Seoul.

Chinese Reds offered no fight as the United Nations line was pushed forward northeast of Seoul in the region of the Pukham river.

Farther east of Seoul, in the peninsula's mountainous heart, some Red forces still were withdrawing north of Chunchon out of range of Allied artillery.

Second Round

It was on this front, 45 miles northeast of Seoul, that the Reds have been expected to open the second round, after losing the first round aimed at Seoul itself.

Strong UN patrols ranged north into a no-man's land searching for Reds. They found about 7,000 northwest of Seoul Friday and fought them until nightfall. Then the patrols withdrew.

Allied tanks rumbled the 11 miles north of Seoul into the highway junction of Uijongbu

Gen. MacArthur Blasts Truman Clears Acheson

By JACK BELL.

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur continues today his bristling offensive against Truman administration plans to fight what he calls an "appeasement" war in Asia.

Chief targets of the tireless 71-year-old deposed Pacific Commander were President Truman and Defence Secretary George C. Marshall.

State Secretary Dean Acheson, who has been accused as an "appeaser" by some of MacArthur's supporters, was not included. The General yesterday absolved Acheson of any connection with his ouster by Truman.

And Senator William Fulbright (Dem.-Ark.) observed in Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations' Committee hearings — where MacArthur resumes testimony today (10:30 a.m. EDT) — that Acheson argued against the President's decision.

Backs Successor

The former Pacific Commander made it plain that he will give no quarter to Truman and Marshall in his fight for authority for his successor, Lt.-Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, to push the war harder against the Chinese Communists.

MacArthur said he was fired on "one individual's judgment"—— obviously the President's—despite a pentagon statement that the joint Chiefs of Staff and their chairman, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, concurred in the action.

But this hot political issue was only one of many raised in an eight-hour testimony stint yesterday that left commmittee members limp but apparently did not tire the General.

Dandelions 28c Each

LONDON, May 5— (AP)— A flower huckster outside a festival of Britain exhibit did a brisk business yesterday peddling little golden buds wrapped in a green leaf for two shillings (28 cents) each.

Hundreds bought the buttonnieres without suspecting they were the season's first dandelions.

R. Blackwood Rubidge St. Alone In Car

Drove Friends Home To Lindsay, Dies On Return

Robert James Blackwood, 26, of 188 Rubidge St., was instantly killed early today when his car ran into a freight train, two miles east of Omemee. The 1929-model car was dragged 400 feet along the railway tracks and burst into flame. Blackwood was believed dead before the vehicle ignited. His body was burnt beyond recognition and identification was made by his ring and wrist watch.

When the fatal accident occurred, Blackwood was returning from Lindsay. Earlier he had taken a friend from Peterborough to Lindsay and he was on his way home. His wife Dorothy was thinking of accompanying him on the trip but finally decided not to.

Apparently Blackwood did not see the Lindsay-Belleville freight train, which was going toward Peterborough, until it was too late to avoid a collision. Marks on No. 7 highway indicate that he swerved the car in a last minute effort to avoid the crash, but he plowed into the freight instead.

The last Peterborough fatality at the CNR crossing near Omemee was when the late Sidney Trowbridge was struck by a train and killed while returning from a hockey game in 1949.

Blackwood was born in Campbellford but has been a resident of Peterborough for the last 10 years. For the last three years he worked in the storeroom department of the Peterborough Canoe Co.

He leaves his wife Dorothy; two daughters, Lorraine Anne, 4, and Florence Beatrice, 3; his mother, Mrs. Ada Blackwood; and three brothers—Harold, Gerald, and Vern, all of Peterborough; and his grandmother, Mrs. William Blakely, Campbellford.

Provincial police from the Lindsay detachment investigated.

Train crew were all Lindsay men—Charles Sleep, engineer; E. W. Gilmour, conductor, and William Powell, fireman.

15 U.S. Soldiers Freed By Reds

WESTERN FRONT, Korea, May 5 (AP).—Fifteen United States soldiers, captured by the Communists a week ago, returned to allied lines last night and told of being interviewed by a Chinese general.

The men said they were well-treated and were liberated twice —the second time after they were accidentally recaptured.

"They treated us pretty well, especially after we were moved back from the front-line troops," said a soldier from Baltimore.

Censorship prevented naming the Americans.

The best one of all was the Chinese General we met—he was a big chunky man and very well dressed. He asked us a lot about our family lives."

The men said all Chinese activities were carried on at night. The Reds and their prisoners lay hidden in their holes all day.

"Our artillery is pretty damned good, but the Chinks don't think much of our airplanes."

Veterans Protest Gov't Voting Policy

JOHANNESBURG, May 5 — (Reuters).—Thousands of former servicemen staged mass rallies last night in two main South African cities. They were protesting the government's colored voting policy.

The government wants to place all colored people of Cape Province on a separate voting list.

The Johannesburg demonstrators passed a resolution "protesting in the strongest possible terms . . . against action (which would) violate the spirit of the constitution."

At Port Elizabeth a meeting passed a resolution condemning the government for "violating the liberties for which the 1914-18 and 1939-45 wars were fought."

Cut Tariff

Cuba Sugar Deal May Help Housewife

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA, May 5—(CP)—Canada has entered into a sugar deal with Cuba—a move that may eventually help housewives fight rising living costs.

Details of the deal, which involves a complex tariff-cutting arrangement, likely will be announced soon.

So far as could be learned, the significant points are these:

1. Canada has agreed to fix a quota whereby Cuba can ship in about 150,000,000 pounds of sugar at a more favorable tariff cost. This is more than 15 times the 8,900,000 pounds Cuba shipped last year.

Works Both Ways

2. Cuba will extend trade concessions to Canada, equal to those granted to the United States—giving Canada a better chance to compete wtih the U.S. on certain manufactured goods.

3. Sugar arriving in Canada will be charged the normal tariff of about $1.28 a hundredweight — the most-favored-nation rate. Commonwealth countries get a preferred sugar rate of only 28 cents a hundredweight.

4. Importers buying Cuban sugar up to the quota level, will be able to apply to a government agency and obtain a rebate up to the commonwealth level.

Official quarters say this is not a subsidy, but merely a trade concession.

No Quota

The Dominican Republic, another sugar supplier, will obtain the same kind of terms but in this case no quota will be fixed. Canada will be able to turn off the tariff tap when she likes.

Previously Commonwealth countries, including Australia, Jamaica and Fiji, held a virtual monopoly in the Canadian sugar market.

Canada imports about 1,265,000,000 pounds of raw sugar a year. The Commonwealth has supplied most of it.

The experts believe that with equal tariffs, Cuba can undersell the Commonwealth suppliers by about 85 cents a hundredweight. The small initial quota likely will be increased in the future if the deal works out.

In that way, Cuba will be able to obtain a firm foothold on the Canadian sugar market and the price thereby may become more competitive.

Commonwealth countries voiced opposition to the move, negotiated at Torquay, England, during recent multi-lateral tariff negotiations. The sugar deal was made outside regular tariff bargaining.

Some have protested directly to the Canadian government. The government has taken no move to change its plans.

Report Two Minor Accidents

Two minor accidents were reported to police.

When Leslie W. Welsh, 7 Conger St. proceeding north on Rubidge St. Friday night at 5 p.m. stopped to see a friend, a car driven by Edward Monaghan, 495 Brioux Ave., hit the back of his car. Monaghan was proceeding north on Rubidge St. immediately behind the Welsh car.

Total damage to both cars amounted to $90.

Vision blocked by a traffic tie-up on Charlotte St. Friday noon is blamed by police for the other accident. A car driven south on Rubidge St. toward Charlotte St. by Mrs. Joan Riley, 598 Donegal St., was hit by a car driven east on Charlotte St. by Alferd Whitnel, 356 Stewart St.

At the time a line of cars from Rubidge St. to Reid St. was facing west on Charlotte St. waiting for the traffic officer to let them through at Reid St. These cars prevented Mrs. Riley from seeing the eastbound Whitnell car.

Damage to the Riley car was $166.

Evening Auxiliary Honors Mothers

CAMPBELLFORD, May 5 — (ENS).—The regular monthly meeting of the St. John's Evening Auxiliary took the form of a mother and daughter meeting on Thursday evening. A large number of visitors were present which swelled the attendance to more than 50.

President Dorothy Kingston opened the meeting with a hymn followed by the Lord's prayer.

After the business portion of the meeting, Group 4, with Mildred Mutton presiding, took charge. June Bennett conducted a lively sing-song. Mildred Mutton read a poem dedicated to "Mother," after which another hymn was sung. The scripture lesson was read by Hazel Cochrane. Mary Johnston led in prayer.

A solo by June Bennett and a poem by Mrs. Vern. Lockwood added to the entertainment. Frances Nicholls and daughter Anne rendered a beautiful piano duet.

A number of colored slides depicting the work of the "Saddlebag" preachers were shown. Mrs. Smith acted as commentator and Mae Phillips assisted by Isabel McMaster operated the projector.

The ladies of Group 4 served lunch.

Attractive, Varied Concert Given By Famous Quartet

Before a large and appreciative audience, the Revelers, famous male quartet, gave on Friday night an attractive and varied concert. It might be argued by some that their programme was rather too much on the light side, but in the opinion of the reviewer it is a good thing once in a while for the Concert Association to sponsor a programme that does not make too heavy demands on the audience. All the same, the fine rendering of Healy Willan's arrangement of the historic Agincourt song was a tantalizing sample of what they could have given us in more serious vein.

Their diction was impeccable, and except for one moment when they dropped their pitch about a quarter-tone their intonation was excellent. The individual voices were pleasingly differentiated, though the first tenor sometimes developed a wobble which he will have to take in hand. The second tenor had in my opinion the most attractive voice, which showed to great advantage in passages where he had the melody. The blend was a little disappointing at times, the outside voices being rather too heavy. It must however be mentioned that both the second tenor and baritone were obviously far from fit and working under difficulties. Their unanimity and precision were remarkable, but to me the most pleasing feature of their singing was the verve and joie-de-vivre that they put into it — surely an object-lesson to many of our local singers. In the Rachmaninoff song "In the Silent Night" indeed their cheerfulness was rather out of place: it is as difficult for the optimistic American to interpret the neurotic Slav gloom as for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle!

There is very little first-class music written expressly for male quartet, and consequently the bulk of the programme was made up of arrangements. Now, there is nothing inherently immoral or unsporting about arrangements in themselves. They do, however, invite comparisons with the originals. The arrangements of some of the better-known Schubert lieder were done with skill and tact, and though one missed the personal touch of a soloist there was the compensation of rich and mellow harmonies. The arrangement of the Rachmaninoff prelude in G minor, however, had little to recommend it. The words which had been pressed into service were a model of fatuity.

The pianist, Mr. Sargent, played a short group of piano solos after the intermission. He played a few of the Chopin preludes with efficiency but his interpretations lacked that delicate aroma of poetic charm in the quieter numbers. A composition of his own, the Sea, revealed a talent for effective keyboard writing in the late Romantic style without a marked personality. An encore, also of his own composition, somewhat in the Gershwin manner, started off in C major, ambled pleasantly through a few keys and tailed off in D major, leaving an indeterminate impression. The programme continued with a number of songs and spirituals in light vein, concluding with a pot-pourri of songs from "South Pacific," all sung with spirit and a lively sense of pantomime. — C.G.

May Explode A-Bomb Underground In North

SEATTLE, May 5 (AP).—Senator Warren Magnusson (Dem.-Wash.) said Friday he understands the government shortly will explode an atomic bomb from a depth of 300 feet underground in the Aleutian Islands.

"What they want to find out is what would happen if a saboteur should cause a bomb to be detonated in a subway or in the subbasement of some building in one of our large American cities," he said.

Father Of Seven Goes To School; Son Works

TORONTO, May 5 — (CP) — Fred Bailey is probably unique among Canadian students. Father of seven children, he goes to school each day while his eldest son leaves for work and five other children leave for classes. The 39-year-old student is attending the Ontario College of Education and will be graduated shortly as a teacher.

North of Kapyong, 32 miles northeast of Seoul, B-26 light bombers attacked a concentration of Reds. North of Chunchon, 13 miles farther northeast, a Red column was spotted in a withdrawal.

Seventy-five miles northeast of Seoul, where the Allied line curves across the 38th parallel into North Korea, UN elements attacked a Red battalion east of Inje.

Ground action Friday was so limited that the eighth army claim of casualties inflicted totalled only 755.

The Comunist task of getting supplies and reinforcements for resumption of the offensive was made dificult by Allied air blows.

Ritz Honeymoon For New Queen

CAIRO, Egypt, May 5 (CP)—King Farouk has planned an Arabian-nights honeymoon for Narriman Sadek, sloe-eyed 17-year-old beauty who is to become his queen tomorrow.

After the Moslem ceremony at Koubbeh Palace the royal couple will travel to Inchass, magnificent country mansion between Cairo and Ismailia on the Suez Canal.

Later the portly monarch will take his bride—whom he met by chance two years ago in a Cairo jewelry shop—to Mersa Matruh, "Blue Lagoon" of the western desert. There, according to legend Cleopatra used to go swimming.

And in the summer, when the hot dry winds blow across Egypt they will escape together to the royal yacht Mahroussa. They plan to drop anchor off the Italian Isle of Capri.

The commoner's daughter chosen as queen will be married to the king by proxy. An ancient Moslem custom decrees she will wait in another room while the simple ceremony is conducted between Farouk and her "stand-in," Mohammed Aly Sadek, her uncle and Egyptian Minister to Holland.

that the men in it are available for service anywhere.

(There have been reports that reinforcements available for the special force, 25th Brigade, are sufficient only for six months of action. Discharges have numbered more than 1,000 men.)

The Army now has about 35,000 men, including two brigades. One is the special force 25th Brigade group now arriving in Korea. The other is the regular army's airborne brigade group for home defence, now officially entitled the mobile striking force. The 27th will give Canada three brigades or the equivalent of a division, about 18,000 men plus replacements.

This is far beyond anything the country has ever tried before in peacetime.

MORE ABOUT—

Gen. MacArthur

Other major points MacArthur raised:

1. Formosa, which he described as a "master bastion," must be held at all costs because its fall might bring about the "collapse" of the Philippines and Japan and "invite a third world war."

2. He has "complete" confidence in the professional ability and integrity of Bradley and the joint chiefs—who must contribute to administration rebuttal of MacArthur's views.

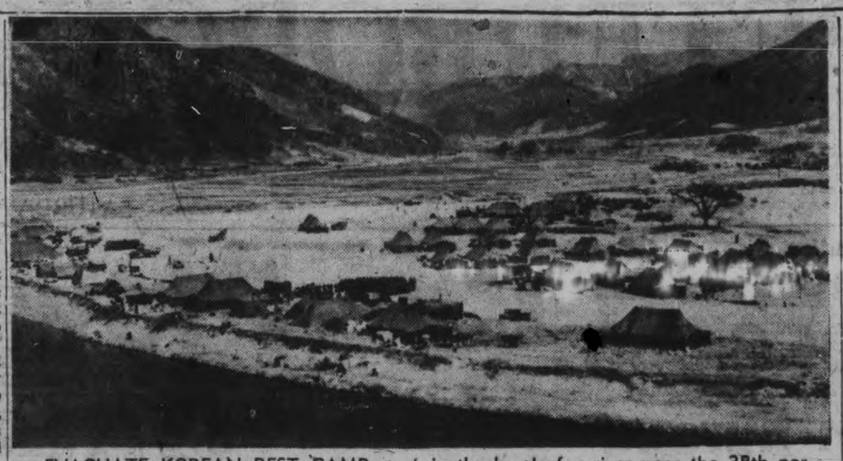
3. He believes the US Air Force is big enough to carry out strikes against Red China's bases and still have reserves to protect Europe.

Not Inevitable

4. War with Russia is "not inevitable," but he is convinced Russia, Red China and North Korea conspired to attack South Korea.

5. Withdrawal of American troops from Korea and the substitution of an air and naval attack on China would violate "moral" principles and offer South Koreans as sacrifices.

6. Chiang Kai-shek, the Chinese Nationalist leader, is trying to run a "Liberal" government on Formosa and he still stands as a symbol in Asia of resistance to Communism.



7. He doesn't recall receiving a Washington reminder to clear his utterances with the Pentagon before he wrote the letter to Representative Joseph Martin (Rep.-Mass.) which has been suggested as the immediate cause of his ouster.

8. His much-publicized trip to Formosa last August to see Chiang "not only was known but was approved by Washington."

Asserting that he alone had offered plans to end the fighting in Korea with a victory, MacArthur rested his case, to some extent, on support of his views by joint chiefs of staff.

Rebel Bevan To Renew Attack On UK Budget

LONDON, May 5 (Reuters). — Many Labor members of parliament are expected to renew a bitter attack on the Labor government's budget when the national health bill comes before the House of Commons for final reading Monday.

The rebels, led by former Labor Minister Aneurin Bevan, are protesting against budget proposals to charge fees for false teeth and spectacles under the national health service—hitherto free.

Their attack, launched during the second reading of the bill on Wednesday, is not expected to lead to a Labor party defeat, for the Conservative opposition supports the charges. Nor is Prime Minister Attlee likely to cancel the order.

Three Are Committed On Conspiring Count

COBOURG, May 5—(ENS)—Bernard Hawkins, George Sullivan and John Morgan were committed for trial yesteday on charges of conspiring to utter forged bank notes. Bail was set at $5,000. A charge against the three of uttering forged banknotes was withdrawn. Morgan pleaded guilty to being in possession of 36 counterfeit $10 bills and was remanded a week for sentence. The three were arrested on April 11 following complaints that counterfeit money had been passed on a number of service station operators around Grafton and Cobourg.

What Makes Up Brigade? Here's Answer To Problem

OTTAWA, May 5 (CP)—This is to guide those who don't know the difference between a platoon and a brigade and who may be a bit confused now that Canada is going to have the equivalent of a full division under arms.

Some thumbnail descriptions of smaller army segments:

Division—About 18,000 men divided into three infantry brigades plus supporting units of artillery, engineers, signals, medicals, ordnance, and other arms. It is commanded by a major-general.

Brigade—A group of three infantry battalions, each of about 900 men. It is commanded by a brigadier.

Brigade Group—When it appears that a brigade may have to fight on its own, units which normally would be under divisional command are added to the brigade so it can operate alone. This enlarged brigade is called a brigade group.

Canada Has Two

(Canada now has two brigade groups and is going to recruit a third. The fact they are all brigade groups means they are not to be banded together into a division. They are to be kept separate for separate jobs, the regular force airborne brigade group or mobile striking force for home defence, the (special force) 25th Brigade Group for Korea, the new 27th Brigade Group primarily for Europe.)

Battalion—The infantry unit which is the real fighting unit of any army. It has about 900 men and is commanded by a lieutenant-colonel. It is broken down into five companies, each split into platoons which are divided into sections.

Regiment—In the infantry, a regiment is the parent unit which recruits battalions to fight—thus the 1s battalion of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment. Armored and artillery units bear the name regiment into action.

Other Units

Other units: Armor, artillery, engineers, signals, each has its own designations. Thus a tank regiment is broken down into squadrons, squadrons into troops. Artillery regiments are broken down into batteries and batteries into troops.

Unless Canada has to go to war, you don't have to worry about corps or armies. But a corps includes two or more divisions. An army, in the field, includes two or more corps.

The army also uses the term corps to designate an arm of the service—such as infantry or armored corps.

And one last tip. Canada's new brigade group will be called the 27th. That doesn't mean there are 26 other brigades in the regular army. It is connected, however, with the number of brigades in the army as a whole, that is both regular and reserve.

The regular army is a full-time affair. The reserve army units muster two nights a week.

Kawartha Area Policemen Set Up Bantam Ball Group

Policemen of the Kawartha area are organizing a boys' bantam softball league that is expected to take in about 10 centres and possibly 17 teams.

The Kawartha Police Association in which Peterborough police officers, Provincial Police constables and municipal policemen in the district are members, will sponsor the league.

The league in which boys up to 14 years of age will play, is designed to combat juvenile delinquency in the towns and villages.

The policemen are looking for local business men and men interested in sports and youngsters to sponsor the team, providing them with sweaters, mitts, balls and bats. The police association will provide crests to be worn on the fronts of the sweaters.

Some of the policemen have already volunteered to coach teams and to act as umpires. It is hoped the schedule will get underway by the end of this month.

The league will be split into three sections. One will be centred around Campbellford, another will take in Peterborough and Lakefield and the third will be in the Lindsay district.

In the Campbellford area, Provincial Constable Donald Erskine has plans well on the way. There are two teams organizing in Warkworth, one and perhaps two in Campbellford and one each in Hastings, Havelock and Norwood.

The policemen in Peterborough are planning to organize four teams in the city and two are expected to get underway in Lakefield, where Chief Constable Garnet Samis, who is president of the police association, is working to organize the teams and looking for sponsors.

In Lindsay, plans are lagging behind so far, but it is hoped there will be four teams, one in Lindsay, one in Bobcaygeon, one in Fenelon Falls and one in another of the centres such as Little Britain.

Winners Play Off

The winners of the three divisions will play off in the late summer or early fall for a trophy.

If the league works out as the policemen hope, more than 250 boys will be taking part in the league. Next year, if all goes well, heads of the association hope that the league can be expanded.

As well as starting the ball league, members of the police association have been putting on free film shows provided by the Peterborough Film Council in towns. Last week they put on a show in Campbellford and Thursday night they were in Warkworth. The show is partly educational and partly entertainment. There are cartoons, a film of the Kawartha district, a safety film and a film to show youngsters how the policemen can help him and can be his friend.

The police members of the association are anxious to show children that they are concerned with being their friends and will lend a hand when they get the opportunity. The baseball league they are organizing is one way they have picked to give concrete proof of their good will.

Anyone who would like to help by sponsoring a team should contact Chief Samis in Lakefield, Patrol Sergeant Harold Mesley and Constable John Morrow of the city police, or Constable Erskine of the provincial police.

Canada Opposes Spreading Korea War

OTTAWA, May 5 — (CP) — Canada is strongly opposing extension of the Korean war but isn't accompanying this stand with threats to withdraw her forces from Korea, it was reported reliably Friday.

Her commitment to defeat aggression in Korea itself will continue, informed quarters said, regardless of what happens. But Ottawa isn't believed to be encouraging any idea that this commitment of Canadian forces will be extended to the Chinese mainland if the Korean war is projected there.

$30,000 Ransom May Be Hoax

MIAMI, Fla., May 5 (AP). — A man and the wife police reported he ransomed from kidnappers for $30,000 disappeared last night when process servers tried to find them with grand jury subpoenas.

State Attorney Glenn C. Mincer said he had not been able to locate Mrs. Jean Rosenfeld, 49, or her husband, Louis Rosenfeld. He said Rosenfeld is identified with gambling activities in Providence, R. I.

Mrs. Rosenfeld was found unconscious and bound after $30,000 was tossed across a fence to a woman waiting on the Miami Beach ocean front, detective chief H. G. Howard said.

She had been in the hands of abductors since 12:30 a.m. Monday, Howard said.

The State Attorney said "this may either be a genuine ransom case or a semi-hoax."

Mrs. Irene Campbell To Direct YW Camp

Mrs. Irene Campbell, YWCA staff, who recently directed successfully the play "Little Women" for the Peterborough and district drama festival, will be director of the YWCA girls' camp on Clear Lake this year.

Immediately after the YMCA boys' camp which operates from June 30 to August 12 the girls will move into Camp Kawartha for a 10-day period, followed by the Canadian Girls in Training 10-day camp.

Already numerous applications have been made. Last year 60 girls filled the camp quarters to capacity from Peterborough, Millbrook, Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Kingston, Toronto, Port Hope, Havelock and Cobourg.

Mrs. Campbell now directs the YWCA children's theatre and the Blue Triangle dramatic group. Last summer she conducted the YWCA's day camp early in July and will direct the same group this year during the first two weeks of July.

Wants To Know What Happened To Film Plans

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, May 5—(AP)—Seated one day at the typewriter, I was wondering what happened to various items on the Hollywood scene.

So today I am running a lost-and-found department. All of these items seem to me lost, and if anyone can find them, let me know.

Whatever happened to Warners' plans to film the life of Will Rogers, with Will, Jr., starrring? . . . Paramount's announcement that it would make the life of Billy Rose? . . . 20th-Fox's plans for a picture on Wendell Wilkie's "One World"? . . .

Whatever happened to Turhan Bey? . . . Butch Jenkins? . . . Anita Page? . . . Gracie Allen's brother? . . . the other Pickens and Boswell Sisters besides Jane and Connie? . . . Simone Simone? . . . Orson Welles?

Whatever happened to the proposals for a Hollywood film festival, along the lines of those held abroad? . . . for an all-industry conference here to discuss current problems?

Whatever happened to Joan Crawford's plans to do a picture about the plight of schoolteachers? . . . Hedy Lamarr's plans to retire? . . . Henry Koster's plans to film the life of wrestler Gorgeous George? . . . Selznick's plans to star Jennifer Jones in "Romeo and Juliet"?

Whatever happened to Little Audrey jokes? . . . the big parties that Hollywood used to have? (I guess nobody can afford them any more) . . . The 25-cent movie theatre?

While you're trying to figure out the answers, let's listen to a reader who has her own explanation of why movie business is sour:

"I believe that the reason people have stopped going is because of the sale of popcorn, ice cream and what-have-you . . .

"To have a bunch of rowdies sit behind you and crunch on popcorn while you are trying to see a show is more than people can stand."

For Parents Only

Children Losing Face

By NANCY CLEAVER

If you want to live happily with children you must not make them "lose face."

To a child this experience is particularly hard to bear as youngsters covet the esteem of friends and those who know them. Parents, and teachers too, sometimes ruthlessly ignore the child's need to be well thought of by those he loves.

One of the most common ways by which a small child "loses face" is when a mother discusses his faults or misdeed with another adult, often a visitor in the home, in his presence. Who has not heard words like these from a parent's lips?

"Johnny has picked up the most undesirable words from the older children whom he plays with on the streets!"

"Margaret has become so disobedient lately! I've told her not to touch her father's tools and this morning I found her with the saw. I don't know what has got into her!"

"Tommy's older sister was so clever at school. She was at the top of the class. But poor Tommy is near the bottom of the list. I hope he soon shows he has a few brains!"

Swearing, disobedience, and low grades at school are seldom helped by discussing them with a caller. Matters like these should never be talked about to an outsider in a child's hearing. A child needs to know that mother and daddy love him, and are trying to help him overcome his faults or difficulties. Mothers do well to speak of a child's good points rather than his failings if they feel they must speak of their youngsters when another mother calls.

"Losing face" at school is hard for a child from a happy home, but it is poison for an insecure boy or girl from an unhappy family environment. If trouble with the law, or scandal, or divorce have caused his parents to be in the public eye, it is the worst time for him to be scolded in public.

A teacher in a large school offered to teach a class which had acquired a particularly bad reputation because there were so many problem children in it. The former teacher had only made matters worse by "making an example" of each child who committed a misdemeanor. The new teacher was really interested in her scholars. They felt her understanding and desire to help them. She praised whenever she could.

As the weeks passed she got to know the children who had been labelled as "incorrigible." She found out about their home environment. Without exception, the difficult child came from a broken home or a home where the parents were constantly quarreling. The children felt uncertain of love at home and they were sensitive that their family life was different from other children's. This teacher attributed her success with this class in part to her belief that it never helps a child to "lose face."

Moreover, anyone who has anything to do with children should be particularly careful not to destroy a child's good opinion of himself. This does not mean that bad habits or wrong doings must be ignored. No—a child should be helped to face his wrong habit or misdeed. His parent or teacher should do this and show him how he can break this habit or not repeat his misdeed.

Punishment should not take place in front of others. Isolation, or a time spent by himself, which ends when he is willing to act in an acceptable way, is a good plan with many children. When an incident like this is over—it is over.

A child needs to "save face" by knowing that mother or father or teacher believe that he will outgrow his present difficulties. This in the long run pays big dividends in character and happiness.

WA May Send Girl To CGIT Summer Camp

MILLBROOK, May 5 (ENS)—Mrs. L. J. Stuart was hostess to the town group of St. Andrew's Women's Association on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. John McKnight was in the chair.

Mrs. David Lunn conducted the devotional period and Mrs. H. J. Armstrong gave a reading, "The Land of Beginning Again."

Plans were made for the sending of two carloads to the presbyterial meeting being held in Hastings, May 9. Mrs. H. J. Armstrong was chosen to bring back a report.

The president announced the rummage sale being held in the waiting room on May 12.

The possibility of sending a CGIT girl to camp was discussed, and it was decided to see if the Mission Circle would also be responsible for sending one girl. The special collection for sending cards and flowers to the sick was taken.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

St. Thomas' Guild Remembers Shut-ins

MILLBROOK, May 5 (ENS)—The Women's Guild of St. Thomas' Anglican Church met on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Charles Brockenridge with a good attendance. Mrs. Fred Lowery, the president, was in the chair, and conducted the opening devotions.

A satisfactory balance on hand was reported by the treasurer, Mrs. T. A. Campbell. Miss Anna Fair, of the committee for calling on sick and shut-in members, reported two calls. The secretary told of sending four cards to members of the congregation who were ill.

The next meeting is to be held in the rctory on May 30.

Mrs. William Hutchinson and Mrs. H. A. Turner served refreshments and a pleasant half-hour followed.

Eniwetok Tests Completed In Next Week

HONOLULU, May 5 —(AP)—The finale of the Eniwetok tests, designed to get information for planning civilian defence against the atomic bomb, is expected next week.

As indicated by announcements by the Atomic Energy Commission itself, one chief aim will be to find the kind of factory and civilian shelters needed to withstand an atomic blast.

The main purpose of previous experiments was to determine the bomb's value as a military weapon.

Now "Operation Greenhouse" will try to learn what materials and structural designs may afford protection against atomic warfare.

Full Report

The AEC has promised a full report of the new tests to the Civil Defence Administration. The commission also told the American Institute of Architects that the impending test will "provide data for the development of design criteria."

Analysis of AEC announcements on Operation Greenhouse and of reports on the 1948 test develop these fairly-sound conclusions:

The new blast will be that of a fixed-in-place bomb, as was the original A-bomb test at Alamogordo, N.M., July 16, 1945.

As in the 1948 test, the impending test is a controlled-field laboratory operation in which control and precision are desired. It seems evident there will be no plane drop of the bomb.

With the announced purpose of testing materials and structural design, it seems obvious that there will be no under-water blast.

A Canadian Seaway?

For at least twenty years it has been recognized that the development of electric power from the St. Lawrence river would provide Eastern Ontario with what is needed to make it a great industrial area. Such a development, accompanied by a seaway which would make it possible for ocean-going vessels to take on cargo from the lake ports, would greatly assist our overseas trade. If the U.S.A. cared to share in such a venture it would mean that the State of New York would share in the cheap power and the shipping facilities, and until recently it has been thought necessary that the plan should be undertaken by both nations. But of late that opinion has changed; it is possible for us to have the power and the seaway ourselves and many well-informed people think it highly desirable that we should go ahead without our neighbour.

* * *

It cannot be said that we have rushed the U.S.A. into this matter. For twenty years it has been discussed. In 1941 and again in 1947 boat-loads of Congressmen were hauled up and down the St. Lawrence on great junketing trips, so that they might see what could be done, and report to Congress upon it. There does not seem to be much point in waiting any longer for Congress to stir itself. If there is any advantage in the seaway and Hydro projects—and there certainly is—we may as well bear all the expenses and reap all the benefits. If our southern neighbours want to use our facilities, doubtless we will permit them to do so for a suitable fee. But we cannot wait for them any longer.

* * *

A week ago today Prime Minister St. Laurent discussed Ontario's Hydro needs with Premier Frost and Mr. Saunders, the Hydro chairman. Although nothing has been made public to that effect, it is widely believed that they discussed the seaway project as well. The possibility that Canada might undertake this development alone was first mentioned in an authoritative fashion by Mr. Lionel Chevrier, the Minister of Transport, and it is known that several influential Cabinet Ministers are in agreement with him; Mr. Frost and Mr. Saunders have been urging such a move for some time. The Ottawa meeting last Monday apparently pleased the three gentlemen who took part in it, and we may soon expect to hear something authoritative upon the proposal soon.

* * *

It has been suggested by a local engineer that such a project would give training of a necessary sort to some branches of our armed services. In order to get over the inevitable complaint of the labour unions that the work was being done by non-union workers it would be necessary to make some arrangement about the payment of the men engaged in the project. The actual labour, however, would not be the principal benefit from such a plan; that benefit would be the experience which it would give to engineers of all kinds in work on a very large scale, providing our armed services with seasoned experts.

* * *

It would be a feather in Canada's cap to undertake such a large project entirely on her own responsibility. Every opportunity has been given to the U.S.A. to join us, but we cannot wait forever. Premier Frost and Mr. Saunders are thinking in terms of Ontario's needs in 1956; those needs will not be met if we wait for Congress to ponder the matter, and make yet another pleasure jaunt on the River—for that is what is in prospect now. Let us show that we can move quickly, efficiently and independently.

Unwilling Shrine

The village of Ayot St. Lawrence is greatly vexed with Bernard Shaw, for leaving his home there to the National Trust. Ayot is a quiet hamlet in Hertfordshire, not a great distance from London; Shaw chose to live there because it was quiet and by modern standards inaccessible. Now it is crowded every Sunday by hordes of visitors, and bothered on week-days by moderate crowds of sight-seers. They have come to see Shaw's house.

We can understand the annoyance of the villagers. Undoubtedly they like a quiet life, and it must also be annoying to them that it is not their living charms, but the reputation of a dead man, which brings the crowds. Nobody likes to play second fiddle to a dead man. When Shaw was alive he did not trouble them; they saw him walking about the lanes, and knew him as a wealthy neighbour. But now it is being rubbed into them that so far as the world is concerned, the only interesting thing about their venerable hamlet is Shaw's house. For a village with a history reaching back to the Norman Conquest, that must be a bitter blow.

We fear that they will have to get used to it, just as the thriving market town of Stratford has grown used to the fuss about Shakespeare. The world is full of people who love shrines, and who will take great pains to visit the home of a great man. They are not always the same people as those who study and admire the great man's works. Stratford receives thousands of visitors who go to see Shakepeare's house, but who never think of going to the theatre to see one of Shakespeare's plays. We are sure that not many in the crowds at Ayot St. Lawrence are devoted Shavians. They are sight-seers, and Shaw's house is a sight.

We think the villagers are unjust in blaming Shaw for their trouble. He did wisely in leaving his house to the National Trust. If he had allowed it to fall into private hands the exploitation might have been far worse. Ayot must bear its troubles, and comfort itself with the reflection that it will be another thousand years before it nas such another inhabitant.

Danger Signs

A sordid little squabble has broken out between Syria and Israel. At present it is only on a small scale, and it is hoped that both sides will obey the command of acting United Nations Chief of Staff, Col. Bennet de Ridder of Belgium, to cease fire. The Middle East is a critical area, and there are signs that trouble is brewing there again. The Arabs are still smarting from the defeat imposed on them by the numerically inferior Israeli troops, and they might at any time seek to reverse by force of arms the present position. They would be very ill-advised to do any such thing. Israel can more than hold her own, and with her rapidly swelling population she would, if attacked, aim at annexing more territory at the end of hostilities in order to provide living space.

In Persia the nationalisation of the oil wells has been accompanied by widespread disorders, while the recent arrest of Army chiefs in Iraq is a symptom of political unrest in that country, too. It is of vital interest to the Western powers that the Middle East should enjoy political stability. Of late we have been tending to forget this cardinal fact, concentrating our attention more on the relative importance of the Far East and Europe. Russia has nothing to lose and everything to gain by stirring up trouble in this area, especially in Persia. She has done so in Tsarist times and again more recently since the war in her sponsorship of the Tudeh nationalist movement. We would do well to watch the Middle East.

What The Public Wants

A few days ago the news appeared in the press that A. H. Woods, the celebrated theatrical producer, had died. Al Woods was interesting because he did what many people have tried to do, and did it with great success: he gave the public what it wanted.

What does the public want? And what is the public? There seem to be so many publics, and they all want different things. The great fortune left by Bernard Shaw suggests that a very large public must want plays of ideas, couched in a brilliant prose style. The annual sell-out at the Memorial Theatre at Stratford-on-Avon is proof that a huge public wants romantic plays in great poetry. But Al Woods catered to the public which wants sensation spiced with sex, and he too was a great success, like Shakespeare and Shaw.

His biggest successes, through the years, tell their stories in their titles: Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl; Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model; Getting Gertie's Garter; Up In Mabel's Room; Ladies' Night In A Turkish Bath; The Demi-Virgin; Parlour, Bedroom and Bath; The Trial of Mary Dugan and The Night of January 16.

This is what a very large public wants—sex and sensation. There is nothing very wrong with such a taste; sex is the very core of life, and without sensation of some kind we should all die of boredom. Al Woods served up the dose hot and strong, without any refinements which might rob it of its full effect.

He lived to be eighty-one, he made a large fortune, he gave pleasure to millions, and he gave employment to thousands. He was a man of great charity, though not perhaps a man of great taste. And he gave the public what it wanted.

Diary Of Spring Musings

by SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: The first unmistakable Spring Sunday, and the roads were acrawl with motorists. I sought a secluded spot, by a stream, but found that two water snakes were sunning themselves there; they withdrew politely as I approached, but I was not too eager to stretch myself upon the grass, just in case they should come back for anything they had forgotten. I know very well that such snakes are not poisonous, but there is something about their faces which I do not like. . . . Love is everywhere in the Spring. Wherever I went today I happened upon couples holding hands, or gaping besottedly at one another. Driving down a quiet street this evening the headlights of my car picked out a couple wrapped in a long embrace in the front seat of a convertible which was parked by the roadside; when they parted, startled by the light, I was somewhat surprised to see that they were both girls. Sisters, powerfully moved by family affection, I trust.

✧ ✧ ✧

MONDAY: Had occasion to look at a display of wallpaper today. Fastening decorative paper to walls is an old trick, which came into favour when it became too expensive to use decorative cloth. The decorative cloth fastened tight to the wall followed the painted cloths which the people of Tudor days hung loose upon their walls, and these in their turn were substitutes for tapestries. Personally I think it might be interesting to return to tapestries, for in these days of labour-saving devices women have plenty of leisure time for tapestry work. Modern tapestries, of course, would have to have modern themes. A really loving wife might work for ten or twelve years to create a tapestry showing how her husband had worked up from the lowly post of office boy to be vice-president in charge of the mail-order department, along the lines of the Bayeux Tapestry. As a substitute for wallpaper this might take rather a long time to prepare, but it would have a personal touch and, after the husband had been fired or demoted, a pleasingly nostalgic quality.

✧ ✧ ✧

TUESDAY: Was talking to a man who spent a good deal of time in Madagascar during the war. He tells me that the Malagasy language spoken there contains no word for 'No' and none for 'virginity', which may be regarded as a natural consequence. When a native of Madagascar wishes to express dissent or denial, he grins, trembles and shakes his head, which is of course a very unsatisfactory way of resisting anything. He learned this curious fact while seeking eggs to be devoured by his regiment. "Atoordi?" he would shout at any likely-looking native, and after a time he discovered that their embarrassed contortions meant that they had no eggs to sell. Eggs, he told me, are of great importance to an army, which quickly wearies of canned food and army meat. I had not realized that soldiers were interested in eggs, but a little reflection showed me how imperceptive I had been. Without eggs, the range of possible foods is reduced by at least one-third.

✧ ✧ ✧

WEDNESDAY: Every morning the mail brings me communications from people whom I do not know, about things in which I am not interested. Every country and every special interest has its public relations staff, all eager for free publicity. The Irish want to tell me about the iniquities of the partition; the Indians want to hector me about Pakistan; the French, Dutch, Norwegians, Finns, Belgians and Argentinians send me reams of junk, usually in bad English, telling me what great fellows they are; the British send the best stuff of this kind, couched in a clever "perhaps - it - would - amuse - you-to-know" style, but it is propaganda all the same. The sugar-makers ply me with curious details which reflect great credit upon themselves; so do the people who make Irish linen; the banks send me pieces which pretend to tell me what the trend of business is; socialists send me rubbish demonstrating the wonders of socialism; Tories suggest, in urbane handouts, that any change is likely to be a great mistake. Unlike most recipients of this deluge of tendentious trash, I quite often read it, and laugh heartily to myself at the pains taken by the authors to make a good case for their employers, and at their naive assumption that I am going to waste good newsprint to give further publication to their fairy-tales. In the good old days anybody who wanted to make himself glorious hired a man with a trumpet; nowadays he hires a public relations counsel, but when I narrow my eyelids I will see the trumpet in his hands, and know that the initial source of the glorious sound is a lot of purchased hot air. I am not deceived, squirts, so keep your paper to draw pictures on.

✧ ✧ ✧

THURSDAY: Was talking to a man today who told me that he was learning to live with his ulcer, an expression which attracted me. I suggested that he might divorce his ulcer, but he said that his doctor assured him that if he coddled the affliction, it would eventually go away of its own accord. Reflected that there must be a great many people in the world who suffer from painful and irritating ailments which show no outward sign. When a man snarls at you, it may be his ulcer, his haemorrhoid, his deviated septum or his granulated metatarsal which speaks. Of course, this works two ways, and next time somebody vexes me, I shall blast him with harsh words, and then say, "Overlook it; I haven't quite come to terms with my ulcer".

✧ ✧ ✧

FRIDAY: A man I know who is very fond of dogs called my attention to a newspaper article today, which said that a dog grows to be like its owner. Nervous people have nervous dogs; savage people have savage dogs; stupid people have stupid dogs. Well, it may be so, though I have never seen any dog-owners among my acquaintance nosing their pets away from a garbage can, or chasing each other amorously over a newly seeded garden. But it is a fact that married people grow alike from living together, and no true dog-owner would admit that his dumb chum was less sensitive to atmosphere than his married partner. It may be that this theory about dogs throws new light on some of my friends: Professor A, the celebrated economist, has a dog which always forgets where it has buried its bones; Madame B, the fortune-teller, has a dog which cannot foresee what will happen when it goes to sleep with its tail under the rockers of Madame's chair; modest little Miss C owns a pooch of notorious wantonness and infidelity. Can it be that these beasts reveal the truth about their owners? Beware of the Dog!

✧ ✧ ✧

SATURDAY: Attended the afternoon and evening sessions of a small drama festival today, and in the intervals between plays found myself musing upon the war in Korea. The connection is plain, to me at least, for before the outbreak of the current trouble, there were forty professional theatrical companies in Korea—a large number for a country with a small population. Canada is short on theatrical companies, and also notably free from invaders of her soil. Can there be any connection between the two things? Does a lively concern with drama tend to bring about dramatic happenings in a country? It is just possible that this is the case. Freedom from a desire for excitement may be the quality which will, in the end, bring world peace. If that peace is to be the Ennui Which Passeth All Understanding, perhaps we are better off without it.

The Housing Problem Is A Headache In Britain, Too

A Tale Of Traffic Tie-Ups

by BON VIVANT

TORONTO—It has always been a source of wonder to me why prosperous appearing, stout, well barbered and immaculately tailored men, smoking large and expensive looking cigars, and lolling behind the wheels of Cadillacs, Packards and Lincolns, never seem to suffer traffic delays common to rather skinny, unkempt and rumpled characters, nervously sucking on a cigaret and crouching over the wheels of 1935 and '36 models in the lower price bracket.

I had an opportunity to study this phenomenon last week. Along with 16,000 known paid admissions to the opening ball game, and uncounted thousands of others, homeward bound, I got embroiled in the hassle of rush hour traffic vs. ball game traffic on on Fleet Street.

So far as I could observe lordly motors costing $5,000 or over sailed right along with traffic policemen bowing and touching caps in all directions. The lowly heaps of less than $3,000 value sat for long periods with radiators boiling, drivers cursing, brakes squeaking, fenders crumpling and everyone trying to sneak an inch which belonged to someone else.

I long ago learned that the only way to make progress in Toronto traffic is to take things as they come, and while waiting, contemplate your past and make good resolutions as to how to improve yourself in the future. There is no point getting in a fantod. There is a school of drivers which regards blowing the horn, loudly and often, as a safety valve for overwrought nerves. This never does any good, but not infrequently serves to scare the pants off the driver in the car just ahead.

I was much impressed with the attitude of one of Toronto's finest assigned to traffic duty in the melee referred to above. He was obviously and completely bored. With a languid wave of his hand he would indicate whether through or cross traffic was to proceed, announcing that he was about to come to life, with a feeble tweet on his whistle.

This noble officer revealed to anyone who took the trouble to observe, that this was one hell of a mess to try to unscramble; his feet hurt; he was thinking of home, and probably a treat of kippers; he didn't care whether traffic ever got untangled, and he knew perfectly well, from experience, only time would solve the whole thing anyway. I admired this disillusioned copper. He was much easier to take than the enthusiastic young rookie who vaunts his authority by frantically waving his arms and yelling at drivers, in cars jammed together as far as eye can see, to hurry up.

✧ ✧ ✧

TORONTO drivers ask and give no quarter in the race to gain a spot ahead of their fellow man. That they have to wait for their fellow man at the next traffic light is a matter of small moment. They gained a space and that is all to the good. These feats of 'derring do' are amply attested by the banged up fenders, sprouting like weeds, all over the streets of the city.

The powers that be at the City Hall are coping with the matter of Toronto's traffic. So far they haven't done anything, or come up with any suggestions which might relieve the situation. This I attribute to the firm opposition the voters here show to the two year term. No controller or councillor is going to risk election by chasing delivery trucks off the streets, in the downtown section, except after six in the evening and before six in the morning. Nor is he going to be so careless of the feelings of his supporters as to synchronize traffic lights, and prohibit left turns on through thoroughfares.

Not that any of this is of great personal interest. I try to vary my route whenever I brave the downtown traffic, so if I have to sit along the road for a half hour or so in making the journey I'll have something different to look at. However, there are only a few such unhurried souls left. Why everyone is in such a rush I cannot make out. A great many of them aren't going anywhere, or on business so important, that a few minutes one way or the other is pertinent. I have observed that the larger the centre of population, the greater the fictitious hustle and bustle.

During some time spent in New York I did some research into the pace that kills. I stalked my subject in a subway station in Brooklyn, having observed him tear down the steps as though his very life depended upon catching the train at that moment pulling into the station. Keeping him under my eagle eye I followed him from the train at the 6th Avenue and 49th Street station. I was convinced, from the space he set getting back to street level, he was either on the lam, was late for a date with the sweetest girl, or had the only ticket obtainable for "Life With Father".

✧ ✧ ✧

IT wasn't any of these things, as I finally learned. The mad rush was for the sole purpose of strolling aimlessly along Broadway, looking at the theatre play bills, gazing into shop windows and every now and then regaling himself with fruit juices and hot dogs. Traffic, and the rush to arrive, is beyond me. I'm leaving next week for an uninhabited island where I shall take up my life work, bird watching.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And, behold, men brought in a bed a man which was taken with a palsy: and they sought means to bring him in and to lay him before him. And when they could not find by what way they might bring him in because of the multitude, they went upon the housetop, and let him down through the tiling with his couch into the midst before Jesus. And when he saw their faith, he said unto him, Man, thy sins are forgiven thee. And the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this which speaketh blasphemies? Who can forgive sins, but God alone?

But when Jesus perceived their thoughts, he answering said unto them. What reason ye in your hearts? Whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive sins, (he said unto the sick of the palsy,) I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go into thine house.

And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God. (Luke 5: 18-25.)

Unconsidered Trifles

The Freshman had to take care of his little brother and keep him quiet outdoors while Mother tried to get over her headache. Suddenly Mother was disturbed by loud roars from Little Brother.

"Willie," Mother called from the bedroom, "what's your little brother crying for? Didn't I tell you to give him anything he wanted?"

"Yes," agreed the Freshman. "But now that I've dug him the hole he wanted, he wants me to bring it into the house."

A rich lady, who was very mean was engaging a chauffeur.

"Now," she said to the young man who was applying for the position, "let me tell you just what I want. The man I engage must be strong, straight in every way, sharp, tough as steel, and—"

"Ah, Missus," broke in the man, "it's a screw-driver you want, not a motor driver!"

Inflation

(Gilbert E. Jackson, Toronto)

Canada's official cost-of-living index says that between 1914 and the present our dollar lost more than half of its retail purchasing power. If, when I get a larger income in dollars for myself, I produce at the same time correspondingly more than I produced before, this will not raise my neighbour's cost of living. But as often as I get a larger income without at the same time producing correspondingly more than I produced before, my success in getting more income for myself must raise my neighbour's cost of living.

And in parallel with this, whenever my neighbour gets a larger income in dollars for himself, and at the same time enlarges his own output correspondingly, he will not raise my cost of living. But as often as he gets a larger income without at the same time producing correspondingly more than he produced before, his own success in getting more income for himself must raise my cost of living.

When we can understand this very simple truth, and when we can use not only collectively, but individually too, the self-control which is our greatest need in order to resist inflation, we then may manage to stave off the threatened inflation of tomorrow. But otherwise, of course, we shall fail to do so.

When the wild gooseberry leaf is the size of a mouse's ear, fish are runnin'. —Poachers' proverb

Yes, fish are runnin'. And although trout were no more than crawling on the opening day and suckers had just started, warming waters have set the time for muskies to spawn. Artificial "milking" of the monsters was in full swing early this week. A visit to the pound nets is always an education and a bolster to the belief that the Kawarthas are one of the greatest, and last, 'lunge localities.

A department biologist is a good companion to have on a trip of this nature. He may look at the whole operation with a cold scientific eye and be ready with the soundest information but he is not insensible to surge of spring throughout the land.

I went out with one of these specialists one morning this week. We drove to the edge of the marsh to wait for the rest of the crew to arrive. The sun was warm and the air filled with flying insects. Glassy water mirrored the painted rocks and in a deep bay ripples spread from a pound net—muskies swirling madly in their trap. Red-winged blackbirds and downy woodpeckers fought noisily in the tag alders for nesting space and eight skeins of honkers cried overhead as they wavered north over the lake country. We were reluctant to leave our seats on a pile of resinous pine logs when the muskie dairymen arrived. But there was much work to do.

Muskie Milking Time

By the time oilskins were pulled on and all the paraphenalia of enamelled pans and dippers assembled in the old punts the sun was high and hot. We approached the trap quietly. The milking crew anchored alongside the net and commenced to haul one side into their boat.

There was a mad threshing of water as the net became shallower. About two dozen frenzied fish bunted wildly at the stout encircling twine — there was a noticeable lack of game and coarse fish other than 'lunge. Small "jacks" (males) darted about quicker than the eye could follow while the 20-pounders rolled about helplessly. A few large pickerel and one carp were soon tossed out by a hand net, the former to freedom and the latter into the punt to be destroyed. It was no great trick to lift out the prime females, though the slime on their slim bodies made them hard to hold.

A gentle stroking pressure released the spawn into basins and the helper had a jack ready to be put through the same operation. A few drops of milt on a panful of roe is sufficient to fertilize several hundred eggs. When the netful had been attended to—and this took several hours—the eggs were transferred from basins to damp canvas trays which fitted into layers in a box case. A few hours later the eggs were popped into incubation jars in the Deer Lake Hatchery north-east of Havelock.

Some Facts Are Hatched

By today hatchery men estimate that 3,500,000 eggs have been gathered at four netting sites on the Kawarthas and that from 60 to 70 per cent of these will hatch. When you consider that little more than five per cent of muskie eggs spawn under natural conditions, it can be seen what a necessary service artificial propagation is.

Everyone will immediately say that fluctuating water levels in the Kawarthas is the prime killer. That helps, certainly. But it has been found that eggs deposited on silt lake bottoms are subject to fungus growth. When roe is saved to be raised under laboratory conditions there is no danger of this and free-swimming fingerlings are not affected in affected waters.

Scientists have also found out that netting water temperatures must be compatable to hatchery waters. This is the reason that netting spots are moved to various spots in the Kawarthas each season. Muskie eggs cannot be left in a cold water hatching jar for any length of time; the process starts immediately.

It is time for every tourist booster to get genned up on two "onlys" in our district. We have the only muskie hatchery in Canada at Deer Lake. And following the whole thing to its ultimate conclusion—the catching of the monsters—Peterborough is the only city in Canada where you can join the Order of the Kawartha Muskie if your fish is 15 pounds or more. This may sound corny to some people but chambers of commerce in Chapleau, Orillia and Mission City, B.C., want to start a similar stunt as soon as possible.

The muskie is our tourist-dollar fish and thousands of dollars are spent each season by Americans who come back year after year to satisfy the desire to catch at least ONE lunker in a lifetime. We have what the tourist wants in the Kawarthas, thousands of them.

• • • •

Lake trout fishing dates need a bit of attention. Here they are: in the Kawarthas the season opens on May 12, same day as pickerel. In Haliburton county it opened last Saturday, April 28, same day as speckles.

• • • •

BACKLASH: It's well nigh impossible to list the fish stories that come in each week to this department, so, if your name doesn't appear—no hard feelings. Must mention the beautiful catch of lake speckles by Burns-Noakes-Boiler crowd, 14 beauties from Bancroft way, that averaged 2½ pounds each . . . And the nice brown trout taken in Cavan Pond by Gord Ellis, 5 pounds 9 . . . And a fine mess of brookies by the Marsden brothers from the Madoc country . . . . Giant silver suckers weighing 15 pounds or more are being taken on the Moira River near Bonarlaw . . . . 100 pounds of devilfish—carp—are being speared nightly, under department supervision, by Jack Doherty, owner of Cedar Cove Camp near Harwood . . . . B. Q. Dench of Douro township tells me of finding a dead fox in his barn, its face plastered with pork quills. This not-so-cunning young fox apparently died of staravation . . . . Trout experts say this week-end is going to be the real McCoy. They think trout will rise to wet flies. Could be.

MUSKIE MILKING TIME at four netting sites in the Kawarthas, is nearly finished. Warm weather-water temperatures rushed a gloomy looking season to a successful close and 3,500,000 eggs have been stripped and taken to Deer Lake Hatchery for incubation. A threshing netful of fish, LEFT, is being hauled into a punt for selection and stripping. Hatchery manager Henry Jackson, at RIGHT in RIGHT photo, explains some of the fine points of the work to Doug Dunford with a 20-pound working model. —Examiner Staff Photos

Progress of Peterborough: LXIX

1870's Opened To Peterborough New Era In Sports

By HOWARD PAMMETT, M.A.

In sports, Peterborough forged ahead rapidly in the seventies:

Water Sports

The people of the Kawarthas from early times were proficient in handling all kinds of boats, and the lumbering industry fostered this skill. Regattas from 1850 on featured canoe, dinghy, and sailboat races, as well as swimming contests. The Peterborough Boat Club was organized about 1872, and young men practised faithfully along lakes and rivers on early summer mornings. There were frequent challenge races between young store, bank and law clerks, in four-oared shells, the favorite course being the mile below the Locks dam to Crawford's pine grove.

The Review in July, 1877, mentioned one such contest: "Water nymphs appeared in goodly numbers and gay attire; paddled by their swains to the scene. The water was literally covered with small craft of all descriptions . . . . The banks lined with those who had walked out from town . . . . The elite of the town turned out in carriages and phaetons . . . ." In this race the lawyers (N. D. Beck, E. B. Edwards, G. M. Rogers, and E. H. D. Hall, with M. Dennistoun as cox and George Rogers as trainer) defeated the bankers (R. B. Mowatt, A. D. Braithwaite, J. Jardine, and W. P. Shaw, with P. Smith as cox and A. Belcher as trainer) in the time of 7:30 minutes. "After the race the winners were presented by Miss Hatton with the champion flag, beautiful blue satin with the monogram PBC worked on it in white silk, and having a fringe of crimson and white."

In 1879 George Rogers and A. J. Belcher brought from England a new four-oar racing shell; with it a PBC team won second place at the Dominion Regatta at Lachine, PQ, on August 11, and a week later won first place at Barrie Regatta, being given a civic welcome on their return. The Boat Club, incidentally, joined the steamboatmen and other citizens in pressing through Council this year a by-law stopping sawmills from putting their sawdust and other mill refuse into the Otonabee within the town limits. Ed. Hanlon, world champion oarsman, visited Peterborough February 26, 1880, as guest of the Club, and after a banquet spoke in the crowded Opera House. In the following August, a PBC crew won second place at Toronto Regatta and first place at Lachine Regatta, in the four-oared shell race.

Canoes made at Peterborough, Lakefield and Gore's Landing were also winning nation-wide recognition for their speed and durability, as will be noted later.

Ice Sports

From the first years of settlement, a favorite skating place was Spaulding's Bay at the mouth of the creek, whence Rink Street gets its name. The bay below Hunter Street on the west side was also used, and the Goose Pond above the Dickson dam. The raceways on both banks were used (when not covered with snow) for skating races and in the 1870s, some horse and sulky races, on the ice. When Chemong and Little Lakes were frozen over, iceboating was popular among the more daring youths. A primitive type of hockey, called shinny, was played by the boys on frozen ponds and creeks, using curved sticks (or their fathers' canes) to knock a ball around the ice, but organized team-hockey did not develop until the next decade.

In 1871 John Ludgate built the first covered rink on the site of Riverside Park. By 1875 there was also an indoor skating rink on the north side of Hunter between George and Aylmer Sts., where season tickets were: ladies $1, gentlemen $2, families $5. When the Ludgate rink burned down, a joint-stock company was formed by Robert Hamilton, Judge Dennistoun, Dr. Boucher and a few others, which built a larger indoor skating and curling rink on the site of the Quaker Oats plant beside Dickson raceway; this rink was opened by a grand carnival on Christmas Day, 1878. The rinks were not heated as the ice was natural ice, but they permitted skating and curling in fair or foul weather.

Field Sports—English football and rugger were played frequently, although there are no records of organized clubs and team matches in Peterborough. The Cricket Club flourished sufficiently to have a professional player-coach, and a full season schedule of intramural matches: West vs. East Peterborough, military vs. Civilians, English vs. Scots, etc. In July 1873 Peterborough defeated Whitby and was beaten by Port Hope. In July 1876 there were matches with Port Hope and Campbellford. Others in the Kawartha Loop were Lakefield, Lindsay, Omemee, Hastings and Cobourg. In addition there were occasional matches with teams from Toronto, Hamilton, Kingston and Ottawa.

On May 26, 1879, the Cricket Club held an Athletic Sports Day on the Agricultural Grounds under a committee consisting of T. A. Hay, J. W. Hammond, G. C. Rogers, T. Rutherford and R. B. Rogers To the tunes of the Fire Brigade Band, a full program was enjoyed: hop, step and jump, running long jump, running high jump, putting the weight, throwing a cricket ball, hurdle race, wheelbarrow race, three-legged race, 100 yds. race, quarter-mile race, one-mile race, two-mile walking race, one-mile bicycle race, tug of war, and tilting at the ring.

Lacrosse and Baseball

Lacrosse was introduced into Peterborough by Robert Lee from Cavan (where Millbrook had had a team since 1866), and Lee became the first captain when the Peterborough Lacrosse Club was organized in 1872 at a meeting in Johnston's Tailor Shop on Water St. Two local teams, the Red Stockings and the Blue Rosettes, competed between themselves and against Millbrook and other district teams. The Kawarthas took naturally to lacrosse, an old Indian game which became Canada's national sport. Field lacrosse was played on a large open field with 12-man teams which battled at risk of bruises and broken bones to hurl the ball into the small nets at either end of the field. Keen youths practiced 5 to 6.30 a.m. before going to work, and by 1880 the Red Stockings where one of the best teams in Central Ontario.

Baseball came into Canada from the United States in the 1860s, and a Peterborough team was started in the early 70s. At the Dominion Day celebration 1876, at Wallace's Grove, Peterborough Pinegrove team defeated the Lindsay Maple Leaf team 37-17, even with a Lindsay umpire. The ball used was of hard rubber, and no mitts or masks were worn; the catcher stood well back from the plate and caught the ball on the bounce. There was also a Croquet Club, but most croquet and tennis was played on private lawns around the larger homes, such as Merino.

The Peterborough Turf Club, renamed the Driving Club, held regular trotting races, using two-wheeled sulkies with high steel-tired wheels, pulled by fast-stepping trotters.

First Bicycles

The first bicycles also came to Peterborough about 1872, the rider perched precariously above the five-foot front wheel to which the pedals were attached, with a small wheel behind for balance. (One of these is preserved in the Peterborough Library.) They were awkward heavy machines with iron tires, but a thrilling innovation as that time.

As bicycles, sulkies and buggies dashed along the improved gravelled streets and roads, the first grumblings were heard from long-suffering John Q. Pedestrian who risked his life daily on public thoroughfares, where "infernal machines" raced by at 10 or 15 miles an hour. Preachers began to deplore the reckless speed mania of modern youth.

Even "the elite" in their carriages were not safe any more. Anne Langton, in her autobiography "The Story of Our Family" (privately printed in Manchester, England, 1881) narrated an 1878 incident in Peterborough: "I was with Mrs. Wallis, and in crossing a railway line a backing train came so close upon us as literally almost to graze us. At this point a large building conceals the line until you are close upon it, and the driver only saw the train when it was too late to draw back, and dashed across not one second too soon." To one who had known Peterborough in the 1830s this was the wrong kind of progress.

Train Numbers Tell Story

By JEAN E. STENTON

Have you ever wondered as you passed another train standing patiently on a track in the middle of nowhere, why you were the one to go sailing through?

It was not mere chance. The reason is that you were a PRIORITY. If you are travelling on an east or southbound train and you meet a train of the same class going west or north, you will not be the one to wait and twiddle your thumbs.

To be official about it, according to CPR regulations, when two trains of the same class meet, east and southbound trains are superior by direction to west and northbound trains. Therefore the inferior train must enter the passing track to clear the superior train.

There are four classes of trains, so the next time you take a trip to Ottawa or Winnipeg watch and see how the rules work out. Passenger trains are first class trains; scheduled freights qualify as second class trains; extra passenger trains are posted as third class trains and extra freight are fourth class.

Number System

You may have noticed sometime when you were at the Peterborough CPR station or the Ticket office, that when you bought a ticket for the noon train from Toronto which you perhaps designated as the 11.40, the man behind the counter automatically referred to it as No. 36.

He wasn't trying to be mysterious. It is just part of the railway setup. Trains have definite identities and one of the first things a railwayman learns is his numbers.

So if a train is east or southbound (the superior direction) it will bear an even number and those going west or north will have the odd numbers. Thus the CPR train from Toronto which passes through Peterborough at noon is No. 36, the 5:10 p.m. train from Montreal is No. 35. As a further simplification, as far as possible, the trains in the opposite direction on the same run are given consecutive numbers.

An unusually observant person may have noted sometime that while some engines carry flags others don't. These flags are not used for decorative reasons. To railway folk, they tell a story.

When you see an engine carrying a white flag, it identifies that train as an extra train. A green flag is carried on an engine of a train running in sections. This signifies another secton of the train is following.

Another important part of the railway book of rules is the whistle recognition signal. This is used for trains running in sections. When the train carrying the green flag meets another, it blows one long and two short. The train meeting answers two short and one long. Only green flags are acknowledged.

When a train is made up, the CPR men in charge follow certain rules. The number of cars on the train is determined entirely by the amount of business being handled and the class of engine available to haul it.

In other words, where only five or six cars are necessary to handle the traffic in a certain territory, an engine of a class capable of handling that size train is used in order not to waste power.

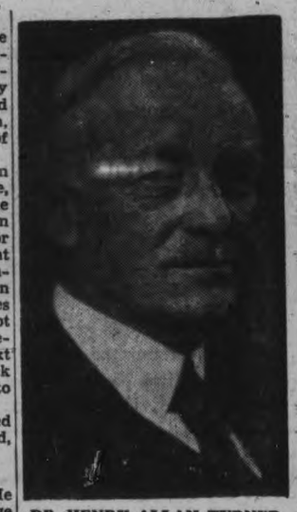
Other Considerations

In many cases with extra traffic, trains are so heavy two sections must be run, or, if the train is not too long, an assisting engine is applied.

In some sections of the country due to physical characteristics of the track, long trains are not desirable, taking into consideration the comfort of the passengers, and in that case an extra section of a regular train is operated.

The class of service governs the number and type of cars a train will carry. This is handled jointly by the Passenger Traffic and Operation department of the CPR, and the basis generally is consideration for the comfort of the passengers.

So the next time you hop a train with nothing to do but sit comfortably till you reach your destination, you can think of the many things that are necessary behind the scenes to ensure pleasant travelling.



TO MAKE A VERY RELISHABLE DISH FROM COLD BEEF OR MUTTON, WITH THE ADDITION OF POACHED EGGS

Take the inside of a sirloin of beef or of a leg of mutton. (These parts are recommended, but any other parts may be used.) Cut into slices of equal thickness, and broil them carefully over a clear smart fire, until slightly brown. Lay them on a dish before the fire to keep hot; then poach some eggs, and lay around the meat, or mashed potatoes, or both. For sauce, add a few drops of eschalot wine or vinegar, or any favorite gravy or sauce. This is a savory zest for luncheon or supper; and it is proper to observe that the under-done parts of meat are best for the purpose.

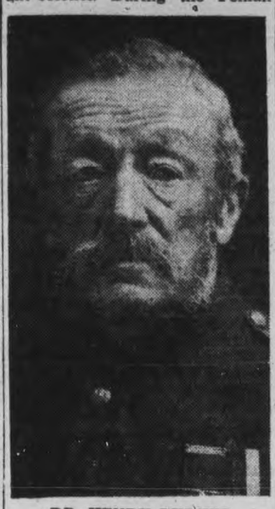
Charles the Second gave the name to the piece of beef called the "Sirloin." Having dined from a loin, and being well pleased with the joint he asked its name, and being told that it was a loin of beef, said jocosely that it should be knighted for its merits; then extending his sword over it, he exclaimed, "Henceforth be Sir Loin."

Father and Son Practised Medicine Almost Century

By BOB HATTON

DR. HENRY ALLAN TURNER

Dr. Henry Allan Turner, the man to whom the people of Millbrook and the district surrounding looked for help when they were sick for 40 years, as they had looked to his father before him, was a doctor only by a whim of fate.



Relaxing in an easy chair in his stately home in the village, the doctor recalled with a smile that he had intended to be an engineer. When it was time for him to go to university, he went with his father, Dr. Henry Turner, to Toronto, to visit the dean of the college of Applied Sciences and enroll. But the dean was not in that day. Father and son returned to Millbrook and the next week the young man went back to Toronto and this time into medicine.

Asked if he had ever regretted his change of heart, he replied, "Not a bit."

Graduated 62 Years Ago

He had made a good choice. He graduated from Trinity college 62 years ago, a silver medallist.

His father had been practising in the village since 1853. The first Dr. Turner graduated from Dublin University, then the University of Toronto and later the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Northwest Territories. He served as a medical man with the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons and became a lieutenant-colonel. During the Fenian Raids he instructed volunteers in the district. He retired in 1900 and moved to Victoria, B.C., where he died at the age of 94.

DR. HENRY TURNER

Like his father, the younger Dr. Turner is a retired surgeon lieutenant-colonel in the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons. He has also been a Mason for more than 50 years. He was presented with a medal in recognition of his long membership in the Masonic craft and another one in recognition of his service in the army as his father did.

After he had established his practice in Millbrook, Dr. Turner converted the top floor in one of a block of buildings he owned on the main street into a hospital, which quickly became known as Dr. Turner's Hospital. He outfitted the hospital where Miss Maude Finnimore was made nurse in charge and there attended the sick who came to him. About 450 babies were born in the hospital which continued to operate 23 years until 1936. Dr. Turner is still coroner for Millbrook and a surgeon for the CNR.

Like other doctors throughout the country, before 1910, Dr. Turner made his rounds and went out on calls at any time of the day or night with a horse and buggy.

As well as following a busy medical career, he entered into business, and satisfied some of his engineering talent by operating a telephone system which, bit by bit, was extended throughout the district until it reached from the Hope Township to Mount Pleasant. He later sold the system.

Last winter, the doctor donated $1,000 to the Millbrook Arena on the condition that the arena was not to be used on Sundays. Some years ago he gave to the village the building which houses the public library.

An enthusiastic member of St. Thomas Anglican Church, where his father was a lay reader, Dr. Turner has been a lay delegate to the Synod for a number of years and head of the advisory council.

All his years as a medical man did not dull his interest in engineering. As soon as he retired, he converted part of his former driving shed at the rear of the home into a completely equipped wood-working shop.

He has a lathe, a band saw, a drill press, all with their own electric motors, as well as a multitude of tools and vises. He takes a quiet pride in every tool he has. But one of his best examples of his handiwork was turned out almost entirely with a pocket knife. He built an old type logging sleigh, complete in every detail, including whiffle tree brackets, and scaled to model.

Although he has not done so much this year, he has turned out some lawn chairs. He also constructed some beautifully designed bird houses and other items.

Dr. Turner has had a cottage on an island in Stony lake for many years. He was one of the few who owned a steamboat on Rice Lake. His was the Mermaid.

His red brick home with a large light cream verandah is set on six acres of land with virgin trees on the lawn.

Dr. Turner's first wife was Alice Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Scott. Mr. Scott was a well-known architect for the Dominion government. Mrs. Turner died in 1938. In 1944, Dr. Turner married Miss Blanche Clarry of New York, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Simpson Clarry.

A daughter, Miss Beatrice M. Turner, lives in Toronto as does his other daughter, Frances, Mrs. Mark Napier. A sister, Miss Alice Turner, and a brother, William A. Turner, both live in Victoria, B.C.

Through his mother, who was Charlotte Hodgins before her marriage, Dr. Turner is related to a distinguished ancestry which includes Queen Victoria, Empress Josephine, Emperor Napoleon 1, historian Lord Macaulay, the 11th Duke of Hamilton and many other noteworthy persons. A large proportion of his ancestors were military men, but many of them were authors and historians and professional men.

Special Handling of Nursery Shrubs

By HENRY PREE

If you can't plant shrubs at once, "heel" them in as shown above.

The success of the garden in spring teaches the lesson of preparedness. The gardener must plan and [illegible] flowers of spring are not to [illegible] unless the foundation and [illegible] were well made last autumn.

By observing a few simple rules in the handling of trees and shrubs as they are received from the nursery, many losses from newly planted nursery stocks may be avoided. Nursery stocks are packed so as to reach the customer in good condition, and as soon as the box or bundle is delivered it should be opened.

If the stock can be planted at once so much the better, but if it cannot, it can be held in good condition by "heeling in," that is, by digging a shallow trench in some sheltered spot, setting the plants at an angle, and covering the roots with soil.

A common method is to throw the earth on the far side when digging the trench. The stock is placed slantwise in the trench, with the tops against the shoulder of fresh dirt.

Then the roots are covered by digging a second trench parallel to the first, this time throwing the soil ahead onto the roots. The [illegible] [illegible] receive them.

This is one of the important planting times of the garden year. New beds and borders can be made over and many perennials planted as soon as the ground can be worked. Hardy borders that have been established for some time must be fed if the plants are to continue thriving.

Bonemeal, manure, or commercial fertilizers may be used. A soil rich in humus needs less fertilizer to maintain fertility. Work the plant food into the soil by cultivating the top two or three inches.

Plant the new rose bushes as soon as the soil is free from frost; hill up to protect the tops from drying winds while roots get established. Prune the established hybrid tea roses, removing dead wood and cutting back the live canes to four or five buds.

Give roots of new trees and shrubs ample room in planting them. Prepare the ground well in advance. Peatmoss is beneficial. Keep fresh fertilizer away from [illegible] roots.

[illegible] the perennial border until the ground has dried sufficiently; be careful not to disturb late-flowering bulbs and slow-starting perennials.

Divide summer and fall-flowering perennials. Replant the young divisions of the old clumps in enriched soil. Be sure to divide the dwarf perennial asters and the hardy chrysanthemums.

GARDENING QUESTIONS

Q—Please suggest a few evergreens tolerant of city conditions, especially partial shade.

A—Evergreens will not long survive where smoke and soot abound. Exhaust fumes from trucks and automobiles likewise are damaging to plant life. However, where the air is not contaminated you can depend upon the several varieties of Japanese Yew, Inkberry, Korean Boxwood, Mahonia and the Spreading English Yew.

Q—Why don't my sweet peppers produce peppers? My plants blossom well, but do not bear.

A—Sweet peppers are sandy loam soil crops and yield best on a well-drained soil that has been sweetened with lime. On heavier soils they invariably produce a luxuriant foliage with very little fruit. I believe that your soil should be lightened by working in a lot of sandy gravel and humus—plus lime at the rate of ten pounds per 100 square feet of garden area.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Pro grappling season here approacheth the end, but there'll be a big team match next Tuesday in the main bout at the Brock Arena. Maybe another show or two after that ere they lay off till autumn. Whipper Bill Watson will take large Bill Stack as his partner in an effort to subdue the unruly Masked Marvel and his unhooded manager, Mayes McLain. May 24th fireworks will come a few weeks early this year when these four husky matmen mix it in a "hey rube", as the circus folk would term it. Lou Pitoscia (who sports the colorful handle of Golden Panther) tackles towering Hi Lee in the semi-final, while Tony Lanza is pitted against Jack Wentworth in the prelim. Quite a mat card.

John Stott of Florida wrote recently to say he was the father of girls' softball in Peterborough. He submitted a picture of the Woollens' team here in 1920, and we ran it to get identification of the players shown. Had quite a few replies, too, and several backed up Mr. Stott's claim as to the launching of the first lasses' loop. Mrs. J. B. Halpin listed those shown as Lil Slaughter, Lil Gregory, Mr. Stott, Jessie Gregory, Myrtle Bradley, Freda Shurety, Hazel Blake, Lizzie Pollock, Rose McGovern, Dollie Woodgate, Edna Mann and Mr. Stan Gosselin. Another lady included Evelyn Drury, May Howe and Nina Sadler. They were quite sure of those names.

From One Who Played

However, Miss Slaughter (member of that team) was equally sure that Evelyn Drury, Nina Sadler, Edna Mann, Dollie Woodgate, Freda Shurety and Jessie Gregory were not in it. She agreed with the rest listed by Mrs. Halpin and added May Howe, Muriel Ashmore and a Miss Carter, first name not recalled. She said some of those others mentioned missed the picture or played for later teams. Seems only a few of that squad still live in Peterborough, others having scattered down through the years. So, that's the way it stands. Most, if not all, have been identified—and we'll ship the list Florida-way to Mr. Stott. And thanks to those who called in response to our request.

A committee of Dit Clapper, Cy Whatley and Ray Pammett will bring in a proposed slate of officers to be voted on at the open PMBA meeting at 8.30 p.m. Tuesday in the "Y". They may also have a report on a checkup with the Recreation Commission and the service clubs in regard to helping get the minor baseball association re-organized. We note in the London paper where criticism is levelled at the senior Intercounty League for failing to assist the minors, thereby slowly drying up their own source of material and making for more and more imports in senior ranks. The Petes and the Viaduct Loop do help the minors but can't do it all.

Officials Rate Credit

When a powerful OLA senior "A" club takes the field for Peterborough this semester—one with hopes of the Mann Cup in mind—don't forget that a lot of executive work all winter went into it. The officials have really labored long to give local lacrosse fans a top team. Such officials as: Bob Peirson, president; Ernie Braund, viceprexy; Mick Magee, secretary; Howard McLean, treasurer; Bob Curtin, manager; Don Crowe, coach; Red Creighton, assistant manager-coach; and executive members Paul Irwin, Dr. Herb Young, Pete King, Ken Kingston, Harry Yudin, Doug Miller and Walt Murphy. And mayhap one or two more. An able bunch of officials.

A good swim meet was conducted by Fraser Wade at the "Y" pool last evening, with Gord Minty announcing and a number of other officials acting in various capacities. Annual competition by the boys of the public schools, and they made quite a splash. Queen Mary proved the main winners, with Queen Alex coming through nicely for junior honors. Four trophies were put up by The Examiner, and Queen Mary holds the top trophy for a year, something Central made a habit of doing in the past decade. The McInroy-McBride trophy for diving wasn't ready for presentation last eve but will be handed over later. Results of the meet are in elsewhere.

Hardy Pitches Two-Hitter In Ottawa Win

By The Associated Press

Red Hardy of Ottawa Giants is a stingy man when it comes to allowing base hits.

Hardy pitched the Giants to a 3-1 two-hit victory over Buffalo Bisons last night in an International League game. In his previous start, a week ago, he turned in a brilliant one-hit shutout.

Hardy had a no-hit, no-run game working until the seventh inning when Arch Wilson broke the spell with a double. Frank Carswell followed with a triple to ruin Hardy's shutout. The Giants whacked Ernie Silverman and Carl Lindquist for eight hits.

Toronto Loses

Montreal Royals moved to within 36 percentage points of the pace-setting Syracuse Chiefs by slipping Toronto Maple Leafs, 6-3, while the Chiefs dropped a 6-0 decision to Springfield Cubs.

Relief pitcher Paul Epperly helped with his own game. Epperly banged a two-run double during a three-run eighth inning uprising. The rally broke a 3-3 stalemate.

Spek Padgett scattered 12 hits in blanking the Chiefs. The Cubs collected 11 hits off a trio of Chief pitchers including a home run by Jack Wallasea.

Rochester Red Wings turned back Baltimore Orioles 7-3 behind the seven-hit pitching of Jack Faszholz. Johnny Blatnik socked a three-run homer to lead the Rochester attack.

Lopat's Early Heat Puts Yanks In Lead Before June

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sport Writer.

Eddie Lopat, the New York Yankees' "hot weather pitcher" is very warm for May. With a 4-0 record, the chunky southpaw is well on the way to his first 20-win season.

He used to think he couldn't win until the June sun hit 90; professor Casey Stengel gave him a lesson in psychology.

"Casey proved it was all in my mind," said Lopat. "Just a lot of bunk."

Thanks to Lopat's runaway start, the Yanks have edged into first place earlier than usual. Last year it took them until May 16.

He had a 20-inning scoreless string going when St. Louis got to him for a run in the first inning last night.

Jeckie Jensen's fine defensive play helped Eddie over the rough spots enroute to an 8-1 win that sent the Yanks into first place. Jensen, one of the new Yank stars who gradually are ousting the oldsters, cut down a man at the plate with a fine throw and made a spectacular catch to turn a liner into a double play.

Philadelphia Wins

Alex Kellner, who has won two of Philadelphia's three victories, knocked Cleveland into third place with a six-hit job, 3-1. He got in trouble in the ninth when Al Rosen singled and Larry Doby doubled. Bob Hooper came in to retire the next three in order.

Chico Carrasquel's double in the 11th inning gave Chicago a 6-5 edge over Washington, knocking the Senators out of the American League lead. Marv Roblatt was the winner and Joe Haynes, fourth Washington pitcher, the loser.

Hal Newhouser finally got into the win column as Detroit jolted the Boston Red Sox 8-4. Two of the five Sox hits were homers by Bobby Doerr and Vern Stephens. Ted Williams went hitless for the fourth straight game.

Dick Kryhoski and Jerry Priddy were the big guns in the Tiger attack that handed Harry Taylor his second loss. Kryhoski had three doubles and a single and Priddy a double and a single. Each drove in three runs.

Braves Lead

Meanwhile, the Boston Braves throve on their home stand. With Vern Bickford winning his fourth on a five-hitter, the Braves slipped back into first place in the National.

Bob Elliott backed up Bickford's steady work with two home runs. Hank Sauer hit one for the Cubs.

Umpire Jack Conlan warned both clubs after one batter had to duck quickly and another was hit by a pitched ball.

Sal Maglie threw a one-hitter at Pittsburgh, 5-1, as the New York Giants backed him up with homers by Hank Thompson, Bobby Thomson, Monte Irvin and Spider Jorgensen. There was no suspense to Maglie's one-hitter for the hit was a triple by leadoff man Pete Castiglione in the first.

It was the second one-hitter of the season; Connie Marrero of Washington allowed Philadelphia only one—a homer—April 26.

Pitcher Russ Meyer won his own game with a two-run single in the Phillies' 6-4 decision over the St. Louis Cards. Meyer allowed nine hits including homers by Peanuts Lowrey and Joe Garagiola.

Cincinnati scattered 14 Brooklyn hits for a 5-4 win with some shutout relief work by Frank Smith. The towering righthander came to the relief of Howie Fox in the fifth. Duke Snider hit a homer in the first.

The Brooks had a run-in with umpire Frank Dascoli who tossed Don Newcombe and Dan Bankhead off the bench.

BOMBER COACH—Obviously pleased about signing as Winnipeg Blue Bomber football coach, 54-year-old George Trafton has made a big hit with the fans already. The California native started his football career 30 years ago under the great Knute Rockne. He said he hopes the fans' affection will last after Grey Cup time.

Fort Frances Now Favorites

OWEN SOUND, Ont., May 5 (CP)—Fort Frances Canadians rate as favorites to win the Allan Cup for western Canada as they prepare to meet Owen Sound Mercurys in the fifth game of the best-of-seven series here tonight.

Still grumbling about having to play all games of the series in Owen Sound, the Canadians figure to take the lead in the final for the first time. They have come from behind twice to leave the series tied 2-2.

Performance of the fast-breaking Canadians in last Wednesday night's game, which they won 4-2, is the chief reason they are favored to take the cup.

Outplayed

They outplayed Owen Sound, a fact that was admitted by coach Jack Markle of Mercurys who said: "They weren't hungry enough. They were cleanly outplayed by Fort Frances."

The western team is injury-free while Mercurys have one player sidelined and another two playing under a handicap.

Left winger Buck Forslund was sidelined for the series with a broken wrist. Art Hayward, Mercurys defenceman, ran a garden fork through his right foot on Tuesday and right winger Pat McReavy was under doctor's care Wednesday for a bad case of the flu. Both McReavy and Hayward will play tonight.

Bud Jarvis, coach of Fort Francis, is still peeved at the CAHA for ordering all games in Owen Sound.

"The CAHA executive members are a bunch of phonies and the CAHA itself is nothing but a farce," he said.

The association said Owen Sound is the only place where the series would draw. However, crowds have fallen off after filling the arena for the first two games.

Hockey Braves Demand Shift To Quebec

TORONTO, May 5 (CP). — Valleyfield Braves have demanded that the fourth game of the Alexander Cup final be shifted from Toronto to either Montreal or Quebec.

The demand was made last night by coach Hector (Toe) Blake after dates of remaining games of the best-of-seven series between Toronto St. Michael's Monarchs and Valleyfield were announced in Midland, Ont., by George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Blake was so burned up by what he described as the "run-around" that he wanted the series reduced to five games. He said his team wouldn't be here if site of the fourth game remained in Toronto.

"We were told that if the first two games in Toronto were split, we would play the next in Montreal," Blake said.

"Now they tell me the fourth game will be here Tuesday regardless of Saturday's outcome. Well, we won't be here—that's all."

Bigger Crowd

He claims his team would draw between 7,000 and 8,000 in Quebec or Montreal, compared to the small crowd of less than 2,000 for last Wednesday night's game in Toronto.

The series is currently tied 1-1. Third game will be at Maple Leaf Gardens tonight.

In Midland, Ont., Dudley announced that the fourth game will be in Toronto Tuesday night, not Monday as originally scheduled. The fifth is slated for Montreal Forum Thursday. If sixth and seventh games are necessary they will be in Toronto, May 12 and 15. Dudley said Montreal ice is not available for those dates.

Coach of St. Michael's, Johnny (Peanuts) O'Flaherty, wasn't impressed by Blake's demand for a reduction to a five-game series.

"What's wrong, are those old fellows afraid they'll be tired before seven games are finished?" he asked. "The schedule calls for best-of-seven. We'll play best-of-seven and we'll win the trophy."

Hints On Sports

By FRED MAYBEE

Pitching With Men On Bases:

Many otherwise effective pitchers display such excitement and poor judgment with men on bases that they offset their strength elsewhere and frequently have to taste defeat needlessly.

We have seen many good pitchers who seemed to lose their nerve with even one man on, let alone three.

Keep cool on the mound regardless of the particular situation at hand. Don't stiffen up. If you have made a mistake—or any other player has erred—don't lose your head or temper. Forget it and resolve to err no more.

With a man on first, stand, after getting signal from catcher, with right foot on slab and left foot pointing toward third base if you are a right-hander and vice-versa if you throw left, and don't ever wind up.

You must not face the batter and make a pitching motion once in the box until you actually intend to throw the ball to the plate, there and then. Otherwise you are committing a balk and the batter and runners, if any, are entitled to the benefits provided for them in your penalty, by the rules. Conceal the ball from view at all times as this puzzles the hitter who cannot see your grip or figure what you intend to throw.

If you have any habit that seems to indicate beforehand when you are about to throw a particular type of ball before you do throw it—have your teammates tell you about it.

Your success will depend partially upon your ability to deceive all members of the opposing team as to the type of ball you intend to throw, until the ball is on its way. Many a pitcher never knew how much his inability to do this contributed to his downfall in the ball game. Coaches will watch and relay their findings to the hitter. So make your technique foolproof in this regard.

Mastering Grip and Stance Basis Of Good Golf Game

By JIMMY DEMARET
Three-Times Masters Winner

You must have a grip and stance before you can play.

More important, you must have the proper grip and stance before you can improve.

Mastering these fundamentals is the basis of golf.

There are two predominent grips—the overlapping and the interlocking.

A few use neither, preferring to keep their hands apart. Others use a combination of both. But the greater number use one or the other, perhaps with slight variations.

Your hands determine the type of grip. With my large hands, it is the overlapping. Many with smaller hands find success with the interlocking, but if you have the natural physical asset of large hands you can use them to best advantage with the overlapping grip.

The correct use of the right hand in the overlapping grip is as follows:

Place the third finger against the index finger of the left hand, with the little finger placed across the second joint of the index finger.

Unlike the left hand, the grip of the right hand should be concentrated in the first three fingers.

The interlocking grip is the same, except that the index finger of the left hand and the little finger of the right are interlocked.

As I wrote in the P. G. A. Teachers' Guide, the important thing to remember in choosing the best grip for yourself is that you hands must work as a team.

Although the right hand applies the force or drive to the stroke for the most part, while the left generally is conceded to be the control hand, neither works independently of the other.

TWO GRIPS — The overlapping, above, is the most-widely used. The other is the interlocking.

High Average Taken By G. Walton's 235

The Men's City Bowling League wound up its schedule this week with a terrific display, topped by Cavanagh's with team pinnage of 3,854 and a single of 1,423, which nearly rivalled a single of 1,453 by McGillis earlier in the season. Holly Mowry had high triple of 851 and Harold Killen top single of 349. He had a three of 844 as Ray Clifford rolled 838, Fred Martin 817 and Bert McCarrell 808. Neat singles were H. Mowry 339 and 301, George Walton 338, Alf Mattucci 332, Tic Caccavella 323, B. McCarrell 318, Bob Crowe 314, F. Martin 312 and 304, Vern Ferguson 304 and Herb Correll 301.

George Walton won the season's high average for Cavanagh's with a nice 235, closely followed by Fred Martin. Walton won the Clapper Trophy. Bill Boon with 407 had high single to take the Ed Riley Cup, and Mel Akers took the Harold Davis Trophy with high triple of 976. Team standings and averages are being compiled. The doubles tournament is next Thursday night, and the banquet on May 17 at the Kawartha Club.

Shutouts were a dime a dozen on the final night as Cavanagh's, McGillis, Moore's and Sunocos blanked Swartz, Shockey's, Campbell & Best, and Clapper's respectively. Esquires took a 4-2 win over Bond's, while Dunn's beat Fashion-Craft 4-2 to wind it up.

BILL STACK, above, who will team up with Whipper Watson against the Masked Marvel and his manager Mayes McLain. There will be plenty of action in this match. Hi Lee and Lou Pitoscia are in the semi-final and Tony Lanza and Jack Wentworth in the opener.

Captain Turns State Witness

NEW YORK, May 5 — (AP) — Henry Poppe, 24, former co-captain of the Manhattan basketball team, will turn State's witness against fellow defendants in bribery and conspiracy trials in connection with alleged atempts to fix Manhattan games.

Assistant District Attorney Nicholas Delagi revealed this in Bronx County Court Friday when he won a request to have Poppe's case tried separately.

"We will use him as a witness," Delagi said.

Poppe and two other players, John A. Byrnes, 22, and Cornelius Kelleher, 35, were indicted along with Benjamin Irving and Irving Sschwartzberg and Leon Rappaport.

Kentucky Derby Mad Scramble For $100,000

By JOHN CHANDLER.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5 (AP) —The Kentucky Derby, a $100,000 scramble with 23 horses entered for the race, and probably 19 or 20 parading to the post today for the 1¼-mile classic, shapes up into a mass of turf confusion.

There is no outstanding favorite. So your guess is as good as the next as to which of the three-year-olds will be made the public choice by post time, 5:30 p.m. EDT.

Opinion now is wavering between Battle Morn, the bay flyer from the stable of Harry F. Guggenheim, and the entry of Mameluke and Counterpoint, owned by Cornelius Vanderbilt (Sonny) Whitney.

Arcaro Rides

Many racing veterans liked Battle Morn at around 4 to 1, with the Whitney pair at 5 to 1. However, the track handicapper figured Mameluke and Counterpoint would be favored at 3 to 1, with Battle Morn, 4-1. It seemed the choice fluctuates on whether you think Eddie Arcaro makes the difference in being Battle Morn's jockey, or whether the customer prefers a two-for-one chance on the two Whitney colts.

It might be well to check the records, however, when discussing such come-from-behind horses as Battle Morn, Mameluke and Timely Reward. In the eight derbies containing 18 or more horses, none ever came from behind to win in the field.

"How about Repetoire?" say some of the easterners who watched him win four straight stakes, his only starts this year. The people who have seen Ruhe, the Arkansas Derby champion and victor in Blue Grass stakes second division, like his chances.

Ruhe, owned by Mrs. Emil Denemark, is one of four geldings in the race. The others are colts. In addition, the Brown Hotel Stable duo of the Gink and Snuzzle both are geldings, as is Hall of Fame, one of the two Greentree Stable horses. Big Stretch makes up the other half of the Greentree threat.

Hopes For Oil

WINNIPEG—(CP)—J. D. Allan, Manitoba chief geologist, said in an address here that it is "entirely probable" that oil will be found in commercial quantities in Manitoba. He said wells near Virden were producing oil of good quality and the Melita findings were also important.

New Refrigerators Do A Hen's Work

New 1951 model refrigerators now on display in Peterborough don't have a laying hen as an attachment, nor do they have a gadget that fries eggs to order at the press of a button, but they do have the next best thing in the egg department.

The International Harvester Company which this year is presenting its famous refrigeration line to Canadians for the first time, has included in two of its new 1951 models a device that saves the egg from such formidable foes as heavy bottles and jars, roasts, melons and other bruising foodstuffs, and it assures the owner of always using the oldest eggs first. This apparatus goes by the name of Egg-O-Mat, and many consider it the housewife's—as well as the egg's—best friend.

"The Egg-O-Mat," said Mr. Cherney, local International Harvester dealer, "is an exclusive IH feature. It stores 16 eggs up and out of the way—above the bottle space. Want an egg? Two eggs? Just give the 'door' of the Egg-O-Mat half a turn—and lift them out."

International Harvester has developed another convenience feature that is included in all six of its new refrigerator models. It is a bottle opener built into the door frame. Now it's possible to open the refrigerator door, select a bottle, and open it all in one easy motion, and with no fumbling for an elusive opener.—Advt.

NEW EXAMINER TROPHIES awarded at the Public school swimming meet Friday night were won by Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra schools. Queen Mary School Team Capture Public School Meet

Queen Mary public school team captured the Examiner trophy on Friday night at the YMCA in the annual Public School Swimming meet. Well-balanced throughout the three teams, junior, intermediate and senior the west end school boys totalled 51 points with four firsts, five seconds, two thirds and one fourth.

Central, last year's winners, by virtue of a first place win in the feature event, the inter-school free style relay, 160 yards, placed second with 41½ points.

Placed Third

Queen Alexandra school for the first time in years indicated early that they might be city champions but due to the lack of senior swimmers lost those necessary points. Even then the team placed third with 36 points.

Other teams in the meet were: Prince of Wales, 24; King George 20½; Confederation, 1; Queen Elizabeth-May's-Grove Combines 0; King Edward, 0.

Queen Mary's senior and intermediates teams easily won the trophies in those groups. Queen Alexandra swept the junior trophy.

This year only one record was broken while another event was added to the program. Prince of Wales' Terry Northrop clipped 1.1 seconds off the previous record in the 14 years and over, 40 yards breast stroke. It was set at 31 seconds in 1948 by Keith Reid and George White.

In the new event the Central school intermediate free style relay team of Tranter, Killingbeck, Brooks and Naish set a mark of 1:55.4 minutes. Queen Alexandra's team was 3.2 seconds behind for second place.

According to the regulations points were awarded to the fastest times in each event. First place received five points, second three, third two and fourth one. In the relay races first place was awarded 10 points, second seven, third five and fourth three.

This was the third time since 1940 that the Examiner trophy has gone to Queen Mary school. Previous wins were in 1942 and 1943.

Win Diving Trophy

A first, a third and a fourth in the diving events sent the Cliff McInroy-Stan McBride Diving trophy to Confederation school which massed 201 points to edge Queen Mary by one point. Central school was close with 190. Other schools were: Queen Alexandra, 179; King George, 176; Prince of Wales, 173; May's-Queen Elizabeth-Grove, 162; King Edward, 110.

Eric Walker with 64 won the 11 years and under diving for Confederation while R. Jones was third with 68 in the senior diving and fourth in the intermediate with 69.

Stewart Brooks of Central school won the McInroy-McBride trophy as the best individual diver. He outpointed other contenders in the three ages groups in winning the senior diving with 79.

The Examiner trophies were presented on behalf of the Examiner by sports editor, Cec. Perdue. Peter Deck, captain of the Queen Mary team accepted the Examiner trophy and the senior trophy. The intermediate trophy was received by Ross Dobbin and the junior by Michael Triggs. Stan McBride presented the diving trophies to Eric Walker on behalf of the Confederation team and to Stewart Brooks.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Friday announced dates of the remaining Alexander Cup games between Toronto St. Michael's Monarchs and Valleyfield Braves.

Fourth game of the series will be played in Toronto Tuesday night, not Monday as originally scheduled. The fifth is slated for Montreal Forum Thursday.

The best-of-seven series is tied 1-1 and if sixth and seventh games are necessary they will be played in Toronto Saturday, May 12, and Tuesday, May 15.

Dudley said the last two games were being played in Toronto because Montreal is is not available on the set dates.

An American referee—with few precedents in English soccer—will officiate in London today in an exhibition tilt between Arsenal and Millwall. He is John Best of Los Angeles, who officiated in the world cup series at Rio De Janeiro last summer.

At Paris, Russia beat Finland 74-36 in the second round of the European basketball championships Friday night. It was the second straight victory for the Russians, favored to win the title.

The New York Boxing Managers' Guild Friday signed a one-year television-radio contract with the International Boxing Club calling for the staging of 102 boxing shows in New York, Chicago, Detroit and St. Louis.

The IBC increased the amount of money to be paid main event fighters on the Wednesday and Friday shows.

Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football League will henceforth be operated by a limited company under the name of the Argonaut Football Club.

Beyond the legal aspects, there is no change in the team's association with the Argonaut Rowing Club.

The formation of the limited company, notice of which is given in the Ontario Gazette, is aimed at operation on a "sounder basis a club spokesman said.

Eight teams will compete Sept 12-15 in the International Tuna Cup match held annually at Wedgeport, N. S., it was learned at Halifax Friday.

They represent the United States, Cuba, Brazil, Peru, Argentina, Chile, the British Commonwealth and Scandinavia. Peru is entering for the first time.

Chile, entering for the first time last year, won the title.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers Friday announced signing import Jim Spavital, a 220-pound fullback who runs 100 yards in 10 seconds.

Spavital, 24, played college football at Oklahoma A. and M. and performed for the Los Angeles Dons in 1949 and Baltimore Colts last year.

Bombers now have signed three imports, others being John Brown and tackle Buddy Tinsley, both with Winnipeg last year.

Three saddle stars with a Canadian background have a fair-to-middling chance of bringing home the bacon in today's 77th Kentucky Derby.

Foremost is Toronto Ted Atkinson, Greentree Stable's contract rider who will be aboard Hall of Fame.

Riding Big Stretch, the other part of the Greentree entry, will be Doug Dodson, an Alberta-born saddlesmith who learned his riding tricks on a Montana ranch.

Kenny Church, the 20-year-old Windsor product who has become a top-flight rider in three years of riding is upon Bernwood, Brownell Combs' colt who was listed at 15 to 1.

LONDON—(CP) — The British Broadcasting Corporation is to open a television school here. The idea is to build up a reserve of interested persons who can be called upon when services are extended.

Barrie Wins 2nd Leads Series 2-0 Over Winnipeg

By AL VICKERY.

WINNIPEG, May 5 (CP)—Barrie Flyers are in a rut. But it's a pleasant one.

The eastern junior hockey champions last night scored their second successive 5-1 victory over Winnipeg Monarchs in the best-of-seven Memorial Cup final.

Tonight the series switches to Brandon for the third game, with the clubs returning here for the fourth contest Monday.

Last night's victory gave Flyers a 2-0 edge in games and boosted the popular opinion of many fans that the classy easterners will waltz through the series in four straight.

However, coach Happy Emms said after the contest that his club was "playing away above their heads." But it's believed Emms made the statement with tongue in cheek. There's little doubt that Barrie is one of the smoothest junior clubs to appear here for some years.

Morrison Scores

Jim Morrison, a classy defenceman, also showed he has power on the attack. Leading defence scorer in his own loop, Morrison paced the Flyers' onslaught with a goal and two well set up assists. Leo Labine, Don Emms, Doug Towers and Neal Chevrifils scored the other goals for Barrie.

Barrie goalkeeper Lorne Howes again was robbed of a shutout by Monarchs' defenceman John Riley. As in the first game, Riley tallied his goal in the third period.

Jerry Toppazzini always a scoring threat, was credited with three assists, while Barrie's first-string centre, smoothie Jackie White, set up two goals.

Monarchs, outshot 28-19, again waited until the third frame before turning on the heat. Along with Riley, who stood out on defence with Don Johnston, forwards Gerry James, Ronnie Barr and Johnny Novak skated hard both ways and were the Regals' best.

Winnipeg held the fast-skating Flyers scoreless in the opening period, but wilted in the second when the visitors pumped home three unanswered goals.

La Starza Wants Fight With Layne After Win

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP). — Now Roland La Starza wants to fight Rex Layne.

The Bronx heavyweight set his sights on an outdoor bout with the kid from Utah after he knocked out Vern Mitchell of Detroit in 1:38 of the eighth round last night.

La Starza turned tiger to blot out Mitchell in the eighth. The bell saved a badly battered Mitchell in the seventh. La Starza weighed 189, Mitchell 191¼ for the bout that attracted only 1,630 paying $3,278.

Sue Oil Company

BOSTON, May 5 (AP). — Two Boston survivors of a Gulf of Mexico tanker collision which took 39 lives last month, are suing the Esso corporation for $550,000. The suits were filed by Frederick McMahon, 27, one of the few survivors of the tanker Esso Greensboro, and his brother-in-law, George W. Larsen, 34, who was aboard the Esso Suez.

SEATED IN A WHEELCHAIR, Queen Mary, 84, inspects replicas of England's coronation stone and chair at London's British Industries Fair in Earl's Court, last Tuesday. The chair was made in 1937 in Britain for the T. Eaton Company so it could be shown in Canada when the King was being crowned in London. It was flown overseas recently for exhibition at the Fair. Pointing out the reproductions is B. Horley managing director of Tibbenham's Furniture Company. Queen Mary walked earlier in her tour of the Exhibition.

Russians Seek Place In World Olympics

VIENNA, May 5—(AP)—Two Russian delegates met with the International Olympic Committee Friday. The conference lasted two hours.

The Russians, who were invited to appear here, are Konstantin Andriamov, chairman of the newly formed Soviet Olympic Committee, and his deputy, Alexei Romanov.

The Russians have applied for membership in the Olympic family which now includes 74 countries.

Spokesmen for the IOC have indicated strongly that the application will be approved.

Charges Baseball Violates Law

NEW YORK, May 5 — (AP) — Rep. Emmanual Celler (Dem., N.Y.) an ardent baseball fan, came out Friday in favor of a full airing of the disputed reserve clause with possible action by Congress to exempt the game from the Anti-Trust Laws.

"In my opinion baseball is now operating in violation of the Anti-Trust Laws," said Celler, chairman of the judiciary sub-committee on monopoly in the House of Representatives.

"We should not permit matters to drift any longer," he said in an interview.

The reserve clause binds players in organized baseball to negotiate new contracts each year only with the club that originally signed them, unless they are traded or sold to another club. A baseball club can refuse to meet the salary demands of a player, in which case he cannot play with any other team.

Celler said the judiciary sub-committee would decide next week whether to hold hearings on the legal structure of baseball.

Space Heater Satisfactory In Compactly Planned Unit

QUESTION: Will a circulating space heater be satisfactory in a five-room house?

ANSWER: Space heaters may be used for heating of this size provided the plan of the house is compact and the rooms arranged for free circulation of air to all rooms. It should be recognized, however, that uniform distribution of heat is not always certain when this type of system is used.

* * *

QUESTION: Our house is old and does not have many electric outlets. Is it dangerous to have a number of lamps draw power from one floor outlet?

ANSWER: It could be. Now that so many electrical appliances are in common use—radios, phonographs, sewing machines, picture projectors, curling irons, heaters, and so on—and multiple receptacles are available at any dime store, particular care should be exercised not to over load a circuit. Under no circumstances should fuses be replaced with others of higher resistance. The use of pennies in fuse sockets is foolhardy, as it creates a definite fire hazard.

* * *

QUESTION: It seems to me that in most clothes closets, especially shallow ones, the shelf space usually provided in the upper portion of the closet is not accessible for the storage of articles such as luggage. How can closets be planned to make these shelves more convenient?

ANSWER: In shallow clothes closets, this space can be made more useful for storage purposes if treated as individual compartments, having separate cabinet doors above the regular closet doors. This will permit easy access to the shelves directly from the room and eliminate waste space. With this arrangement, it will still be possible to include a single shelf for hats directly over the hanging rod.

* * *

QUESTION: Should a combination of different materials such as brick, wood, or stucco be used for the exterior walls of a small house?

ANSWER: To combine them successfully on the exterior of a small house requires considerable skill on the part of the designer. Since simplicity in design tends to increase the apparent size of a house, avoid using too many different materials which contrast in colour and texture and break up the exterior into small units. By the use of a single colour different materials can be used to provide variety, maintaining the appearance of size.

* * *

QUESTION: I understand the ban on the civilian use of copper and brass has been lifted. Can I get copper eavestrough soon?

ANSWER: We understand that it will be some time yet before copper and brass building materials will appear on the market. One large manufacturing firm we queried said "It is too early to say when copper eavestroughs will be made again."

* * *

QUESTION: The colour of our wood-shingled roof is beginning to fade. How can it be renewed?

ANSWER: A shingle stain of the same colour as that originally used may be applied over the shingles. The stain should be applied in a thin even coat. The shingles should be thoroughly dry. Prepared shingle stains can be obtained at most paint dealers.

* * *

QUESTION: I wish to change the colour and texture of an existing stucco wall by applying a new stucco coat. The present stucco is in good condition. Should any treatment be given the wall before applying the new stucco?

ANSWER: Wet the existing stucco and then clean with a solution of one part muriatic acid and six parts waters. The surface should be washed thoroughly to remove all traces of the acid and then allowed to dry. Moisten again prior to applying the new coat. If the existing stucco is smooth it will be necessary to apply two coats, dashing on the first coat to establish bond. Otherwise the new finish may be a single coat applied with a trowel.

* * *

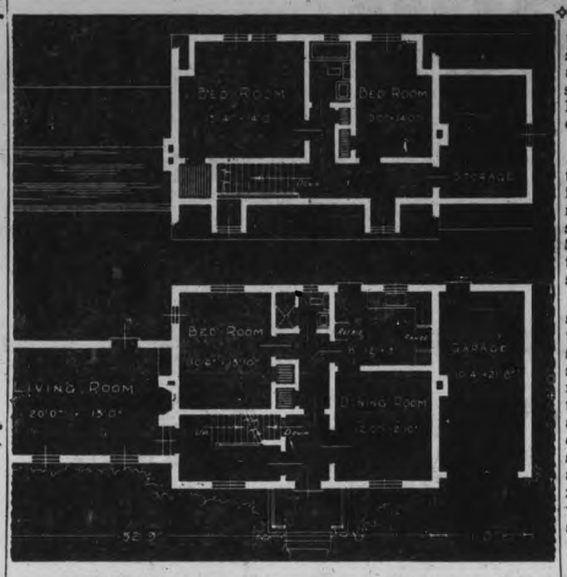
QUESTION: I have heard builders use the term "bearing wall". What does this mean?

ANSWER: Bearing walls are used to support the ends of floor joists and roof rafters. Nonbearing walls or partitions act merely as screens or separations between rooms or may be exterior walls which do not support floor or roof loads.

* * *

QUESTION: What is the narrowest that stairways should be in a new home. We don't want to waste any space or money.

ANSWER: It costs very little to put a few extra inches in width on a new stairway, greatly facilitating its use throughout the life of your home. Main stairways should never be less than 2'9" in clear width between the handrail and the wall. A width of 3' and 6" would cost very little more and would help the movement of furniture from one floor to another.

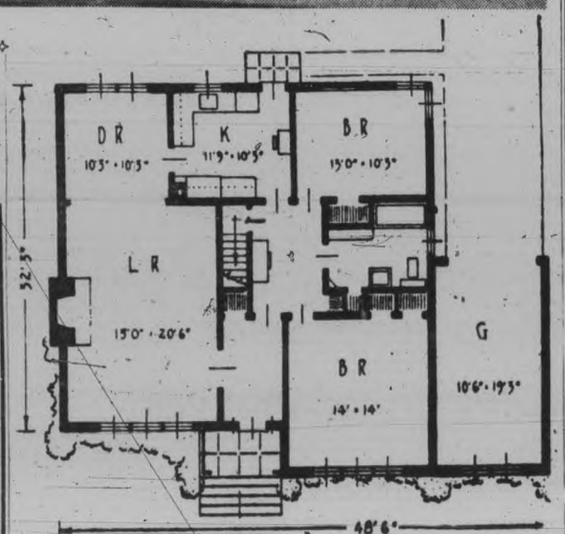


Basement or service stairs should not be less than 2' 6" for main stairs and 6' 2" for service stairs. This measurement should be made vertically from the front edge of the tread to a line parallel to the tair run.

* * *

QUESTION: Is there any use you could suggest for a number of fair-sized pieces of kitchen linoleum left over when our floor was done.

ANSWER: It's wise to save all the linoleum scraps left over from a kitchen floor re-do. Use them to line wardrobe shelves, shoe racks and the like, to protect window sills from potted plants, to make the top of your kitchen stool match floor and cabinet.



HOUSE No. 374 — This striking white brick home was designed for a beautiful corner lot. Roof and shutters are painted green. Although the house has only six rooms, it appears much larger from the front. Including the garage it has a frontage of over 63'. A glimpse at the plan will reveal the interesting arrangement of rooms on the first floor. Placement of the living room is unusual. The big bay window at the far end vies with the open fireplace as the centre of interest in this impressive room. Notice there are two steps down from the hall level. Stairs rising to the second floor at right angles to the left of the front door are a feature of the hallway. A bedroom and bath ar provided on the first floor, with two additional bedrooms and a bath on the second floor. The house has summer and winter air conditioning. For working drawing, write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

HOUSE NO. 511—Using the suggested plan shown here, this white clapboard cottage has five well-proportioned rooms. All have good window openings, and the layout eliminates cross-room traffic. The living room is unusually wide. It is separated from the dining room only by a wide arch. Most impressive is the master bedroom, which measures 14' x 14'. There are twin closets, too! The centre hall is roomy enough for a writing desk and would also be a splendid spot for the telephone. Here the garage is cleverly made a part of the pleasing facade. House with garage contains about 29,000 cubic feet. For working drawings write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Storage Space Necessity Should Be Well Planned

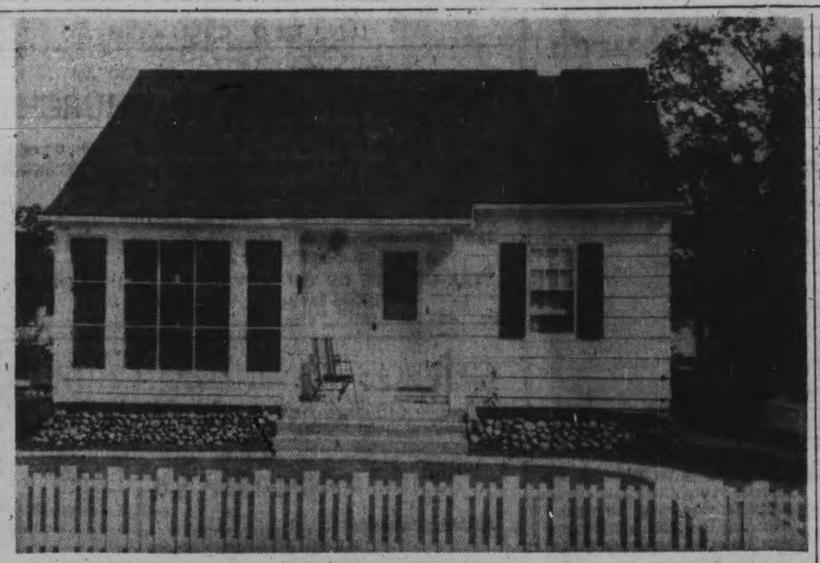
Closets and storage nooks are simply "places to put things," as most people often remark. Storage space not only is an absolute necessity in the home but it also must be well planned and adequate in size.

Family possessions and family housekeeping habits vary, and it is therefore difficult to establish fixed standards for closets. However, in the construction of a new home there should be a minimum of one closet for each bedroom, a coat closet, a linen closet, and a closet for cleaning and other equipment.

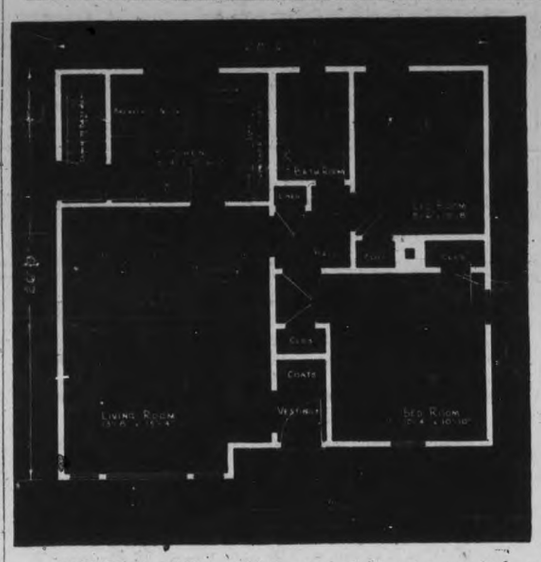
Basement or Attic

In houses of traditional design, additional storage space is generally provided either in a basement or an attic. In many modern houses, even those which are not of so-called modern design, both attic and basement have been elliminated. This is justifiable if adequate space for storage is provided in other parts of the house.

As a rule, the shallow closet is considered to be the most economical and can be most conveniently arranged, provided the opening is nearly as long as the closet itself. When the closet is long, two doors usually prove more convenient than one wide door.



An ordinary bedroom closet need not be more than about 24 inches deep, since coat hangers are only 18 inches across. About six inches should be allowed below garments for cleaning purposes after hanging rods have been installed. A shelf placed above the rod adds to closet convenience.



In the average small home a closet furnished with quilted satin and chromium is not necessary because simple, well-plannned carpentry may produce equally gratifying results. A closet to hold women's clothing should have hanging space ample to accommodate long evening and dinner gowns. A man's suits are short when hung and so shoe space may be provided under his clothing. Children and young people sometimes need storage space for their toys and other cherished possessions.

Hooks in a closet should not be placed within five inches of the door, should not be placed on doors less than 30 inches wide, and when used by small children should be placed within their easy reach.

Proper closet planning requires first, an inventory of the family's possessions which will need storage space. The average family must usually store, in addition to clothing and linens, such things as trunks, luggage, toys, possibly a variety of sports equipment, odd pieces of furniture and seasonal decorations, extra china, seasonal clothing, utensils and tools, and many other small and large items.

If closet space is not intelligently planned, there will one day be a sad realization that alteration must be made. Such afterthought may prove expensive.

HOUSE No. 169 — While you might not guess it from the photograph, this cottage is the smartest little house on the street. Its dazzling white exterior is only part of its appeal, the unusually pleasing lines catch the eye of every passer-by. Inside the house presents the ultimate in convenience and livability for a four-room house. Both bedrooms are quite separate fom the "living" area of the house, and the bathroom is strategically located to serve all rooms with equal convenience. Layout of breakfast nook and kitchen is good. For working plans, write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Careful Thought Demanded By Plumbing Plan for Home

Planning the plumbing system for the small house calls for two main considerations: (a) The inclusion of all necessary fixtures for bathroom and kitchen served by an efficient drainage and hot and cold water system; and (b) a special effort to make the plumbing installation economical by concentration of the location of fixtures. This latter consideration must play an important part in the planning and structure design of the dwelling.

For greatest economy it is desirable in one-storey houses to plan the kitchen and bathroom as adjoining rooms, but with sufficient space in the separating wall to carry the necessary plumbing lines. Through this combination of rooms and by placing the fixtures in the adjoining rooms along the common wall, only one vent stack is required for all the fixtures, and the lengths of drainage and water lines are reduced to a minimum.

In two-storey houses it is desirable to have the plumbing fixtures on the second floor located over the fixture on the first floor, so as to assure a concentration of mechanical equipment, minimizing drainage and water lines and permitting a single vent stack. In two-storied houses considerable additional drainage and water piping will be required in any design where the second-floor plumbing fixtures are removed from the vertical line rising from first-floor fixtures.

Laundry-Sink Combinations

In small dwellings at least one laundry tray should be provided in the case of one-storey houses, due to space limitations, it may be advisable to include the laundry tray in the kitchen in combination with the sink. In two-storey houses, where more utility space is provided, a double laundry tray should be located in the utility room as near the kitchen plumbing as possible.

The question of whether the bathroom shall include a shower in conjunction with the bathtub is entirely one of personal choice. A shower installation does not represent a great financial outlay, but in such minimum houses in order to achieve the maximum economy the shower should be considered as an extra. A separate shower compartment will generally be out of the question, unless it is substituted for a bathtub.

With the exception of the water closet, which should be of vitreous china, the plumbing fixtures should be either cast iron or pressed steel with a porcelain enamel finish. It is desirable to have the porcelain enamel acid resistant, but this refinement will increase fixture cost. The fixture fittings should be of good quality, of a type which can be easily repaired or replaced. Chromium finish on fittings and exposed pipe is desirable, due to its high resistance to corrosion. The slightly higher cost will be offset by longer life. In designs where the laundry tray is not part of the kitchen sink, an economical solution is the use of good quality cement trays with metal-bound edges and a steel supporting frame.

Painting Radiators

Radiators and pipes to be repainted should be first gone over thoroughly with a wire brush, taking off any blistering or peeling that may have occurred. Having given careful consideration to the decorative requirements of the room, apply your first coat tinted to approximately the colour desired in the finishing coat. Then follow with a second coat to the exact shade required. When a full gloss is desired, a good prepared enamel should be used for the finishing coat.

Ample time should always be permitted between coats so that each may dry and harden thoroughly before the next coat is applied. If it is possible to permit heat to pass gradually through the pipes between coats, the drying may be hastened... but do not apply full heat or the coating will undoubtedly be affected.

Nearly all light shades show a tendency to darken slightly due to heat. This should be taken into consideration when the color is selected.

The radiating power of the top coat of paint has a marked effect on the amount of heat the radiator will throw out. Metallic paint (one in which the pigment consists of small flakes of metal, such as aluminum) has one-sixth less radiating power. If a paint of this type is used it is therefore equivalent to removing one-sixth of the radiator. It is not necessary to scrape off existing paint before applying the new, since it is the outside surface that governs radiation.

Buy Fuel, Car With $1,075 Won In Contest

"I was speechless."

This was Mrs. C. W. Murney's reply when she was asked by the Examiner Friday afternoon how it felt to win $1,075.

Mrs. Murney who lives at 209 Stewart St. won this amount on a CHEX radio contest. Her name as winner was announced Friday morning.

Mrs. Murney was still noticeably excited a few hours later when interviewed.

"You'll never know how I felt," she exclaimed. "As soon as I heard the announcement I let out a yell and ran to tell some neighbor. By that time both friends and neighbors were either coming in or calling me on the phone to tell me that they had heard the news. Even my sister in Bowmanville called me."

Asked what she planned to do with the money, Mrs. Murney replied that she wanted to put in next winter's supply of fuel and use the rest to get the family a better car.

This is the second prize this Peterborough woman has won in two weeks. Last week she won approximately $50 worth of merchandize.

The lucky winner has lived in Peterborough for 14 years. Her husband is a spray painter at the CGE. Mrs. Murney came to Canada in 1936 from Newcastle-On-Tyne, England, and lived in Tyrone, Ontario, for nine months before coming to this city.

The Murneys have three children, Georgina, 3½; Charlene, 2; and Billy, 16 months.

Books For Decorations, Read Them Too

A young lady who had planned her home with more optimism than foresight found she had ample book space but no books with which to fill it. To the bookstore she made a request for books, many books. "Well," asked the clerk, "what kind of books do you want?" "Oh, lots of red ones," she giggled.

Now, to a bibliophile this is sacrilege but to a modern decorator it's a perfectly logical and lucid request. He, the decorator, is increasingly aware of the effects of books and their housing on the spirit as well as the physical charm of a room. This for two reasons.

Not only do books lend a feeling fo culture, repose and contentment but their use in shelves of various sizes is an inexpensive means of enlarging the apparent size or developing the tone of any room in the house.

Books will be found with growing frequency on a hanging shelf in the kitchen, a built-in space in the basement playroom or in the nursery as well as in their usual places in the library or bookroom, the living room and the bedrooms.

Sky's the Limit

Their possibilities in decoration are unlimited. Book nooks look especially well near a fireplace. Firelight and reading, somehow, complement each other. A nook near the fireplace makes books ask to be read.

A tall, narrow shelf may be placed at either side of a window with a comfortable window seat between them.

Built-in book nooks are as beautiful as they are simple. They can be placed almost anywhere in the house. Of course one must use discretion, but odd corners or small spaces extending into the room can be converted into shelves inexpensively. Rounding the upper port of recessed shelf gives a picturesque, neat effect.

Bring in Color

Book nooks are a convenient way of introducing color. For example a playroom shelf lacquered in orange on a tan wall, or a living room nook in antique-white on a blue or gray panelling will go a long way in relieving an otherwise monotonous wall space.

If you're planning your house and your book space, figure ten books to the foot and do not allow too much depth. Seven or eight inches is usually adequate. Allow plenty of room for expansion, however, as you naturally will add to your library later on.

Do not have the shelves too high or too low. If you think the books will be hard to reach up near the ceiling plan to put a small vase or piece of statuary on the top shelf. If they are too low convert the bottom shelves into cupboard space for the children's toys or for storing magazines.

Leave Out Glass

If at all possible do not enclose books in glass. Books are to be read, not to be preserved.

Old books add flavor to the decorative scheme but if too badly worn they should be rebound, either by your bookstore or yourself. Whichever way you decide on, get a variety of bindings. Have some done in leather, some in buckram, some gaily patterned paper and in shades of red or blue or gold.

United, Jewish Nation Stood; Divided, It Collapsed

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The famous saying, "United we stand; divided we fall," never had more forceful illustration than in the history of the Jewish people.

Shortly after the time of David and Solomon, the nation was divided by the successful revolt of 10 tribes led by Jeroboam. Two tribes, remaining loyal to Rehoboam, Solomon's son, comprised the Southern Kingdom, or Kingdom of Judah, and were hostile toward the newly-formed Northern Kingdom.

In a little over 200 years the Northern Kingdom fell under the armies of Assyria, never to be re-established; and 136 years later, in 586, BC, the Southern Kingdom fell, and its people were carried off in exile to Babylon. From that exile, of course, there was the glorious return and restablishment of the Jews in their homeland, described in the Books of Ezra and Nehemiah. From that exile, too, there was a great recovery in Babylon itself.

But the bitterness of that exile, and of the events that caused it, is set forth in the story of the invasion, and in the tragic 137th Psalm. That period of Jewish history, approximating in years the entire period of American history, surely constitutes a warning against division and internal strife.

Many chapters of the Old Testament read individually and casually, must involve considerable confusion to a reader, unless the whole story, and some broad framework of events and movements is borne in mind. It may help, if I suggest a brief outline of what occurred.

Following the return of the Jews from Egypt, the people were ruled by Judges, one of the greatest of whom was the woman, Deborah. The account of that period is in the Books of Joshua and Judges.

Then came the great leader, Samuel, grown from the little boy in the temple, who combined in himself the functions of prophet, priest, and king. But the people wanted a king, in reality, and not in name only, and so they complained to Samuel.

As a result, Saul became their leader. But his reign ended with a suicide, in a disastrous battle that marked a low ebb in Israel's defeat. Then came David, a man of war and vigor, despite the tradition of the shepherd-boy and the harp-playing, Psalm-writing King. He fought down his enemies and made the kingdom strong.

Solomon "in all his glory" extended its bounds, and made it stronger still. But much of that glory was built upon exploitation and oppression, and on Solomon's death the people cried out for an alleviation of their burdens.

It will be remembered that Rehoboam, Solomon's son, asked advice from the older men, who advised him to yield, but followed the advice of the younger men, who advised him to show them who was the master. It was then that Jeroboam came up from Egypt, where he had escaped after leading an unsuccessful rebellion. Now he succeeded, and the division began, with the movement toward doom that I have cited above.

"History repeats itself," and what is happening in Palestine today recalls much that happened long ago, giving a contemporary aspect to the interesting and inspiring story of Nehemiah.

On Nov. 2, 1834, William Robson and Robert Thomson were set apart as representing Cavan district.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CII. No. 106 — SATURDAY, MAY 5, 1951 — PRICE FIVE CENTS

60 Veterans Apply Under VLA

Interest Sustained By Ex-Service Men In Securing Lots

Approximately 60 applications for qualification for the benefits of the Veterans Land Act were received from the Kingston region during April. Most of them were from the Peterborough and Belleville areas, Major Alan Macnab informed the Examiner today as evidence of the sustained interest of ex-servicemen in this agency of government assistance for ex-service men.

Twenty-four lots and homes are established on the Stanley Wood farm frontage along the Warsaw Road. There are eighteen others on the Northey farm project property at the Lakefield turn, and about a mile to the south of that property 18 additional lots are being made available. Seven of them are in the process of being sold.

Four others have recently been acquired on the Hall property just west of the Berry service station on No. 28 Highway, about three miles west of the city.

These properties are all suburban and virtually rural. Individual lots are two or three acres, depending on their price. Assisted farms are in a different category.

The federal government absorbs 23 1-3 per cent of the cost, and the veteran 76 2-3 per cent. By this arrangement he pays 10 per cent down, and the remainder is spread over 25 years at 3½ per cent.

Opinion that the VLA would have expended its appeal to war veterans by this time has not been borne out by experience, Mayor Macnab said.

Its purpose has been to help men establish themselves and families in good houses with a gardening block of land for their own use, and at moderate cost. Recent applications are regarded as evidence that the feature of assistance and the terms of purchase are continuing to attract ex-service men, partly by the experience of others who are now home-owners.

HISTORIC SOCIETY

Oldest learned society of its kind in Canada, the Literary and Historical Society of Quebec was founded in 1824.

United States Has Become World's Most Hated Country

The United States has replaced Britain as the "best hated" country in the world, the Rev. Norman Rawson of Hamilton told 200 Lions Club members and friends Friday night. Peterborough Lions invited club members from Zone 10 to help them celebrate the 13th anniversary of the local club receiving its charter.

Mr. Rawson entertained the audience with a humorous talk that lasted more than an hour. His subjects ranged from cooking to communism.

Though the United States has poured out its money and resources to keep foreign governments afloat, it is the "best hated" country in the world, said Mr. Rawson. It has replaced once-prosperous Britain in that unenvied role.

Geared To U.S. Economy

The whole of Europe is geared to the American economy, he said, and yet the nations distrust her. Mr. Rawson said this was a disillusionment that stems from The First World War.

At that time Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, raised the hopes of mankind to a new high in idealism, but Congress would not permit the country to join the League of Nations.

"America played politics with the peace of the world," he said. "The European nations will never trust her again."

In an aside he remarked that though America may be the "best-hated" nation, she is not ignored like Canada.

All Getting Poor

Referring to Socialist Britain he said: "Nobody can say that in Britain today there is one law for the rich and another for the poor. They're all getting poor together."

Mr. Rawson was introduced by Stan Darling, international counsellor, and thanked by J. E. Girven. President Bert Sisson was in the chair.

Present at the meeting were club members from Oshawa, Bowmanville, Port Perry, Port Hope, Cobourg, Millbrook, Lakefield, Bancroft and Kingston.

The draw was won by Jack Dane, former director of recreation in Peterborough.

The new deputy-district governor is Charles Knox of Newcastle. He succeeds John Borrowdale of Oshawa.

Mrs. Maggie Weese

The Rev. E. J. Whan, Park St. Baptist Church, officiated Friday at the service for Mrs. Maggie Mabel Weese, at the Kaye funeral home. She died Wednesday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. William Mildenhall, 291 Dalhousie St., in her 73rd year, after a year's illness. Pallbearers were Frederick Kempt, Percy Kempt, Armour Weir, Roy Nevins, Mervin Bapty and Harry Weese. Flowerbearers were Oscar Ferguson, Ken Barr, E. Baptie and Lewis Crampton. Burial was in Norwood cemetery.

Puppet Making Course Given At YWCA

A wizard with puppets, George Merten, community programs branch, department of education, conducted a puppet making and manipulating course at the YWCA for the past three days.

With 20 years of experience in puppetry, Mr. Merten first started it as a hobby and since has developed the work into a full-time job. During the three periods he taught modelling and casting of heads, constructing bodies and manipulating the finished product.

In the fall an advanced course will be held on staging puppet shows and further techniques in construction such as moving mouths and bettering the control.

Now in its first year, Mr. Merten said that the puppetry course is becoming quite popular in Ontario. He has conducted courses in Fort William, Port Arthur, Bowmanville, Guelph, Lindsay, Stirling and Brockville.

In Fort William, he added, the board of education sponsored the attendance of 15 teachers at the course. They then taught their pupils and also formed as a group to produce puppet shows in the community.

"There is no limit in the scope of uses and values of puppetry," said Mr. Merten. "When organized it is one of the finest community activities."

Back On Job On Monday IUE Orders

Demands Announced As the Basis For New Contract

Everybody back on the job Monday morning is the order of Orville Martin, president of Local 599, IUE (CIO-CCL), to the 360 CGE officeworkers who walked off the job Wednesday afternoon. The union members left their jobs as a protest against what they considered a delay in contract negotiations.

The company suspended the main body of office employees all day Thursday for this action. A further suspension was made to a number of others who joined the walkout Thursday but worked Wednesday afternoon.

When the company announced that this second group of employees would be out Friday the union decided to call out the whole bargaining unit in protest.

Joe Wirtz, IUE international representative, said that a patch-up agreement over the dispute had been arranged Friday afternoon with M. J. O'Brien, general supervisor of wage rates, and R. M. Hardy, personnel manager.

The employees will report for work Monday and union officials will meet with the company at 10 a.m. to work out the differences.

At a plant-gate meeting Friday afternoon, attended by 250 officeworkers, Mr. Wirtz announced the joint demands of Local 599 and Local 567, Davenport works, Toronto: a 19-cents-an-hour straight increase, plus a five-cents-an-hour cost-of-living bonus; time and a half for overtime; double time for holidays; retroactive pay; pay for the time the company suspended the employees; and negotiation of any further alleged violations.

IUE officials have announced that the present company wage offer is a minimum of 14 cents an hour which includes a five-cents-an-hour cost of living index. There is no difference in rates between men and women.

President Martin told the assembled officeworkers that what the union wanted was "a fair day's pay for a fair day's work, but we'll decide what makes a fair day's work."

The good-humored gathering clapped and shouted when somebody handed J. E. Girven, assistant works manager, one of the king-size IUE-CIO buttons.

After listening to brief speeches the officeworkers lined up for their pay.

Lack Of Oxygen Not Propane Causes Death

City gas users have been doing their cooking and heating with propane gas for nearly two years, but few people know anything about the gas.

The gas is a product of oil that is obtained when crude oil is being cracked, or heated, in order that various refined oils can be taken off. During the heating process, different gases are given off at various temperatures.

Becomes a Liquid

Propane is piped off and then compressed until it becomes a liquid. In liquid form it is transported in railway gas tanks and then bottled in smaller tanks for more convenient handling.

When a pipe is fitted to the tank and the gas taken off to be ignited, the pressure is lowered in the pipe because of the open end. Often, as in the case of city's public utilities, the gas is mixed with a percentage of air before it is piped out to users.

Propane itself has no odor, but fire protection associations demand that the gas be artificially given an odor before it is sold so that people can smell it, if it leaks into a room.

The gas is not poisonous but under extreme conditions it can kill a person. However, this can only happen if the gas, which is heavier than air is not detected by smell and so fills a room that all the air with its life-giving oxyen is forced out. In that case, it is the lack of oxygen that kills a person, not the actual propane. The gas can make a person quite sick, but is not deadly.

Appliances Foolproof

Companies that sell propane under their own brand names, also sell the appliances that use them. Company employees install the appliances so that they are as foolproof as science can make them. Heaters and stoves all have automatic shut off valves which cut off the flow of gas if the flame goes out for any reason.

This prevents the possibility of gas escaping from a jet after a flame has blown out. So little carbon dioxide is formed when the gas is burning, that no gas escape vents are needed on stoves.

However, exhaust pipes are used on water and space heaters.

People can have trouble with propane as they can with any sort of heating fuel if the equipment they have to burn the fuel is faulty. Pipes that leak, burners that are faulty and should be changed, will allow propane to escape.

Propane manufacturers claim that their gas burns with five times the heating value of coal gas. They also say that it leaves no greasy film on stoves when it is used.

Propane has found an increasing use in rural communities where it is not economical to pipe gas. Companies sell tanks of propane to the consumers and install them. One use the gas has found is to give heat to chick brooders on farms.

Two Injured When Truck, Car Collide

Three Occupants Pinned In Truck Following Crash

A Peterborough couple received injuries late Friday night when the pickup truck in which they were riding was struck by a car and overturned on Highway 28, a mile west of Peterborough.

Earl Northey, 27, McKellar St., was taken to Civic hospital with a cut around the left eye and body bruises. He is being X-rayed today to see if he has any broken bones.

His wife Marjorie received a blow in the teeth and was badly shaken up. But after a medical examination she was permitted to go home.

Passengers in Truck

Both were passengers in the pickup truck driven by Asa B. Hawley, 23, RR 4, Lakefield.

Hawley was driving southwest on Highway 28 when he attempted to pass the car of Leonard Foskett, 20, of Wolfe St. At that moment Foskett started to turn into a driveway on the left-hand side of the highway, and the two vehicles collided.

The impact drove the truck sideways and knocked it into the car of Gerard Butler which was parked in the driveway. It rolled off the Butler car and stopped upside down with the body balanced against the roof of the Butler car.

The truck had to be partially lifted before the three occupants could get out of the cab.

Neither of the drivers was injured.

The rear of the Butler car was damaged and both the truck and the Foskett car were extensively damaged.

OPP Corporal Joseph Hanson and Constables J. G. Healey and C. A. Naismith investigated.

SECOND BREAK-IN IN MONTH

The Lillico Motors, 900 Water St., was entered Friday night around 1:30 a.m. for the second time within a month. This time a 1951 Desoto sedan was taken. Today further investigations are being carried on to see if anything else was stolen. Thieves several weeks ago stole a truck and a quantity of tires. Later the truck was discovered on Hilliard St.

R. J. Kidd Observes His 90th Birthday on Sunday

Started Work At $8.00 A Week When 21 Years Old Later Became Manager of First Chain of Shoe Stores

By HARRY THEOBALD

Eight dollars a week was the top wage of journeymen harnessmakers when R. J. Kidd, 462 Hunter St., came to Peterborough in 1880 to work for W. J. Devlin, who kept a harness shop on the north side of Hunter St., opposite the Percival Furniture Co. store.

That contrasts with today's hefty pay envelopes is one of the good humored memories that return to Mr. Kidd on the eve of his 90th birthday, Sunday May 6. They didn't call eight dollars a week "peanuts" in his youth, neither was money in its larger sums mentioned as "hay." In fact, it transpired to the young stranger from Walkerton, in Bruce county, that he was getting more than the 40-odd other workmen of that busy industry of the Peterborough of 70 years ago. Money was mentioned with respect.

Works Manager of Company

From eight dollars a week to the position of works manager of the B. F. Ackerman Company, at Dalhousie and George Streets, became some years later a measure of the ability and progress Mr. Kidd had accomplished by his own efforts and in the manner of the success of many another young Canadian of his generation.

When the years of his active manhood ended at the age of 75 in 1934, he retired as managing director of the R. Neill Limited chain of shoe stores, which he had helped to extend. From that level of time and position in the community, Mr. Kidd could agreeably recall his eight dollars a week when he was 21 and that spirit of recollection is brightened by the qualities of cheerfulness and sunny humor with which nature had endowed him as capital gifts.

Mr. Kidd was just out of his apprenticeship in the leather business at Walkerton when he read "a help wanted" employment advertisement in a Toronto paper. It beckoned to Peterborough, and without any serious thought of leaving his native Bruce county, he immediately sent off a letter of application. The next mail brought him a "come at once" answer from W. J. Devlin.

R. J. KIDD

"That was the only time I ever made application for work," Mr. Kidd remarked today, with some little accent of satisfaction above matter of fact recollection.

Very Active Occupation

Harnessmaking was one of the active occupations of that time when horse power was a literal source of energy in getting much of the world's work done. Through his early twenties Mr. Kidd remained at the Devlin shop. Then one day that was to become a turning point in his career, he received an invitation from the late B. F. Ackerman to spend the weekend with him at Port Perry.

Mr. Ackerman of the Norwood family of that name had set up a harnessmaking factory at Port Perry. He was a plain-spoken man, and he told Mr. Kidd that the purpose of the invitation was "with a view to taking a position" in his plant in the Lake Scugog town.

That weekend resulted in Mr Kidd's engagement. Three years later Mr. Ackerman transferred his growing business to Peterborough. He moved into the building at the northeast corner of George and Dalhousie Streets in 1890, and Mr. Kidd took charge as manager. The Ackerman company had built up a large business in western Canada, as well as in the east, and generally had grown substantially under the direction of Mr. Ackerman.

Several years after moving to Peterborough, the Ackerman company erected the building at the northwest corner of George and Dalhousie streets which still incorporates its name. Several enlargements to the factory were later developments.

Manager of Shoe Business

Finally, in 1903 the late Robert Neill called at Mr. Kidd's home one evening, and offered him the managership of the Neill business.

"I told Mr. Neill that I had no experience in selling and retail management," Mr. Kidd recalled. "His answer was that he wanted me to come with him, and it was not long until I decided to leave the Ackerman firm."

There were seven retail stores in the Neill chain in 1903. That number had grown to twelve when Mr. Kidd retired in 1934, and has continued in extension to the present total of twenty.

Tribute to Mr. Neill

"Robert Neill was one of the finest men I ever met. He was fair and liberal in all his dealings, most agreeable in all his relations with me and with people generally. My associations with him during the long period from 1903 to 1934 were always harmonious and pleasant.

"I remember the first business trip I made with him to Montreal, Quebec City, Boston and other places. It turned out to be an introductory trip. After that, he said it was up to me. Of course,

Ready To Hit Red Airfields In Manchuria

By TOM STONE

TOKYO, May 5 —(AP)— Allied airmen will get the green light to bomb Manchurian bases if the Chinese Reds throw the weight of their air force against United Nation's ground troops in Korea.

The 14 U.N. countries fighting in Korea are reported to be in agreement on the need to hit back hard if the Chinese fly out of their Manchurian sanctuary in force.

The extent of the strikes would depend on whether U.N. instructions were general or specific

General instructions might limit the attack to Red airfields. Specific orders could include rail yards, communications centres, war plants and roads.

Allied airmen would strike first perhaps at the airfields in Manchuria and North Korea.

See-Saw Battle

United States B-29s blast those in Korea every few days. The Reds just as doggedly put them back in shape.

The general public knows little of the Red air potential.

The pilots, presumably, are Chinese. But American fliers haven't let them get too much airplanes almost exclusively. Russian-made Yaks—propeller-driven planes—didn't last long against faster U.N. fighters such as the F-51 Mustang.

The Reds have used fighter combat experience.

The Reds came up next with Russian-type MIG-15 jets. American jets outfought the MIGs in round after round of aerial combat.

There are well-grounded reports that the Reds have some bombers. They would need such long-range planes to sweep below the 38th Parallel and return to Manchuria in an all-out air assault.

AFTER SPENDING most of his life in a private nursery in Switzerland, four-year-old Allan Greenwood (above) has finally found a home and mother in Montreal. Mrs. Ole Borden, the boy's godmother, has agreed to care for the motherless boy at least until Christmas. Mrs. Borden herself is Danish and arrived in Canada little more than three months ago. While in Europe the boy and his father had seen a lot of the Bordens and during Mr. Greenwood's frequent business trips the boy had been cared for by his godmother, who he now refers to as "Mummy." Mrs. Borden said: "The boy has been alone so long he needs love and affection and we will try to give it to him."

Normal School Students Plant 400 Seedlings

Arbor Day celebrations at the Normal School this year will take place during the next two weeks in three forms, a panel discussion, planting seedlings and visiting Harry Blewett's farm on Highway 7.

Annually the teachers-to-be celebrate Arbor Day either on the first Friday in May or any other suitable day after that, said Leo W. Copp, principal.

On Monday the Normal students will hold a panel discussion on conservation. It is based on the Thomas report recently presented to the Ontario government. The discussion will be followed by a film called "Temagami Ranger" on loan from the Department of Lands and Forests.

Tree Planting

Later this month under the direction of Quirt McKinney, the students will plant approximately 400 seedlings of several varieties in the tree lot immediately south of the school. Last year about 1,000 seedlings, obtained from Orono, were planted but 40 per cent died during the dry summer. These will be replaced this year.

Trees are removed annually from the lot and shipped to former students now teaching in schools throughout the area to beautify their school grounds. Already this year a shipment of trees has been delivered to a 1949-50 student who is teaching at Wooler.

On May 14 the students will conclude the annual festivities, after an address by Norman Davies, inspector of agriculture classes for the province, by visiting the Blewett farm. There they will see the results of experiments in forestation, contour plowing, strip plowing and water control.

Fewer Dogs, Cats Killed By Cars Inspector Says

During his first month as inspector for the Humane Society, Bruce Menzies reported at the monthly meeting that 24 dogs and 29 cats were humanely destroyed.

Only two dogs and five cats were killed by cars or trucks on city streets. Thirty-two dogs were picked up by the inspector and three returned to the owners. Sixteen cats were picked up.

Other animals humanely destroyed or killed on the street were a rabbit and two skunks.

Mr. Menzies reported that 65 warnings were issued to owners for dogs running loose.

The Society asks that the public note that the Humane Society number is still 4722 and that number is called when the inspector's services are required.

The annual convention to be held in St. Catharines on October 19-20 was discussed.

What Do Sailors In Korea Do In Their Spare Time

OTTAWA, May 5—(CP)—What do Canadian sailors do in their spare time aboard destroyers prowling the waters off Korea?

The Navy today quoted Protestant Chaplain Horatio Todd of Halifax and Ottawa, back home after seven months with the three destroyers, as saying they do these things:

They show a high degree of interest in the causes of the Korean war and what they mean. The padres spend hours, Chaplain Todd said, in telling them why Canadians are serving in Korea and what Korea means in terms of the struggle against Communism. The Padres stress spiritual values.

A lot of them study to improve their chances for advancement in the navy.

They read for pleasure. Every book passes from hand to hand, from ship to ship.

They wait eagerly for mail. Deliveries are made whenever there is a ship coming out to the patrol areas from Japan.

They read their press. Newspaper clippings sent out from Canada telling of their activities are read with critical scrutiny.

Occasionally they go ashore in Japan where, Chaplain Todd said, they are highly respected among the men of other United Nations navies. Their chief forms of relaxation are sightseeing and meetings with friends from other ships. They have made friends with sailors from many other countries.

Chaplain Todd has been a United Church minister in Kingston, Braeside, Ont., and Ottawa.

He is assuming new navy duties in Atlantic Command, having been succeeded in Korea by Chaplain B. A. Peglar, of Toronto and Victoria.

Can. Naval Captain Proud Of Korea Raid

TORONTO, May 5 — (CP) — Capt. Jeffrey Brock, home after nine months' naval service in Korean waters, said Friday he is proud of the "magnificent performance" of the men and ships under his command.

He has been captain of the destroyer Cayuga and senior officer of the flotilla of Canadian destroyers serving with the United Nations sea forces.

Capt. Brock gives up his command May 25. He will assume Aug. 1 his new duties as naval member of the directing staff at the National Defence College in Kingston.

Smacked Down

WILMSLOW, Cheshire, England (CP)—RAF instructors here were told not to make their recruits "look childish." The instruction followed reports that backward recruits had been made to write out simple multiplication tables.

G1 IN KOREA — Lt.-Col. Ernest Deighton (Dick) Danby of New Westminster, B.C., has been appointed senior staff officer at headquarters of the Commonwealth division being established in Korea. Col. Danby will be general staff officer grade one—the so-called G1—on the staff of Commanding Officer British Maj.-Gen. A. J. H. Cassells. Canada's 25th Brigade will make up one-third of the division's manpower.

Dummer Council Names Tax Collector

WARSAW, May 5 —(ENS)— Miss Mae Webster was appointed on motion of councillors Olver and Hamblin, tax collector of Dummer township at the meeting of the council held this week. Miss Webster's salary will be $300 and postage.

The council approved on motion of councillors Olver and Hamblin, combining School Section No. 1 and No. 2 into one school area.

The council also approved on motion of councillors Hamblin and Clysdale that the township go into the county High School Area.

General accounts totalling $723.82 on motion of councillors Hamblin and Olver and road accounts of $1,379.63 on motion of councillors Gallaher and Sloan were ordered paid.

Western Cities To Put Fluorine In Water

REGINA, May 5 (CP)—Fluorination of water supplies to fight tooth decay in Saskatchewan's larger urban centres has been recommended by the Saskatchewan Health Department.

Dr. F. B. Mott, deputy health minister, said there now is sufficient proof in experimental programs in both Canada and the United States that artificial fuorination of drinking water substantially decreases tooth decay among children.

3 Newspapers Quit

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 5 (CP)—Three small daily newspapers have ceased publication because of high newsprint costs, Orla Rode, Danish newspaper executive, said Friday night. He called on the United States to reduce its newsprint demands to aid other countries outside the dollar area.

New Zealand's Itinerary Of Royal Tour Announced

By PHILIP CLARKE

PARIS—(AP)—Some of the grizzled veterans of Paris' famed First World War "Taxi Brigade" are ready to rush troops to the front again if necessary—this time for General Eisenhower.

"I'd even shut off my meter and drive for nothing," said 68-year-old Julien Baby. He's one of about 20 survivors of the brigade who still drive for a living.

The brigade—some 3,000 requisitioned cabs in all—won a place in history by driving 10,000 troops to the Marne River battlefront in September, 1914, helping save Paris from the onrushing Germans.

Do it again? "Sure we would," Baby told a reporter. "We follow our destiny."

But Baby, a proud little man with grey hair and a bristly moustache, said many young Paris cabbies feel differently—"they are Communists and they might drive the soldiers the other way."

Butt Of Red Threats

Baby, a Catholic and a rugged individualist, faces Communism on the home front almost every day. Like most other anti-Communist Frenchmen, he is the butt of Red threats, ridicule and intimidation.

Many young cab drivers taunt him and other oldsters for refusing to join the Communist party or one of its union's. "They call us pigs and stupid old fools," he said. "But it is they who are imbeciles. Politics, bah!"

Baby still works a regular 10-hour day at the wheel of his 15-year-old Renault sedan and boasts he hasn't been sick in years. "Red wine and raw garlic keep me going."

Small Rewards

He brings home an average of about 600 to 700 francs a day ($1.80 to $2.00). This represents his driver's share of the fare—25 per cent—plus tips and a 75-franc (18 cents) daily guarantee paid by the taxi company.

Baby supplements his slim income by living rent-free in a two-room concierge's "lodge" with his wife Euphrasie. It is near the taxi company garage in the workers' suburb of Levallois. Madame Baby picks up a few extra francs running errands and doing other odd janitor jobs for tenants of the apartment building, all part of the duties of a concierge.

Most of Paris' 14,000 taxi drivers, 50 of them women, make about 1,000 francs $2.85) a day. They are younger and drive faster, picking up more business on the way.

Never Even Flat

Baby drove steadily to and from the Battle of the Marne in 1914 for 12 days and never had a breakdown. "My old two-cylinder Renault kept going 'glou-glou, glou-glou' along some of the worst roads you've ever seen. Never even had a flat tire."

Baby remembered that he made about two round trips daily to the front, then some 30 miles from Paris, carrying four or five soldiers at a time. He travelled in a convoy of about 500 cabs, often at the breakneck speed of 30 miles an hour.

Baby collected about 500 pre-war francs ($125)—a lot of money in those days—taxiing the troops. He was paid regular cab fare by the War Ministry.

"I made more money in the old days," he admitted, "but I still would rather drive a taxi than be President."

Approximately 35 per cent of the world's gold supply originates in the Union of South Africa.

Of Interest to Women

THOUGH THE MOTHER of the bride gladly plays a secondary role at her daughter's wedding, she still wants to look her best.

Dresses for the bride's mother are right in either the long or short length.

Designer Philip Hulitar transforms fragile mauve-orchid silk chiffon (left) into a floor-length gown. The soft folds of the skirt are banded in deeper shades of the mauve at the sides. A hand-embroidered spray of violets cascades across the bodice. The neckline is draped. Soft, concealing folds of the fabric cover the shoulder and upper arm.

For a wedding that's informal and pretty this same designer has dressed the bride's mother (right) in a short length, pure silk chiffon ombred in gray. The portrait neckline is caught with a spray of moss roses. The flared skirt nips in at a snug bodice that's belted by an emerald green velvet sash.

DOROTHY DIX

Little Thought And Energy Could Improve Marriages

When people are unhappily married, why don't they do something about it Why do they endure the greatest martyrdom that can be inflicted on a human being? Nobody knows. The great unanswered conundrum of life is why so many husbands and wives go along year after year quarrelling, arguing, scrapping, fighting, getting on each other's nerves, waiting for each other to die for their release, going through a hell on earth without making the slightest effort to improve their miserable condition.

Dorothy Dix

They don't permit themselves to be even made uncomfortable in any other situation without, at least, trying to better it. If their roof leaks, they patch it. If their automobile squeaks, they oil it. If some particular article of food gives them acute indigestion, they refrain from eating it. But if their marriages go blooey, they throw up their hands and quit. They don't even attempt to find out what's wrong with them and remedy it.

Divorce No Answer

So far the only solution that has been offered for the unhappy marriage has been divorce and that is not the right answer. It only substitutes one trouble for another and the last is often worse than the first. Any way you take it, divorce is a messy and unsavory business, full of broken dreams and blasted illusions and wounds in the heart that never heal, and cynical little children, who have been hopelessly maimed and bruised in their souls by the wrecks of the homes that their parents have pulled down over their heads.

Indeed, the price of divorce comes so high that many men and women, even when they are unhappily married, are not willing to pay it, especially when they realize that they have to sacrifice the well-being of their children to bind the bargain. Hence they just accept defeat and bow their necks to the yoke of a marriage that galls them at every step of the way without even trying to find out what makes it press so heavily, or doing anything to ease the burden, Most people are dumb as driven cattle about marriage.

Of course, there are marriages that nothing but a miracle from God could keep from going on the rocks. When a man marries a selfish, spoiled, overindulged girl, or a woman marries a drunkard, or a philanderer, or a ne'er-do-well, 'hey are as sure to come to grief as the sparks are to fly upward. There is no salvaging marriages like these, and they should be entered into only by those who are gamblers by nature, or who are gluttons for punishment.

But the great majority of unhappy marriages are not the result of great tragedies, nor have either the husband or wife wrecked the marriage with criminal intent. They are just the outcome of the stupidity and folly of men who, after finding to their surprise that marriage wasn't the Elysium they had supposed it to be, cried out that marriage was a failure and made no effort to save it.

Won't Work At It

The dullest man and woman alive know that the most important thing in the world to them is marital happiness, yet they give less thought and energy to preserving this than they do to running a greengrocery or making a cake. If a man's business slumps, he begins an intensive study and calls in the experts to find out what's wrong with his methods, but he never even asks himself why his wife has ceased dressing up for him or taking any trouble with the dinner. If a woman is not invited to join a club or is left out of a bridge party, she redoubles her efforts to make herself agreeable to other women, but it doesn't occur to her that the reason her husband has taken to stepping out at night is because he is tired of hearing her complain.

Every husband and wife know just exactly what faults they have that get on their mate's nerves. Heaven knows, they are told about them often enough. So, having a working diagram of just what to do and what not to do to keep husband or wife eating out of his or her hand, how passing strange that they do not take the trouble to do it when the rewards are so great.

The remedy for an unhappy marriage is very simple. It is giving the party of the other part what he or she wants, and refraining from trying to run obnoxious doses down his or her throat. If a woman knows that her husband loves good food, it is giving him dinners that bring him home. If she knows that he has the head-of-the-house complex, it is burning incense before him. If he is of a gay and pleasure-loving nature, it is stepping out with him. If a man knows that his wife craves perpetual love-making, it is handing her soft talk. If he knows that she is bound to have everything she does noticed, it is telling her how wonderful she is. If he knows that she likes to go about, it is taking her out at least once a week.

Oh, there is a cure for an unhappy marriage if we weren't too lazy and dull to use it.

SUNSHADE— The handsome elliptical shape of this shiny black straw is given a sophisticated air by a looped bow of black velvet tubing and a black tufted mesh veil.

Clinic's Welfare Visitor Friend In Need

REGINA — (CP) — A small auburn-haired widow with sympathetic grey-green eyes is looked upor as a combination fairy godmother and helpful friend by thousands of cancer patients in Regina.

She is Anne J. Ellis, welfare worker employed by the Saskatchewan division of the Canadian Cancer Society.

At her desk in the Allan Blair Memorial Cancer Clinic, Mrs. Ellis says she is mostly concerned with "review" patients. These she visits twice weekly.

During a five-month period this has added up to 6,200 patients visited, including general hospital, nursing home and out-patients.

Her job is manifold. She writes letters for patients, attends to their personal shopping and brings them magazines. Occasionally she takes patients to meet trains.

Helps Newcomers

Often people of foreign extraction unable to speak or write English to any extent must stay over in Regina for treatment. The difficulty of getting word to their families, often the cause of much anxiety, is solved by Mrs. Ellis who writes or telephones for them.

In addition, Mrs. Ellis supplies small comforts for patients who have very little means. Money for this purpose is supplied by the Yorkton, Swift Current, Moose Jaw and Regina units of the society.

Christmas is an exceptionally busy time for this busy little woman who sees to it that none of her patients is forgotten.

An important service Mrs. Ellis performs is to find suitable accommodation near the clinic. She endeavours to find sypathetic environment for each patient seeking a temporary residence. She keeps a file of these accommodations and says:

"I've had to knock at doors but I usually find what I'm looking for."

Cancer patients are remarkably cheerful and most appreciative, Mrs. Ellis says, adding of her own role: "The work grows on you."

What's Right

You have a quarrel with a friend and realize that you were at least partly to blame.

WRONG: Decide that you will forgive the friend if an apology is offered you.

RIGHT: Apologize yourself, instead of waiting.

Aunt Jane didn't know the score..
Aunt Jane believed she was protecting her favorite nephew, the one who had been so thoughtful of her all through the years.
She made her own Will.
The court declined to accept it for probate. It was a Holograph Will (written in her own handwriting without witnesses) while she was domiciled in the Province of Ontario. The result was all of the nephews received equal shares, even those who had been unkind to her.
If Aunt Jane had employed an experienced lawyer to prepare her Will, her estate would have been distributed as she had intended.
DON'T take the chance. See our Estates Officer who is familiar with administration and tax problems, and who will co-operate with your Lawyer.

Officers' Military Ball Revives the "Old Times"

"It's like old times" was a remark that was repeated often Friday night, and it was good to hear even to those attending their first Military Ball in the Officers' Mess of the Peterborough Armouries. Fitting also would have been the stirring remark made recently by a US General, "Old soldiers never die."

Mostly officers and their ladies were attending the ball, at the invitation of the Officer Commanding and Officers of the 50th Heavy Anti-Aircraft Regiment RCA. Lt. Col. M. E. Clarke ED and Mrs. Clarke and president of the Mess, Capt. Gordon Langhorne and Mrs. Langhorne received.

Dancing was enjoyed in the upstair hall and a sumptuous buffet luncheon was laid out downstairs where the pleasant reminiscences that comprise so much of the program at these affairs could be gone over in leisurely fashion.

Officers and guests attending included:

Eunice Minifie Entertains YPU

OMEMEE, May 5 (ENS)—"How we are working for peace through food-aid" was the subject for consideration at the May meeting of Trinity United Church WMS Thursday evening.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. C. G. Shaw, with Mrs. Graham presiding and 31 members present. Miss O. Winton's resignation as recording secretary was accepted and assistant secretary Mrs. W. Weir was appointed secretary with Mrs. A. Wei as assistant. The president announced the sectional rally at Dunsford May 20, and Mrs. Moyer read a list of acceptable articles for the bale which is to be packed June 1. Mrs. V. Lang and Mrs. Moyer were appointed a committee to meet representatives of the WA to arrange to entertain the Bethel WA in September.

The program was in charge of Mrs. H. McKee and her group. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. G. Smith, and Mrs. Hough read an article, "Love means adventure," written by Kagawa. Mrs. I. Connell and Miss L. Race played a piano duet.

"How we are working for peace through food-aid" was discussed under three headings, each of which was introduced by Mrs. McKee, presented in questionnaire style by members of the group. "Food Versus Famine" was discussed by Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Hough; "Bread Versus Bullets" by Mrs. I. Connell and Mrs. Northey, and "Apathy Or Aid" by Mrs. W. Fisher and Mrs. Graham. In summing up, Mrs. McKee quoted Dean Acheson: "As long as there are millions of undernourished people there will be danger of war." She also called attention to women's responsibility in creating the kind of public opinion that will not tolerate the deliberate misuse and wastage of food.

Junior Choristers Of St. Paul's Given Supper

A delightful supper was given the members of the Junior Choral Group of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Friday night by the Ladies' Aid. Organized five months ago under the direction of Gwen Craw the Choral Group has had a most successful season. They appeared in the choir concert of Monday night for the first time in their new white surplices, white collars and red ties which were also supplied by the Ladies' Aid of the congregation.

The tables were set in the primary room which was decorated with gaily coloured balloons. On the head table was a ginger bread house illustrating the nursery story Hansel and Gretel. This was made by Mrs. Howard Shimer and at each place card was a cellophane wrapped bag of candies.

Mrs. George Coleman convened the supper and some of the mothers of the choral members waited on the tables. A presentation of compacts was made by Terry Spencely and Gail Smillie to Mrs. Craw and Mrs. Laurie Mitchell who so kindly helped during the season. Mrs. Craw thanked the girls and boys for their regular attendance and told them that she had already chosen some beautiful music to start on in the fall. She also thanked the Ladies' Aid and the mothers for the support they had given the choral group and Mrs. Mitchell for her help.

Following the supper all adjourned to the Guild Room where two films were shown.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION: Would you please send me a calorie chart? Is this stamp enough? One sure sign of spring is the rush for the reducing chart!

I like your page very much—never a dull moment when I visit with you.

How is the church play coming along? I'll bet you are enjoying every minute of it. Best wishes to you and your family. Mrs. Bessie P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I will send your calorie chart along as soon as I receive a new supply.

The church play is doing famously. How could you guess I was having so much fun? Guess what I am? The make-up artist! The young people have put it on in five different cities and I've seen every performance and because they are young and do so much ad-libbing on the stage it is full of surprises every night. They are going to have a considerable sum to give to the building fund. Thanks for asking.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: Your interesting column is very helpful, especially to we "rank amateurs," and I have a problem or two with which you may be able to help me.

First of all I'd like to have any pamphlets you could send on dietary problems. I can't seem to hold off any weight I lose.

Last year I quick-froze peaches and strawberries but as soon as they thawed for the table they turned "mushy" and had no texture. I was wondering if I could cut down on the sugar used in canning them; they are much too sweet. The vegetables were very nice and I hope to do much more this season.

I hope one of your readers could give me a recipe for wild strawberry jam that isn't too sweet, also a recipe for sliced green tomato pickle and for preserving green peppers to be later used for cooking.

I realize it's a large order but I've been saving these questions for the day I "must write" and ask before the season has come and gone. Mary A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I have a new supply of calorie charts ordered and will send yours when I receive them.

Peaches can be frozen successfully but are not considered the 100 per cent perfect products that raspberries, strawberries and blueberries are.

✧ ✧ ✧

Frozen Peaches

Use either Vedette, Hale, Elberta, Valiant or Veefreeze. They should be ripe but definitely firm. Dip in boiling water 60 seconds to peel them. Then slice or quarter and remove pits. Pack with dry sugar using as little sugar as you like. The sugar content does not effect their freezing power—in fact they freeze harder with less sugar. The trick in the successful use of frozen fruits is to use them the instant they are ready to eat. You see the freezing process breaks the tiny cellular structure of the fruit and when it thaws this collapses and the fruit goes mushy.

Same is true of strawberries. They do not need blanching though. Use as little sugar as you like, but use the berries the instant they are thawed.

Let me give you my recipe for crushed wild strawberry jam.

✧ ✧ ✧

Wild Strawberry Jam

Four cups crushed wild strawberries (or cultivated berries), 7 cups sugar, ½ cup liquid pectin, ¼ teaspoon butter, ¼ cup lemon juice. About 2 quarts berries are required. Wash, then hull. Crush one layer at a time in a flat saucepan with potato masher. Measure 4 cups. Add the sugar and mix. Add butter and lemon juice and stir over full heat. Boil for 2 minutes hard, stirring. Stir and skim jam alternately during the next 5 minutes. Dip the mixture with a sterile cup into clean hot jars which have been sterilized. Fill to within ½ inch of tops. Cover the hot jam at once with thin coating of very hot fresh paraffin, adding a second thicker coating when all is cold, rolling the glasses to make film come high on sides.

Please see next Readers' column for recipes for sliced green tomato pickle and preserved green peppers.

LITTLE IODINE by JIMMY HATLO

New Spring Togs Attract UK Women

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON—(CP)—In the first days of spring sunshine, bright shop windows proved an irresistible magnet for British women bored by the long wet winter.

Lunch-time crowds flocked around clothing stores, drawn by windows dressed in spring flowers and displaying crisp, fresh linens and colored cottons.

The office worker dreaming of summer weekends on the Thames or rush trips to the seaside, and the Mayfair debutante contemplating her Ascot finery all went window-shopping—or shop-gazing as they call it here.

Can't Decide

With memories of the wettest winter on record and the dull summer of 1950, would-be Ascot belles can't make up their minds between shantung or taffeta, organza or nylon and the sensible lightweight wools that may mean the difference between a heavy cold and a snug enjoyment of the race.

Designers try to meet necessity half-way by combining cleverly-tailored coats of shantung and taffeta and matching or lighter-weight dresses. One such attempt is a slim woven shantung dress in black and white horizontal patterning teamed with a full black taffeta coat, with big bell sleeves cut in one piece.

This ensemble and others like it cost around £40 ($120). The full coat is complementary to the dress when merely carried over the arm.

Nylons Feature

Top choice in summer materials, both for race meetings and holiday planning, will be the latest nylons, a British product with new weave and texture. There are more than 50 types of sheer and brocade materials including the latest organzas made from superfine yarn, woven lace effects, voiles with satin stripes and irredescent organzas with metal threads.

Tub frocks and garden frocks in gaily-colored cottons can still be had for less than 30s. ($4.50) while lovely shantungs with skirt fullness, cuffed, strapless top and matching bolero cost around £8.

Surprise of the season is the increasing number of smart-cut playsuits and beach-suits at moderate prices. Typical is a tailored white sharkskin play-suit with straight, strapless bra-line and brief, uncuffed shorts tied by a colored waist sash costing only 63s.

SERVEL

SERVEL

What is so marvellous about this name?

Why do we rave about it so much?

Ask anyone who owns a Servel Refrigerator,

They all rave too!

Imagine even where there is no Hydro, you can have perfect refrigeration in the hottest weather when you need it most, with only a coal oil flame.

Looks like any other refrigerator, but, is comparable to none.

Words fail us.

Come and see for yourself this modern miracle of "Ice From Heat."

Servel Electric models are available too—in the same Miracle Freezing system—no motors—no machinery of any kind!

We install ANYWHERE by land or water.

West Rejects Wording Disarmament Clause

PARIS, May 5—(AP)—The Western powers will reject Russia's wording of a proposal to disarm the Big-Four nations, it was learned today.

The Deputy Foreign iMnisters of the United States, Britain and France met with Russia's Andrei Gromyko to try to prepare a list of conference subjects for their foreign ministers.

Russia insists that the subject dealing with arms and armies be worded " . . reductions of armaments and armed forces of the U.S.S.R., the United States, United Kingdom and France. . ."

The western Big Three want it to say " . . international control and reduction of armaments and armed forces."

Russia's wording, western informants said, provides for no control over disarmament and would ignore the armed strength of satellite nations.

New Laboratory

KENORA—(CP)—A new provincial laboratory here will provide service for a wide area of Northwestern Ontario in testing samples of blood, milk and water submitted for analysis. Previously such samples were sent either to Winnipeg or Fort William.

he would discuss matters pertaining to buying and stock between times, but that was his attitude of trust and delegating responsibility.

"Mr. Neill had come to Peterborough from Barrie to open a boot and shoe store here. It was his business and he developed it into a series of stores elsewhere with headquarters here. That is an illustration of his enterprise. I am not quite positive about it, but I think he was one of the first to adopt that policy of multiple stores in this country. In fact I don't know the name of any other on that basis in his day.

"In his criticism he was always fair and kindly. It was also his practice to satisfy customers. Exchanges were made readily, but the customer had to be right, that is Mr. Neill did not want anyone trying to take advantage of him and his business methods."

Thousands of people of the city and district, especially heads of families, had not only a friendly feeling for R. J. Kidd, but they also trusted his judgment and his rating of shoe values. He had been out of the business since 1934, but he will always be remembered for the sincerity of his character, which time had verified, and for abiding interest in people in the ordinary community relations since his retirement from the roles of salesman and manager.

Mr. Kidd said that as manager of Neill's he made many personal contacts with the people of the city and country.

"And out of those business contacts grew many friendships. That is still one of the rewards of my years with the store which I prize most. On Tuesday this week when I dropped into the store, one of the Indians of our district greeted me with a broad smile. He asked me if I remembered an occasion when he said I had done something of help for his son when he was attending the Collegiate. It had become hazy to me, but this customer of years ago was still grateful in his remembrance."

Active in Church Circles

Mr. Kidd has been a member of the board of trustees of Trinity United Church not only from its opening for worship, but beyond its building to the old church on Charlotte St. at the southeast corner of Reid St. That connection and service exceeds forty years as treasurer. Today he is the only surviving member of the original board of Trinity. Those who are gone were:

More Power Used

TORONTO, May 5 (CP).—Subnormal temperatures and lack of sunshine during the last week of April brought unprecedented demands for power on southern Ontario's hydro resources, Hydro chairman Robert H. Saunders said Friday. He said the increasing demand for power would continue for some time to come.

Prices Climb Market Buying Still Selective

Under highly selective buying, prices again worked their way higher on stock markets this week, extending last week's advance.

The cautiousness and selected trading that has been the policy of investors during the sluggish dealings of the last 2½ months was accentuated this week. Investors were showing more interest in the market than they have for weeks, but they were being careful with their money. Key issues that lead the market and the odd promising mine held their attention. As a result, individual stocks pushed ahead while the bulk of the market moved slowly.

Trading Slow

Canadian markets started the week with little significance. On Monday prices barely moved as trading began its 11th slow week. Easiness developed Tuesday and by the close a handful of minor declines had pulled the prices slightly lower.

Prices held about steady Wednesday in one of the slowest trading days of the year.

Selective strength began asserting itself Thursday. Key industrials and a handful of base metals lifted prices upward in Toronto while in Montreal papers climbed briskly. Activity picked up.

The advance continued Friday with Toronto industrials and base metals and Montreal papers again heading the way. The Montreal average for papers was at a 1951 peak and the Toronto Stock Exchange industrial index was just under its all-time peak.

Friday Up

Yesterday's trading showed a sharp increase. Toronto's turnover of 1,735,000 shares was the greatest it had been since February 21 and quite a contrast to Wednesday's 944,000 shares.

In New York the Associated Friday to Friday increased $1.40 at $97.50.

From Friday to Friday the Montreal averages showed papers up 27.40 at 83.15, industrials up 4.1 at 229.7, banks off 0.01 at 30.25, utilities up 1.4 at 89.2, combined up 3.3 at 182.9, and golds off 1.06 at 63.18.

The Toronto Stock Exxchange indices for the week showed industrials up 2.68 at 337.14, golds down .90 at 77.90, base metals up 2.72 at 184.52, and Western oils down 1.38 at 105.85.

US Recommends Newsprint Hunt

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—The Monopoly Committee of the House of Representatives, in tentative findings made public yesterday, recommended positive government action for development of newsprint resources in Alaska and the Southern States.

This, and recommendations for closer anti-trust law supervision over the United tSates and related Canadian newsprint industry, are contained in a report still subject to committee approval.

The committee report encouraged Canada to increase its production.

It also proposed that Canadian companies be required to register with the Secretary of State and agree to make their records subject to subpoena and other legal processes of the United States.

Mr. Gregg told the Commons that he had invited George Burt, head of the United Auto Workers, and 11 of his lieutenants to meet with him and other government officials to discuss the problem.

That meeting was held and Defence Production Minister Howe reported the government's production plans in great detail. He had said that there would be no more delay in a change-over from cars to, say, aircraft parts than there would be in the normal change-over from production of one model of car to another.

Devoted Singers Do Good Work In Maritime Opera

By JACK BRAYLEY

HALIFAX — (CP) — Giacomo Puccini might have grabbed the ceremonial dagger and committed hari-kari had he caught "Madame Butterfly" munching a big red Annapolis Valley apple on a squeaking stage here recently.

It's more likely that he would have applauded what followed when Audrey Farnell, soprano choir singer of Amherst, N.S., swallowed the last bite and then gave a beautiful rendition of the closing aria "My Son Sent Me From Heaven."

For Nova Scotia apples and opera singers are all mixed up when it comes to rehearsals for the Grand Opera productions of the young but highly successful Nova Scotia Opera Association.

Rehearsals sometimes start at two o'clock in the afternoon and go on until close to midnight, with no break for lunch. That's where the apples and the odd chocolate bar come in.

Three-Night Run

The Madame Butterfly production, scheduled for a three-night run in the city's biggest theatre in mid-June, is designed to be as professional sounding and as professional looking as the previous three sell-out efforts of the community company —Don Giovanni, The Tales of Hoffman and La Traviata.

The opera program is part of the big cultural movement sweeping the Maritimes and sparked from Halifax where the aftermath of the war deposited a group of talented Latvians from the National Opera of Riga. They have provided the know-how for opera, ballet and a symphony orchestra.

In Saint John there is a large-scale symphony orchestra and in other points there are various similar groups.

Latvian Leader

Big, bald Mariss Vetra, star of the Riga Opera, is the production chief of the Nova Scotia Opera Association and it is largely through his infectious enthusiasm that this cultural form of entertainment has been firmly established.

Like the rest of his small band of new Canadians, he has surrounded himself with local Maritime talent that had little outlet beyond the church choir, school concert or military band. "The talent was easy to find," he says, "and we soon interested a group of citizens who found the money and provided a business setup."

It's a community effort and the association decided the other day that association members — who pay anything from a $2 family membership up to a $500 patron's fee—should be allowed to feel they are an integral part of the movement. They were invited to come to working rehearsals — possibly a new departure in opera production in Canada.

Already the members had raked their attics in a treasure hunt for props and costume material. The women had formed sewing teams and the men helped with administration and stage mechanics.

The principals, drawn from various parts of the Maritimes, get paid as much as the budget can afford, the musicians get paid at union rates, the chorus and the rest of the workers are volunteers. Most of the cast make their living in various vocations. Only a few concentrate on music, and these are teachers.

Right Spirit

At rehearsals the cast used the inadequate stage of an institution. Here members of the Association drop in and sit for an hour or so watching Miss Farnell and Earl Doucette, Glace Bay tenor playing the role of "Lieut. Pinkerton," and other members of the cast efficiently singing their parts.

Their actions are a little out of keeping with the story. For instance, when baritone Raymond Simpson of Halifax goes through the Oriental motion of leaving his shoes at the door to reveal a pair of blazing socks that are most unoriental. But the rehearsal goes on with Producer Vetra and Conductor Alfred Strombergs halting it from time to time to give advice and improve presentation.

The pauses for a bite of food add to the homely, community effect that makes opera seem closer to a lot of people whose only previous experience, in many cases, was listening to it on the radio.

Inflation Second In Dangers To Canada

TORONTO, May 5 — (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Friday that next to the possibility of war, inflation now is the greatest danger facing Canada.

Speaking at the 60th anniversary meeting of the Ward One Progressive Conservative Association here, he said Canada has "inflation by invitation."

Government innuendos for power to impose price controls, last September and again in February, have served to increase inflation in anticipation of controls, he said.
